Organization of front-of-house employees progressing—others also included

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Acceptance of a new agreement on hours, wages and a closed shop for all front-of-house employees in this city's 32 chain-owned theaters was awaited today by IATSE Organizer Lawrence Katz and the newly elected officers of the recently formed theater employees' union from the home offices of Warners, Loew's, Shea's and the Harris Amusement Company.

Meanwhile Katz is preparing for a conference with a special labor committee from the Independent Moving Picture Theater Owners of Western Pennsylvania, composed of William Davis, Dr. C. Herman, Alex Moore and Secretary Fred Herrington. In an attempt to close another deal which would increase wages on an average between 10 and 20 per cent and set a maximum working week of 40 hours in all MPTOA member houses.

The IATSE organization of ushers, cashiers, doormen and matrons here thus far has not only faced little opposition but has even received the co-operation of the Theater Managers' Association, which unofficially, thru its members, helped inform their employees of the (See PITT, DETROIT, on page 13)

Big Outdoor Rodeo Is Contracted For Boston by Racing Association

NEW YORK, July 17.—One of the most promising outdoor rodeo contracts ever negotiated was sealed this week in a three-way setup when the Eastern Racing Association, of Boston, operator of the Suffolk Downs race track, signed with George A. Hamid, Inc., for the latter to stage a big-time rodeo and exhibition in the Downs for seven days, commencing August 16 and concluding on the 22d. Third member of the three-way deal is Milt Hinkle, manager and operator of the Texas Rangers Rodeo.

New Wage of Circus Billers Comes Up at December Parley

Official recognition of distributors, creation of new post of assistant president and selection of N. Y. C. for next meeting among other things decided at conclave

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Avowals to seek wage increases for circus billposters, official recognition of distributors as part of the organization by including them in the charter, promise to tighten up on regulations for commercial road workers, creation of a new post of assistant president, election of officers and choosing New York City for the next convention proved the chief accomplishments of the biennial conclave of the International Alliance of Bill Posters and Billers of the United States and Canada, held at the Fort Pitt Hotel here this week under auspices of Local No. 3.

Equally significant, in the report of President Leo Abernathy, was the revelation that the IABPB had recently granted a charter to a new local in San Francisco, only city where to date the Committee for Industrial Organization has openly attempted to form a posters' union. Fourteen other new billers' locals and 12 distributors' unions have also been accepted in the last two years.

Further CIO attempts to organize the posters is little feared by the alliance if the welcome given a telegram sent to (See IABPB TO SEEK on page 88)

Three Days' Rain Lowers Midway Gross at Annual Edmonton Event

SASKATOON, Sask. Can., July 19.—The Royal American Shows took a beating by the weather last week at the Edmonton (Alberta) Exhibition, with three days scratched off to almost complete rainouts.

Monday was an ideal day and gave the exhibition and midway the largest Kids' Day on record, and Friday and Saturday topped all single days in the history of this annual event. The week's midway gross was 85 per cent of last year's record-breaking total.

It was brought to light here during the week by Business Manager Elmer O. Velars that in 12 years more than 1,000,000 people have ridden the four Ferris Wheel units on the Royal American midway, these shows being the first in the field to carry this number in a single lineup.

Here in Saskatoon, where the exhibition opened this morning, Sid W. Johns, general manager, faces poor economic conditions. However, after seeing the magnitude and merit of the Royal American midway and Ernie Young's grandstand show at Edmonton, said: "I believe they are strong enough to offset the local situation."

All the amusement units booked for the exhibition here arrived from Edmonton last night and were set up in time for the opening.

War Over Vaudeque Houses May Be Useless; Biz Wanes

Vaude and burly actor unions heard by Four A's, which holds up decision—two operators favor pix as no biz greets burly substitute—active censoring of shows

NEW YORK, July 17.—While the Burlesque Artists' Association is battling the American Federation of Actors over jurisdiction of the vaudeque houses, the verdict now resting with the Associated Actors and Artists of America, present indications are that the fight may have been in vain, since operators of several of the theaters are talking about going into picture polices because of poor business. Two of the three houses which opened Monday immediately after getting their license okay from Commissioner Paul Moss are figuring on going pix, while another house seems to have postponed its opening indefinitely. The shows are toeing the mark as to censorship, but the former burlesque patronage, according to the operators, is reluctant to buy the tame entertainment.

The BAA-AFA battle as to which union should have these houses was heard yesterday at a special meeting of the Four A's, with those present comprising Tom Phillips, Ralph Whitehead, Frank Gillmore, Paul Dullzell, Alfred Harding, Dorothy Bryant and Otto Steinfeld. Yesterday's meeting included only hearing of testimony, but the decision may be rendered at the meeting called for this Monday. Gillmore revealed that he does not believe that the settlement will be amicable and that he does not feel there can be an appeal from a decision by the Four A's.

Joe Weinstock and I. H. Herk, operators of the Republic and Gaiety, respectively, reveal that they have ideas about dropping the new policy and turning to straight pictures. They claim that the public apparently does not want to buy this type of show. Herk also is a partner (See WAR OVER on page 92)

Exchangemen Get Contracts

Partial settlements by IA in film exchanges — no trouble expected on others

NEW YORK, July 17.—International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, now negotiating contracts for 32 film exchanges controlled or operated by Warners, Paramount, Universal, Fox, United Artists, MGM, Columbia and RKO, has currently effected partial settlements with more than one-half the exchanges involved. IA man handling the matter are Assistant President Louis Krouse, Vice-President Richard Walsh and John F. Gatelee, New England representative. Business is expected to be concluded in August.

To date Gatelee reports substantial increases in most instances. Object of the IA has been to establish basic minimums rather than straight increases. Under this policy, some of the higher-paid employees will not immediately benefit.

Forty-hour or less work-week is established, and exclusive collective bargaining rights have been obtained for the shipping, ad-sales and inspection departments. Question of front office employees and bookers is being held in abeyance until (See EXCHANGEMEN on page 92)

Scheduled WPA Theater Cut Goes Thru; Unions No Help

1,709 trimmed from FTP—unions' attempt stymied—1,122 non-AFL and 562 AFL workers eased out here—quota of 4,016 three-quarters theatrical, rest clerical, etc.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Separation of 1,709 workers from the rolls of the WPA Federal Theater project occurred Thursday, as per schedule, with last-minute attempts by theatrical unions to rescind the Washington order being non-effective. Equity President Frank Gillmore this week spoke with Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, but obtained no promises. Gillmore, however, hopes that conditions will improve. Last Thursday confab on the FTP situation was held at Essex House, those attending including Gillmore, Director Hallie Flanagan, Administrative Officer William P. Farnsworth, Assistant Administrative Officer David K. Niles and James Brennan, of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Reduction of the theater project from 8,725 to 4,016 leaves the new setup with three-fourths theatrical and one-fourth non-theatrical personnel, according to a notice given Gillmore by Mrs. Flanagan. Over 90 per cent are said to be of professional caliber.

Cuts are greatest from the non-AFL personnel. 1,122 of this classification being dropped. Of the AFL workers dropped, the breakdown includes 181 actors, of whom 60 are non-relief; 191 stagehands, 19 box-office cashiers, 17 department heads, six dramatic coaches, 16 company managers, 37 workshop employees, six stage managers, six stage directors, 75 musicians and two music conductors. Figures are for Manhattan only.

Staffs of the four other arts projects were trimmed by 1,139 from the previous quota of 4,481.

Theatrical unions at a meeting in headquarters of Actors' Equity Thursday endorsed the Schwellenbach-Allen resolution, which declares that Congress should not dismiss from WPA anybody for whom there is no chance of private employment.

Nixon Expects Big Year; First Full Repaint Since '05

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—A bigger season than 1930-'37, which broke records for the last 10 years, is expected to open at the Nixon in mid-September, Manager Harry Brown stated here today while laying plans to visit New York in a couple weeks and set dates for incoming shows.

Indicating the Nixon owners' optimism, $50,000 is being spent to install new seats, new hangings and to repaint throughout for the first time since the theater was built in 1905 as "the world's perfect playhouse." Leaving the interior layout unchanged, the management is shooting half its wad on the seats. One reason for optimism: last season this city piled up best grosses of any road city except Chicago.

In town last week to oversee the changes in progress was Arthur Low, Nixon treasurer.

Collecting Chain Tax

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Altho four large companies have attacked its constitutionality and obtained preliminary injunctions against its enforcement, the State Department of Revenue started this week to collect on the new chain store and theater tax. Secretary of Revenue Boardman said the first 50,000 applications are in the mail and expects to have all of the 200,000 applications sent out by July 24. The tax is payable August 4, graduated from $1 to $500 per store or theater, depending on the number of stores or theaters in the chain.

Kozlenko Writes Three-Acter

NEW YORK, July 17.—William Kozlenko, editor of The One Act Play Magazine, is writing a three-acter. Hopes to have it ready to go the rounds by October or November.

No Bathing Suit Pickets

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—With the Universal film exchange settling differences with its striking office worker, Philadelphia's film row had to forego the opportunity of gazing on gals picketing in bathing suits. When the dozen film workers were served with bills in equity ordering them off a sit-down strike in the exchange's office gals planned a picketing campaign garbed in swim suits and shorts.

Skouras Leads B. B. League

NEW YORK, July 17.—Scores of games played by the Motion Picture Baseball League during the week are Skouras 6, MGM 5; Columbia 8, RKO 3; Consolidated 4, NBC 0, and Skouras 8, Paramount 1.

League, now in the second half of its season, shapes up as follows:

| | Won. | Lost. | Pct. |

| Skouras | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Apeda | 1 | 0 | 1.000 |

Arkansas Wins Bank Night

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 17.—Bank night taxes collected by the State from persons receiving theater awards amounted to $1,834.11 since an act was passed by the 1937 Legislature, which imposed a tax of 15 per cent on each cash prize. Officials estimated the figure may exceed $5,000 by the end of the year. The State's old-age pension is recipient of the money.

Central City Play Festival Has an Auspicious Opening

CENTRAL CITY, Colo., July 17.—The sixth annual play festival of the Central City Opera House Association, Inc., opened tonight and will continue thru August 7. This year Richard Aldrich presents Ruth Gordon in a Jed Harris production of Ibsen's A Doll's House in a new English version prepared by Thornton Wilder.

Central City Opera House productions, inaugurated in 1932 when Lillian Gish appeared in Camille, have become famous thruout the country and attract people from practically every State.

Tonight's opening played to a capacity house, the theater having been sold out weeks in advance. Prices on opening night were $5 and $3.50. Following Saturday nights and matinees are $3.50 and $2.50, and all other performances $2.50 and $2.

This offering of A Doll's House marks another triumph for Jed Harris, who produced it. Acting of Ruth Gordon, Walter Slezak, Dennis King, Sam Jaffe and Margaret Waller was superb. They gave an understanding and thoroly pleasing interpretation of Ibsen's tragedy. Inga Hill, Harold Johnrud, Hope Landin, Miss Larry Hawkins, Bud Hawkins and Roger Thomas were excellent in small roles. Critics present acclaimed Thornton Wilder's version of the play and Jed Harris' direction very fine. Settings and costumes by Donald Oenslager were authentic. Poncho Gates did an excellent job as technical director and scene

Discharged WPAers Stage Big Rally To Get Public Support

NEW YORK, July 17.—As hundreds of other discharged WPA workers besieged the Chamber of Commerce, National Manufacturers' Association and other focal business points in an "effort to seek private employment" a contingent of pink-slippers from the Federal Theater Project descended on Broadway yesterday. Their first stop was the editorial offices of The Billboard. Ostensible object of the mass expedition was to find out how many of the 1,709 axed by FTP could be reabsorbed by professional show business, but real intention was to present their plight to public and Washington spectacularly.

While 300 of them milled around downstairs a delegation of 50 stormed The Billboard office. Ten were admitted to a conference with Elias E. Sugarman, editor, and Eugene Burr, dramatic editor, of The Billboard. Questioned by the committee, Sugarman stated definitely that show business positively could not absorb persons discharged from the FTP. He pointed out that the only recourse of the 1,709 was to go to Washington, not Broadway. For the time being, he advised them to act as individuals and appeal their cases to the FTP Appeals Board.

After a half-hour of discussion the committee left in an orderly fashion and, much to the relief of sundry vaude-villians, the mass delegation departed from the vicinity of the Palace Theater Building.

In an exclusive statement to The Billboard the Federal Theater Project division (See DISCHARGED WPAPERS page 92)

Gershwin Funeral Rites Are Held

NEW YORK, July 17.—Funeral services for George Gershwin, who died July 11 at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Hollywood, were held at 2 p.m. Thursday, July 15, at the Temple Emanuel here. He was buried in Mount Kope Cemetery at Hastings-on-Hudson. Simultaneously with New York's final tribute to the composer, Hollywood conducted a memorial service in the B'nai B'rith Temple, arranged by Sigmund Romberg and a committee of screen writers, producers, directors, musicians and actors.

Governor Lehman and Mayor La Guardia headed the list of 60 honorary pallbearers, among whom were Paul Whiteman, Ben Bernie, George S. Kaufman, Gene Buck, Irving Caesar, George M. Cohan, Vernon Duke, John Golden, Ferde Grofe, Arthur Hammerstein, W. C. Handy, Sam Harris, Harry Hershfield, Guy Lombardo, Alfred J. McCosker, Jack Mills, David Sarnoff, Harry Von Tilzer, Alexander Smallens, Deems Taylor, Walter Damrosch, Edwin Franko Goldman and others prominent in music, on the stage, in radio, on the screen and in public life.

Rabbi Nathan A. Perlman conducted the temple services, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise delivered the eulogy. Music was contributed by Ossip Gluskin, cellist; Gottfried K. Federlein, organist, and the Perole Quartet.

BERT NELSON (This Week's Cover Subject)

BERT NELSON was born in Downing, N. M., September 21, 1904. While still a youngster his family moved to Los Angeles, where he attended grammar school. It was while attending grammar school studying natural history that he first became interested in training animals. At 10 years of age he won first prize for the largest collection of pet animals and reptiles of all Los Angeles public schools in their natural history exhibition.

It was about this time that Nelson conceived the idea of training a bunch of white rats and three house cats and presenting them in an act, which he did successfully. From the profits of this act he purchased from the old E. and R. Jungle Film Company, Los Angeles, a lion cub, which he reared and presented as a wrestling lion. A few years later he joined the Al C. Barnes Circus, presenting his wrestling lion and was taught the fundamentals of wild animal training by Louis Roth.

From the Barnes Circus Nelson took his wrestling lioness, Princess Pat, into vaudeville, where he was headlined by Keith-Albee and Orpheum Vaudeville circuits for five years. For two years he was under contract to Metro-Coldwyn-Mayer Studios. Three years ago he was featured with the Magenbeck-Wallace Circus and last year with the Al C. Barnes Circus.

George Gershwin

IT IS more than likely that musical annalists and critics of the future, in evaluating the early part of the 20th century, will find that popular American music grew apace within a short span of time. More than likely they will find that the progress made in the 1920s and '30s exceeded that of preceding periods, not only of the same century as it applied to American, or popular, or jazz music, but of preceding centuries and "serious" music. The quotes are needed on serious, in this case, for altho Gershwin wrote popular music, it too, was serious. Serious because it expressed the moods of a nation. Music has two vital functions. One is to bring about a mood, to play on the emotions. The other is to express the emotions, not by means of a filmy torch song that burns its way quickly, but by music as Gershwin wrote it, depicting the moods of a people. When first performed to make a historic event, Rhapsody in Blue epitomized the mood of a post-war nation. As events have proved, that mood was lastingly depicted, and, at the same time, American folk music bounded ahead by a score or more of years.

E. B. Marks recently commented that Tin Pan Alley, as such today, was a misnomer. The publisher contended that the Alley was no longer existent. In its cheap connotations, in its designation of a field that produced a flow of hack compositions, Tin Pan Alley disappeared largely because of George Gershwin. Gershwin raised the level of popular music and all songwriters felt the effect of his work. The theater, too, felt the Gershwin imprint and his was an important part in bringing about the evolution of musical comedy which happened only recently. Gershwin was America's Sullivan in that regard, and Gershwin helped hasten the end of musical saccharinity as applied to musical comedy and operetta.

Gershwin was fortunate in that his was not a posthumous recognition, to which can only be added the comment that that was as it should have been. His works have undoubtedly proved his greatness. His character, his humility, his adherence to simplicity—or to put it in 1937 slang, his refusal to "go Hollywood"—all were part of a great genius. Such a death is a great loss. JERRY FRANKEN.

Wheeling Cloudbursts Stop Theaters, Ruin Camp Spots

WHEELING, W. Va., July 17.—The cloudburst that swelled middle and little Wheeling creeks to river proportions and swept over the entire Elm Grove district of Wheeling suspended entertainment facilities in that district for three days and completely wiped out most of the summer camps maintained along the creeks, causing damage estimated at over $1,000,000.

Camp Joy, one of the largest tourist camps in the Tri-State district, was entirely wiped out, cars owned by the tourists being battered and swept down the creek and all the cabins being completely demolished. Billboards along the creek were almost all a total loss.

The Dells, popular after-dark rendezvous, was shaken on its foundations, requiring extensive repair work before its reopening.

Patrons in the Sibert Restaurant and Grill were caught by the rapidly rising water that swept down the creek bed in a five-foot wall, and were immersed in water waist deep before being able to retreat to higher ground. The bowling alleys in the basement were ruined. Sightseers on the hump-back bridge on the Nation road in Elm Grove were cut off by the water for about two hours until it finally receded.

The water swept into the Princess Theater over the seats, causing a hurried exit of the patrons and marooning two men on the stage.

Many motorists on the heavily traveled national road were trapped by the water, that was so swift it pushed the cars back, even though they were traveling in low gear, forcing the drivers to abandon the cars and dash to the hills.

Doctor R. M. Feditcor, Wheeling health commissioner, ordered all stores and restaurants in the flooded area closed. They were reopened Monday after inspection had been made.

Monday evening Grave Creek, summer camp resort, was the victim of another outburst, causing damage estimated at $100,000 and completely wiping out the State Penitentiary gardens, together with many summer camps, bridges and farm crops.

Rehabilitation in these two districts was started immediately by the authorities.

Geo. Postel Heads TMA Grand Lodge

CINCINNATI, July 17.—More than 150 delegates attended the 26th biennial convention of the Grand Lodge of the Theatrical Mutual Associations, which closed a three-day session at the Netherland Plaza Hotel here Wednesday.

George Postel, secretary of the local TMA Lodge, was elected president of the Grand Lodge. Other officers elected were J. W. Dwyer, New York; Harvey Schraut, Chicago; Edward Otto, New York; Nate Stein, Chicago; F. J. Wilbert, Cleveland; Gar McFadden, London, Ont., and Phillip Davis, New York, vice-presidents; Joseph Gehlman, New York, secretary-treasurer, and Harry Service, Cincinnati, chaplain.

Edward Altwater and Harry Service, of Cincinnati, and Frank Galozzo, Chicago, were appointed to the publicity committee. Luke Callahan was made a trustee. Altwater was also named chairman of the laws, appeals and grievances committee.

124 Philly WPAsers Out

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—The ax fell on WPA musicians and actors and threats to fall again within the next few days. One hundred and twenty-four of the 711 workers on music, theater and writer projects were dropped in a slash move. A mass meeting is scheduled today (17) against further cuts, representations to be made by the American Federation of Musicians and the Federal Theater Project Local.

Europe Aids Its Music Folk, Says Paine, Back From Paris

NEW YORK, July 19.—Copyright laws in Europe are much more liberal to the author, composer and copyright owner than those in the United States, according to John G. Paine, general manager of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Paine, just returned from the Congress of Performing Rights Societies in Paris, stated that in America, because of government losses and State legislation, the creators of music have a deep-seated impression that the government is antagonistic and not interested in their welfare or in the development of music culture in America. Result is that there is a constant diminution of creative activity, whereas there, despite very hard times, a constant increase in creative work is noticeable. Chief reason is owing to the support the governments give to performing rights societies, enabling them to secure adequate remuneration for commercial use and exploitation of music.

Attitude of some European countries regarding music which falls into public domain is particularly significant. Such works acquire the status of property which belongs to the nation. With this in mind these governments cannot see why a talking machine company or broadcasting company should have the right to use that property and make a profit on it without any return to the

Politician-Player

Easely Says Reds Control Projects

NEW YORK, July 19.—Ralph M. Easely, chairman of the executive council of the National Civic Federation, in a letter to President Roosevelt late last week said the WPA Federal Theater and Writers' projects were controlled by Communists and the Workers' Alliance.

Easely, apropos of the Federal Theater, said that 76 per cent of the workers were members of the Workers' Alliance and 38 per cent were either Communists or supporters of the Communist party. He offered further figures indicating that only 38 per cent of the actors were professionals, the rest being people who "never before made a living in connection with theatrical activity." The project, according to Easely, has spent more than $35,000,000, the income on this money being less than 5 per cent. Further says its productions, with the exception of five plays by noted authors, have been total flops.

Gaiety, New York, Calls It Quits

NEW YORK, July 19.—The Gaiety Theater, one of the three ex-burlesque houses to open last Monday with variety shows, failed to open this morning, the management advising that the reopening week involved a loss of $3,000. Any possibility of the theater's reopening depends upon whether the mayor's office will accede to the request of the Gaiety management for permission to use the name of Minsky.

Gaiety management, I. H. Herk and Abe Minsky, also operates the Fulton, which was to have opened this Thursday as a two-a-day house. However, the opening has been postponed indefinitely. Republic Theater claims to have lost several thousand dollars on its first week but is trying to hold on. Kitting appears to be doing better and intends to continue. Apollo opened Friday to better business than the others, but insufficient considering the nut of between $6,000 and $7,000 under which it is operating.

TASTES IN NEWS SHOWS

Ad Agency Survey Shows News More Important to Rural Areas

Availability of metropolitan dailies cuts importance of programs in city areas—survey reveals listeners don't give a whoop for service supplying material

NEW YORK, July 17.—A study of news broadcasts by a local ad agency reveals certain listening habits, likes and peevish that will probably be carefully eyed by potential news sponsors. Survey covered both urban and rural territory and unearthed fact that rural and small city news-listening habits differ greatly from those of city slickers. The news program, including the opinionated commentator, is more of a favorite in smaller towns than in larger cities, according to the study. Popularity in sticks of air news is charged to the fact that late news is more available in metropolitan dailies than in country papers. As nationally-aired news stanzas give local, national and international news, while smaller papers concentrate on local hamlet's doings, this is another item, according to the check, which accounts for such regional popularity.

An important revelation of the news research findings is that the majority included in the survey knew nothing or cared little about the news service, wire or radio, which fed them news. Credit lines, such as United Press, Transradio, International News Service or Press-Radio, meant little to fans compared to their knowledge and dialing habits of personalities who broadcast news and opinions. While there may not be an exact knowledge of the difference between an opinionated or editorial broadcaster and a straight disher-out of news, fans expressed definite habits of liking or disliking certain speakers, but actual news service meant little to them.

Sticks didn't go for Bonke Carter. Preferred Lowell Thomas and others with a more American or native flow of dialog. Indications were that Thomas and others seemed to natives to be speaking nearer their own language or at least inflections and minus the overseas business.

WIL Files Appeal From FCC Decision

WASHINGTON, July 17.—This week WIL, St. Louis, filed in the United States Court of Appeal for the District of Columbia a brief contending that the Communications Act of 1934 necessitates a finding on the question of "if public interest, convenience or necessity will be served" as a prerequisite to a grant by the Federal Communications Commission. Appeal rises from a denial by the Commission of an application of WIL for unlimited hours of operation of 1,000 watts on 1250 k. c. and the granting of these facilities to the rival Star-Times Publishing Company, of St. Louis.

Brief alleges that the findings in this case were not made by the Commission itself or by the Broadcast Division or by any board authorized to make such findings, but by the law department of the Commission, and raises the contention that such findings cannot become the findings of the Commission.

Charging that the Commission did not follow the established practice of other federal administrative boards, commissions and agencies, WIL asks that the Federal Communications Commission be required to determine the facts before making final decisions. Brief asserts that the Commission erred in preferring a new applicant over an existing utility (WIL) and that it failed to give consideration to a prior licensee which had pioneered in the development of radio broadcasting in the St. Louis area.

J. Walter Thompson Asks Writers for Sketch Staff

NEW YORK, July 17.—J. Walter Thompson Company, apparently encountering difficulty in buying script material for its number of variety programs, this week solicited a select group of authors, asking them for short sketch material. Price quoted was about $100 for skits, running up to about 10 minutes playing time.

Agency only contacted those writers with whom it has previously done business or with whom the agency has had some contact. Outside writers were not solicited and material coming from authors other than those known by the agency will be returned without consideration. Agency has had this policy for some time now.

News of the agency's letter was published in the weekly News-Week and the agency has since been flooded with outside writers' material, all of which is sent back, sans consideration.

YMCA Using Wax

NEW YORK, July 17.—Young Men's Christian Association is making a series of 28 discs for use by local Ys. Helen Welshimer, feature writer, will conduct interviews which will be teamed with dramatizations on the 15-minute stanzas. Radio campaign is part of a membership drive and local branches of the YMCA will arrange with near-by stations for airings.

Cleghorn Back at WMC

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 17.—John H. Cleghorn, former program and publicity director of WMC, Commercial-Appeal station, resigning in 1935 to join WKY, Oklahoma, returned Monday to resume his position as program director, succeeding Fred W. (Doc Sunshine) Roth, who has resigned to enter the ministry. Before leaving for WKY Cleghorn was with the Memphis station for six years. His last position was as assistant manager of KARK, Little Rock.

No Further Radio or Copyright Action Expected From Congress

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The death this week of Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson is expected to hasten to adjournment the present session of Congress. Seven radio bills and three copyright bills will be suspended until beginning of the second session of the present Congress some time next January. The measures affected may see some committee action, but it is doubtful whether a vote will be taken upon committee reports.

Boids!

NEW YORK, July 17.—Charlie Martin, of the Blow Agency, called The Billboard this week to find out "which radio actor owns 40 canaries." And it wasn't a gag. Chain of circumstances follows. A friend of Martin lost a canary and it was traced to a pet shop. Pet shop owner, quizzed, remembered he'd sold the bird to a radio actor "owning 40 canaries."

WFIL Sets Wellman As N. Y. Office Head

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—As a clearing house to conduct business on the scene, Donald Withycomb, WFIL general manager, announces the opening of offices for the station in New York. Frank Wellman, who conducted an ad agency here, moves in Monday (19) to take charge. In view of the fact that WFIL is linked with NBC Blue, Mutual, WLW Line and is designated as key for the dormant Quaker State Network (Pennsylvania regional web), station is meeting the need of an office to coordinate sales, agency contacts, program trafficking, time commitments and clearances for the three major nets, representation nationally by Edward Petry & Company and serve as a sales office for the WFIL-inspired regional net.

In being the first local station planting a Gotham office, WFIL will also have the advantage in buying talent for programs direct, Wellman also doubling as booking agent for the station's talent needs. Withycomb revealed that three accounts are already lined up for variety musical shows this fall, for which talent will be sought in New York and imported here.

B. & B. Switch Script Shows To Catch Fraus

NEW YORK, July 17.—Two Benton & Bowles script shows, Pretty Kitty Kelly and Myrt and Marge, will be switched from afternoon to morning spots within the next few weeks. Kitty will be aired at 10 a. m. instead of the current 1:15 p. m. spot, while Myrt and Marge will quit its 2:45 p. m. spot for a 10:15 a. m. listing.

Fact that housewife-fans are apt to be at home in the a. m. doing housework, while in the afternoon they may be shopping or tramping someone's acc. may be tested by studying audience and sales reaction to shows' new hours.

Pinkham Plans Radio

NEW YORK, July 17.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company will employ radio as part of an extensive ad campaign. New campaign will follow the passing of control to the three Pinkham grandsons from the Pinkham daughter and granddaughter. Arthur W. Pinkham, president, has been conferring with Erwin, Wasey Agency, which will handle the account.

May Shows Gain For Live Talent

Broadcasters' figures show transcriptions lost for the month, act employment up

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Radio business statistics for May indicate that live talent for broadcasting programs is on a decided upswing. As against May of last year, total live talent increased over 41 per cent, electrical transcriptions and records declined on an average 8 per cent in the non-network broadcasting. An increase in the use of live talent was noted over April of this year with a rise of over 7 per cent.

Total broadcast advertising during May amounted to $11,325,165, which is a slight increase over the volume of business registered for the previous month. This increase is largely accounted for by the gains in local advertising which took the place of usual seasonal declines. Altho national network volume has declined, 2 per cent regional network volume gained almost 30 per cent. Gross time sales were 32.5 per cent ahead of the volume recorded for May, 1936.

Non-network advertising experienced a gain of over 33 per cent compared with time sales last year. Regional stations showed the greatest gains, altho all sizes of stations recorded increases. The New England-Middle Atlantic area made the largest gains of any section of the country compared with both April, 1937, and the year ending May, 1936.

Other media of advertising, based on publishers information, showed that printed advertising also made national gains, but radio showed the highest percentage of increase of any major medium.

20% Boost in Set Owners in Canada

OTTAWA, July 19.—New licenses issued and the renewal of licenses for the operation of radio receiving sets in Canada totaled 1,038,500 for the fiscal year ended March 31, an increase of approximately 20 per cent compared with the 862,108 in the preceding fiscal year, says government reports. Largest increase in the issue of licenses during the year was recorded in the case of Ontario, the first-ranking province in the number of radio receivers operated. There was also a substantial increase in the number of licenses issued in Western Canada.

Records of the Radio Division of the Canadian Department of Transport show that 424,126 licenses were issued or renewed in the province of Ontario in the fiscal year just ended, compared with 342,050 in the preceding fiscal year; Quebec, 240,105, against 221,702; British Columbia, 91,878, against 80,205; Alberta, 72,458, against 53,318; Manitoba, 69,861, against 58,988, and Saskatchewan, 68,193, against 49,050.

All of the remaining provinces showed increases as compared with the fiscal year 1936-36.

Liberty Mag Cancels

DETROIT, July 17.—Liberty's news broadcasts will be yanked off CKLW July 30. Macfadden office, it is understood, has not been satisfied with the program's pull locally, the stanza sticks with WABC, New York.

Smith-Segal Hearings Set

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The hearings of the disbarment proceedings against attorneys Paul M. Segal and George S. Smith will be held before the Federal Communications Commissioners beginning Monday, September 13. Special counsel for the commission, Samuel F. Kaufman, has completed preliminary hearings of witnesses and further work on the case will be finished during the next month.

Three Stores OK Fitzgerald Show

NEW YORK, July 17.—Three department stores are said to have signed already for the syndicated Ed Fitzgerald program offered for sale this week by his local sponsor, L. Bamberger & Co., Newark department store. It's believed to be the first time a sponsor has offered its own program to other advertisers in the same field in other sections of the country. Those stores having bought Fitzgerald are located in New England.

It's a great break for Fitzgerald, who came to New York from the West Coast slightly more than a year ago and worked on WOR without a sponsor for a year. His salary from Bamberger's is $25,000 a year, covering both his daily broadcasts and a column he writes, which Bamberger's use in their daily newspaper ad. It is understood that Fitzgerald is getting a percentage of the fees stations pay Bamberger's, 10 per cent up to $20,000 annually and 20 per cent above that.

Fees charged the department stores are based on annual business volume. Stores with sales over $10,000,000 pay $50 a week for the column, six days weekly; $75 a week for the broadcast, six days weekly. Stores with less volume pay smaller fees, as is the case when three days a week, instead of six, are bought. Program was offered to Mutual stations this week and will later be offered to other stations by means of transcriptions.

Prices do not include newspaper space or radio time.

WCKY is working with 91 women's organizations in the Cincinnati area to ballyhoo the Third Biennial Greater Cincinnati Women's Exposition, to be held November 10 to 17. Execs of various clubs will be interviewed on a weekly morning broadcast.

Simple but clever piece of publicity reaching radio editors' desks is a reprint from the editorial page of The New York Times. Daily ran an editorial on Charlie McCarthy, which included mention of Bergen and Fields. Appeared in column next to masthead and makes for an important and dignified looking publicity reprint.

WMCA is releasing promotion material the size of postcards. Text includes a quote from daily papers and is accompanied by a cartoon. Done on different colored stock each time.

WCPO, Cincinnati, went to town with the announcement that it would have the "most complete news broadcasting service provided by any radio station in the world." A promotional release, in the form of a special edition of The Cincinnati Post, owner of the station, told graphically and with pictures that station would stress news. Eight tabloid pages told of the new development. Sky writing was also used—WCPO News—being smoked out from planes.

KSL has completed a study of a week's mail. Two evening and three daytime spot announcements on the Salt Lake City outlet brought 27,583 epistles from 38 States, five Canadian provinces and five foreign countries. Eleven Western States furnished 24,425 of the replies.

WFIL, Philadelphia, has arranged an elaborate tie to aid in the "safety on the highways" campaign. Arrangements have been made with the State police of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware to air the traffic bulletins on week-ends and holidays.

A bronze plaque will be awarded to the Lone Ranger program, authored by Fran Striker, of WXYZ, this week at its

Woozie

NEW YORK, July 17.—Woozie-Woozie Honeydew Melon Company has just purchased time on WNEW's Joy-makers Program. Commercial for the account have the boys scratching their heads. But sponsor shipped sample crates of his products to the studio, which had all doing lip-smacking routines.

Miracle

NEW YORK, July 17.—A great light seems to be breaking over radio stations, reflected in their sales promotion, the light bringing home that surveys don't always have to have a station crowding about its coverage as being in the No. 1 spot. In a brochure coming out shortly, WOR gives itself secondary spots several times, but brings out that it always has a large audience. WFIL, Philadelphia, did the same this week, story being on this page.

Check Farm Area's Programing Likes

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—In an effort to determine the program needs of rural listeners, WCAU has commissioned R. L. Polk & Company to conduct a survey among the hinterland dealers. Questionnaires were mailed today (17) to 10,000 radio owners in rural communities embracing WCAU's coverage area. Survey will take in four counties, Lehigh, Lancaster, Berks and Bucks. WCAU figures its 50,000 watts can well service the cracker-barrel clans.

Polk questionnaire seeks info from the farm folk on what hours of the day they listen to the radio, what type of program they enjoy most and the type of program most helpful to them. Rather than station preference, survey seeks only an analysis for programing. Hitting the air at 6:30 a.m., WCAU already has several programs designed for the rural element and plans expansion in that direction.

Bulova Sets KYW Spots

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—All time signals at KYW will be sponsored next season. Bulova Watch Company starts September 1, buying five signals between 6 p. m. and station's sign-off at 1 a. m. Account handled by the Blow Company. Daytime time signals now sponsored by Breyer Ice Cream Company have renewed their contract thru the McKee & Albright Agency, effective September 12.

Harvey's Hearst Post

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Ed Harvey, program manager of WCAE, Pittsburgh, has been appointed program consultant for all Hearst stations and will head-quarter in New York. Clifton Daniels, WCAE announcer, is being groomed for Harvey's Pittsburgh spot.

700th broadcast by the Commercial Investment Trust Safety Foundation. This is to be the first award of what is intended to be an annual recognition of "the most effective radio program of traffic safety." King-Trendle Broadcasting Corporation, WXYZ owner, receives the award.

The program now has backing of a Lone Ranger Scout Club, with over 500,000 boy and girl members in two years. Each member is pledged to follow and encourage others to follow traffic rules.

Three separate broadcasts of the presentation will be made from WXYZ studios to meet the different hours of the program, which also covers the Don Leo Network and Michigan Radio Network, as well as other independent stations.

Mutual-Don Lee Set To Expand In Northwest; KQW Joins Soon

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Announcement was made here this week by Lewis Allen Weiss, head of the Don Lee chain, and Ralph Brunton, manager of the Northern California Broadcasting System, that beginning August 1 KQW in San Jose will become No. 11 in Don Lee's State-wide network of outlets. KQW is a 1,000-watt and is one of three stations claiming to be the first in the nation to broadcast. For the past few years it has been a member station, with KJBS, San Francisco, of Brunton's money-making miniature network, the Northern California Broadcasting System.

When this announcement was made no hint was forthcoming from Don Lee

Survey Shows Favorite Types Of Programs For Philly Area

Believe it or not, hillbillies polled first for 5:45 p.m. period—sports and news shows heavily preferred—WFIL releases survey showing WCAU first

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Now that local radio stations have stored away their surveys of the general habits of listeners a determination of listening habits during certain periods of the day was made by Ross Federal for WFIL. For the first time a comprehensive analysis was made of daily listening habits during the three 15-minute periods between 5:45 and 6:15 p.m., generally considered the choicest during the early evening. Results released by Donald Withycomb, WFIL general manager, show that station preference for the entire period places WCAU, local CBS outlet, first with 28.60 per cent of the 2,973 calls made in the co-incidental telephone survey during the week of May 24. WFIL, linked with NBC Blue, Mutual and the WLW line, is slotted second with 24.34 per cent. KYW, NBC Red, third with 18.05 per cent; WJZ, heard direct, grabbed off 8.72 per cent; WDAS, indie 100-watt, which always showed at the bottom of the heap on other surveys, shows a strong follow with 6.49 per cent over WIP, on the Intercity linkings, with 4.28 per cent, while WOR rated 2.63 per cent. All the other stations polled summarized with 2.84 per cent, and those that didn't know, refused information or gave incorrect replies counted for 2.24 of the listeners polled.

Try Again on WCAU Musicians' Contract

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—With a preliminary round robin under their belts, musicians' union, Local 77, and local Class A radio stations, according to the union's wage scale, will get together again July 22. Whole crux of the situation depends on WCAU coming in from the rebel ranks. KYW and WFIL, making it a triumvirate of Class A stations, are hardly holdouts, having employed a studio band last season.

While the initial confab found the two poles separating both sides, A. Anthony Tomel, musicians' prexy, advised that the outlook is promising. Hardly any doubt that Doc Levy will add tooters at his WCAU for next season, especially since auditions calling for the tooters have been held at the station. However, there will be plenty cross-fire over terms before the dotted line gets inked.

Last season all stations not hiring a studio band had to pay double the union scale in airing musical shows, same applying for the Philadelphia Orchestra series fed to the CBS by WCAU. For next season, however, Tomel revealed that the rebel stations won't be able to air musicians for even a triple scale. No musicians playing on a station without a studio band regardless of the circumstances and no matter what price offered is the edict. Tomel also aims to take the rebel stations from airing sustaining musical shows fed by the network affiliation, that depending on the international's decision to enter the local impasse if negotiations become stone-walled.

Salesman Broadcaster

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—While most radio salesmen are more interested in time selling, here is one enterprising card-rater who upsets the apple carts and devotes his time to broadcasting. New technique finds him out selling his own shows. Allen Franklin, former program director at KVOO, Tulsa, Okla., and a newcomer to the WFIL sales force, is presenting two of his own shows over the station. Does an "Old Salt" stunt daily, spicing fishing patter, already boasting two participating sponsors; becomes poet-philosopher in the mornings for a "Cozy Corner" session, riding sustaining; and is readying another as the "Hollywood Hi-Hot" for movie chatter, now in the auditioning mill.

executives that other stations would be added to the Golden Group in the near future. However, there has been for some time a feeling here that Mutual-Don Lee will soon expand thru Oregon and Washington to cover the Pacific Northwest.

However, it is reported that 10 or more Northwestern stations will shortly sign with Mutual and Lee.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Information available here is to the effect that Mutual will shortly add stations in Portland and Eugene, among others in Oregon, and Olympia, Spokane, Tacoma and Bellingham in Washington.

Breakdown into the three broadcasting periods found practically the same ratio existing among the stations' pullings. An analysis of the local programs covered not included in the Ross Federal gives the trade some inkling as to the type of program preferred during those periods.

Between 5:45 and 6 p.m. WCAU polled first with hillbillies, the Sleepy Hollow Gang blow juggling, for Drug Trade Products. WFIL has a show appealing to the kiddies, Ole King Cole, sponsored by Bachman Chocolate Manufacturing Company. KYW, tying WFIL's pull in this slot, also had a show appealing to the young, Little Orphan Annie. WDAS has a sports shot, period a sustainer, while WIP at that time airs Transradio news, sponsored by Laundry Gems (soap).

From 6 to 6:15 p.m. WCAU has the song of Ben Alley, former CBS singing star, for Household Finance Corporation; WFIL airs sport shots by Hal Simonds, sponsored by Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation; KYW carries the Chevrolet transcriptions on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, filling in with local musical sustainers on the other days; WDAS uses phonograph dance records interspersed with spots, while WIP picks up the WMCA racing results at that time on a commercial basis.

From 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. WCAU grossed the highest average in the survey, with 31.95 per cent listeners for Bill Dyer's sport shot for Bachman Chocolate Manufacturing Company; WFIL has an et. The Freshest Thing in Town, for Mrs. Smith's Pie Company; KYW airs Kirby Cushing's sport shot for Barby's (beer); WDAS carries on recordings for 10 minutes, with Lanes McCurley taking the last five minutes of the period to apiece sports for Reinhardt's (electric appliances), while WIP fills in with a dance remote from the Hotel Adolphia.

Brochure distributed by WFIL also discloses the results of an independent survey conducted by Lennen & Mitchell to determine the popularity and effectiveness of radio news broadcasts in Philadelphia. Agency handles the Tide-water Oil account, the biggest buyer of WFIL time. A man-on-the-street survey showed that 80 per cent of all the persons interviewed listen to news broadcasts, and a large percentage of these selected Gene Morgan on WFIL. Tide-water uses 30 minutes of news daily over WFIL, split into four periods, and on the strength of the survey renewed

Answers to Copyright Problems

By ARTHUR E. GARMAIZE

This is the first column contributed to The Billboard by Arthur E. Garmaize, legal expert on copyright problems. The column is a service to readers of The Billboard who are confronted with problems concerning copyright.

In this column questions asked by Norman H. Brinsley, of WROK, Rockford, Ill.; Estel Scarborough, Hamilton, O.; Earic M. Burnett, Lincoln, Neb.; Louis Suda, Chicago; The Sophistocrats, Baltimore; Thomas H. Brown, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Louis Kaine, Long Island City, and Jay Lewis, Old Orchard, Me., are answered. The questions are discussed in an unit answer because all bear a close similarity in that they refer to the protection of ideas and names. Exception to this will be noted in the answer Mr. Garmaize makes to Jay Lewis in the last paragraph of the column.

While there may be property in an idea, system, trade secret or name, they cannot be protected as such except under the following circumstances: (1) If the idea takes the form of an invention, then a patent may be secured for it; (2) if the idea takes the form of literary expression, then such literary expression may be copyrighted either before or after publication; (3) while copyright protection does not extend to the name or title of the copyrighted work, the association of the work with the title protects the latter under principles of the unfair competition and to prevent misrepresentation to the public; (4) if the idea is in the form of a name capable of being a trade-mark, then registration of such name as a trade-mark may be secured after use upon merchandise shipped in interstate commerce; (5) if neither of the foregoing is applicable, then it is sometimes possible to negotiate an agreement with a prospective user before disclosure of the idea, system, trade secret or name regulating the situation after disclosure.

Thus an idea for a contest or an idea for a radio broadcast cannot be protected as a mere idea. The literature used in the contest and in the radio broadcast may be protected by copyright and no one will be permitted to duplicate the literary forms used. But anyone is free to utilize the idea of the contest and the idea of the radio broadcast as a basis upon which to build other contests and radio programs provided they do not appropriate the literary expressions.

Neither can the names of the contest or of the radio program be separately protected as names. However, after the contest and the radio program have been before the public then it will be possible to prevent others from using the same names for similar activities on the ground that the public is misled and unfairness is involved—the greater the popularity of the original contest and program with the public the greater will be the chances to restrain subsequent imitators.

In the case of the contest with respect to which inquiry was made copyright protection can be secured upon the writings constituting the contest after publication with notice of copyright under the classification of "Book." In the case of the radio broadcast copyright protection in like manner may be secured unless the program is fully dramatic in its nature in which case copyright protection can be secured before publication.

The name of a team follows within the same principle applicable to other names and the only redress one can have is in the case of unfair use of a name which already has been used and has become associated with a particular team.

The Billboard maintains a Material Protection Bureau for filing of names and titles in order to fix a date of first use. The service is free and it is hoped and expected the profession will respect a prior use evidenced by means of such registration.

The exhibition of the pictures forming the subject matter of one inquiry is in my opinion not a violation of the Copyright Law.

The nature and the extent of the use as well as the value attributed by a publisher to his song all govern the fees charged for the use of a song or any portion of it in films. Consequently no schedule of rates can be stated. It is suggested that the writer of this inquiry communicate with Mr. Harry Fox, general manager of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, Inc., 45 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, who acts in such matters for the publishers.

The subject matter upon which Mr. Jay Lewis secured copyright is so unique that it is suggested he be kind enough to transmit a copy of his certificate of registration together with a description or sample of the subject matter copyrighted in order that a precise idea of the matter involved may be secured and accurate advice given.

Air Briefs

New York By BENN HALL

WHEN W. C. Fields announced over the air that he might take a vacation plenty of fans took it seriously. Wires were sent in inquiring if Fields were really leaving. J. Walter Thompson office was plenty worried, as Fields actually had a holiday in mind, and tho he gagged up the remark, plans had actually been made for a holiday. Everything was okeh, however, in time for the next airing and Fields forgot his AWOL. General Hugh S. Johnson being eyed as a news commentator, but the general's robust language will have to be hibernated if and when he goes on. Signs of the times: American Radio Telegraphists' Association, CIO union which is signing up studio engineers, has expanded its floorage.

Sam Kaufman finished a book on children's programs for youngsters. To be distributed by Woolworth stores.

WMOA broadcasts 100 hours of news every seven days. Atlanta Constitution, convinced radio is here to stay, wants a station. Young & Rubicam eyeing a mystery script for fall production. Will definitely do a script show, but may not stick to a bleeding corpse idea. Fred (FNT) Tracy giving a comeback on WBLL. Ed Byron's play to be done by Norman Bel Geddes this fall. Larry Nixon heading WNEW's special events department.

WPA radio division claims it led the webs in going highbrow. Did Shakespeare for 30 weeks on WMCA last summer and has done Ibsen, Sheridan, Gorki and Gilbert and Sullivan. Lads at N. W. Ayer office and McCann-Erickson still worried about the coming Ford-CIO set-to. Dealers will probably be ready for production when situation eases. Libel spend by Lester Gottlob about the radio editor of The Billboard is a vicious calumny and deliberate mud-slinging session that could only be conceived by a Brooklyn baseball fan. Dot Haas, of P&M, back after the Al Pearce tour chores are over. WMCA may start evening coverage of local accidents similar to newspaper coverage. Hot flashes to break in on dance and other late programs, if and when.

Jim Barrett, of Press Radio, spoke over WOV Sunday. Talk that CBS will continue to hold off on that Park avenue building construction job for a while because of Hollywood building costs. Pete Bowles to vacation last two weeks in August. George Emmett, who received a pink slip from the WPA office, is shedding no tears. Now playing at the Rainbow Room. WMCA salesmen still enjoying their matutinal bridge. Not even scorching heat stops that. Frank Headley to Minnesota for vacation with family August 9. Beatrice Kay being watched by agency talent scout who sees her going places.

Mary McCormick will be Carlton Kelsey's guest artist at the Grant Park Concert Tuesday. This will mark Kelsey's second park appearance this season, playing a program of pop music again. Romantic Ink: Jackie Heller and Judy Starr. Jackie incidentally may go into the College Inn late this month following a lengthy vacation at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. Lyon and Marlowe, NBC piano team, groomed for another engagement at the Palace Theater. Roger Krupp, CBS announcer, back on the job after two weeks' illness. WAAF's Virgil Irvin set for a screen test in September. Lillian Gordoni back from the East.

Dorothy Glush and Harold Vermilyea, imported by Blackett-Sample-Hummert Agency to play the leads in WGN's five-a-week serial, The Couple Next Door, were introduced to the daily and trade press at a cocktail party in the Sherman Hotel Friday. They replaced Dolores Giller and Olan Soule Monday in the new policy designed to bring name players to enact leads in various shows here. Success of this venture incidentally will probably induce other agencies to take similar action. Paul Sabin is trying out Dorothy Miller, formerly with Xavier Cugat, as vocalist for his band. Herb Sherman, former sales manager of WOOD-WASH, Grand Rapids, Mich., joined the WJJD sales department. That station incidentally will have to get along without the Cumberland Ridge Runners for a month, the members having scattered all over U. S. for their first vacation in two years. Pickard Family now holding down their two-hour spot.

FERTZ BLOCKI doing publicity work for Kirby Hawkes, of Blackett-Sample-Hummert. The WLS Barn Dance Show will be a featured grandstand attraction at the Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin State fairs this year. Chuck Haynes and Ray Ferris, formerly with Gene Arnold, returned to WLS after a year's absence and teamed up with Christine Smith, soprano. John Fitzgerald, CBS special events chief, stopped off here on his way to Wisconsin and a two-week vacation. Barnett Millinery Store to sponsor a new amateur show direct from the stage of the Grand Theater in Gary, Ind., starting Friday. Angelo Raifelli, tenor, picked up by WLW during recent auditions held here.

Joe Silver, of WLBC, Muncie, Ind., joined WAAF's announcing staff. Latest sports scribe to succumb to radio offers is Warren Brown, Herald and Examiner sports ed, who signed for a baseball series over WJJD. Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Brown (he's WBBM's program director) off to Europe for a month. Lee Gillett is the new voice in the Chert and the Three Notes act, succeeding Harold Chabe, who deserted the airwaves for another business. "Buck" Gunn, of J. Walter Thompson's radio department, and Janet Fargo, of WBBM, back from their honeymoon. Sherman Ellis is a new member of that station's program department.

From All Around

HELEN MORGAN, NBC San Francisco actress, has almost finished those scripts, and several station and agency men will be eying them soon for possible fall use. Bill Kethauer's show, It Happens in Every Family, on KFOX, Long Beach, Calif., moved to a 5:15 p.m. spot. O. G. Phillips, of KIDO, Boise, still trying to decide what to name that new act. Joe Kearns back with KSL, Salt Lake City, after a year's absence. Leonard Strong and Glenn Shaw, of KSL, still don't want to part with their tonsils. W. J. Kappes Jr. new WNOX, Knoxville, salesman.

Doug Edwards, of WBB, is showing the home folks in Troy, Ala., how tennis should be played. Katherine M. Russell, Leo Hart and Dorothy Lee Mason new to the soloist roster of WBBF, Rock Island. Sam L. Lefitan, KDAL, special events man, gave the Duluth natives a thrill went he took a mike with him on his flying trapeze (See AIR BRIEFS on page 10)

Own "Web" for CIO Steel Union

NEW YORK, July 17.—Third CIO union to form its own "network" for labor airings is the Steel Workers' Organization Committee, which goes on four stations, starting July 20. Three 15-minute weekly spotcasts consisting of live and recorded speeches by local and big-time labor figures will be broadcast by WHP, Harrisburg, Pa.; WJAC, Johnstown, Pa.; WCBM, Baltimore, and WSAN, Allentown, Pa. Stations are in steel area and programs will be part of a campaign to win an election to determine which union is to represent steel workers. Programs will consist of local labor news and speeches, live and recorded. Somewhat similar plans are followed by textile and auto unions. Three Michigan stations and two Massachusetts outlets broadcast CIO union programs. Discs are being air mailed to keep them up to date and to tie in with latest developments.

Weekly Buys Radio Time

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 17.—Wildwood Leader, local weekly newspaper, has taken a half hour over WPG, Atlantic City, for news flashes. Period will also serve as community promotion for the resort, interspersing the headline flashes with entertainers appearing at Wildwood's amusement centers. Sheet's AP ticker will be utilized for news copy. Frank L. FitzPatrick, new addition to The Leader's editorial staff, will handle the other show. Send-off on July 22, sheet penciling at 10 p. m. to follow the Major Bowes show.

Ludy Bishop Opens Spot

NORTH WILDWOOD, N. J., July 17.—Ludy Bishop opened his summer tavern with a drawing card of Charlie Fuicher's Band; Winnie Whiteman, Sam Spotts, Senorita Nita, Barbara Joan, Bob Getty and Sunny Grazed.

Hard To Take!

CHICAGO, July 17.—Hill Blackett, of Blackett-Sample-Hummert, reveals that twice a year he sets aside two days to listen to his agency's 25 to 30 shows on the networks. He tunes in one network station early in the morning and has it on thru-out the day listening to B-S-H programs. And then it's a trip to the Battle Creek (Mich.) sanitarium for a rest.

Radio and Press in Pa. Ad Campaign

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Advertising campaign to boost Pennsylvania as a vacationer's paradise will include newspaper and radio. Roy Campbell has been signed for a half hour weekly spot on Columbia Broadcasting System to plug the virtues of the State.

Local talent had hoped to get in on part of the radio expenditure, but a name was desired. Barnes & Aarons handle the account.

Other States have had similar campaigns. Pennsylvania's budget is said to be $100,000.

KLZ Promotes Quinn

DENVER, July 17.—Frank Quinn, national sales manager KLZ, has been promoted to sales manager, thereby relieving F. W. Meyer, station manager, of some of his duties. Quinn has been with KLZ for five years.

F. & M. Branch Out

NEW YORK, July 17.—A literary department, including radio material, has been added to the Fanchon & Marco office. Agency is arranging to secure absolute rights from authors and publishers of best sellers and using its own staff to adapt tones for radio or pictures.

News Services Expanding Into General Production Activities

NEW YORK, July 17.—Altho news is still highly salable, major news services are working on news feature and dramatization productions to increase their gross figures. United Press, Transradio and International have been active in expanding their radio news activities, while a newcomer to the field, Van Cronkite, is attempting to handle both English and foreign language news programs.

Variations of news programs, such as dramatizations and women's, children's, comics and similar programs, may be compared to the feature pages of newspapers. Late and important news is on the front pages, while background and human-interest stories are used throughout the paper or in special sections.

While Press-Radio continues to serve news to both NBC and CBS and 10 independent stations, other competitive news organizations are offering news feature programs or have such ideas in the works. United Press, which has added a sizable radio staff to its organization in the past six months, has produced a half-hour dramatization which is being considered by several national accounts. UP has further radio plans under way now and will probably develop an extensive radio division. News-gathering facilities of United Press are being coordinated for radio use.

Transradio has announced plans for expansion in the facsimile field and will also try out instantaneous recording. Later plans call for national and, later on, European spot coverage.

International News Service, along with Hearst's King Features syndicate, is developing news and feature programs. Local sponsored series consists of film news and comments by Hearst and non-Hearst critics.

Actual news broadcasts, apart from comments and news features, consume a considerable amount of broadcast time. According to a Press-Radio survey, approximately 10 hours of news is broadcast daily by combined New York City stations.

UP, INS and TR report gains since the first of the year. UP now lists 173 stations, an up of 69 since January. Transradio, with its affiliate, Radio News Association, serves about 300 stations. This includes its short-wave coverage of outlets. International now has 132 stations getting its news. Short-wave delivery was tried out by INS, but was recently discontinued.

Set Confab Dates For AFM-Wax Talks

NEW YORK, July 17.—Recording and electrical transcription companies are apparently ready to play ball with the American Federation of Musicians, following the latter's ultimatum recently that AFM members would cease making discs by August 15 unless an agreement regulating the use of discs is reached in the meantime.

Letter from AFM headquarters to recorders stating its attitude was followed this week by another to radio stations in the United States and Canada.

Bert Henderson, AFM exec, this week said record and transcription firms had thus far made no overtures, but spokesmen for recording companies have already indicated willingness to meet the AFM executive board July 28. Transcription companies, including Associated Music Publishers, Langworth, McGregor and Solite, RCA, World and Standard, are expected to meet the AFM board July 30.

Conversations are expected to bring the squabble over mechanization to the highest pitch yet reached. Question of whether the disc men act in unison or individually is not bothering the federation.

"Raising Your Parents"

Reviewed Saturday, 10:15-10:45 a. m.
Style—Sketch. Sustaining on WJZ (NBC network).

With the exception of one glaring fault this is a swell show. It's humorous, serious, interesting at all times and chock-full of human interest to boot. Title should convey the program's thought, but if it doesn't it consists of discussions, by kids, of problems arising from their upbringing and treatment by their parents. It's dramatized Angelo Patri, but, of course, in reverse.

Milton Cross, the announcer who conducts the show, was an ideal choice, his basso voice exactly the proper contrast to the youngsters' trebles. One of the kids reads the question or problem submitted, such as a mother refusing to let her kids go on a camping trip because the older boys on the trip drink; or a parent insisting on certain musical studies. Then the various opinions are given by the juvenile counselors from the script.

The one fault consists of having every one of the juve actors in the studio holler at the same time every time a question is read or every time a telling point is scored. This happens frequently, too frequently, with annoying reactions.

Scripting, acting and direction tops.

"Words and Music"

Reviewed Thursday, 1:30-1:45 p. m.
Style—Music and poetry. Sustaining on WEAF (NBC network).

Program is subdued and of distinct appeal to a limited audience. Material comprises renditions of classical and semi-classical songs, given vocally and by organ solos, interspersed with readings of short poetry.

Narrator is Harvey Hays. Vocalists are Ruth Lyon, soprano; Charles Sears, tenor, and Edward Davies, baritone. Larry Larsen at the organ.

Material is well chosen and delivered.

Willie Winn

Reviewed Monday, 11:15-11:30 a. m.
Style—Race horse predictions. Sustaining over WAAF (Chicago).

Of interest to track fans anxious to learn predictions of possible winners at the leading races of the day. Sprightly voiced expert on this program makes the feature interesting, displaying proper race track enthusiasm in his work. After reviewing the last race and naming the winners predicted, he lists first, second and third choices of the afternoon races in the Windy City and elsewhere. The recorded tune You're My Lucky Star ushers in and closes this daily quarter hour.

Summer Symphony

Reviewed Tuesday, July 13, 7:30-8 p. m. Style—Orchestra. Sponsor—Philadelphia Company. Station—KDKA (Pittsburgh).

Second in a series of nine little symphonies scheduled for the summer to replace the sponsor's regular Varieties, Victor Saudek's program of semi-classic and pop tunes played from the Schenley Park outdoor band shell present a pleasing half hour in keeping with the dignity of a public utility, yet vital enough to maintain audience interest in the product being plugged, electric roasters.

Picked up for 30 minutes of an hour-and-a-half concert played in the park free to the public, the musicale presents different guest soloists weekly, tonight's being Cass Ward Whitney and Dorothy Morrison, singers.

Glenn Riggs, KDKA chief announcer, handles the two plugs spotted during program.

"Uncle Henry"

Reviewed Wednesday, 7:45-8 p. m. Style—Story teller. Sponsor—Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., New York City. Station—WPEN (Philadelphia).

Henry Potter, station's merchandising manager, has a telling manner in rounding up second generation of the foreign language element. An English story-teller of Jewish legends and folklores, Potter keeps 'em interested so that the announcer can get in some heavily padded palaver about the sponsor's product, My-T-Fine chocolate pudding. Spiels can stand ailing, but an accordionist piping a Hebrew melody makes it easier to gulp.

Stories are practically socialized lessons in Americanization. Rather than stressing a clash of cultures, it's always the complete assimilation of the Jewish youth to his new surroundings. When caught, told the tale about a British-Jewish congregation which enlited the cause of the Revolution and came to America as the haven for religious freedom, and a patriotic piece about a little emigrant lad who knew all about George Washington before leaving Ellis Island.

Potter dips into the archives for his material, stressing that his tales are true ones. Wooing the mike with a friendly tone and convincing manner, he expounds the technique of the old rabbi in their story-tellings. Not easy to snare listeners on this setup, but once caught there is no trouble in holding on to them. It's a steady audience that means most for sponsor's product.

Airs thrice weekly, the Friday session reserved for commentations on the Jewish news of the day.

"Hamlet"

Reviewed Monday, 9-10 p. m. Style—Play. Sustaining on WABC (CBS network).

(Because of the wide interest in this production, The Billboard review is divided into two parts. The first half consists of a regular radio review, with the commercial angle in mind. Latter half is devoted to an analysis of the radio production from the legit standpoint.)

The Radio Angle

Columbia's version of Hamlet was a more gripping and meaningful production than NBC's (Beat 'em to the gun) production. The Burgess Meredith lacked much of the fierce intensity that was Barrymore's, the adaptation as a whole was infinitely more telling. Meredith was a Dane of restrained feeling, while Barrymore was one of force and melancholy dynamics. His appeal, while it may be considered more obvious than the intellectualized Hamlet of Meredith, was strong indeed.

CBS's Hamlet as a production showed infinite care, feeling and understanding. Happily, it lacked much of the choppy unevenness of the NBC Dane. It was cut and the much was missed, great care had obviously been used in the scissoring process.

Whether American fans will suddenly develop into a nation of Shakespearean enthusiasts is scarcely a question. The Bard is still considered plenty highbrow and stand-offish, and the afternoon pop serials will probably draw larger, steady audiences. Probably the good will to be garnered in for the productions, even though they're being done on summer Mondays, will repay Columbia well for its expense. The added fact that listening to a drama for an hour is a long sitting for even ardent fans will probably keep some from becoming regular listeners. Yet no further cutting could possibly be done. Probably a strong, somewhat select audience will be the bulk attendance at the show, with occasional sight-seers dropping in on intellectual tours.

B. H.

The Legit Angle

A one-hour Shakespeare show over the air has certain advantages, the most important being that it presents a tabloid version of Elizabethan drama to thousands who, for the most part, have a tabloid liking for this sort of thing. Lacking visual production, the success of CBS' Hamlet depended upon two factors, a judiciously cut script and good readers rather than actors. Hamlet had both. Brewster Morgan supplying a first-rate job of whittling and Burgess Meredith, Walter Abel and Grace George reciting with sufficient fire to hold the audience for the allotted hour.

That Shakespeare could score without the usual theatrical trappings is nothing new, the stage being practically bare when Burbage confounded the groundlings with the grandiloquent and superbly constructed commonplaces of the Bard. But that CBS could so telescope and foreshorten the action and mental conflict is commendable. Let's hope the practice stops at the one-hour limit, however, for once the air-wave boys begin putting William thru his paces he'll be begging for 15 minutes to peddle soap.

Spurge on Shakespeare by both CBS and NBC, together with the success this season of the several Broadway Shakespearean productions and the WPA version of Marlowe's Faust is significant and should be handled with utmost care and ability. The public is either temporarily jaundiced or has really tripped into the slough of culture.

Current Program Comment

This column is devoted to brief reviews of programs which have been on the air for some time, as well as shows, which, already reviewed, rate further mention. Basis is that a one-time program review is inadequate for a production that varies each time it is presented.

Boake Carter's pithy but superficial opinions are still poured out as though his views were final and supreme decisions on all subjects. Carter possesses a highly individualistic delivery, an apparent authoritative background and he is showman enough to put himself over with great force and fervor. But the commentator has been running into criticism from labor, liberal and other groups for many of his statements. He evidently considers his path the right one, however, and is still continuing. His exaggerations and opinions are put across in a convincing manner which would probably leave the casual listener with the impression that he was speaking for the universe instead of for himself. A recent survey of news commentators showed that folks in the sticks prefer other more American-sounding broadcasters. Rising protests against Carter bear watching. It is not a question of freedom of speech. It is rather a matter for Philco to decide whether an interest-arousing speaker can stand mounting protests.

Mutual network had a splendid program in its tribute to George Gershwin. David Brokman drew from 40 men as splendid an interpretation of Gershwin melodies as has been heard for many a moon. The hour was climaxed by Rhapsody in Blue. Conrad Nagel made the introductions. Between times he presented Gershwin's friends and fellow musicians for words of tribute. Among them were Johnny Green, Fred Waring, Hoagy Carmichael, Otto Klemperer, Arnold Schoenberg and Rabbi Edgar Magnin. Virginia Verrill sang Summertime, a quartet sang Bidin' My Time and the orchestra played tunes and excerpts from many of Gershwin's best known scores, including Porgy and Bess.

For this type of program, which must of necessity be gotten together in haste and with insufficient rehearsal, it was a standpoint.

802 May Nix Picket Drive

Musicians circulate referendum—nationalization of campaign never realized

NEW YORK, July 17.—Future of the picketing drive conducted by Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, hinges on the results of a referendum now being circulated among the membership. Results to be announced July 22. Move follows closely upon the failure of the union to have the Federation make a national issue of the matter, Joe Weber, AFM president, pointing out at the Louisville convention that picketing methods were futile.

Drive, begun many months ago under the joint sponsorship of the American Federation of Actors and Local 802, was first aimed at all former vaude houses. Some time after withdrawal of the AFA musicians decided to concentrate their strength upon RKO, circuit which once had many weeks of vaude time but now has not a single week in New York.

With the circuit moguls apparently undaunted by incessant picketing and showing no indication of returning musicians to theaters, the local experimented with a "sit-in" strike.

Robert E. Storné, executive board member and theater drive chairman, said the result of the referendum would not necessarily mean junking the "sit-in" strategy.

Senate Hearings For Copyright Bills

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Senate Committee on Patents, headed by Senator McAdoo (Dem. Calif.), plans to hold hearings on three copyright bills within the next two weeks. The measures pending before the committee are the Duffy Bill, held over from last session; the Sheppard Bill and the Gurfey Bill.

At the time the recent Wisconsin State Legislature memorial to Congress requesting some relief from "music racketeering" flourishing in Wisconsin will be considered. It is expected that witnesses for ASCAP and other music organizations, as well as representatives of the broadcasting interests, will appear before the committee.

N. Y. Local Calls CIO Rumor "Ridiculous"

NEW YORK, July 17.—Reports that CIO operatives were active on the exchange floor of Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, were branded as ridiculous yesterday by Jack Rosenberg and William Feinberg, president and secretary, respectively, of 802. Rumors of CIO activity within the local have been recurrent for some time.

Spokesmen for the union claim that the CIO is interested in organizing employed workers, not unemployed.

One musician stated he was asked to join a group of 800 who were seeking a CIO affiliation.

Wildwood Spot Opens

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 17.—Unshuttering of Hunt's Plaza Ballroom with Art Shaw brought out the biggest crowd in the history of the boardwalk terp tavern. Ticket taker checked 3,800 persons at 75 cents per. Ballroom, using names continuously for the first time, spotting them on solo nights in previous seasons. Each name is set for a fortnight, Benny Moroff holding forth currently.

Lake Pier Ballroom Opens

AKRON, O., July 17.—Lake Pier Ballroom, at near-by Springfield Lake, badly damaged last summer by a windstorm, has been reopened under management of Robert Clair. Cliff Fledge and orchestra current. Vaude acts are added entertainment. Operates Sundays only at present.

A Lull in His Life

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 17.—Now that the music of the original Dixieland Band has had its revival, some of the tooters would have a call-back to band names of yesteryear, when it was always somebody's "Hottentots," "Dreamland Serenaders" and other descriptive titles of similar ilk. But the band billing at the Gingham Club walks off with a Nobel Prize when it comes to designating its brand of music. Spot features: Joe Taft and His Three Kests.

Radio Music Co. Formed

DETROIT, July 17.—Radio Music Company has been formed by Robert De Leon, with headquarters at 907 Wurlitzer Building. De Leon is associated with L. Wolff Gilbert and was formerly with Villa Moret, Coast publisher.

Company will publish songs, put same on the air, on counters and introduce them thru public performances.

Opera Stars for Chicago

CHICAGO, July 17.—Operatic stars, including Mary McCormick, Mildred Gerber, Ruth Lyon, Vivian Della Chiesa, Attilio Baggioni, Jack Fulton and Mark Love, signed contracts last week for appearances at the Orant Park concerts here this summer. Their acceptances were received by James G. Petrillo, president of Chicago Federation of Musicians and member of the park board.

A prize package, if there ever was one, in this lot. PHIL HARRIS rings in a couplet that should find the waxhounds running mad to the counters. In his best Bert Williams manner mugs a classic in Constantly from the Follies of 1910, backing it with a swift sender of his own writings, The Groove Song (3583). As special stomping suzies to shuffle it out with our EDDIE STONE lifts to a higher level with U Popped the Devil and Rhythm on the Loose (3585), and NATE LESLIE doubles his dandy original cleftings of Shaggin' at the Shore and Shake Yo' Bones (3585). EARL HINES fathers his pianistics for an original, Inspiration. Unfortunately that the band is a poor match for the maestro's efforts. Backer-upper has the clary, tenor and drums making it an Earl Hines quartet for Honeysockle Rose (3586), proving once again that it's Poppa Hines and not the tooters. This side will give B. Goodman's foursome little trouble.

It's ear-piercing and generally foot-lifting rhythmpations in this pack. All styled for tripping the light fantastic, JOHNNY JOHNSON doubles The Miller's Daughter Marianne and The Image of You (7-08-03); CARL RAVELL, the singing maestro, has a smoothie in Harbor Lights and Love Is a Merry-Go-Round (7-08-04), and for the spirited stoppings JOE HAYMES cuts four sides with Having Wonderful Time; Me, Myself and I; Got a Pair of New Shoes and Sun Showers (7-08-01, 7-08-03).

Would have you truck on down, and you will, for the bounding The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down, by Oliver hymning to the heated hurdy gurdy. Backup picks a swifter pace for I'll See You in My Dreams (1318). LES BROWN and his Duke Blue Devils make only mild dixie temperatures for Hoagy Carmichael's Up a Lazy River, but get going good on the turnover for a new dressing to the oldie Feather Your Nest (1323). SEGAR ELLIS and his saxless combo, a single clary representing the woodwinds, falls to do justice with A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody, his stylization faring better on the faster tempoed I Know That You Know (1322).

Besman's Mich. Bookings

DETROIT, July 17.—Doc Bolhofer and orchestra have been booked for an indefinite run at the Trianon Ballroom, Detroit, by Bernard Besman, manager of the orchestra division of American Attractions office here. Band is now featuring Morris Brady at the drums and vibraphones, and Marvin Warren at the accordion.

Milton King's Band completed its engagement at the Gratiot Inn, Port Huron, Mich., for the same office and is now doing a string of one-nighters. Charlie Lazin and his band have been signed up for the Oasis, Detroit night spot, for the season, closing September 15.

money owed by leaders to musicians, playing for less than the price list, violations of the by-laws and unfair dealings. Cases between leader and employer go to the executive board. On violations involving agents, trial board gathers evidence and refers the minutes to the executive board, which may revoke licenses. Violations of the price list, where musicians, leaders and employers enter into an agreement to work collusion on the union, have decreased considerably since the union collected back money from the Hollywood and Paradise restaurants, amounting, respectively, to nearly $3,000 and $2,000.

Cases with human interest crop up continually, musicians who have been friendly for years bringing each other up on charges. Board attempts to settle such matters amicably, and in some cases provides interpreters so that the men, or their witnesses, may tell their stories completely. Only in the case of a gross violation, as a leader getting full money and not paying his men, does the board lay down its most severe penalty.

Plaintiffs and defendants appearing before the board may bring up any number of witnesses, and each side may cross-examine the other. Although the board does not confine itself to rules of evidence, it does its utmost to base all decisions on facts, not hearsay.

Most prominent band leaders of the country have had altercations with their men settled by the board. Cases are on record where the Supreme Court failed to adjust matters between leaders and men on questions of contract, and such were eventually disposed of by Local 802. In tough cases both sides may come armed with their own attorneys, the board allowing this if no objections are raised.

Currently board also meets jointly with the executive board to ascertain policy to be pursued by the administration.

Conduct of the trials, according to Arons, is in accordance with the idea of a constructive improvement in the conditions of members.

Lineup of the board comprises Arons, chairman; Sidney Feldman, clerk; Emil G. Balzer, Frank Carlato, Edward Horn, G. G. McGibney, Albert Modiano, George Scheeter and Gino Tibelli.

HAMILTON makes delightful music-box music with Born to Love and There Must Be Paint in the Sky (25611).

Master

CASPER REARDON, hot harpist, whose conservatory background makes his pickings a classic for the cats, is introduced to the wax fraternity. Studio tooters serve as his "orchestra," backing his take-offs on Ain't Misbehavin' and beautiful arpeggio embellishments for Ellington's In a Sentimental Mood (133). No playing up to the Hickory House gang on this one. It's the ultra Rainbow Roomish rhythms, especially on the latter side. Even HUDSON-DE LANGE lays low on the sock rhythms to prove they can do justice to the past pops, making dancing a dreamy sort of tripping with their Back in Your Arms, Eddie De Lange lending voice to the lyrics, and Will Hudson's dandy You're My Desire, with Ruth Naylor, who has since left the band, song selling (132).

DUKE ELLINGTON once again goes ahead of the times in offering his Azure, whose close harmonies are more soulful than his Mood Indigo. Backs it smartly with Juan Tizol's exotic Caravan (131). Pipes of HELENE DANIELS are more than adequate for the standard treatment to Rockin' Chair and St. Louis Blues (134). Nat Brusloff conducting the ork cutting thru. Sells the songs as written with no hot figurations to dirty 'em up, a vocal choir further adding zest to her straight song painting.

Victor

From all appearances this label is out to outdo the swingography peddled by the Irving Mills groovings, which means that the waxhounds who hum hot hymnals to the hurdy gurdy will have to split their allegiance. To match the moochings of the Raymond Scott Quintet on the Master label Victor has commissioned BERT SHEPHERD to whip together a Rhythm Octet. Jivin' symphonies in the swing mode, this gang cuts their premiere with a doubling of descriptive original toms, S O S and Locomotive (25614). It's strictly musical meat for the musicians, but their rabid ramblings in rhythm will send the most naive neophyte. Gang cuts it as novel as the Scott livesome. Label carries the personnel and the D. Waide listed on trumpet is undoubtedly the Davie Wade that sends satch-mo with the Raymond Scott gang. It's the music of tomorrow which all the waxhounds will want today.

Still catering to the cats, label gave way to the Hot Club of America, which supervised a coupling by clarinetist MEZZ MEZZROW and a hand-picked crew of lesser known swingsters for Larry Clinton's The Swing Session's Called to Order and Hot Club Stomp (25612). And with all due respect to John Hammond and his cultural auxiliary to this thing called swing, platter is a let-down for the critical cats, offering nothing more than a hot dance dish. Even the tickings fail to inspire. Rather than catching the spirit of barrelhouse with their hair let down, the Hot Club presents a well-rehearsed unit, discarding the halo of jam music for ensemble work. For real jamm'n' TOMMY DORSEY and his Clambake Seven typifies the sending spirit, even on the out-and-out commercial Who'll Be the One This Summer? and Is This Gonna Be My Lucky Summer? (25610), the maestro himself sliding the slip plenty, with repetitious salaams for Johnny Mince, Davie Tough and Edythe Wright's hymnaling.

BUNNY BERIGAN lays low on the powerhouse for a smoother brand of synopatching with Roses in December and Let's Have Another Cigaret (25613). And for the sugary interpretations GEORGE

CFM-AMU Rift Continues in Chi

CHICAGO, July 17.—The proposed merger of the American Musicians' Union with James C. Petrillo's Chicago Federation of Musicians was still hanging in air this week after a meeting of the AMU Monday to consider Petrillo's second offer, which permitted the entire AMU membership free admission to the CFM if they would dissolve completely and turn their charter over to Petrillo.

Chief bone of contention which is holding up the consolidation is a clause in Petrillo's newest statement to AMU which stipulates that Max E. Kozakiewicz, AMU secretary, would not be considered in the new setup.

When this statement was read by Joseph F. Hruby, AMU president, an argument ensued among the members over the condition excluding Kozakiewicz. Meeting ended in a battle and without taking a vote on the CFM offer when Al Marney, member of the AMU for five years and recently suspended for soliciting members for the CFM, took the floor and accused Kozakiewicz and himself of misappropriating AMU funds over a period of years.

Neb. Anti-ASCAP Hearing Sept. 11

LINCOLN, Neb., July 17.—The Federal Court here has set September 11 as the date for first hearing on the anti-ASCAP trial. Gene Buck, president of the society, is bringing action seeking prevention of enforcement of the bill passed by the last Legislature, which would make the music combination a violation of State law and subject to $5,000 fine in each instance of violation.

The bill was pushed thru by Senator Frank Brady, an Atkinson, Neb., rancher, and passed with not a single dissenting vote in the unicameral. It was put up to the governor and he signed it, making it a law in effect immediately.

This court action is the first step to final review before the Supreme Court. Buck claims the bill seeks to take unto a State the powers hitherto delegated only to Congress relating to copyright laws.

Philly Crisis (?)

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Now that the Marines have come back with a helicon player for the U. S. Army Band, the local police are spreading a dragnet for tooters to join up with their Police and Firemen's Band. Taking a respite from tracking down criminals, flatfoots are on the hoof for bassoonists, cornetists and slide horners. Capt. Joseph Kiefer, bandmaster of the city combo, has advised his superiors that unless recruits are obtained the pride and joy of the bureau won't even have enough men to play chamber music.

When not playing in concerts, the men are on regular police and fire duty. Many former professionals are now wearing a badge with the band. Barry Miller, bass horn, was with Paul Whiteman; assistant bandmaster Arthur Lehman once had a professional orchestra of his own, and Frank Cianfrone, trombonist, and Walter Burnside, piccolo ace, are vet pros.

He has mapped out a country-wide "plugging" stint aided and abetted by his staff and several leading bachelors. Miller was inspired to do this thru the unexpected showing of the number which, in spite of limited publicizing, is revealing signs of popularity.

Hoffman, Pubs' Sleuth, Poison To Song Pirates, Gets Big Haul

NEW YORK, July 17.—Music publishing industry is gradually closing in on printers, distributors and peddlers of bootleg song sheets. Arthur Hoffman, the pubs' sleuth, having this week raided the plant of Patrick Bernard Mulkern, printer of Popular Cowboy Songs and The Hobo News. Three thousand copies were seized, including The Hobo News, which had among its pages the lyric of Sidewalks of New York, copyright of which was renewed in 1921.

Hoffman, formerly in the copyright department of Felst Music, for the last three years has been on the trail of song bootleggers all over the country. Only sheet still on sale in New York City is The Continental, formerly masterminded by Eddie Burke and now allegedly operated by the remainder of his associates in downtown New York. Burke, currently incarcerated for a nine-month stretch, in addition to paying a fine of $1,000, required three men to capture him. During his heyday The Continental, printed by the Christy press in New Brunswick, N. J., plant which publishes suburban newspapers, sold at the rate of 50,000 copies per week.

Mulkern, who, together with his wife, Lucy, depicted strumming a guitar on the front page of Popular Cowboy Songs as Shy Ann, had their plant in a cellar at 44 West 17th street here. A Kelly press, valued at $4,000, together with printing materials, were seized. Couple is slated to appear before the Federal Grand Jury August 16. According to Hoffman, Mulkern said between 5,000 and 10,000 sheets of Popular Cowboy Songs were printed monthly since 1932. This material is not sold in New York but sent out west.

Songs allegedly not in public domain, said to be found in Mulkern's sheet, are Steamboat Bill, published by Paul Floncor; In the Baggage Coach Ahead, E. B. Marks; Tavern in the Town, Shapiro-Bernstein; Frankie and Johnnie, F. B. Haviland; Wearyin' for You, Boston Music Company; When It's Lamp-Lighting Time in the Valley, Shapiro-Bernstein; Convict and the Rose, Shapiro-Bernstein; San Antonio, Remick; Cheyenne, Remick; Seven Years With the Wrong Woman, Jack Mills; Abdul, Abulbul Amir, F. B. Haviland; and Get Away, Old Man, Get Away, F. B. Haviland.

Since Hoffman left Felst to become the pubs' Sherlock Holmes he has made hundreds of arrests for the copyright owners. He is assisted by John Welner, and in the metropolitan area is accompanied by James Devine, specially assigned to Hoffman by the police department for this work.

Most important recent arrest was that of Theodore Aaronson, alias Puggy Harris, convicted three times. Six months ago Harris was convicted, receiving a two-year sentence. Another recent conviction was that of Jack Shea, New Haven distributor.

Musicians Ask Aid In FTP Curtailment

NEW YORK, July 17.—Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, has sent letters to all Congressmen urging support of the Schwelienbach-Allen resolution favoring non-dismissal of persons from WPA rolls for whom there is no hope of private employment.

In a circular, letter 802 administration points out that musicians being dismissed were on home relief date or assigned to manual labor prior to obtaining WPA employment. Music now affords less opportunity for employment than in 1932, the depth of the depression, according to the local. WPA officials have confirmed this opinion, but still refuse to rescind the order dismissing hundreds of musicians, which became effective Thursday.

union drive. The association includes Harry Kalmine, general manager of Warner theaters in the Tri-State area; John H. Harris, of the Harris Amusement Company, and M. J. Cullen, manager of Loew's Penn.

Officers of the local, which to date numbers 233 members out of an estimated possible total of about 240, at $1 monthly dues, are Charles Kennedy, Arsenal doorman, president; Nestor Auth, Loew's Penn head usher, vice-president; Thelma Jackson, Harris Alvin cashier, secretary; C. J. Nolte, Stanley stage doorman, treasurer, and Joseph Onnita, Enright usher, sergeant at arms.

Meetings will be held 12:30 a.m. the second Tuesday of each month in the Peoples Alliance Building.

DETROIT, July 17.—Organization among film employees is progressing rapidly. An interview with Roger M. Kennedy, international vice-president of the IATSE and Detroit business agent of the local, showed this week. The film exchange employees are now organized close to 100 per cent, with a raise in wages for inspectors from the former level of $12 to $15 per week to the present level of $18. A further raise of $2 is now being sought and demands for a new schedule ranging from $20 up to a top figure of $38 for head shippers has been presented to all exchange managers.

Further union demands are for a 40-hour week with provision of straight pay for overtime, which has never been paid for before.

Latest step in unionization is among theatrical sound engineers. All men in the State working for Western Electric, RCA, Cleveland Sound Engineering and some independents have now been signed up, Kennedy said. Charter has not been received from Washington yet, but is expected daily. No attempt will be made at present to organize the one and two-man shops, which are not a serious problem as yet. The public-address technicians, who do not handle theater work, apparently come under the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Activity on renewal of the projectionists' local own biennial contracts is also being started. These expire September 1, and little difficulty is expected in negotiating a renewal with only minor changes. Negotiations will be carried on primarily with George W. Trendle, president of United Detroit Theaters; David M. Idzal, managing director of the Fox Theater; Henderson M. Richey, director of publicity for Co-Operative Theaters of Michigan; and Frank Wetman, president of Allied Theaters of Michigan.

CENTRAL CITY—

painter for Opera House Association. Justin W. Brerly is business manager of the play festival.

The present Central City Opera House project, inaugurated with some trepidation six years ago, has grown to startling proportions. The accomplishment is most remarkable when one considers that Central City is located in a poorly accessible mining gulch some 40 miles from Denver, reached by winding mountain roads. The town itself is a typical mining town, a scattered collection of cottages and miners' cabins built on the terraced mountain sides, with the small business section a few blocks long running up the gulch, and mine workings dotting the background.

The opera house was originally built in the 1870s and flourished during the years when the gold mines were producing huge profits. Its stage was trod by such famous artists as Bernhardt, Barrett, Mojeska, Joseph Jefferson, Denman Thompson, Salvini and a host of others. By 1910 the city had become a ghost town and the opera house, abandoned, was a haunt for mountain rats. The heirs of Peter McParlane, builder of the theater, presented the building to the University of Denver some years ago and in 1932 civic leaders launched the project that has once more put Central City on the map. During the last six years, under the direction of Robert Edmond Jones and Frank St. Leger, the play festival has had as stars such actors and singers as Lillian Gish, Richard Bonelli, Walter Huston, Clifford Nordahl, Gladys Swarthout and Natalie Hall.

Tradition surrounds the opera house. Many reminders of its palmy days remain—the four-foot-thick walls of solid rock, the exquisite interior with interesting murals, gorgeous crystal chandelier and

Sandy Schell and His Red Jackets

Reviewed at Steeplechase Amusement Park, Brooklyn, New York. Style—Dance band.

Instrumentation: Sandy Schell, leader and drums; Phil Longo, piano; Ricky Roarbone, string bass; Phil Shadlin, tenor sax, clarinet and arrangements; Banks, first alto sax and clarinet; Bobby Agnew, third alto sax, trumpet and clarinet; Percy Baselle, trombone; Earl Rogers and Ruby Melnick, trumpets.

An energetic and hard-working group, band is playing this Coney Island spot for the eighth consecutive summer and has attracted a considerable following among the lads and lassies who like their music hot but danceable.

Spot is one that might well cause any band to quake in its boots, because boys have to contend with adjoining noise from roller coasters, hooplas and other Coney Island cacophony. That they turn in such capable performances is much to their credit.

Schell emphasizes rhythm section, placing drums and bass down front. Has a repertoire of pops and special hot arrangements of Marie, Jazz Me Blues, Sweet Sue and other hot classics to satisfy the swinger dancers. Sax section is outstanding, carrying a sweet or swing melodic burden with understanding and rhythm. In Longo and Agnew, Schell has two fine musicians. Longo taking a few solo measures in Stardust showed clarity and finish in his piano. Agnew's trumpet has the authentic hot intonation and a bold attack that sweeps a tune off its feet. Shadlin's sax is better than his clarinet, which has a tendency toward shrillness. Band as a whole leans on Dorsey and Goodman style of smooth swing. Brass section is weak, blaring too much and often failing to polish off a note as it should be done.

Band's outstanding novelty is a five-man unit playing Dixieland arrangements of the hot oldtimers.

With more modulation, softness and finesse this band should go places. A gal warbler and more vocals would help. Zolotou.

Reviewed at Guernewood Bowl, Guerneville on the Russian River, Calif. Style—Dance and show band.

Instrumentation: Lenny Hines, Ken Loftstad, Harry Saladin, saxes; Gene and Smith, trombones; Larry Hominger, trumpet and violin; Bob Kinney, piano; Fred McMurray, guitar; Tom Floyd, bass; Hi Davis, drums. Saunders leads and vocals.

Playing as it is in an outdoor spot, the music of this group is a bit distorted, but the musicianship is excellent. Originally Harry Barris' Band, ork was taken over a few months ago by Saunders, formerly a featured vocalist with Eddie Fitzpatrick. Saunders has a fine tenor voice and has had commercial radio spots of his own.

When Barris had the band it leaned heavily toward swing, but style is now strictly commercial. The two trombones are featured and serve to identify the group. Cleanliness and precision of phrasing and stability of tempo are observed at all times.

Saunders, a little awkward when he first took the stick, is now quite at home and makes a pleasing appearance. He vocalizes the ballads, the crooner tunes go to Fred McMurray and attractive Jane Cook sings an occasional chorus. Pat Kelly.

crimson carpet from the old days. In the physical restoration of the building every endeavor was made to preserve the original atmosphere, only such present-day technical and mechanical conveniences as would not alter the actual appearance being added. The old hickory hand-made chairs are still used. In financing the project these chairs were sold at $100 each, the purchaser being privileged to dedicate the chair to whom ever he chose. Names of those to whom the chairs were dedicated have been carved on the backs by Carl Beiler, well-known artist.

Sets used in this year's production were designed by Donald Oenslager and executed by Poncho Gates.

Number of Press Agents Go Up But So Must Their Virtues

The newspapers have increased space devoted to clubs, number of spots and competition keeps them on toes—300 in field—few women—agency tienp frequent

NEW YORK, July 19.—Use of press agents by night clubs has been spreading steadily and it is now estimated that there are at least 250 p. a.'s making a living out of the gentle art. Most of them are operating here, a close approximate being about 140 giving full time to the game, with another 50 or so doing part-time work. The next biggest night club p.-a. field is Chicago. Most of the part-time guys are connected with advertising agencies handling night club accounts. The agencies discover soon enough that they can't hold on to night club accounts without "special service," and so they send out occasional press releases to keep the club owner happy.

Some press agents turn the tables by opening ad agencies on the side and using their night club accounts as a buildup for the agency. An example is the Blackstone Agency, operated by Monte Proser, who publicizes the French Casino enterprises. Since most live-wire p. a.'s can convince a club owner they should handle both advertising and publicity, a tieup with an agency by the press agent is a natural consequence.

With competition for accounts so keen—what with the ad agencies spreading out into the publicity field—the p. a.'s are having a tough time keeping rivals away on one hand and retaining the boss' confidence on the other. Consequently the average p. a. is now more than that. He is often a combo confidential adviser, political string-puller, booker, agent, personal representative, advertising man, emcee, stooge and handy man. Some club owners want the p. a. to always be around the place, even though his work is finished. That's why so many p. a.'s suffer from indigestion, lack of sunlight, lonesomeness, lack of sleep, near deafness and poor eyesight.

Altho local dillies, as well as those thruout the country, have increased the space devoted to night club news and photos, the number of spots have increased too fast in proportion. Which means the p. a.'s must wrack their brains to land enough stuff to keep the boss happy. Those p. a.'s whose spots place advertising have a pretty good chance to land publicity linage, but the p. a.'s of small spots that don't advertise are the ones that writhe in anguish when approaching the night club editors' desks. Most of the smaller papers have the night club editor double as ad solicitor—which means, to the p. a., no ad, no publicity.

Few women p. a.'s venture into the night club field—the going is too rough. Most successful, locally, is Dorothy Gullman, who has the Hollywood, Pavilion Royal and several name acts. Other females who occasionally venture into local night club or hotel dining room publicity are Rose Bigg, Corinne Buchanan, Dorothea Cleveland, Xenia Colner, Dorothy Kay, Phyllis Kraus and Mary Jane Kroll.

Most p. a.'s find it necessary to handle two or more clubs in order to make a living. And some offer acts "special and additional publicity" (for a fee) when these acts play spots handled by the p. a. Some p. a.'s even cut in on commissions on bookings, claiming they are "servicing" the acts. In other words, agents, they stop at nothing.

Altho they unanimously deplore "chiselers" (always meaning the other guy) and altho they mumble vaguely about a "union" to compel club owners to pay as per promise, they usually are too busy to do anything about their collective lot. Right now they're very busy wondering about the new season and too lazy to cry over the old.

Realistic!

JEFFERSON, Ind., July 17.—A dance team started to settle a personal argument while on the floor at the Club Greyhound here the other night when the male, instead of kissing his partner's hand, bit it. He then proceeded to use his fists, but the emcee on the bill stopped the scrap by knocking out the fighting dancer. The innocent customers accepted the brawl as an apache number.

Suit Tests N. Y. State Beer Law

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 17.—Suit was brought before Supreme Court Justice James Cross by Club Madrid here against the State Liquor Authority over revocation of the club's license. Suit asks a writ of prohibition against the State board, preventing it from interfering with sale of beer at any time, regardless of the 1 a.m. closing deadline.

Club's license was revoked on complaint that beer was being sold after closing hour of 1 a.m. Spot first filed suit demanding return of the license, lost the case, then started present action, most unusual filed against the board since prohibition.

Suit charges that the State gives the board no authority to limit the hours for sale of beer; that it gives authority only for liquor and wine sales. Establishment of a beer deadline at 1 a.m., or any other hour, is claimed to be illegal.

Spot owners believe a victory by Club Madrid would throw out every ban against late sale of beer everywhere in New York State unless Legislature passes some amendment to the present law.

Dentists favor clean shows —novelties displace nudity —Jersey law unenforced

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—Favorable July weather, together with a dental convention which brought several thousand to the resort, is booming the after-dark business and altho the shows are all cleaned up there is no apparent lack of attendance. Most of the revues this year are steering clear of strips and nudity and substituting brilliant costumes and unusual novelty numbers such as magic, tumblers, jugglers, etc., for a happy change.

Altho the no-women-working-after-midnight law has gone into effect no attempt has been made to enforce it and it is the general belief that the present conditions will continue. The Beverage Association, the Restaurant Association, the Hotel Association and several other bodies are all prepared with plenty of arguments should any effort be made to exclude women performers after the midnight hour. The law is being called class legislation in many quarters.

The old House of Morgan, hopping badly lately, rejuvenated itself this week as the Frolics Club—big new sign, plenty of light and James Hall, the movie star, as ace attraction. Too many of the Jean Harlow-Hall pictures from Hell's Angels seemed to be only dampening effect.

Chi Area Has Pay Headaches

Sudden cancellations and nonpayments continue—bad biz, ops' excuse

CHICAGO, July 17.—Acts in many other summer spots are plenty worried, what with first-night cancellations of one and two-week contracts, chiseling of agents and most of them reporting a delay in payment of salaries, but this territory seems hardest hit, with complaints seeming more frequent here than anywhere else. Business has been bad week-nights, with hardly enough people out during the week-ends to cover weekly nuts. Harassed managers, blaming the acts for the poor business, have in many cases canceled them on a last-minute notice.

Latest case is that of Bobby Pincus, local comedian and emcee, who filed a complaint with the Indiana Labor Commission Board against the Club Greyhound, Jeffersonville, Ind., charging breach of contract. Pincus claims his two-week contract was broken at the end of the first week because the manager expressed a personal dislike of his act.

This follows close on the heels of the wholesales holding of the big that was enacted last Monday when Ben Lenhoff's Cocoanut Grove folded. Club is said to have started on the wrong foot by charging steep prices and keeping the middle class night clubbing public out. Luring of big shots who could afford to drop a bank roll in the gambling room failed to materialize, however, and the operators took the easy way out. Musicians and acts were thrown out of work with it. It is claimed, $5,000 due them in back salaries.

The musicians' union here pulled Mark Fisher's Orchestra after Lee Sims, a member of the APM and of the Sims and Bailey act, demanded payment of $800 due the act for a week's work. Other victims are Paul Rosini, magician, $700; Theodore and Denesha, $100; Frances Willa, dancer, salary for two weeks; a line of Muriel Kretlow girls, salary for two and a half weeks; Dawn and Darrow, Jerry Lester and Jerry the Turk.

Lenhoff promises to pay off as soon as sufficient money comes his way and some of the acts involved are remaining in town for a while to give the operator a chance to square things.

RKO Repeats on Unit Producing

Occasioned by last year's success—hands out blanket contracts to acts

NEW YORK, July 17.—RKO's success in the production of its own units last season, particularly the Folies Comiques, is prompting the circuit to lay plans for additional production of this kind for the new season. To this end blanket contracts, entailing five and six weeks, are being handed to acts, mainly comedy turns, to start in September. While the circuit is left with only two weeks at present, September will usher in towns that went into straight film policies for the summer months.

For the production of the units Charles Koerner, division manager in Boston, and Bill Howard, booker, will supervise, aided by Dan Friendly, with different staggers being employed to put the shows on. Among the acts already signed to blanket contracts are the Three Swifts, the Bryants, Cinda Glenn, Four Kraddockes, Aaren and Broderick, Rudy Grasl, Vic Oliver and Forsythe, Seamon and Farrell.

The Palace theaters in Chicago and Cleveland are the only two RKO houses now using flesh. However, Boston will come in September 3, with the Three Stooges and 12 Aristocrats already booked, and other towns returning to stage shows that month will be Cincinnati and Dayton. In addition, spot bookings will be done in Kansas City, San Francisco and Minneapolis. The up-State houses are expected to return to combo policies also.

Spot-booking of RKO houses has already started, with the Fred Waring Ork playing the houses. Ork goes into the Golden Gate, San Francisco, Wednesday and follows with Denver and Kansas City. Other towns available to the units are Providence and Columbus. Furthermore, RKO will offer its units to the other circuits for towns in which RKO is not represented by theaters.

Allegheny County WPA Continues Present Status

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Fears of WPA shutdowns which might have curtailed or killed activities of the local Federal Theater Project were allayed here by a statement from R. M. Wolf, supervisor, that plans call for continuing the 23-people vaude unit now traveling metropolitan Pittsburgh. Augmented by an eight-piece band, the acts work 18 hours a week, receive $85 monthly, show at playgrounds, for institutions and other places asking free entertainment.

Bogey of WPA kill order was started by city and county officials, who wondered where money was coming from after Congress recently held up appropriation bill. State moguls in Harrisburg, however, informed Allegheny County WPA Director James E. Keasner that present projects are ok. About 28,000 are now on WPA roll in county.

Hylton's Agency Biz May Shelve His Baton

LONDON, July 10.—Jack Hylton, English band leader, who has been in the agency business for over two years, is expanding his agency to the extent that he may abandon his stage career. He has incorporated the local Hyman Zahl Agency into his firm and is arranging to open offices in Paris, Berlin and Copenhagen.

Hylton's agency has representation in America. At present his interests are represented in Paris by Harry Saltzman and in Berlin by Eduard Duisberg.

Britain's Seasonal Letdown

LONDON, July 10.—British vaude is in the midst of its worst spell of the year, the seasonal period when the majority of the combo houses go dark. The Moss Empires-General Theaters Circuit has 17 of its 30 houses, including the Holborn Empire and Hippodrome, dark for the next three weeks, while the Fred Collins Tour has three of its houses closed. All the houses will reopen on the Bank Holiday, August 2.

Oh, Boy!

NEW YORK, July 17.—Martha Raye, currently making a personal appearance at the local Paramount, walked across the street Thursday morning to make a surprise personal appearance at Loew's State, opposition house. She did it for Benny Davis, her old boss, but Paramount execs squawked plenty over the incident, raving that they're paying her $5,250 a week and she does a show gratis at an opposition house. She did not perform except to talk a bit and advertise that she was across the street. Loew bosses should be sore, too.

A. C. Flop Re-Echoes In Paul Moss Office

NEW YORK, July 17.—Flop of the 18-act show booked into Atlantic City for the July 4 week-end under a tieup with the American Legion re-echoed yesterday at a hearing before License Commissioner Paul Moss. P. J. McAndrews, with the United Stage Association, alleged promoter of the show, was brought before Moss on complaint of I. Robert Broder, attorney for Lester Cole's Legionnaires, Picchiani Troupe and Beale Street Boys, who were part of the show.

Moss held that he would investigate further as to whether the United Stage Association should be licensed by his office and suggested that McAndrews arrange a payoff of the acts. Later McAndrews said he would make every effort to pay off and would work out some plan of payment early next week.

Para and Loew Active On "Name" Band Buys

NEW YORK, July 17.—Loew and Paramount are continuing active in booking bands for their houses. Among the orks bought by Loew are Gus Arnheim, State here, and Capitol, Washington, July 29 and August 6; Jimmy Dorsey, Stanley, Pittsburgh, and Washington, August 6 and 13, and Chick Webb, State here, August 19.

Paramount has lined up Eddy Duchin to play Minneapolis and Chicago the weeks of August 8 and 13, and Rudy Vallee for Chicago August 20 and Minneapolis August 27 for five days.

Billy Rose "Show of Shows" Starts 40-Week Tour in Oct.

Combination of highlights of all Rose's shows during last five years—to play auditoriums, theaters and cafes—to be broken down into units following tour

NEW YORK, July 17.—About 40 weeks have already been lined up, taking in auditoriums, theaters and cafes, for Billy Rose's proposed fall road production, Show of Shows, which will be a combination of the highlights of all shows produced by Rose in the last five years. Show, which Rose says will be the biggest thing to go out since Ben Hur, is scheduled to open a week after the October 16 closing of the Fort Worth Exposition, starting off in Texas and heading for the Coast. Rose says that the show is being put on with his own money, that it will carry from 125 to 180 people, traveling by rail, and will play dates ranging from one-day to two-week stands. He also figures on breaking down the show after its tour into units for theaters and clubs.

Chicago Theater Tries Band Policy

CHICAGO, July 17.—Chicago Theater here will attempt the pit-band policy of the Paramount, New York, starting this Friday, leading off with the Ted Weems Ork. Pending the success of the policy the house's pit band will be retained.

Chicago Theater has a strong lineup of "name" bookings to follow Weems. Martha Rays will come in July 30; Herman Bing, August 6; Eddy Duchin and ork, August 13, and Rudy Vallee, August 20.

Internat' Casino Bookings

Para's 110 Gs in 2 Weeks

NEW YORK, July 19.—When Martha Raye closes at the local Paramount Tuesday night the house will have grossed in the neighborhood of $110,000 for the two-week engagement. A third-week holdover of the show was desired, but advance bookings of Miss Raye into Boston, Detroit and Chicago made it impossible.

Locw's State, New York

(Reviewed Thursday Evening, July 15)
 Benny Davis is back here again with a bunch of his "to be or not to be a star" kids, mating up with the Marx Brothers' pix. A Day at the Races, which is a combo that's sure to keep the house well in the black. While the Davis units are all so refreshing, paced at a fast and furious tempo with a bunch of youngsters trotting out their stuff, this latest aggregation of his doesn't measure up to his previous shows. Not complete on the usually strong talent he lines up. Yet the show was obviously working at a disadvantage this last show, working against time to make up for the half hour or so that it was running late. As a result everything was being boiled down, the show running but 80 minutes. Evon Svengali Benny sang but a couple of his numbers, while several of the Tribbys were kept to a single number. Rubys Zwering and the pit boys do their usually capable job on the stage, which is dressed and lighted effectively. Lou Longo is on stage also as the unit's pianist.

Davis, as usual, brings on the kids. At this show he was tripping over the announcements. He sticks with them for their last few bars to swell the reception and towards the unit's finale gets his inning with his songs. Keeps everything moving delightfully.

Leadoff specialty is Anita Jakobi, a blond lass who combines tap and acrobatic cleverly. She has talent, sells it and earned the big hand obtained. Mae McKim and Boy Friends, harmony singing quartet, let down the nice start of Miss Jakobi, offering but one number in average fashion. Mariora, young girl juggler, picked the going right up with her sure-fire turn. For a girl to do the work she does certainly is unusual and she does it all showmanly and skillfully. Mira Niva just gets by with her one song, the Russian of Dark Eyes, and was a disappointment. McDonald and Ross, young mixed team, are a nice hoofing pair, trying to be different in their work and succeeding. Audience liked them a lot. Mary Fenton had but one number, warbling it okeh and attempting Martha Raye mannerisms.

In the hit section of the unit are the last three specialties, Little Billy Blake, Robert Baxter and Ken and Roy Paige. The Blake boy looks like he just climbed into long pants, but the way he handles a trumpet belies it. He's a wiz on it, imitating different bands. Baxter, who has been raved about by this reviewer before, has a rich baritone voice that lends itself romantically to pop songs. He's got looks to go with it. The Paige boys, especially Roy, knock themselves out in low-down slapstick to get laughs, which they do. Hard and tireless workers a la Mitchell and Durant, Davis had trouble quieting the audience after they got thru. Sidney Harris.

Vaudeville Reviews

Palace, Chicago

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, July 16)

Ozzie Nelson is here this week with his now famous Harriet Hilliard, and while he has some good individual acts, they don't blend to make the fast entertaining bill usually expected of him. Harriet herself is not working as hard as she used to, substituting a short speech when it's another song the fans want and submitting to flattery from Ozzie and the boys upon her entrance instead of going immediately to work. She is on for two spots, singing In Our Penthouse on Third Avenue in the opener and later doing The Kid in the Three-Cornered Pants (very motherly) and an oldie, Here Am I, But Where Are You? The big house went for her in a big way.

The 13-piece band opens on a baro stage with A Study in Brass and a jazzy version of Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet, latter singling out Ozzie in a swiny vocalization. Harriet follows with one song, but waits in Ozzie's arms until he is thru telling her how marvelous she is.

Johnny Bryant, whistler, has a good novelty. His bird imitations are well done and his neat canary whistling makes way for a nice act. A brief but different specialty, Shirley Lloyd, refreshing rhythm songstress, scored with Sing Hallelujah, Johnny One-Note and The Love Bug Will Bite You. She has a winning personality and a smooth voice.

Grace and Nikko stayed on for one comedy dance routine and could have easily continued with another, but begged off with a bow. While some of their tricks are slightly exaggerated, they produce solid laughs.

Don Cummings is next to Harriet's second appearance with his highly amusing rope act and funny patter. Stayed on for 13 minutes and not a dull moment in his entire offering. Comes thru with a number of sock rope-spinning tricks.

The boys close the bill with a medley of tunes by Tschalkowsky, aided by the house ork in the pit. Acts return for one hour bow.

On screen, Talk of the Devil (Goumont-British). House extra good first show opening day. Sam Hontyberg.

Earle, Philadelphia

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, July 16)

After two disasters in a row (N. T. G. and the KYW Radio Revue) house finally does right by its patronage. Duke Ellington is the peace offering, a swiny one. This town is swing hungry and when the real thing comes along villagers aim to lick their chops. While keeping many of his star swingers and himself under wraps, the Duke dishes out a barrel house of what it takes to rock 'em in rhythm.

Multi-hued lights play on the band for the thematic Mood Indigo, giving the Duke a showmanly sendoff. From then on it's a session of swingology that puts 'em in a sending spirit. A jived arrangement of The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down made 'em clap hands and snap fingers. Follows with an indigo tempoed by The Shade of the Old Apple Tree, getting-offs by Lawrence Brown's wah-wah tromboning, Cootie Williams' gabriel hornings, Harry Carney's baritone saxings and Barney Bigard's superior clarinet lickings.

The Four Step Brothers break the concert with the smartest stegology that ever graced an Earle board. Two turns in one, first a tap drill with cane twirlings and then hoof aplenty in challenges. Decked in white tie and tails and certainly the tops.

The exotic and haunting Caravan swings it back to the rhythmic beatings. Composer Juan Tizol spotlighting his valve trombone wizardry. Ivie Anderson shows next with the balladizing There's a Lull in My Life and her slicker piece, All God's Chillun Got Rhythm. Fans have a warm spot for this canary in spite of the fact that it's been almost a year since Ellington showed in Philadelphia. Couldn't beg off and had to return for Andy Razof's race ditty, He Does Me So Much Good, drummer man Sonny Greer cutting thru with mugged lyrics for that spitting touch.

Iron-lipped Rex Stewart steps forward for his own concert. Trumpet in Spades, replete with mile-a-minute triple tonguing. It's strictly musicians' music, fans warming up to him when hitting the roof off the house with the high Cs. The Three Chocolateers, young lads in rag-cutting dress, are in for more of the heated hoofings. In one, warm up with rhythmic tapology and then go zany on the Peckin' dance craze, doing the same routine they kiledged in the New Faces flicker. Windup has Ivie Anderson and a vocal trio from the band beating up the Duke's I've Got To Be a Rug Cutter.

Squatting at the Steinway, Ellington keeps it all moving at a fast pace. No long-winded intros for all the specialties, none showing need for bally in their delivery. While the Duke can never be accused of taking bows for others or hogging the spot, it would certainly have been in order for Ellington to feature his own mastery at whipping the keyboard. Another forgotten man was Johnny Hodges, band's ace alto and soprano saxman.

Opening show had 'em standing in the aisles. Clocked at 45 minutes. Screen has Last Train From Madrid (Paramount).

Roxy, New York

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, July 16)

There have been better stage shows than the one at the Roxy this week. Including four acts and a specialty singer, the bill is saved only by its opener and closer—and both of those turns are definitely on the novelty side. When a brace of novelty acts hold a bill together there's something wrong with that bill.

Chief sock of the show—and it would be a terrific sock on any show—is the net of Evers and Dolores, a pair who do amazing and almost unbelievable stunts on the tight wire. The man includes hooking and uniped work, no less, while the girl, a cute and very attractive lass in abbreviated costumes, does among other things a routine on her toes. It's top-notch work thruout.

Other novelty, the opener, is Gautier's Steeplechase, wherein trained ponies and dogs, plus a monkey for a final flash, go thru difficult and beautifully executed gyrations. Frank Gaby, headlining the bill, has a new act (new at least to this reporter) that's nowhere near as good as the old one. Falling short on material, not on talent, Gaby only clicks when he gets to the ventriloquist singing session, with which he closes. The Stanley Brothers, in duce spot, do a number of eccentric-aero routines, nicely executed but lacking anything particularly sensational to top the heavy competition in their field, and Frances Stevens, a cute and attractive brunet, sings one song for a production number in an unexceptional voice.

The Que Foster Girls, house troupe, provide background for a couple of the turns and do several numbers of their own, in one of which various of the kids are pulled out for nice specialties. Bonnie Cashin's costumes are, as usual, outstanding.

Eddie Paul and the pit boys play the show. Picture is Super-Sleuth (RKO-Radio), and house was only fair at second show opening day. Eugene Burr.

Metropolitan, Boston

(Reviewed Thursday Afternoon, July 15)

A full house greeted Clyde Lucas and his band and gave them a fine reception. Show is an unusually short one but is entertaining. Band is augmented by Linda Lee, vocalist; Joe Arena and Company and dancers Troy and Lynne. Band starts the show off with a bang with 12th Street Rag, following with a medley, including Never in a Million Years, Love Bug, September in the Rain and Call the Whole Thing Off.

Linda Lee, pert blues singer, is next and pleases with two numbers. A nice voice. Comedy impersonations of pop bands are introduced with the number Trust in Me. The novelty number Nero is next played and sung in good style. Lyn Lucas, brother and partner of Clyde, sings Blue Hawaii in his imitable high tenor.

Joe Arena and Company follow, the company consisting of a tall and blond foil and a dog. It is a comedy acrobatic act, pleasing and good. Off to a nice hand.

The band does its best work with the next two numbers, Peanut Vendor and a Chinese Rhumba, in marimba style, the latter quite unusual. Marimba band is very good. The best number of the lot is Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, which features the seven singing violins. A beautiful arrangement. Charles Troy and Carol Lynne follow with three neat soft-shoe routines. A good act, well dressed and the audience went for them. Final number was Big Boy Blue, fea-

Fox, Detroit

(Reviewed Friday Evening, July 16)
House full and audience enthusiastic for a hot and slightly rainy night. Patrons drawn chiefly by the stage show, the film offering, Universal's Wings Over Honolulu, being one of the weakest releases in a long time.

Sam Jack Kaufman opens the show, conducting the overture in dramatic style. Kaufman emcees for all but the first act, doing a capable job and spiriting his orchestra from the pit to the stage between acts.

Frank Connors, romantic tenor, sang Carelessly and displayed a voice with good timbre, especially for radio work, with an Irish throb that gets the femmes.

Gae Foster Girls, new line at this house, show plenty of zip and training. Repertoire included Hungarian, gypsy and semi-rumba numbers, with a feature in toppers and tails.

Fitz and Cahill, fast-stepping comedy dance team, try to outdo each other with trick steps that look phony but are really difficult. Raymond Wilbert follows with some hoop numbers and a clever line of patter, giving individuality to one of the old-time standard routines with several eccentric rolls.

John and Edna Torrence have a graceful kiss-and-whirl routine. Displayed showmanship enough to recapture audience support after the girl misjudged her distance and smacked head-on into the emcee at this show. They followed with a Collegiate Slouch, best described as "cute," showing considerable versatility.

Nell Kelly, brownette clown, has lots of individuality, especially in a new version of the Garbo takeoff, and Rosamonde, juvenile accordionist, displays some fast fingering on the instrument in the finale.

The top billing is given to Benny Youngman, of the Kate Smith radio program, who displays ability to sling plenty new gags and do it fast enough to keep one-third the house panicked and the other two-thirds straining to catch the gags. He does a bit of comedy with music, but his ability to reel off a monolog that looks like mighty clever ad libbing is his stand-by.

H. F. Reeves.

Wintergarten, Berlin

(Month of July)

July program at the Wintergarten comes up to the usual good standard and has some fine entries.

Scff and Ric, eccentric comedy dancers and parody handlers, have several acceptable novelties, including their giant Dutch girl number, which is similar to that of the Trado Twins big man specialty. Five Ravens, hefty athletes, show plenty of muscle and prowess in their lifts, equilibrium and pyramid building. Surefire for this house. Blod and Blodel, local act, fare well with their "human clarinet" and other items. Two Braselios, man and woman, have a miscellany of fine wire tricks with plenty of daring.

Three Rays, America's only contribution to this lineup, register a solid hit. Young girls combining applause-coaxing acrobatics and tumbling with mirth-provoking hokum. Rudolf Klaus, accordion virtuoso, rates about top among push-box singles seen in the German capital. Forced to several encores. Shoun Foun and his Chinese Children, seven youngsters from the Orient, show amazing promise. Colorful entry with the Kiddies rivaling adult troupes of this kind when it comes to contortion work. M. and J. Loring, two men acrobatic and equilibrium number, are at their best in rope balances.

Valeria, international girl illusionist, with a company of assistants, offers a magical interlude in full stage. Offers disappearances, mass productions and suspended tricks on the order of male rivals. Makes her act more interesting by donning costumes of various nationalities. Also introduces four girls who offer ball and card manipulation stunts. Good showy act and well liked. Three Rulands, boys, make good with comedy vocals and guitar and banjo numbers. Six Marvels, English adagio turn, achieve success with clean throws and catches and applause follows all of their outstanding stunts. Daley Trio, French comedy jugglers, satisfy in closing frame.

Palladium, London

(Week of July 5)

George Black ushers in the new vaude season at the Palladium with a strong 11-act lineup headed by Harry Richman, Mills Brothers and Max Miller. There is a surprising lack of femme talent, with only three girls being seen in the first half and one in the second.

Joe Ortnes and Partner are a big hit in the opening frame. A swell act, with (See VAUDEVILLE REVIEWS page 21)

QUEST FOR NOVELTY

"Though 'New Faces of 1937' is a duiler, drearies affair than 'The Emperor's Candlestick'—for all the latter's faults—we don't regard it so bitterly because nobody in it matters much so far as we are concerned. What is 'new' about this picture beyond some minor dancers and vaudevillians remains a mystery. Certainly there is no novelty in the back stage plot or the faces of Joe Penner, Parkyakarkus, Milton Berle, Jerome Cowan and Harriett Hillard. If RKO had been sincere in building a production around really new faces, surely among all the hopeful youngsters yearning for a chance in Hollywood, many could have been found. In fact, all any RKO talent scout had to do was to make a raid on the potential starlets in any of the BENNY DAVIS STARGOUST REVUES. The eager young performers he presented a week or so ago on the Earle stage were without exception more gifted and possessed of vastly more appealing personalities than any to be found in the 105 long, long minutes of the film. Whether it is to be regarded as a threat or promise you can decide for yourself, but RKO plans to make 'New Faces' an annual affair just as Warner Bros.' 'Gold Diggers,' M.G.M.'s 'Broadway Melody' and Paramount's 'Big Broadcast.' If this be true—and it seems to be—then we'd suggest that for the next one new faces, new writers and a new director be enlisted."

Strictly show-stopping are the Stanley Brothers (two). Boys do their acrobatic eccentricities to a rhythmic beat. One of the frenzies puts in a tumbling drink dance that's sock from the first flop. Join for more clean-cut tumblings that ring in a seamy comic flavoring and roll out to thunderous applause from a show-hungry audience. There is a knockabout act that doesn't have to depend on bone crushing and head bangs to get over.

Mirador, New York

It's a question here as to who's helping out whom. It's true that Mario has given Jack Osterman his comeback chance on Broadway, but it is also true that Jack Osterman is now keeping Mario's place open for the summer. With Marion Martin until recently the co-featured attraction, and with many acts since dropped and the remaining ones cut down to the bone, Osterman is now the whole works. The surrounding bill means nothing, comparatively speaking, with one exception, that being Floria Vestoff.

Jackie has received the whole-hearted support of friends and press and so far (See MIRADOR, NEW YORK on page 21)

Night Club Reviews

Blue Fountain Room, La Salle Hotel, Chicago

One of the coolest and one of the more conveniently located spots downtown. Decorated in periwinkle blue with an ivory trim and the air conditioned at 70 degrees the room is an ideal setting for heat dodgers. While floor shows have been curtailed for the summer, Paul Sabin's versatile band offers enough diversion to keep the patrons satisfied.

Outfit plays smooth dance music in a variety of tempos. Most of the nine boys in the band double with vocals, the outstanding warbler, however, being Al Eldridge with a low Harlem-voiced tenor. Dancers enjoyed his versions of Stardust and I'm Getting Sentimental Over You. An entertaining trio, the Royal Jesters, is composed of Jack Armstrong, Paul Pegue and Perry Dering. Boys harmonize with pop and special tunes and prove good salesmen.

Boys in the band are Eabin Storey and Al Eldridge, pianos; Ignazio Cutrufelli and Jack Armstrong, violins; Joe Baldwin, Seymour Eabin and Paul Pegue, saxes; Charlie Kepley, drums, and Perry Dering, bass. Dorothy Miller added as vocalist. She is decorative but weak on notes.

Twice nightly the band stages special shows, singling out its specialties on the floor. Between dance sessions the pianists are kept busy chasing lull moments. No cover or minimum week nights. A $1.50 minimum Saturdays and Sundays. Jim Smith, managing-director of the hotel, in charge.

A numerologist, Margaret Arrow, is available to those who seek advice or fun. Sam Honigberg.

Village Barn, New York

While most other village night clubs are suffering from summer scarcity of customers, this spot continues to do a steady solid business. Caught on one of those record heat days, the spot was almost half full. The air-conditioning system helps, of course. But that's not all. It's the atmosphere, talent and food that bring them in.

Proprietor Meyer Horowitz finds turtle races, potato games and other rollicking old-time barn games positively the nuts here. The customers shed their formality amazingly quick here and get into the fun like a bunch of kids. This is probably the only night club that can get young and old customers to roll all over the floor in the rough between-show games played here.

The current show is pretty thin compared with the 10-act bills run during the winter. Nevertheless the talent is strong enough to satisfy. There's Texas Jim Lewis and his four Cowboys that positively knock 'em dead. Tex himself is an ingratiating musical imp, with other fellows helping in on the cowboy walls and rhythms. His guitarist-vocalist, incidentally, is an easy stand-out with his distinctive personality. The boys also double as a relief band and are on a Mutual network daily in addition.

The Leslies, young boy and girl ballroom team, are a surprise item. The girl, graceful and talented, is outstanding with her toe and ballroom work. The boy makes a sturdy understander in the adagio lifts and spins, altho he has much to achieve in poise. Not polished yet, the team shows great possibilities of rising above the crowd. Betty and Sue Carylic, a couple of shapely sisters, offer pleasing and vigorous tapping—altho their youth and looks are enough to sell them. Mary Lou King, brunet, is the featured vocalist and makes a good impression, mainly on her earnestness and personality. However, her voice lacks expression and she's especially weak when tackling torch ballads.

An audition act was Stanley Fields and Sol Schiff, champ table tennis players new to the East. Boys play like demons and then invite customers, who get a bottle of champagne if they win. Good entertainment, but are on too long.

Julie Wintz has brought his band in, succeeding Milt Mann. Wintz is quite popular around and proves a rather ingratiating emcee, as well. His band (10 men) is not particularly distinctive—but it is more than okeh for this noisy type of audience. Plays close to customer desires.

Dinner is $1.25 and up, with a $1.50 minimum after 10 p.m. Paul Denis.

Club Petrushka, Chicago

Authentic Russian night spot located on the roof of a bank building in the heart of the wealthier Russian-Jewish neighborhood. The room seats only 120 and is colorfully decorated with painted miniatures of objects reminiscent of the pre-Soviet country. A gay atmosphere prevails all evening and almost continuous entertainment is offered. B. Sokolovski and V. Snejinsky are the operators. Russian food here is at its best, with dinner tagged only $1.50. No cover or minimum week nights, but a $1.50 minimum week-ends.

Russian entertainers exclusively are used here. They sing and dance in Russian and present their offerings in the gay, carefree manner typical of Russian performers. Bills are changed often, repeat business demanding new faces.

Dave Mall's four-piece orchestra furnishes the show and dance music. Play only Russian and classical music, figuring that modern American tunes have no place here. Violin solos by a member of the band are played at individual tables when requested.

On the floor when caught were Yasha and Maaba Andriev, folk dancers and singers; Mishu Negro, singer, and Mr. and Mrs. Mischa Koitunoff, romantic vocalists. Emotion runs away with whatever small amount of talent they possess, but they are fine for this type of club. Memories of old Russia, its songs and dances are quite enough for Petrushka customers.

On Saturdays and Sundays the floor bill is augmented with a Cossack Quartet. Sam Honigberg.

Streets of Paris, Luna Park, Coney Island, N. Y.

The Streets of Paris attraction is the only legitimate floor-show entertainment in New York's Coney Island. Presented in an open-air setting, with raised stage and beer garden accommodations for the patrons, it offers a 35-minute presentation of so-so quality but pleasing enough for the not too critical fun-seeking customers. It is staged in revue form by Bothwell Browne and features four specialty acts and a line of eight from that studio.

Despite disconcerting factor of intermittent rain, making for a slippery stage and other discomforts, and a discouraging mid-week attendance, aggregation put on a spirited show the night caught.

Howard Montgomery acted as emcee and between intros offered some comedy patter and his two turns at tapwork, of average ability. He filled the bill adequately. His appearance is much in his favor.

MaBelle Moore appeared in two stints on her own besides showing in production numbers. The first, an acro workout, highlighting one and two-hand tynsions, walkovers and arabesques, and the second a milder high-kicking routine with acro work interspersed. The not of a spectacular nature, her work is cleanly and effectively executed and her appearance is okeh.

A shouter and blues singer, with a quality reminiscent of Ethel Waters, scored with an appropriate selection of numbers, socking home her tunes with vigorous delivery and making up in sustained volume what she lacks in quality. She did Black and Blue, There'll Be Some Changes Made, I Ain't Got Nobody and also led the finale with Oh, Say Can You Swing.

Bonita is a Latin-looking youngster of teasing personality and fair enough cooch accomplishments, but she should not attempt singing. She sings Peanuts in Spanish but saves herself with her accompanying dance and peanut casting. She also did a short Frenchy dance to Valentina but scored best in her rumba to La Bomba and Say St. St. Her sensuous rumbaing, grinding and bumps met with approval.

Lillian Love, one of the lino girls, is featured in one of the several production numbers in a toe number to Sweet Butterfly. Her work is rudimentary but neatly done.

Chris Conti and his six-piece musical outfit do heroic work accompanying the show.

Immediately following each of the four shows nightly there is a tour, at a small charge, of the dozen or so peep shows that are an adjunct to the main show, personally conducted and embellished by Herr Sid Salzer.

George Colson.

Open Door, Chicago

A typical cocktail lounge, one of the many scattered thruout the city. In a sense it is a night spot without dance-floor facilities, entertainment features being musical strollers playing varied tunes while the patrons sip their favorite drinks. Open Door is one of the newest spots in town, completely modern in architectural designs, the general motif representing the mechanical age.

Indirect lighting arrangement and the mellow brown wall colors furnish a pleasing and peaceful atmosphere. Business has been good, drawing mostly from the young night-clubbers. Never a cover or minimum, with prices comparatively reasonable.

The Southland Rhythm Girls, musical quartet, are featured here and their feverish versions of swing tunes are just about tops for this type of room. The girls (four of them) use a bass, piano, clarinet and sax and double on vocalizations. Their repertoire is a large one, accommodating almost any tune request.

Noma, accordionist, strolls at frequent intervals, entertaining the guests at the bar. She is an attractive blonde and a capable squeeze-box player.

Sam Honigberg.

Far from the turmoil of the city but easily accessible via several highways, spot has during the last two summers become the choice of St. Louisans. Formerly a private club, the atmosphere as such is still maintained since William Berberich took over two years ago. During the summer season guests occupy the mammoth terrace overlooking the golf course, with the overflow being taken care of on the spacious porches and verandas surrounding the clubhouse proper. The dance floor is also on the outside, sunken about four feet, surrounded on three sides by the terrace and at the rear by the band stand and stage. Savoy Hotel, London—Jack Powell remains a comedy hit with his novel and funny black-face drummer act.—BERT ROSS, Billboard.

Lookout House, Covington, Ky.

This spot, piloted by the amiable Jimmy Brink, continues as one of the leading night haunts in the Cincinnati area, with business maintaining a satisfactory pace, despite the opposition of the recently opened Beverly Hills Country Club, located only a few miles away. Shows are usually changed fortnightly, with MCA now looking after the bookings. Current layout shapes up as sound entertainment, but the acts suffered somewhat from the small Tuesday night crowd.

Eight Bachelorettes give the bill a satisfactory starter with a kick and calisthenics routine to the tune of Valencia, after which Russ Lyon, ork leader, introduces Helen Honan, who emcees the rest of the bill in conventional fashion. First up are Orville Stam and Martha LaRue, graceful ballroom team, who waitz their way to a sound hand. Couple works with poise and ease and make a good impression. Return later for a Roman adagio, presented in dashing fashion and which brought them liberal applause thruout the running. For an encore, Stam singles with a bit of acceptable muscle-control work.

Ed Rickard offers a distinct novelty in night club entertainment with his shadowgraphy. His deft hands fashion a host of unusual shadow effects and an abundance of sound laughs. Audience showed its appreciation with a heavy mitting. Bachelorettes return here for another routine labeled Twilight in Turkey.

Herbert Dexter and Jerry McGinty, the latter a kin of the Charley McCarthy, judging from appearances, make this spot a hilarious session with their ventriloquial efforts. Dexter has an exclusive style and a grand sense of manipulation. His material, much of it of an ad lib. nature, fell on willing ears and his walks around the tables with the dummy greatly heightened the interest in the act. McGinty's take-offs on Ted Lewis and Durand proved a novelty. Comely Irene St. Clair gives good assistance as the necessary fem touch. Dexter and McGinty bowed to near show-stopping applause.

Helen Honan takes this spot for her own and registers fairly well with her portrayal of various singer types. Follows with a take-off of a babe on a binge.

the familiar material doing much to stifle the laughs and applause. Was at her best in a top hat, white tie and tails dance.

Bachelorettes close the proceedings with a rhythmic routine, tagged Ridin' High. Russ Lyon and his 11 bandmen acquit themselves capably with the dance and show tunes. Jimmy Schuh and Phil Pavey, old stand-bys here, keep the table customers well satisfied with their strolling piano, guitar and vocal work.

Babette's, Atlantic City

Completely renovated, with the appearance of a yacht, and a marine atmosphere carried thruout in ultra-modern manner, this supper club opened for the summer with a smart revue and bringing an innovation to Atlantic City, the supper show. In all the years of night-clubbing here, no one had the initiative to take a chance on a supper show until now. Babette did and scored a big success.

Spot is presided over by Blanche Babette Stebbins, one of the best known figures in the resort show world for some years past. Usually opening and closing her own show, she is presenting a fast combination of class, rhythm, a snappy line and brilliant costumes.

Gomez and Winona, one of the country's better dance teams, get top billing and are clicking with a series of tango and rumba specialties.

Handling the vocal assignment is Stanley Meehan, local boy who made good on the air, and now under contract to Rudy Vallee. Stanley, sometimes known as Danny when warbling for Ben Bernie, did several Irish numbers and a popular ballad. On the femme side is Lillian Barns, whose arrangements of popular songs proved extremely popular with the

Many Penny Spots Face Tax Penalty

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—A number of Western Pennsylvania night clubs face a 10 per cent penalty on amusement taxes, which cease being legal in Pennsylvania after next Wednesday. Dale McCory, State revenue department chief for 24 counties, informed today as he revealed that all Pittsburgh theaters are paid up to date.

The 4 per cent tax, in effect for two years, expires Wednesday, altho the 10 per cent federal levy will still be collected. More than $1,000,000 is still owed the commonwealth by more than 6,000 amusement spots, the majority of them small night spots, membership clubs and one-night stands.

The law provides that regularly operated amusement businesses must pay each month's tax collections before the 10th of the following month or be subject to a 10 per cent penalty and 1 per cent interest for each month's delinquency. One-night stands' managers are required to pay at the end of each day's business.

According to State Revenue Secretary J. Griffith Boardman, more than $7,000,000 has been collected in the two years the tax has been in effect.

Philly Musicians Nix CIO-AFL Mess

PHILADELPHIA, July 17. — Local 77 musicians' union, AFL, has served notice that it would stay out of labor arguments involving help other than musicians. Waiters' unions, representing both labor organs, are organizing the Hotel Adelphi, each demanding a closed shop. Regardless of the outcome, A. Anthony Tomel, musicians' prexy, advised that he would not yank out the musicians if a walkout is declared by either side. A labor agreement between the hotel and the tooters is still in effect and Tomel said he would not abrogate it under any circumstances. AFL waiters threatened an appeal to Joseph N. Weber, AFM head, if the aid of the musicians is needed to effect a closed-shop agreement.

Rules Kid Law Flexible
PHILADELPHIA, July 17. — Judge James Jay Gordon Jr. ruled that the State Child Labor Act should be interpreted reasonably in reversing a decision that imposed a fine of $200 on Edgar S. McKaig, socially prominent lawyer, who allowed a seven-year-old girl to skate in a charity ice carnival held here last April 7.

Judge Gordon pointed out the skater, Shirley Foster, was appearing purely as an amateur and in no way linked with the professional exhibition given.

Reviews of Acts

Sid Walker

Reviewed at State-Lake Theater, Chicago. Style—Comedy. Setting—In front of band. Time—Ten minutes.

A likable funster caught here with the Folies de Paris unit, working with a male stooge and the blond leader of an all-girl band. His porcupine crop of hair helps produce laughs, particularly during his band-leading bit. Not much off-color stuff in his material, altho his clean gags are not particularly new. Fast delivery and hard work, however, help to sell his act.

Hon.

The Debonairs

Reviewed at Chicago Theater, Chicago. Style—Dancing. Setting—In one. Time—Ten minutes.

Six tall tap-dancing youths who have some neat production numbers on hand and sell them ably. Rather than engage in the usual step competitions they highlight ideas in their routines, novel and pleasing. Work in full dress and make a clean-cut appearance. Among their best numbers is a light military march and some amusing tap maneuvers led by Maurice Kenny, of the sextet. The other boys are Eddie Gale, Hal Murray, Jack and Hal Voeth and Buddy Hertello.

Hon.

Melba Brian

Reviewed at Chicago Theater, Chicago. Style—Dancing. Setting—Full stage. Time—Three minutes.

Interpretative near-nude dancer working in a bronzed body makeup. Her number here was dressed with a hall routine by the house line, while Melba staved in the background. This bit is good for a hand, remaining in one still pose for over three minutes. Her own routine is a combination of modernistic and toe work finished with a fast, graceful circle of turns.

Hon.

Barbara Parks

Reviewed at Oriental Theater, Chicago. Style—Singing. Setting—In one. Time—Seven minutes.

A lanky, personable blues singer developed in Chicago niteries who promises to reach the name class in her field. Until recently she had been warbling with Joe Sanders' Orchestra, and for the last two months has been filling engagements in such spots as the Chez Paree and Bon Air Country Club, near the Windy City.

Has a full clear voice that lends itself nicely to popular swing tunes. She also possesses a high degree of salesmanship which she uses to the best advantage. Among novel arrangements piped at this stand include versions of such tunes as Melancholy Baby, That Foolish Feeling and Where Is the One I Love?

Hon.

Martha Raye

Reviewed at Paramount Theater, New York. Style—Personal appearance. Setting—Front of band. Time—Seventeen minutes.

Martha Raye has come a long way in a year and a half or so since she entered the picture field, and now in making personal appearances she's getting $5,250 a week, a big hop from the $350 she used to get. The same girl, the same performer, but there's that confidence that comes with success. At her appearance here there was the wildest demonstration this reviewer ever saw in a theater. The audience, mostly young folks, talked to her from their seats.

Some Call It Madness

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—Jack N. Crallneck, owner and manager of the Gleam, night club, will take over the hotel above his place on August 1 as a roosting place for his own entertainers and others. "I want show people to feel that they'll always be welcome to be my guests, whether or not they're working," he said. Cuffo rush is expected August 1.

shouted request numbers and surged down the aisles just to be near her.

She took it all in good stead, like the troupier she is. She clowned with the audience, gabbed with them intimately and what's more sang and sold her songs as only she can. Offered Truckin', The Love Bug Will Bite You, Mr. Paganini, I Can't Dance and wound up leading a jam session with the audience. Her voice is swell for the type of shouter numbers that she sings and her delivery is contagious, especially that shuffle step of hers, which is to her what the duck is to Penner.

A great box-office attraction and entertainment provider. S. H.

Jackie Williams

Reviewed at Paramount Theater, New York. Style—Dancing. Setting—Front of band. Time—Nine minutes.

A newcomer around the East, a hooper who plays up eccentric and personality. Williams is tall and lanky and is a nice looker, in general revealing a refreshing youthfulness. While he is an excellent tap dancer he does not pay so much attention to his taps as he does in selling his personality and light comedy delivery.

He did three numbers at this viewing, all of them going big, and to get away he had to beg off with a spiel. S. H.

Fed Symphony In Pitts Club

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Now the United States Government is helping night clubs drag in the dough.

Monday night the 60-piece Federal Symphony unit of the local WPA will play a free concert in Bill Green's Terraced Gardens from 8 to 9:30 under the direction of Harry Hoehl. Not obliged to buy refreshments, the audience will be invited to stay after the program and dance to Charley Gaylord's Band. Dancing, however, necessitates cooling off at the bar.

The unique deal between relief administration and Green came as a result of an offer by the night spot management, according to the WPA announcement, and as a result of the symphony's request, according to Green's press agent. Either way, it's a break for the nitery.

City parks were voted out, giving the roadhouse the break, when the ork's directors said no urban spot acoustically suitable could be found free of rental, and the WPA bosses held that union musicians might have objected if relief tunesters started playing concerts in opposition to the regular Schenley Shell program.

Green Bay Area Openings

GREEN BAY, Wis., July 17.—New York Bar opened with continuous entertainment featuring the Sisters Paul, Stanley Mack and Mitch Todd.

C. D. Davis and William Blasko opened the Shadow Lane Club, Oshkosh, featuring Orin Billington and his Tap Dancing Trio.

Conway Hotel Bar formally opened its New Lounge of Mirrors, with Roy and Ken Schermittler offering nightly entertainment except Mondays. Under the supervision of Henry Sauter.

Philly License Repeive

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—A 30-day reprieve was granted by Mayor S. Davis Wilson yesterday to the thousands of spots which failed to apply for health inspection certificates. Only 5,000 of the city's 15,000 to 18,000 eating and drinking places complied at deadline date. Ordinance requires inspection twice yearly at a $5 fee.

The mayor threatened to clamp down on spots not taking advantage of the 30-day grace period. The penalty is $10 to $50 fine plus costs.

New Houston Nitery

HOUSTON, Tex., July 17.—Stuart's Place was recently opened with a premier show consisting of Bob Woolworth, emcee; Nunu Pitts, Harold Walls, Maurice Keys, Bill Caldwell and Tack Wilson and band.

Night Club Opera Clicks

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—Despite a $5 cover charge, a capacity audience filled the Blue Room of the Roosevelt Hotel here Wednesday when Sydney Rayner, native son and tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, gave a unique night club program surrounded by the usual floor show and Glenn Miller's Ork.

Accompanied by the New Orleans Sinfonietta Ork, directed by Arthur Zaek, Rayner's highlights were the aria Che Gelida Manina from La Boheme, selections from Carmen and the aria Celeste Aida from Aida.

Schechter Beverly Impresario

CINCINNATI, July 17.—Noah Schechter, formerly entertainment impresario at Arrowhead Inn, near here, has taken over the same duties at the Beverly Hills Country Club, Southgate, Ky., thus cutting Bligh & Tyrrell, Chicago, from the booking ex on the latter spot. Schechter, whose new duties also include the handling of publicity at Beverly, replacing Harry Martin, is shopping around for the spot's future floor talent. Refusal of Bligh & Tyrrell to make a last-minute cancellation on Cross and Dunn at the Beverly management's request is said to have brought on the change.

MIRADOR, NEW YORK—

has not let them down. His work is characterized by a grim determination and from all indications he is sincerely trying to regain the footing and standing that made his name a synonym for sophisticated banter as far back as a dozen years ago.

He emceed a 40-minute show with his typical zesty manner, tying the acts together with warm intros and sendoffs and never allowing the show to lag, plugging in his usual trigger-like presence of mind in all breaches. If anything, he loses out because his audience is too tame for him. Like cat's fur, sparks fly when Osterman is rubbed the wrong way. Opposition in wit brings out his brilliance. His style, material and delivery are familiar and he never had a voice, but for socking over a number or a bit of repartee, he is the slickest thing on two feet.

Flora Vestoff, more dainty a morsel than ever, is on for a too-short stint of her tap work but manages to draw down a terrific hand. Her graceful style, personal appeal and her taps with ballet coloring (those turns) make her an irresistible composite.

Gay Dixon, a blues singing newcomer from Canada, fares best of the rest. She has a clear, robust shout of torrid rhythm and sells her songs well. She did Suzie, Brother, Singing and Rosetta. Gladys O'Neill depended upon a tricky arrangement of There's a Lull in My Life for her modicum of success, which was an encore of a medley of blues numbers. Chiquita, blond and cute, performed a personality rumba.

featured, with a cover charge of 75 cents on week-day nights and $1 on Saturdays. Cover charges are dispensed with on dinners. Name bands are booked for two-week periods and, in addition, a pretentious floor show is usually on view. During the last two weeks, however, Little Jack Little and his orchestra have been holding sway, and since he practically presents an entire show, only two acts appear in the floor show.

Little is a hard worker, directing his band continuously and also giving selections at the piano. Dancers "gang up" around the band stand when Little plays, to watch him tickle the ivories. Little is the sole entertainer, his orchestra serving as a background for his specialties. Sang songs he has written in the past in his own inimitable style. His imitation of the broken-down saloon piano made a big hit, and he led his boys in imitations of prominent leaders, including Hal Kemp, Guy Lombardo, Jan Garber, Eddy Duchin, Wayne King, Shep Fields and Benny Goodman. Credit is due the orchestra, which was gathered by Little last December and played together for the first time New Year's Eve. Personnel includes Eddie White, bass; Dick Maltby and Charles Cebars, the standard bearer showing something new in balancing and club and hoop juggling. Archie Glen, English drunk comedian, working in one is plenty funny, but his material is woefully weak. Marcy Brothers and Beatrice make their first bow to an English audience and click heavily. Boys are good knockabout funsters and the girl, also funny, excels in amazing acro feats. Forsythe, Seamon and Farrell are prime favorites here and their versatile and peppy melanges of comedy, singing and dancing is as sure-fire as ever. Act is one of the outstanding hits of the bill.

 Richman, with Jack Golden at the piano, gives a great account of himself and registers a legit show-stop. He does a 25-minute act, ranging from warbling Pennies From Heaven to a session of clowning at the piano. Wences, unique Spanish ventriloquist, is perhaps the most entertaining and original voice thrower to ever play this house. Reception enormous. Pablo, magician, does the usual card and lighted cigar bit. Rente fair. Raynor Lehr, with a corking sense of comedy, is a smash hit with his comical danceology. Has an efficient aid in Little Willie, colored hooper who clicks on his own.
 Mills Brothers, now "five boys and a guitar," open their fourth English tour. As popular as ever, they hit heavily and are forced to encores. Max Miller, best and wittiest of all English comedians, show-stops. Has a wealth of personality and showmanship that helps greatly. Grip Quartet, three men and a girl, sustain interest with a daring and sensational adagio turn marked by long-distance throws and thrilling spins.
 Bert Ross.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Suit filed in Municipal Court here last week by J. B. Stanton against Ross Wyse Jr. for material Stanton had written for Wyse was dismissed when settlement for half the original amount of $125 was made. Henry Kalchheim, local attorney, defended Wyse.

Not Worth It

If License Commissioner Paul Moss actually has produced a permanent cleanup of burlesque he is entitled to the city's appreciation, but that is something entirely separate from the conditional agreement under which the former burlesque theaters are permitted to open.

The text of this agreement seems to us one of the most shockingly dictatorial blackjacks we ever read. It is dubious if a responsible court would uphold the exercise of such powers by any official. It is a precedent for strangulation of almost any form of expression. If it isn't a monad, then certainly it is a gross error, and we should call it both.

A former burlesque producer, "in consideration of receiving a theatrical license" again, had to bind himself in writing to the following agreement:

"That nothing shall be exhibited in said theater without the previous consent, in writing, of the Commissioner of Licenses; that in the event that it is found that any other form of entertainment is provided in said theater during the term of my license without such written consent the said license will be voluntarily surrendered; that upon my failure, in case of a violation of this agreement, so to surrender the said license it is further stipulated and agreed that the Commissioner of Licenses may revoke the said theatrical license and I hereby waive any rights I may have to civil action to contest the rights of the commissioner in connection with such possible revocation. It is further set forth that this stipulation and agreement is entered into voluntarily on my part and is not the result of duress."

All we can say is that it may be worth that to the former burlesque producers to reopen again. But no show that we ever heard of is worth the damage such an agreement could inflict upon the cause of freedom.

Reviews

Apollo, New York

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, July 16)

Hail to the Max Wilners, Emmett Callahans, Allen Gilberts and all those having a hand in turning out this show that replaces burlesque. It is an outstanding effort, one that qualifies for a run as a summer legit musical. A steal for 25, 35 and 55-cent admissions, really the biggest value on 42d street and in fact the whole Broadway territory. Special music and lyrics, outstanding costumes and scenery, a talented lineup of 15 principals and an attractive group of 32 girls—all combined into a running show that is clocked at an hour and 44 minutes. Biz at this first show opening day was three-quarters, but word-of-mouth advertising and newspaper reviews should perk up the attendance.

Gilbert, thru this effort, now rates high among producers, not the burlesque putter-oners but among the legit men. He's given the show body, dovetailed everything effectively and saw that it was dressed up to the last word. Dressed it was, with very little nudity. Fred Hillebrandt wrote the show, grinding out a lot of outstandingly funny and satirical lyrics. Billi Livingston contributed the costumes, while Herbert Schultz turned out the settings.

Ann Corio's the star of the show, ballyhooed out front in circus fashion. She's not stripping, except for one nude in a posing number, and instead talks special lyrics in a fashion that proves she belongs in legit or in pik. Her first special is Mr. Strip Tease Is Dead and I'm His Widow and the second is I Would If I Could, But I Can't. On the latter number she does a Gypsy Rose Lee audience number that's well sold. Tops among the lyrics is the opener by the girls, a number commenting on the burlesque situation and titled By Order of Commissioner Moss. The girls talk it as well as any top legit line could.

The funny men are really funny and employ good material, the some of the blackouts fall flat. The comics are Arthur and Morton Havel, Joe Morris and Joey Fay, with straight Bert Grant plenty funny also in his several character bits. Others helping on the comedy are Dorothy Ryan and Thelma Temple. The way they all handle comedy shows finish and they get every laugh possible, going satirical in the first scene about what comics can and cannot do with brilliant censorship. Grant stands out brilliantly with his work, but the Havels, Morris and Fay are no slouches either.

Furthering the production value is the smart tap dancing of Guy Martin, who contributes two excellent numbers, and Tess Nool, a fast acro dancer. Jimmy Richards and Danny Morton sing the show, working at mikes, which is too synthetic for a show of this caliber. Need some big-voiced fellows who can work without mikes, altho Richards' voice shows up nicely.

The 32 girls would enhance any legit show and is broken down to six showgirls, 11 ballet lassies and the rest chorus. They look swell and observe precision in their hoofing. They work in such high-spot numbers as Alabama Barbacue, the Moss opener, the modernistic with the reflecting chromium overhead, the military item and the stair finale, which is summery.

Show has everything, but as you'd expect from a first show it needs some gathering of the loose ends to tighten it up and also a trimming of about 10 minutes.

This colorful hybrid production resembles its burlesque father more than its vaude foster mother. Stripping is lacking and there is no extensive exposure of female epidermis, but the bits, toned down, smack of the old burlesque days. Show is more colorful than many of the pre-closing productions and makes the most of fairly lavish sets and costumes.

A scene with 8 showgirls and 12 ponies wearing armor costumes and another tea-cup number showed imagination and precision. Gals stepped along in unison and showed plenty of life. Old hand-dog expressions so prevalent with the gals in regular burly shows were lacking and they seemed to be enjoying their legging. Only wiggler in the contingent was Romana, who made the twists refined and genteel. Irene Austin, working as a talking woman, read her lines well and is something to focus peepers on. June Boyd worked on the xylophone to a nice hand and packs a pleasant personality, but her stepping is lukewarm and could be eliminated. There's an unblinded kid in the line, Lucille Dixon, caught recently at the Irving Place. Youngster possesses a come-hither personality, and if she mastered a specialty could probably sell it.

Comedy wasn't so bad, with several bits getting plenty of laughs. George Murray and Irving Selig took most of the laughs, while Pinto and Della, Italian team; Art Neally and George Rose worked hard to win their points. Chet Atlund piped the vocals and Lee Marmer, blond lass, also warbled. Music was none too hot and is weakest part of the show. Better and more voices would give production greater balance.

Beverly Carr produced the show, which is a fairly good attempt to please the blue noses and at the same time offer enough spice, if not thigs, to the regular parishioners. Introduction of more vaude acts will probably make for greater variety. Grind policy with pix.

(Reviewed Wednesday Afternoon, July 14)

Sans strippers and sans filthy dialog this ex-burlesquer reopens with a so-called variety show that finds little business and little entertainment. Still it holds promise of finding itself, for there are just a few touches that the present show needs to raise its entertainment value. More variety acts of comedy timber and less of the cleaned-up burly scenes would do the trick. The production is good, colorful on the nude picture numbers.

The 14 chorus kids and the 6 showgirls appear in about a half a dozen production numbers in which they all shed their clothes from the waist up. That's sufficient nudity and it's done cleverly amid flashy settings and costumes and nice lighting. The chorus seems to leg a little more spiritedly and there are attempts at precision.

Jack Lyons and Florence Mann are an outstanding pair of show singers, both having swell pipes, with Miss Mann frequently earning plaudits. Lyons doubles as straight. A solo dancer, or body wiggler, is Yolanda Looee, whose Hawaiian and modernistic bits are but average. Suzanne and Christine are also weak in their pair of sinky dance numbers. Gladys Fox and Helen Davis double as singers and talking women, both doing expert jobs, with Miss Fox one of this reviewer's pets as a looker.

The two variety acts in the show are the Three Phantoms and the Littlejohns. Phantoms are colored hoofers, who are okay but the usual run of loggers. Littlejohns provide a big flash with their rhinestones-studded juggling turn and add a nice touch of novelty to the show. Show's comedy weakness is not the fault of the comics but the fault of the material they use. Old burly bits cleaned up, and when the dirt is out the punch is gone. Harry Evanson is really a funny chap of much talent, getting as many laughs as possible. Eltinge, New York

(Reviewed Tuesday Afternoon, July 13)

Eltinge has made a valiant effort to put on a show sans dirt. Successful in that the chorus hoofs in better than usual fashion and costuming is somewhat above usual burly par, but comedy needs sharpening and show needs more and better variety turns. Both these elements should be incorporated as soon as the new policy, presumably vaude, gets well under way. Current production was put on by Paul Kane in two days.

Chorus comprises 11, eight showgirls doing the parading. No strippers, the only nudity being the girls grouped in back, naked from the waist up. Specialties replace the peelers. Jay Letz, blonde, dances; Roslyn Roy, brunet, does a couple of fair tap turns, one of them on a drum; Allen Reno, dancer, does versions of Jack Buchanan, Ted Lewis and others. Plays different instruments but is primarily a hooper. Carl and Sayton, acro team, do a nice turn of hand-to-hand balancing and contortion work, rather old-fashioned but smooth in execution.

Comics Max Furman, Jack Little, Hughie Flaherty and Eddie Cole are okay, but their material is spotty. Old sketches like the ghost piece should have been junked long ago. Chick Hunter and Virginia Woods straight with assurance, but, like the comics, really have no chance to show much in view of the present state of the shows.

Ben Hamilton, tenor, sings the show splendidly and looks well on stage. Nick Aversano's six-piece ork is in the pit.

"Fly Away, Baby"

(WARNER)

Time, 80 minutes. Release date, June 19. Story from an idea by Dorothy Kilgallen. Directed by Frank McDonald. Cast: Glenda Farrell, Barton MacLane, Gordon Oliver, Mavis Ralston, Hughie O'Connell, Tom Kennedy, Joseph King and others. Reviewed at the Palace, New York.

When Hollywood sets out to make a Class B picture it usually turns out to be Class R or S, but there aren't enough letters in the alphabet to classify Fly Away, Baby, the dismal double-featurer that Warners made out of a story idea by Dorothy Kilgallen, the girl reporter who flew around the world. Miss Kilgallen (whose stories on her flight suggested it anyhow) had better stick exclusively to flying.

It's all about the murder of a jeweler, with one of the suspects a reporter who's taking a round-the-world flight for his paper. The local detective and his sob sister inamorata have suspicions, so the gal gets her own paper to let her fly around the world, too. There's also a third reporter thrown in for comedy relief that's even harder to take than the melodrama. Another murder occurs in Honolulu and then the suspect himself is murdered while aboard a dirigible crossing the Atlantic. The culprit, who turns out to be the guy suspected by everyone except the chief characters, jumps off the airship and out of the picture—the wisest move of his life.

Glenda Farrell gives a caricature of Glenda Farrell as the sob sister, while the dismal depths plumbed by the rest of the cast are brightened only by brief flashes of Hughie O'Connell, who saddled with the very dismal comedy relief. Newsreel air shots are used extensively to depict the progress of the flight; they're far more exciting than the rest of the picture.

The whole thing was obviously produced as nothing more than a time-killing—but a charge of murder should be brought against anyone who kills time in quite so brutal a manner. Eugene Burr.

"The Great Gambini"

(PARAMOUNT)

Running time, 77 minutes. Release date, June 11. Produced by B. P. Schulberg. Directed by Charles Vidor. Cast: Akim Tamiroff, John Trent, Marian Marsh, Genevieve Tobin, Reginald Denny, Edward Brophy, Allen Birtingham and others. Reviewed at the Criterion, New York.

Akim Tamiroff's rounded portrayal of Gambini lifts a mediocre film into a satisfying mystery thriller. Akim is a tight club mystic who in the course of his act predicts the death of Marian Marsh's fiance. Fiance proceeds to get bumped off and Akim re-enters the scene to aid the dicks, who are bewilderingly searching for a solution. Story ambles along toward a revelatory conclusion which holds two surprise wallops. Picture breaks midway to give audience one minute to guess name of killer. Break adds to tension. At least half a dozen good thrill climaxes to chill mystery addicts. Not enough gore, however, to sate this one.

Akim is really going places as a cinemactor. A pleasure to watch his heavy stuff. He is suave, ironic, desperate, cold blooded to perfection. Delivers lines and does his business with a nice sense of timing. Deserves a serious role, for he has a good mind and emotional range.

"Two Who Dared"

(GRAND NATIONAL)

Time, 73 minutes. Release date, May 8. Directed and produced by Eugene Franko. Screen play by W. Chetaniam Stroe, from a story by Fedor Otsep. Cast: Anna Sten, Henry Wilcoxon, John Garrick, Viola Keats, Guy Middleton, Romilly Lunge, Francis L. Sullivan and Esme Percy.

Pic has no distinction. Presents Anna Sten, playing the role of a Russian girl of the lower classes, in love with Henry Wilcoxon, a military officer. A bovine army man, however, seemingly has a previous claim on Anna's affections. He is the victim of a political plot and to save his life Miss Sten offers testimony which completely ruins Wilcoxon's career. Love emerges triumphant from this ordeal, together with some phony philosophy. Film was made in England, seems somewhat old-fashioned, but is okch for duais. Paul Ackerman.

"Three Legionnaires"

(GENERAL PICTURES)

Time, 63 minutes. Release date, not given. Story by George Waggnar. Screen play by Waggnar and Carl Harbaugh. Directed by Hamilton MacFadden. Produced by Robert E. Welsh. Cast: Robert Armstrong, Lyle Talbot, Fifi D'Orsay, Anne Nagel, Donald Meek, Herbie Freeman and others. Reviewed at the Rialto, New York.

Armstrong, Talbot and Meek comprise a remnant of the American forces, which, having been posted in a forsaken town on the Russian border, get news of the Armistice six months late. Hence, there is trouble with the Cossacks, but no one seems to take that or anything else seriously. Conflict pivots on Stavinski's (an impostor) ambition to rid the town of the soldiers. By the time that goal has been achieved the audience has undergone an hour of mistreatment.

Look to Meek and Freeman for a hit of salvation. Freeman, as Ivan, is mammoth in size and appears at irregular intervals to crash thru walls and break chains applied by harassed prison guards and thusly to amuse an audience. Meek's neurotic conduct contributes as little coherence to the production, but provokes as many laughs.

With these exceptions the picture is an awful mess of diverging incidents. Sylvia Weiss.

Time, 65 minutes. Release date, April 30. Produced by Julius Hagen. Directed by Henry Edwards. Screen play by Cyril Campion and H. Fowler Near, from a story by Alice Campbell. Cast: Boris Karloff, Joan Wyndham, Arthur Margerson, Mona Goya, Anthony Ireland, Morton Seltzer, Nina Boucicault, Gibb McLaughlin, J. H. Roberts and V. Rietti.

A turkey of the first water, with plot and acting reminiscent of the early days of the silent films. What goes on has to do with a doctor who poisons people in order to gain his own nefarious ends. He is, of course, ultimately circumvented by upright males and females who overact even when they shudder. A gent named Boris Karloff does the dirty work. Pic is for grind spots only. Paul Ackerman.

"Springtime in Vienna"

(CINE CENTRAL)

Time, 80 minutes. Release date, not given. Directed by I. A. Hubler Kahla. Cast: Olga Tschekowas, Gusti Huber, Wolf Albach-Retty, Leo Slezak, Paul Heidemann, Hans Richter and others. Reviewed at the Belmont, New York.

The frothy gayety of wine, women and song which Vienna symbolizes is not embodied in this foreign picture. Song there is, mainly supplied by operatic star Leo Slezak, a baritone of Bronian proportions. Melodies unfortunately are far from the Strauss mood of light-hearted brilliance. Wine there is also, but the champagne fails to bubble as often as the lovers to sparkle. The women, I am glad to say, are charming. But there the resemblance to the Vienna of waltzes, rolls and pre-war aristocracy ends.

A Viennese operetta ought, first of all, to have a plot that is fantastic and feathery. This one tells a dull tale of a rich lady and her adopted daughter who fall in love with the same chap, a sometime lawyer now driving a taxi. How can you have a Viennese operetta without mistaken identity? There is none here.

Heidemann handles comic sequences colorlessly. He should take lessons in flusteration from our amiable E. E. Horton.

Film has English titles but is suitable only for the German-speaking population. Maurice Zolotow.

"Killers of the Sea"

(GRAND NATIONAL)

Time, 43 minutes. Release date, May 8. Directed by Ray Fridegen. Narrated by Lowell Thomas. Cast: Captain Wallace Casevell Jr.

On the order of a travelog, this factual reel of sea explorations is a perfect dudrum. It is supposed to be a dramatic and realistic demonstration of the hand-to-hand manner in which Captain Casevell combats man-eating sea monsters. Instead it is a stony, uninspiring, artificial picture, lacking all the spontaneity of stills. The humdrum monotony of Thomas' strained, mirthless descriptions might be mistaken for a new form of torture.

The amateurish, unimpressive photography herein mixes the possibilities of this production being taken on by even Class B houses. Youngsters will be disappointed in its handling. Sylvia Weiss.

Alternating Happy Felton's Orchestra and Sande Williams' quartet in a recently adopted policy of continuous dance music from 7:30 to 2, this class spot draws a mixed crowd of youngsters and sophisticated who come partly to boast of sitting in a room created by famed artist Joseph Urban and partly to hear the tomfoolery of homo-boy Felton. Happy and his 11-piece aggregation mixes sweet and swing tunes with hoke in sufficient variety and caliber to please both sexes of all ages and make them pound palms for more.

The maestro dominates the scene, not only because of his 285 pounds but also because of his infectious chuckles and repertoire of stories set to music. Vocals are by Ann Kincaid, guitarist Sammy Sanders, violinist Armand Cameros and Ken Nealy, who sings faintly akin to the late Russ Columbo and doubles on accordion for specialty spot. Arrangements are by Art Edmondson.

Moving to this 17th floor locale after a 5-7:30 session in the hotel's downstairs Continental Bar, Sande Williams and his entertainers slap bass, weld on sax, clarinet, violin and piano for dissipation hard to find in an outfit twice as large. They all sing, too.

Grosvenor House, London

New floor show at Grosvenor House, ritzy London nitery, is all-American and swell fare. Newcomers are Norman Harris and Sylvia Shore, presenting satirical dance innovations. Couple show grace and rhythm in their routine and still manage to get hearty laughs with their travesties, which are both funny and original. Range from rumbas to waltzes and the act clicks heavily on all.

Bob Hall, extempore rhymester, not seen in London since 1934, still employs a facile wit and works smoothly and unpromptly to first-rate returns. Keene Twins and Vic and Lamar, from the London Palladium, are made to order for this show. Foursome click solidly with amazing acrobatics, tap dancing and other items. Act deserves further credit for routines and costumes. Gene Sheldon, pantomimist, causes roars with his zany humor and consolidates his success with a smart session on the banjo whilst his partner, Loretta Fischer, stunning brunet, is an individual hit with graceful high-kick dancing. Paul Remos and His Toys, out-looking midgets, have a melange of clever acrobatic tricks spiced with a vein of acceptable humor.

About the best of the many programs staged here, current show should run well beyond its scheduled time. Bert Ross.

"Sweet Sorrow"

NEWPORT CASINO
(Newport, R. I.)

Three-act comedy by Eric Swift (Eric Slepman, one-time New York representative for The London Times). Directed by Alice Morgan. Settings by Emeline Clarke Roche. Produced by Actor-Managers, Inc.; Helen Arthur, director. In the cast: Doris Dalton, Leslie Barrie, Charles Trexler, Elizabeth Dean Farrar, Edgar Kent, Joanna Roos, Franklin Gray, Bettina Curt.

Society (spelled with a capital S) turned out in grand style Tuesday night, July 13, for the opening of the Casino's 11th season and the world premiere of this three-act marital mixup. But tho it was a grand play from viewpoint of direction, staging and audience, and tho Doris Dalton gave a splendid performance, which goes double for Leslie Barrie in the main male role, and tho a good word can be said for the others in the cast, in its present form Sweet Sorrow isn't ready for Broadway—nor even the movies. Author, Swift, who borrowed his title from Shakespeare (Parting is such sweet sorrow—Romeo and Juliet), should have borrowed some of the Bard's brevity as well. His play's great fault is that it runs too long ('twas close to midnight when the curtain fell on the third act's second and final scene). Much of the second act could have been cut without hurting the play's continuity.

The plot? Doris Dalton, an actress divorced from Leslie Barrie, is visiting wealthy Charles Trexler at his Riviera villa, where also is visiting Elizabeth Dean Farrar, who loves Trexler but who thinks his love is for Miss Dalton. Miss Dalton really loves her estranged husband, who turns up on the scene, and the pair decide to make the trip to the altar all over again. Act two finds them back in London a week later, where they quarrel, hubby stomps out, giving Trexler a chance to tell Miss D she really should marry him. Act 3: Greenwich Village, where Barrie is living with his former mistress; but on the eve of his final divorce decree he starts out looking for wifey. Scene 2: He finds her, back on the Riviera, where she has decided to marry Trexler after all, but at the last minute changes her mind again and takes hubby back. Curtain.

There are other romantic mixups involved. But that ought to give you some idea of the sweetness and sorrow displayed. Charles A. RossKam.

"A Man, a Wife, a Horse"

(Matunuck, R. I.)

Three-act play by P. A. Xantho. Directed and staged by Halsted Welles. Settings by John Walker. The cast: Wyclef Birch, Russel Collins, Sylvia Field, Harold Moffet, Robert de San Marzano, Zamah Cunningham, John Hoysradt, John Elder, Tookie Hunter, Paul and Jack McMahon, John Straub, Bill and Dick McMahon, Jack Shields, Hubert Maher, William Webster. Opened July 13 for one week.

The author of this New England hill-billy opus has, we are told, been living in the New Hampshire hills for 10 years or more. Certainly he has managed to catch in his script the characters of that region, their talk, their opinions of laws made for city folks, etc., so that A Man, a Wife, a Horse moves along entertainingly and comically. And the summer troupe at Matunuck's one-time barn theater does a good job with the back-country tale, portraying the folk as Mr. Xantho's script intended them to be.

The story (and title) concerns Walter Messer (Russell Collins), his wife, Lettie (Sylvia Field), and his mare, Lady Ann. Beyond these three, Henry and Jenny Nelson (Harold Moffet and Zamah Cunningham) and their brood of kids and widower Alexander Perkins (Robert de San Marzano) and his two motherless children. These hill-dwellers decided to do a bit of family switching around. So in late summer Lettie goes to Alex's, Jenny goes to Walter's and Henry is left alone with his children until frost comes and he begins to see where he's been left in the bargain. Whereupon Walt gives him the mare to keep him quiet and contented. Comes spring and Walt figures to marry Jenny to make things look right, and Alex 'lows as how he'll do right by Lettie. But then Lady Ann, the mare, falls in a pond and drowns, and Walt sees this calamity as an omen of the Lord's displeasure with the way things have been going. So they all pack up and move back where they belong.

A little work here and there and New York may see a new hillbilly play come harvestin' time.

"The Glory of Youth"

FARRAGUT PLAYHOUSE
(Rye Beach, N. H.)

Sparkling with gayety, embellished with laughter and with numerous highly diverting scenes is the new Doty Hobart farce which the Farragut Players boarded for the first time July 14. Production is second Hobart tryout by group. Last season Through My Eyes was premiered here.

Play is slated for Broadway opening in fall, and the author will need to smooth and cut, it looks like a good bet. Practically new group, the best yet, makes for an excellent presentation.

Top honors go to Zill Taylor as Mrs.

Lucian (Bunny) Drinkwater, former fiancée of Senator T. S. (Wally) Waldo, portrayed by Joseph F. Foley. Excellent characterizations are turned in by Jackson Perkins, new to East, in role of June Waldo, senator's daughter, and Patrick Lawrence, juvenile suitor lead, Ronald Drinkwater.

Plot is laid in Senator Waldo's suite in New York hotel in 1937 and reveals ambitions of daughter June and sweetheart Ronald to bring about family meeting so that their engagement may be announced.

Highlight scene is secret meeting of Senator and "Bunny" in former's room, and their endeavor to recapture their lost love of 25 years ago, re-enacting a reminiscent scene over a bottle of champagne while their respective spouses go night-clubbing.

Tragic consequences seem near but are averted when both parties, aided and abetted by daughter and son, realize that they cannot hope to regain "the glory of youth" and that their happiness will be in their children's marriage.

Burrilla Kerr and Lauren Gilbert, usually featured players, turn in excellent bit roles, and Mrs. Jean Guild as Senator Waldo's wife and H. McAlpin Whitney as the taxidermist husband of "Bunny" (See THEATER REVIEWS opposite page)

From Out Front

By EUGENE BURR

It must have been the heat.

Last week I quoted at some length from several printed indiscretions committed by Mr. Leslie Howard, wherein he attacked the run system, praised repertory, pointed out several things that make films perhaps something less than ultimate perfection, threw an oblique brickbat at his own system of "intellectual" acting, suggested that neither actors nor columnists are performing services that rock the universe or change the course of nations, touched on the general exhibitionist complex that afflicts all persons who in turn afflict the stage, and in general conducted himself in a highly intelligent and admirably witty fashion. I also quoted his comments on the necessity—to him foolish necessity—of an actor appearing despite illness, heartbreak, nervous strain or prejudice to his health or even life. Mr. Howard, to requote, said: "In any other business the workers can get away from their labors for a few days, even a few weeks, if their health or state of mind demands it. Not so the actor, especially the star actor. He is expected to drag himself thru a performance in defiance of his doctor's orders, possibly imperiling his life and his family's security—and for what? For an insane catch phrase, 'The show must go on,' a manifest hypocrisy concerning which few people ever bother to inquire 'Why?'"

To which I added: "It's an interesting question. I can't answer it; can you?"

To repeat, it must have been the heat. Things have cooled down quite nicely now and I find that I can answer the question. I should have been able to answer it last week, heat or no heat, since it affects the most fundamental relationship of anyone in any way even remotely connected with the stage. And if you happen to be an actor you can answer it too—or else you haven't any faint, equivocal right to consider yourself an actor.

The answer is just this: when anyone is insane enough to want to display his own infirmities in public—when anyone is insane enough to ask pay for such an unsavory display—when anyone, in short, sets out to become an actor, that person establishes immediately by his very intention a tacit contract between himself and the general public. He becomes the servant of that public; else he has no right whatsoever to appear upon a stage. He must bear the terms of that tacit contract constantly in mind. That, in very brief, is the answer to Mr. Howard's question.

The public is a rigorous employer; the public demands infinitely more than any private employer would ever dream of asking. This is unfortunate—but the actor knows it, or should know it, before he attempts to place himself upon a stage. The fact that he persists in his attempt indicates that he is willing to serve even a master so rigorous in order to gain his private ends of fortune, fame, publicity, self-glorification, or what have you?

If he doesn't know the attributes of his future employer before he sets out to become an actor, then be sure that he very quickly learns. And, having learned, there are just two courses open: either he accepts that employer's terms or he leaves the stage. If he remains he has no right whatsoever to break his contract. If the public demands that the show must go on then, while he is in any way physically able to do so, he must see that the show goes on.

There can be no recourse to the producer, the nominal employer; the producer too, as soon as he chooses his work, becomes a servant of the public. He too is an employee, acting at the behest of his master.

For that matter, anyone who chooses to depend for his livelihood upon the reactions of the general public becomes a servant of that public as soon as he makes his choice. That goes not only for personal appearances of actors, but for appearances in print.

It is true that the public has no right (except indirectly, by withdrawing its patronage) to tell the actor—or the producer or the columnist or the author—how to go about his work or, specifically, what type of work to do. If the servant chooses to do work that the employer doesn't want, then he quickly finds his livelihood a somewhat problematical affair. But the employer does have the right to demand that work be done—and that that work be honest. The public has a right to demand of the actor that he appear so long as he is in any way capable of so doing; it has the right to demand of the critic that he be scrupulously honest so long as he dare take upon himself the parous duty of appraising other men's work; it has the right to demand of the author that he carry out to his best ability the aims that he himself has set by his choice of the type of his work.

Those are the conditions; they are known; unpleasant and sometimes exceedingly difficult they may be—but anyone who doesn't intend to live up to them had best withdraw from the contract completely. And, since the terms were known at the start, it might be just as well not to grouse about them so long as we voluntarily remain servants of the public.

theater. Company, which is a co-operative one, has leased the building formerly known as the Brooklyn Little Theater for the winter season to present a repertory of six plays. Stephenson will continue as director.

This week's production at the County Theater, Suffern, N. Y., is Ayn Rand's The Night of January 16th, with a cast that includes Edith Atwater, Brandon Peters, Viola Roache, Byron McGrath, Morton L. Stevens, Oliver Harbour, Leo Kennedy and J. Arthur Young.

Auditorium Theater, Peapack, N. J., under the direction of Cliff Self, goes into its fourth week with Gertrude Tonkonology's comedy-drama, Three Corners, playing July 15, 16 and 17. Future schedule includes: July 22, 23 and 24, The Patsy; July 29, 30 and 31, Biography; August 5, 6 and 7, Hempy.

On July 19 Walter Hartwig opened his new Ogunquit Playhouse with Boy Meets Girl. The new Playhouse is of white steel and wood construction, with simple lines suggesting Colonial architecture. The roof and shutters are green. It seats 600, and there is parking room for 400 cars on the premises. In Boy Meets Girl Hartwig presents the resident members of his company, including John Griggs and William Sweetland as the two playwrights, Nora Banker and E. Colin Dawson as the boy and girl, Carl Benton Reid as the producer and Damian O'Flynn as the cowboy, Larry.

When Hartwig opens the New Playhouse he will not close the old one but will continue to operate it under the name of the Colony Theater for the remainder of the season. In the Colony Theater he will present events concurrently with the regular schedule of plays at the New Playhouse. The first of these added attractions in the Colony Theater will be Cornelia Otis Skinner in The Wives of Henry VIII Thursday evening, July 22. Later Colony Theater presentations will be Laurette Taylor's new comedy, At the Theater, opening August 3; a Dion Boucicault melodrama, and a Greek tragedy, The Orestia, with Enrita Lascelles.

With a cast of 40 headed by Vera Allen and Myron McCormick, plus a ballet of 20, Day Tuttle and Richard Skinner is offering for their fifth production of the current season at the Westchester Playhouse, Mt. Kisco, for the week beginning July 19, Lysistrata. The production is the largest and most elaborate ever offered at Mt. Kisco. It will play at the Country Playhouse in Westport next week. Cast includes Elizabeth Love, Phyllis Welch, Walter Klavun and Leslie Gorall. Day Tuttle is staging the play and William Girvan designing the single setting.

The historic town of Plymouth, Mass., opened its first Drama Festival Monday evening, July 19, when A. Franklin Trask, managing director, presented Fly Away Home at the new Priscilla Beach Theater. Production will run one week. A new play will be given each week. Paul A. Foley directed the initial production, which will be followed by The Night of January 16th next week. The first week in August will usher in an outdoor production of Midsummer Night's Dream, with a cast of 50. Ruth Vivian will be guest director.

The full cast for Fly Away Home is as follows: Byron McKinney, Elizabeth Hovey, Bette Benfield, Mary Mina Thompson, Elizabeth Ashley, Melvin Sheldon, Marie Tappier, Virginia Eagles, Eva Jean Leslie, Marian Leach, Sara Sacks, Ned McCloskey, Arthur Shepardson, Margaret Gilbert, Marian Blumc, Edwin Jenkins, Jack Willis, Gloria Jenkins and Marjorie Blair.

Fine Brook Players, Nichols, Conn., have signed Joe Daniels as new director of all musical productions.

Frances Starr and William Post Jr. will play the leading roles of Mrs. Sullen and Aimwell in George Farquhar's comedy, The Beaux' Stratagem, which will be presented Tuesday evening, July 20, in the Outdoor Theater on Union College campus as the third weekly bill at the Mohawk Drama Festival, Schenectady, N. Y. In the role of Dorinda will be Marie Carroll and Arthur Allen. NBC's Uncle Sam in Snow Village Sketches, will play Scrubb. The cast also includes Fairfax Burgher as Archer, Donna Earl as Lady Bountiful, Mary Hutchinson as Cherry, Le Roi Operti as Boniface, William Thornton as Sullen, John Burke as Gibbett, Henry Buckler as Sir Charles Freeman and Roland Bottomley as Count Bellaire.

For its fourth production the Weston Playhouse, Weston, Vt., presents Ten Nights in a Barroom with old-time songs, dances and specialty numbers. Those appearing include Basil Burwell, Peggy Converse, Lloyd Bridges, Miriam Cousins, Morton Barrett, Harlan Grant, Colin Craig, Hester Carver, Currie McCabe and Bob Busch. The performances begin on Friday with a Saturday matinee. Production is being staged by Grant.

Ethan Frome, second production of the summer season by the Michigan Repertory Players at Lydia Mendelssohn Theater, Ann Arbor, Mich., continued to draw practically capacity houses this week. First Lady follows. Leading roles in the Edith Wharton play were taken by Ralph Bell, Claribel Baird and Mary Pray, with a strong hit part by Truman Smith.

Maonie E. Harris, Cincinnati dramatic actress, played the lead in two new plays presented at the Chautauqua at Franklin, O., July 17.

Hedgerow's 22 for July

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Hedgerow Theater at Moylan-Rose Valley is setting what looks like a repertory record with 22 plays on its July list. Eleven of these will go temporarily to the storeroom Monday (19), when the theater opens its Fourth Annual Shaw Festival. Until August 14 the works of the Irish playwright will hold the spotlight.

Festival will present 11 GBS plays in the chronological order of their writing, cycle being repeated during the four weeks. Instead of the usual two performances, Too Good To Be True, which will be given its premiere July 26 in honor of Shaw's 81st birthday, will have six presentations during the festival. New play is the 123d addition to the group's repertory, Jasper Deeter, Hedgerow's director, will forsake the auditorium side of the footlights during the festival to act in several of the plays.

Stage Whispers

Tom Van Dycke, the Old Master, who's now writing pictures for Columbia on the Coast, writes in that he's well and happy and that he's just finished a picture for Rin-Tin-Tin Jr., one of whose sons belongs to Tom. . . . The Dramatists' Guild this week appointed the committee that will dish out the John Golden Fellowships to budding playwrights, the fellowships that were announced by Mr. Golden at the recent convention of the legitimate theater and that stood as one of the few definite accomplishments of the convention. . . . There are five of them, and the awarding committee will consist of Frank Crowninshield, chairman; Mr. Golden, Sidney Howard, George Kaufman and Burns Mantle. . . . Howard, president of the Guild, appointed the committee. . . . Hannah Williams (Mrs. Jack Dempsey to you) is set for the lead in an as-yet-untitled fall musical. . . . Altho The Show Is On closes Saturday (17), Rose King has been definitely set to replace Bea Lillie when the road tour starts in September. . . . Harry Beatty, working with the Music Corporation of America on the deal, has set Veloz and Yolanda for the next Ziegfeld Follies that the Messrs. Shubert produce. . . . Beatty has also set the Five Reilly Children for the same show. . . . The Times, of all sheets, is going in for Lewis Carroll's "portmanteau" words; it ran a head last week reading: "Detective Comedy Is Given in Mt. Kisco." . . . "Detective" is probably a combination of detective and delectable—or was it just a misprint? . . . Times typographical errors are so few that it inevitably recalls the time the sheet's bulldogs came out with the misprinted story of the man who made a left-handed turn at 42d street and Broadway. . . . For information as to the specific misprint you'll have to call in person.

An iron foundry at 313 West 20th street is the latest do-dad to be turned into a theater, if the plans of Mervin Williams, Joan Hathaway and Julius Evans work out; they intend starting an organization to be called the Playroom Club, modeled along the lines of London's Stage Society, to present plays of unusual quality that are mistakenly (in the club's eyes) passed over by commercial managers—and the iron foundry will be the scene. . . . A subscription list will be built up if possible and about six plays a season will be presented, with the first to be announced "shortly." . . . Victor Wolfson, author of Excursion, has two already set for next season—the Lower Than Angels that Norman Bel Geddes announced some time ago, and a new one on which he is now working, as yet untitled and with a theme that hasn't been divulged. . . . It's already been bought, however, by John O. Wilson, producer of Excursion, and a Broadway production some time around the Christmas holidays has been scheduled. . . . Billy Rose will probably come thru in the fall with his long-promised road tour of his various fair attractions—together with the best features of the late, large and lamented Jumbo. . . . It will wait until the Fort Worth and Cleveland shows have finished, which would be some time in September, and will then combine features from them together with reminiscences of Jumbo. . . . The whole circus will be whipped together by John Murray Anderson, who has contracted to appear in Fort Worth the third week in September to start whipping. . . . The 48th Street Theater, one of the string now controlled by Sam H. Grisman, will be known as the Windsor next season, Grisman says; no reason given for the change.

San Antonio Can't Take Over Its FTP

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—The Alamo City will not be allowed to sponsor the recently dissolved Federal Theater Project here, Mrs. Mary Wilson Young, supervisor of the city recreation department, was advised by WPA officials recently.

Idea was for city to take over project, with government footing most of the bill. Reason for the nixing was that recent slashes on the WPA rolls had left the district office here with an insufficient number of persons to serve on the staff of the project.

THEATER REVIEWS

Drinkwater portray their parts admirably. William Cleary, Otis Bigelow, Theodore Paul and Lewis Ferrino also rate honorable mention.

Dorothy M. Crane's skillful direction, Don Soller's single set hotel room with its numerous entrances and an excellent cast portrayal found favor with a large audience which demanded six curtain calls. Sidney Patne.

Chorus Equity Notes

We have long been of the opinion that one solution of the unemployment problem among our membership would be a series of outdoor summer stocks in and around New York. The company at Jones Beach was the first step in that direction. Plans are now on foot to open a similar company at Randall's Island and possibly in one or two of the ball parks.

Members who are out of work should call at Chorus Equity's employment bureau regularly. Not only will the employment bureau have the calls for the stock companies, but we are expecting at least two New York productions shortly.

The member who makes daily calls is the member most apt to obtain work. Do not hesitate to come to the office because you are in bad standing. If you remained in good standing while working you are entitled to an ex-cused card. This card gives you full use of the employment bureau.

In addition to theatrical work Chorus Equity's employment bureau generally has a number of part-time jobs which help to tide over the slack period in the summer.

Presentation and cabaret members are reminded of the concession granted them by the Council—any member working in presentation, vaudeville or cabaret who is in arrears for dues and who pays his dues while working in presentation, cabaret or vaudeville may place himself in good standing by paying current dues. This concession was granted in order to speed up organization in these fields. It will not be in effect indefinitely, nor can the member take advantage of the concession more than once.

In asking the vaudeville, presentation and cabaret chorus people to join Equity so that their working conditions may be improved Chorus Equity is not asking them to take the chance that was taken by the chorus people in the legitimate theater in 1919. Chorus Equity is an established organization, its record in the legitimate theater and the things it has done for its members there is a proud one. However, Chorus Equity was able to do the things for chorus people in the legitimate theater only because of their co-operation. When those members first joined Chorus Equity the association could promise them nothing—only the hope that with a sufficiently large organization it would be able to go forward for better working conditions. Join Chorus Equity now, increase your salary and shorten your hours. Work for a greater security in fields which are now able to produce without bonds. With your co-operation we can improve your working conditions as materially as we did those of the chorus people in the legitimate theater. DOROTHY BRYANT, Executive Secretary.

Thru Sugar's Domino

A COLLEAGUE of ours with his ear to the ground out Hollywood way is responsible for the very encouraging report that leading factors in the film studios are discussing at conference tables the possibility of fostering a revival of vaudeville. If this bears the slightest semblance of truth it represents to us the biggest news of the stage industry since the definite closing down of big-time vaudeville. It represents also the prelude to the materialization of a dream nurtured by all who realize that the talent necessary for the perpetuation of the screen must come from breeding grounds in popular-priced theaters spread all over the country.

E. E. SUGARMAN

Our observing colleague on the Coast usually has his dope straight. It is vitally important to all of the show business that this time he is in the know, too. It is a foregone conclusion that at one time or another during this era theater-owning studios will be forced to turn to their theater properties for the breeding of talent for the insatiable requirements of their production factories. That the studios are actually weighing the advisability of taking such action this fall is something to rejoice over and think about. It is something that requires the careful attention, encouragement and pressure of all who up until now have hesitated to express themselves as being favorable towards vaudeville because of the fear of being classed as antiquated; as much behind the times as Farmer Jones who insists upon sticking to his mustacho cup and horse and buggy.

If stage shows on a mass scale are revived it is probable—according to our source—that the action will not be confined to a circuit but will represent rather a concerted all-embracing movement such as characterized the Keith-Albee-Orpheum organization during its heyday. Just think of what such a move would mean! Every theater manager would be a talent scout. Theaters would do business without double and triple features and giveaways and chance games. From the creative departments of the studios would emerge skits, extravaganzas, miscellaneous production ideas in which the contract players would appear to give them the feel of an audience and, in many cases, vitally necessary stage experience. The wheels of an enormous industry would start turning again—agents, producers and supply firms would enjoy a boom that they have not had in many years. Hotels, restaurants, department stores and other local enterprises would benefit immeasurably. The actor would come into his own. Even the night clubs would benefit thru the acceleration of talent supply.

We feel that if it were not for the fear of the unions—stagehands, actors and musicians—theater circuits would have attempted some kind of a vaude or stage show revival long ere this. The stagehands and musicians have their faults, most of these residing in perky, officious locals. There have been innumerable instances of unreasonable attitudes taken by locals. Managers have been prone to exaggerate the individual cases, as well as the effect exerted on the vaude situation by certain locals. But there is something to be said for the unions, too. What cannot be denied even by the managers, however, is that the unions stand to benefit as much as the theaters if a revival of stage shows were to take place. Few problems facing reasonable men cannot be settled over a conference table eventually. It seems to us that if the theater-owning studios were to get together with the unions and lay their cards on the table there would result agreements and concessions of benefit to all concerned.

This fall seems to be as good a time as any to launch experiments in the revival of stage shows. If the former burlesque theaters in the Broadway area can grasp at the opportunity of installing shows with vaude patterns as the motif, the idea should certainly appeal to circuits that have had their product troubles this summer and who are helpless in the hands of studios which are in turn at their wits' end to keep the pace in turning out product for houses that gobble it up faster than ever before in the industry of film exhibiting. The film industry sorely needs a mass revival of stage shows, both as a means of developing talent and slowing down the production pace that has killed and will, if permitted to go on unheeded, continue to kill the flower of its army of creative geniuses.

The Broadway Beat

By SIDNEY HARRIS

(George Spelvin has gone off on a nine-week vacation, insinuating the staff can't write this column without him. And, so, staff members will pinch hit until his return.)

THE all-too-sudden death of George Gershwin had its effect on the Stern's biggies, just as it always does whenever one of the boys takes his last bow. They were all telling each other that they had better slow up in their mad race for fame and fortune and the merry pace that goes with it. The reaction lasted just as long as the conversations; they'll keep on at their break-neck tempo until the next brief respite that comes with the passing of another.

Pleasantly cool weather last week was a welcome relief, but the cold-drink dispensers wept while the theaters rejoiced. . . . A new hot dog chain is on its way, the billing to be "Swanky Franky, the aristocrat of the frankfurter." . . . Newest rhymed wordage of that Hollywood writer making the local rounds is Evolution Comes to Tennessee, the author using the nom de plume of Ned Gimp. . . . An odd name is that of the city editor of The Providence Bulletin, his moniker being Calif Burbank. . . . Milton Berle driving around the city in a Cord roadster he brought back from the Coast; his reaction to unfavorable criticism from critics in the big cities is something handed down to him by Eddie Cantor—that the big-town boys mean nothing and that it's the folks in the sticks who count. . . . Bob Ripley threw a shindig last week for the radio editors at his home in Mamaroneck. . . . Strand Photo Studio has folded after 30 years in the biz.

Flo Ziegfeld must be turning in his grave—the ex-burlesque houses all now sporting the label of Follies and the New Amsterdam advertising itself as "Glorifying the American Screen." . . . Jacques Fray, snooty act ork leader, could easily give up the baton for the painter's palette and still make a living; to believe this persons who get paid to extol his virtues, Jacques was once the protege of the great Renoir. . . . Our sleuth who hangs around newspaper offices reports that The World-Telegram unrest continues, occasioned by the circulation upping of The Post, flop of the Telly's Saturday mag and accusations by the Newspaper Guild. . . . Dr. Herbert T. Kalms, president of Technicolor, arrived on the Bremen last Thursday after negotiating important contracts for color film productions abroad. . . . Benny Thau's arrival in town last week from Hollywood saw him glad-handing a lot of his old vaude friends. . . . Red Skelton has been booked for a quick repeat at the State here, opening August 12. . . . Billy Rose and Ez Keough were among local visitors last week.

Selma Marlowe is up in the mountains on vacation and is busy fishing, having plenty of luck with pickerel. . . . Texas Tommy, now at the Rainbow Room, is an odd character, buying his first city suit on his visit to town last week and doing his sleeping in his trailer on West 53d street. . . . The nicknames handed Emery Deutsch by Martha Raye has been picked up by all his bandsters and friends. . . . Jack Bertell will go to the Coast the end of this month with his act, The Hartmanns, who are signed with 20th Century-Fox. . . . Ted Crane, club agent, will be married August 22, but he's keeping the girl's name a secret. . . . The busy on the RKO lot, Dan Fuchs is managing to dramatize two of his novels, Homage to Blenheim and Low Company, for fall production.

Chicago Chat

By NAT GREEN

CENTRAL CITY, Colo.: Here we are in the famous ghost city, a mile and a half high in the Rocky Mountains. Temporarily it is the summer theater capital of the United States and during the next three weeks names familiar to Broadway and other metropolitan centers will people Eureka street and give life to the famous Teller House bar. Of the Opera House project which in the last six years has brought new life to Central City we need not go into detail here, as it is fully covered in the news columns. As we write this, preparations are being completed for the opening of the annual play festival, which will be under way before this is in print. Meanwhile we are taking advantage of the opportunity to get acquainted with the town's picturesque features.

The center of activity, aside from the Opera House, where rehearsals of the Jed Harris production of Ibsen's A Doll House are being held, is the Teller Hotel, rich in tradition. A typical frontier-town hostelry, it has few modern conveniences. There are no bathrooms, telephones or steam heat in the guest rooms. In my room is a No. 1 Ideal Oak 10 coal stove, with coal scuttle, shovel and poker; a washstand with pitcher and bowl (no hot water), an old-fashioned marble top dresser, ancient wooden bed and bare floors, with the exception of two small rag rugs. Electric lights are the only concession to modernity. The "community" bathroom is on a balcony, reached by an outside areaway.

The most interesting spot is the Teller barroom, which in its heyday was the rendezvous for the fun-loving miners. Its walls are decorated with 10 large murals—nudes, which if not particularly artistic are most certainly picturesque. They were only recently discovered by the present owner when a dozen or so layers of wallpaper were scraped from the walls, revealing the almost life-size pictures. On the floor under a table is painted the face of a beautiful woman, done by Hermon Davis and reminding one of the famous poem The Face Upon the Floor—not The Face on the Barroom Floor as is most often quoted.

Central City, in a picturesque setting, has much to interest the visitor, and members of the theatrical company are finding the place delightful. . . . Walter Slezak is nutty about the scenery and spends all his spare time hiking about town. . . . Gene Whitmore, editor of American Business, has been getting some marvelous camera shots, which probably will appear in some 400 newspapers. . . . Thoda Cocroft, head of the American Theater Society, making side trips to points of interest and will go on to California. . . . Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean here for the opening, and Helen Hayes will arrive in a few days. . . . Poncho Gates, who executed the set for the production, is an interesting personality. . . . He is an accomplished artist who is equally at home doing a circus wagon or an elaborate stage set. . . . Louis Spica, bartender at the Teller, is a colorful character who has held down jobs in Vienna, Johannesburg and other far places, and when it comes to mixing drinks you can't stump him. . . . Only one thing missing in the Teller night club operated in connection with the play festival—they wanted to introduce a bit of gaming to make it more characteristic of the Old West, but the district attorney said nix.

Magic and Magicians

By BILL SACHS
(Communications to Cincinnati Office)

BEN WILEY, of Springfield, Ill., writes under date of July 15: "Just read the issue dated July 17 and would like to make a correction and a slight supplement to the Decatur (Ill.) Demon's Club item. In the item I was credited with taking part in the program. This was an error, as I sat on the sidelines and enjoyed the best magic show of a lifetime. Quite a few of the magicians were strangers to me, but the fellow who acted as emcee should have been mentioned in the story. He did a splendid job of it. Also a Mr. Anderson, of Peoria, Ill., who manipulated the cups and balls, should have been mentioned as a star of the program. Lastly, Le Paul, of pasteboard fame, showed a routine that had all standing on their cars."

GRANT KIMER and Walter D. McEwen, professionally known as Sillman and Sandberg, recently gave a full-evening show, comprising all types of magic, at the Pleasantville Theater, Pleasantville, Ia. Both are members of the Justo Rijo Magic Club, Des Moines, and members of the club attended their performance in a body.

DANTE, internationally known magician, after a three-week holiday, which took him to Paris, Venice and Nice, resumed his tour in London July 19. He writes that he is booked solidly for the next year.

EVANS BROWN and partner, Mary Davies, after 12 weeks in the Cleveland area, are set for the summer at Chula Vista Resort Hotel, Wisconsin Dells, Wis., where they have charge of the music and entertainment. "Had quite a visit recently with Johnny DeVant," Brown writes. "He expects to play club dates until the Hollywood Ingenues unit goes on tour again. Also ran into Ray Styles, son of Tampa the Magician. He was held over for two weeks recently as emcee at the Greystone night club, Mansfield, O. Had quite a visit, too, with Jaek Gwynne at the Great Lakes Exposition, Cleveland, where he played the Sherman-Williams Paint Company's Radioland for a week. I understand that he will play a return there late in August."

HENRY HAVILAND, the paper-tearing magician, crashed Nelson B. Bell's "About the Showshops" column in The Washington Post recently when he sent that columnist a Belgium hare late at night with a note explaining that he had just removed it from a folded page of The Washington Post for the amazement of a troop of boy scouts he had been entertaining.

DANTINI is playing night clubs in and around Baltimore, assisted by Miss Marvello, who also does a mental turn. Dantini plans to take to the road in the fall.

AL DeLAGE AND COMPANY are currently playing clubs in the Fort Wayne, Ind., sector. "Recently caught John Booth in Detroit," Al postals. "He does some nice magic. Stopped over at Colon, Mich., the other week to visit Percy Abbott's place and was quite impressed."

LEON LONG, colored magician, postals that he's still playing the Alabama mining towns to good results.

OTIS MANNING has opened at the Village Barn, Virginia Beach, Va., for an indefinite run.

BRANDINO closed the season with the Hollywood Holiday Revue at the Rialto Theater, Cincinnati, July 25. He will vacation for a month at his home in Birmingham, Ala., before commencing on club work.

"HOLLY" HOLLENBECK, now managing the Great Zodyak (Holly Junior), mental act, writes that they were visited recently by Le Temple and Company, magicians, at their summer home, Vaudeville on Lake Okoboji in Iowa. Hollenbeck booked Le Temple for an eight-day engagement at the Roof Garden, Arnolds Park, Ia. Both the Le Temple and Zodyak acts will play fairs this late summer and fall.

DON GREENWOOD, assisted by Chloé Daire, opened last week at the Joy Gardens, New Castle, Pa., following in Fairmer and Doreen and their Magic Kettle novelty. This is Greenwood's first engagement in the East. He is featuring a demonstration of Par Optio Vision in conjunction with his regular magic routine.

We recently invited some official of either the SAM or IBM to come forward with some good reason why a joint, or rather concurrent, convention of the two societies should not be held in Cincinnati in 1938 or why the idea of such a meeting isn't feasible. Caryl S. Fleming, president of the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians and national vice-president of both the SAM and IBM, is the first to answer our invitation. His say-so, in part, appears on The Forum page in this issue.

Mr. Fleming has an open mind on the question of a combined or concurrent convention. He points out some good arguments for such a gathering, and equally as many against it; but he doesn't say that the idea can't be worked in such a fashion as to be satisfactory to both organizations. Mr. Fleming's argument against a joint convention is chiefly concerned with a convention of the two bodies wherein all business and social activities of the two organizations would be combined. He doesn't believe that such an arrangement would work out satisfactorily. As a reminder that wasn't what we advocated. Our idea was for a joint convention in name only—"World's Congress of Magic"—with the SAM meeting May 28, 29 and 30 and the IBM following May 31, June 1, 2 and 3, with each organization conducting its own business and its own shows independently, but with the members of either organization free to take in all shows and social events at the regular fee.

Mr. Fleming seems to fear, too, that the business at night shows would suffer in such an arrangement; that the Cincinnati public would not support so many magic performances with their attendance. As a reminder let us say that Cincinnati has always been a good magic town. A city that for many years gave the late Howard Thurston a two-week stand should readily support four or five nights of magic, especially with the aid of the increased attendance that such a combined meeting would draw.

This is to be our final harping on the matter of a joint or concurrent convention of the SAM and IBM. The next move must come from the officials of the two organizations, for after all it's their baby. Whatever action the two groups decide to take will be okeh with us. Whether or not they adopt the idea formulated by this writer does not matter. Both organizations will have our fullest support at all times, whether they decide on one mammoth meeting or two independent conventions. We merely thought we had something there.

CLEANED BY MEMBERS OF THE BILLBOARD STAFF

The purpose of this department is to benefit producers, bookers, agents and others concerned with the exploitation of talent in the major indoor fields thru The Billboard's coverage of every branch of the show business. SHOWMEN INTERESTED IN SPECIFIC "POSSIBILITIES" MAY ADDRESS THEM IN CARE OF THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF THE BILLBOARD, 1564 BROADWAY.

For LEGIT MUSICAL

CONDOS BROTHERS—dancers now playing the vaudefilms after a bit of a buildup following their appearance in Wake Up and Live. They would do well by a spot in a revue with their lightning-paced tap hoofing. Outstanding dancers, beating out cleanly an amazing number of taps for such fast stepping. Mostly duo precision stepping, but also break out into a strong session of competitive hoofing.

For FILMS

GIL LAMB—comic, eccentric dancer and singer whose act is filled with showmanship. Stepping is his forte, but he mugs, postures and uses hoke to excellent advantage. Various turns well timed and paced. Musical films should be his meat.

Minstrelsy

LASSES WHITE, star minstrel performer and owner of a few years back, writes from Concord, N. C., under date of July 13 to say that he and his partner, Fats (Honey) Wilds, are happy in their work as features of H. D. Hale's Milt Tolbert tent show, playing the South. "Five years ago," Lasses typewrites, "I formed the team of Lasses and Honey, 'Dixie's sweetest combination,' and went into radio work on Station WSM, Nashville, where we remained for four years. From there we went to California, where we were heard for a year over Station KEHE and the California over Station KEHE and the California network. I am often asked how I like radio work compared to the minstrel stage. I can candidly say that I like radio work fine. Of course, it is real work. I had to write all my programs myself and I assure you it is a real job, as they come so fast week after week. I missed the minstrel stage, however, and the personal contact with the audience. This was partly overcome, however, by presenting a big minstrel show on the air each week before a studio audience. Both Honey and myself and our wives are happy in our new work."

ARTHUR J. CUY, comedian, singer, dancer, musician, producer; born, New York City, January 26, 1872. Youngest of the famous Cuy family and brother of George R. He claims to have organized and produced the first tab minstrel to play vaudeville, entitled Arthur Cuy's Novelty Minstrels. Present address care The Billboard. Activities, producing.

PROF. WALTER BROWN LEONARD postcards that he caught the Dan Rice Circus at Warrensburg, N. Y., July 13 and enjoyed a pleasant visit with Professor Meridith, old-time minstrel bandmaster, formerly of the Al G. Field and other big shows.

TOM WATERS, old-time minstrel and musical comedy comedian, is now running the Half-Way House, near Shamokin, Pa., specializing in chicken dinners at a $1 a copy.

STEEL PIER MINSTRELS, favorites for years with seashore visitors to Atlantic City, are back with added talent, variety and specialty acts, changing shows weekly. Initial show had Buddy Abbott, Lew Costello, Billy Fields, Charlie Boyden, Art Frank, and Burns, Moriarty and Dell. Bon Yost's Singers are guest starring.

A REUNION between minstrel men took place last week when the Walter L. Main Circus and John R. Van Arnam's Radio Barn Dance played day and date at Farmington, Me. "Hi Brown" Bobby Burns, press back with the circus, was guest at Van Arnam's cookhouse. Other minstrel men in the gathering, besides Burns and Van Arnam, were Rudy Huff, Al Pinard, Billy O'Brien, Carl Babcock, Jingles Carsey, Roy Roberts and Benny Kenner.

Showboat Players In Severe Storm

LEONARDTOWN, Md., July 17.—Charles Hunter and Jack Pfeiffer's tent show, Showboat Players, was struck by a cloud-burst and electrical storm here Tuesday night shortly after the night performance had begun. A bolt of lightning struck the show's transformer, plunging everything into darkness. Patrons were given rain checks and invited to come back the next night.

Show, now in its eighth week, has had good business and pleasant weather to date. Outfit is brand-new with the exception of 10 lengths of blues which broke into the business with Bob Demorest Sr. They have been repainted red and white to match the interior of the tent. New top is light green with bright red and royal blue trimming and a two-foot sun border on inside the mask top of the sidewall. This was show's first stand in Maryland and Tuesday night was the first date the show missed all season.

Roster includes Charles M. Hunter and Jack L. Pfeiffer, owners and managers; Beulah Adams and Gladys Pennington, candy privilege; Bob Demorest Jr., director; Marg Williams, Ona Williams, Jack Keating and wife, Rene Mahar, general business and featured in concerts; Harry Weatherby, juvenile singer; Joe Paulson leads the orchestra, comprising Jack Pfeiffer, sax and clarinet; Walter Klohr, tenor sax and clarinet; Jack Keating, drums; Frank Brownlee, trumpet, and George Dull, slip horn. Ray Copersmith handles the canvas, and Pop Pfeiffer is on front door.

ROME, N. Y., July 17.—More visitors on the show this week than employees. Have been trying to find out who Mary Brandon, of Norwich, is carrying a torch for. One doesn't drive 250 miles just to have a glass of ale. Wish I could play a bull fiddle.

Caught Buddy Hawkins shopping for engagement rings. In Woolworth's, of course. Don't know who the lucky party is, but I think it's Luke this time.

The Bartlets celebrated their 156th battle last week. A nice party was thrown for their friends, also alarm clocks and other loose articles lying around the hotel.

Robbie Lee Myers on here for a short visit. Says she doesn't mind sleeping in the West's house trailer, but the horses do keep her awake in the mornings.

Rep Ripples

ED A. RENO reports that his Fun-makers are moving along okeh under canvas in their established territory, with everybody happy and business fair.

STODDARD AND LEWIS, well known in med and rep circles, are framing a platform opera to open near Cleveland July 26.

JACK AND RENE KEATING, now en tour with the Charles Hunter-Jack Pfeiffer Showboat Players, postal that they are enjoying themselves at Colonial Beach, Va., fishing, swimming and indulging in midnight boating parties. "Business is great and everything going fine," Jack scribbles.

HARRY OPEL, Toledo (O.) magician and juggler, postcards from that city under date of July 9: "Passed thru Sylvania, O., last night and saw the outfit of the Ginnivan Dramatic Show. They have a swell outfit and a good band and the crowd was coming in fairly well considering the hot night."

Rains Cut In on Ginnivan Business

CONTINENTAL, O., July 17.—After waiting 10 years for a tent show Continental was disappointed Monday night when the hardest rainfall in years fell between 4 and 5 p.m., leaving the lot on which the Frank Ginnivan Dramatic Company was slated to open a sea of mud and water. It is said that this was the first time in 20 years that the Ginnivan company has lost an opening performance.

With the aid of cinders, straw, sawdust and hay, the lot was put into shape for a Tuesday night opening. The show's week engagement here was given a fine bit of exploitation by The Continental News-Review, which also put out a special tent-show edition in a tie-up with local merchants.

Company's opening bill is The Awakening. Other plays in its repertoire are In Self-Defense, An Old Soak, Shanghai Goldie, Freckles and Oliver Twist. Ginnivan show has found things good in its established territory in Ohio, Indiana

A Hillbilly "Catches" Ed Reno's Funmakers

ROSE HILL, Va.—We've got the Ed Reno tent show with us this week. People ort to go out and paternize the show. It mighty high starved to death in Tazewell last week.

Last night about openin time it commence to pour down rain and people all on the outside crowded in the tent and the tent was purty nigh full. And then the wind begin to blow in rain and people around the top benches had to move away from the rain-drenched walls on account of the water. And then the wind got fierce and slapped the tent about and it swayod on its flimsy feet and people got nervous and commence to stand up. The wind, full of rain, tore big holes in the top of the tent and in come the rain and jabs of lightenin, and out went the people, lookin any minit for the wholes works to flop. It was a black and howlin night full of thunder. Seats got soggy and water puddles and Michigan so far this season whenever the weather has permitted.

Traveling with the show this year is John Ginnivan, 88, who founded the Ginnivan shows 64 years ago. His wife passed away last winter, and to ease his loneliness the oldtimer has purchased a housecar and is traveling with "his boys."

Boyes Players Are Mugged

LINCOLN, Neb., July 17.—Photogs from Life magazine sailed on the Chick Boyes Players here Sunday and spent the day lensing members of the cast, the crowd and several mugs of Chick himself. Best shot of Boyes is one of him counting the tickets he just finished collecting after a sell-out aftershaw concert sale.

Storm Hits Walker Show

RHINE, Ga., July 17.—Sweeping down just at show time Monday, a violent rain and wind storm struck the Walker Family Show, breaking poles, wrecking the show's equipment and doing considerable damage. Show is continuing under a smaller tent. No one was hurt in the blowdown.

crawled up around your ankles—if you stuck it out. And the sides of the old tent bulged out and lifted five feet off the ground, so you could look out on Main street and see people scamperin off thru the rain when the lightenin flashed.

Dutch Moore, the tall, slim young man, comes out and tries to bang on the old piano. Kind of pathetic the music, and kind of pathetic Dutch. The only thing that's beautiful about it is his courage. The show must go on tho. Been hit by this hellashaw weather two weeks on a run. Can't fight the elements, not us mortals.

Ed Reno, born under a circus tent 43 years ago, claps on a shaggy red wig, and the old trouper sticks his head around the curtain and tells the folks the best show of the season is comin right on.

Mrs. Reno, with a worried look showin thru her gorgeous makeup, hurries back from the ticket box and the family of show people make ready to get it over with. They all look at each other and there is no grease and paint on their faces when they look at each other. A stray drizzle of rain sometimes wanders thru the wrenches in the old tent—the old tent that's not had a rest since last April. A tent needs a rest once a year. But she's had no rest this year. Been on the road thru South Georgia since last winter set in and drove them down from West Virginia.

Now it's on the Northern route again, and the season full ahead. And these

Brown & Davis Find Biz Okeh

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., July 17.—Brown & Davis Attractions, headed by Paul Brown and Herbert Davis, has enjoyed satisfactory business since launching the tent season 11 weeks ago in West Virginia, with only one losing week on the season to date. Show has experienced rainy weather on an average of three days a week since the opening and suffered one blowdown. Despite the inclement weather, attraction has lost only two nights so far this season. With favorable weather, business has been above the average, Paul Brown reports.

Messrs. Brown and Davis are offering the natives talkies and vaudeville and are finding the combination a better box-office draw than the usual run of rep bills. Roster includes Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Davis, Paul Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sutton, Ray Hill Milton and Marvin Dwyer, with all doubling from the stakes in the ground to the steaks on the table, as well as on stage and orchestra.

Mrs. Paul Brown is not with the show this season, having recently undergone two major operations. She is convalescing at the Brown home in Newark, O.

Brown reports that all of the shows encountered this season have reported good business, despite the unusual rainy weather.

Van Arnam Barn Dance

SKOWHEGAN, Me., July 17.—This is the 21st week since opening under canvas and the 114th week for the show, combining theaters and tent. A new presentation is offered, with many new faces added.

Business as a whole has been good with the exception of six weeks, during which rain was with us almost constantly. Massena, N. Y., and Berlin, N. H., hung up new highs for attendance. Had to call the police in Berlin, as the overflow got a little unruly. We play a return there on the way south.

Played day and date with Walter L. Main Circus at Farmington, Me. Circus had a full house at the matinee and also at night. We filled all seats and had plenty of standees. Other opposition included Bank Night at a local theater and a Federal Theater show that had over 500 people. All this in a small town proves that the native will put it out when they have it, and they seemed to have it.

Had an enjoyable outing at Dover, N. E. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Whitehouse, parents of Donald Whitehouse, our bass player, were gracious hosts to our company at their summer home. A shore dinner that was the McCoy was served. Dome Williams allowed it was the first time he had all the lobster he wanted, and anyone knowing Dome will remark that there must have been a collection of lobsters.

Mack D. Ferguson, former writer of Van Arnam notes, is now a full-fledged newspaper man, being employed as reporter and political writer on The Hickman County Gazette, Clinton, Ky. He is also editor of The Arlington Citizens Courier, published by the same concern.

new tents torn by the storm. The storm is over now. But these Midsouthern storms, they come and go like lightenin.

The show people look at each other and shake their heads with a feeling of despair. Half the audience gone home. The seats soggy. The ground covered with mud puddles. They drop their cigarets and push them in the mud with slow, weary toes. The other half of the audience is out there waiting for the best show of the season to come on.

"We can't fight the elements," says Ed Reno. "Pull the curtain, Johnnie." Johnnie Finch, the dancer, pulls the black-and-white-striped curtains and the handful of snickering audience sitting hunched on the soggy canvas seats watch the realtest show they've ever seen get under way. The audience is down in the dumps and ready to snicker and poke fun. The show people are worse in the dumps, but they've got to carry the audience clear out of the water-soaked (See A HILLBILLY on page 73)

Dunlap Contest Nearing the End

HALEDON, N. J., July 17.—In what might be termed a complete upset of couples in last hours of successful contest now in its last stages here, the Victory Ball promises to bring forward a few surprises. Babs Fath was forced out of the contest by a bad knee received during one of the fast dance numbers with her partner, Hughie Hendrixon, who is now teamed with Rella Finney. This team looks like a sure clinch to place in the prize money. Doris Donovan was forced out during the sprints, with only six couples on the floor, with a bad ankle, and at this writing Billy Donovan, her partner, is soloing. Bennie Rothman couldn't take the sprints and after a game display went out. His partner is teamed with Clyde Hamby, who lost his partner at the eight-couple mark. He was teamed with Pauline Boyd. Whitey Helm was forced out of the running by the fast sprints and this teamed Helen Tyne with George Bernstein, who look like another sure-money team. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rock are still in the running and showing up well, while the Van Raams are showing their usual good form. Afternoon treadmills are now in order.

The next Dunlap contest will be at Five Points, just two miles out of Elizabeth, N. J. Contest, located in the borough of Kenilworth, will be sponsored jointly by the Kenilworth Volunteer Fire Department and the Elks Crippled Kids, of Union, N. J. Both organizations are working hard to put the contest over. Several new and different features that have never before been attempted in walkathons will be added.

At the close of the Elizabeth show the various contestants will go into night club work in a club that "Pop" Dunlap has recently associated himself.

Elmer (Sparkplug) DuPreo and "Itsy" Bacharach, new comedy team on the local show, have been laying them in the aisles since DuPreo's recovery from a serious ear injury. Both will be the chief stooges in the next Dunlap show. Contest will be broadcast three times a day over WINS. As announced recently, a Dunlap show on foreign soil will probably open the middle of January, with the last 15 teams remaining in the last Jersey show assured of transportation to and from the spot.

Staff on the local show remains practically the same with the exception of Danny Brammer, who has been replaced by Eddie Leonard, and Marvin (Hobo) Hobaugh, who has been replaced by "Itsy" Bacharach.

INQUIRIES HAVE BEEN received recently on Fred Crockett, D. K. (Mickey) Sheehan, Bobbie Reed, King Brady, Al Cassall, "Uncle Joe" Purtell, Monte Hall, Sam Gore, George L. Ruty, Art Bayor, Vic Purce, Ray Meginn, Dorothy Zauhur, Walt Gross, Stew Allen, Mrs. Joe Gulla, Mickey Rosenberg, Ginger Heat, Jess Williams, Max Kelly, Flo King, Austy Dowdell, Ted Carmody, Papa Duff Davidson, S. M. Fox, Jimmy Mulelet and Arthur Harmon. Send in a squib letting your friends know where you are and what you're doing.

WINNERS of the derby show at Green's Terrace on Lake Waco, Waco, Tex., July 10 were Edna Nowell and Whitey Maddox. Runners up were Bettie Lee Doris and Stanley West. Third place went to Jane Sweeney and Jack DuVal, fourth to Ruth Carroll and Billy Willis and fifth to Rose Miller and Poppey Thomasson. A victory ball was held the following night, with the four emcees, Dud Nelson, Jimmie Bittner, Curly Linder and Frankie Little Jr., and many of the contestants participating.

BOBBY DYER, with the A. B. Marcus Revue in New Zealand, shoots us an interesting yarn from down under to reveal how the Marcus show and players are faring in that faraway land. Bobby writes as follows from Dunedin, N. Z., under date of June 30: "It's been a pretty busy tour for us here in New Zealand. And a bit of all right, too. Very successful financially and audiences couldn't be more mad to order. You talk of pushovers—well, here they are. No material is too old. We can dig 'em up as far back as the Buzz'n' of the Bee, and they love it. My hillbilly creates a mild sensation, as I'm the pioneer here. They are very familiar with the character thru the movies. "Radio is still in its infancy, too. All radio stations are under government supervision and commercial broadcasting is permitted on the North Island only. However, it's soon to be permitted down here also. Oh, boy, what a field for a versatile radio artist. Material is so scarce that they even make transcriptions from movies and broadcast them commercially. Several of us have had a fling at it in Wellington, but complications set in on account of theater interests. One show a day. I've had a wonderful time hunting wild boar. Some of them weigh as much as 700 pounds, with tusks six inches long. We bagged eight on our first trip. Just played Invercargill, the nearest city in the world to the South Pole. Had a day after deer on Stewart Island. A rough crossing, but well worth it. The deer outnumber the population 50 to 1.

"We expect big things in Australia. Have 26 weeks arranged, opening at the Royal in Sydney. There are rumors of our extending this tour thru India and South Africa. At that it will be close to two years before we head back home. Sure any that swell summer weather you're having. It's colder than a well digger's lunch box down here and these bloody Englishmen never heard of central heating. The girls remind us of grandma with their woollies. And if one resorted to a bit of pecking one might get a flash now and then of a pair of red fiannels. Anyway we'll have balmy weather and bathing in Sydney when you start getting frosts and snow. Please ask some of our friends to drop us a line care Fuller's, 80 Elizabeth street, Sydney, Australia. We get The

In The Billboard of June 19 an article appeared stating that our Port of Entry had stopped a certain orchestra and required them to pay $8 per man and $15 for the leader in addition to license

Entry Official Explains Laws In New Mexico

Entry stopped this troupe of Negro musicians who were traveling in an 11-passenger bus and required them to comply with our laws pertaining to persons or businesses operating in New Mexico for profit. The bus fee is $50, plus $10 for each seat of the normal seating capacity of the bus. The leader was required to license his private car. The total, as stated, came to $107.75. There was no fee for brake and light tests and there was no fee for each man as stated. The license fee was for three-fourths of a year. Trusting this information will be of interest to you if future cases such as this should arise.

Have read with great interest your recent comment on the possibilities of the SAM and the IBM holding combined or, better, immediately concurrent national conventions in Cincinnati next being the president of the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians, I, too, have some ideas on the subject which I beg your permission to voice. In the first place, from many points of view, your idea, which, as you state, is in no wise original with you alone, is a most excellent one, especially for those who are members of both organizations in question, as it would permit a closer fraternization and promote acquaintanceship among many who might never otherwise have the opportunity to meet. Certainly it would attract practically all American dealers of importance, and, as proved by the popularity of the dealers' displays at High Point, N. C., where I was fortunate enough to be present, their displays and activities are of immense importance to the success of a magic convention. Many other advantages which you have already noted are self-evident. On the other hand, there are several points on the negative side of the question which should be considered. There is no question but that this old adage "competition is the life of trade" applies to organizations as well. Both the SAM and IBM have worked hard to bring their respective organizations to their present state of perfection and both have a perfect right to be proud and jealous of their accomplishments, and their desire to retain their individuality is not only a natural but a healthy sign. I was not only present but active to a degree in bringing the present tentative dates for the IBM Cincinnati convention, the middle days of the third week in June, to at least a temporary agreement. You ask for some official of either the SAM or IBM who is opposed to the joint convention idea to step forward and give you just one good reason why such an idea isn't feasible. As an official of both, as well as of the PCAM, and as one who has during the three years in office with the latter organization given much consideration to this and many other questions concerning conventions I shall answer you by asking a question or two. For the purpose of argument let us take it for granted that the question is of a joint convention of the two organizations occurring simultaneously. Inasmuch as both organizations schedule practically every bit of time from 9 or 9:30 a. m. until after the usual shows, dances or other functions let out, how is a member who happens to belong to both organizations, and there are many, going to attend two conflicting events at the same time? Certainly there must necessarily be separate and distinct business sessions, for both organizations have their own separate business to transact. This also applies to such regularly scheduled events as amateur prize contests, etc., at least to a certain degree, for each society undoubtedly has certain perpetual trophies, classes of competition and other items that are limited to competition among their members only. Furthermore, why should either organization be satisfied to take one-half of the profits accruing from the shows to which the public are admitted when either has more than enough talent to stage its own shows from among its membership? Or if two or more shows are to be given on the same evening, one sponsored by each organization, why should they be forced to compete with each other? Or if separate shows are to be given as above mentioned, but upon different evenings, which organization should be willing to accept the second show, which might easily receive poor patronage in a small town where the possibilities for filling the theater a second night are far less than for the first night? And which organization is to give as to dates which have been established by precedent? Undoubtedly the SAM has some very good reasons for scheduling the dates it has selected for its annual conference or it would not continue to hold them on the same relative dates year after year. I know that the IBM has excellent reasons for setting its convention dates when it does. I am neither for nor against joint or concurrent conventions, but I am for harmony and perfect accord within both organizations and for a fraternal interchange of courtesies and considerations among and between all magic societies. I feel quite convinced that the present method of handling things is best for want of a better solution. You have made a very pregnant suggestion and it has many advantages, especially to some, and some disadvantages to others. How about offering the perfect solution to the problems that must necessarily arise to the plan you fooster? If you can do this I am sure that you will have done the entire organized fraternity of magic a tremendous favor and your name will be written in letters of glory forever after.

Fleming Has Say-So About Meet of Magi

Your statistics on conditions in the stock and rep field in July 10 issue are all wrong. Your correspondent, as far as tent reps are concerned, does not know what he is talking about. He states this field is practically extinct. As far as The Billboard is concerned it is. He states there are only four companies and 40 people being employed in this field. What nonsense! Truthful statistics show at least 150 repertoire tent shows in the field this summer. Each show employs from 5 to 25 actors, not including musicians and working crew. Why doesn't The Billboard know about this (and I dare you to publish it)? It is because you have neglected this branch of the business. You publish the agents' placements—that alone contradicts your statistics. Be fair and publish this. Do you know that these same rep actors were at one time all members of the AEA until unfair tactics caused them to drop from the union? Do you know that these tent rep actors have been battling the depression, asking no help of any charitable organization? Extinct nothing! The tent rep field is an exceedingly live issue employing thousands. If you are that much interested the writer can obtain you exact statistics and the name of every show and placements of each performer. You've made an assertion; let us go into details. You won't hear of the tent rep field on Broadway nor yet on Raudolph street, but get out into the field and you will be surprised at its strength. Can The Billboard quote statistics on the hundreds of circus stock companies that operate both winter and summer? This stock and rep field is from Coast to Coast and Canada to the Gulf. No, Mr. Billboard, you are deserted by this branch of the outdoor amusement world. Why? Because you have neglected us. Do we dramatic rep people want to read of one-night-stand girl shows under canvas? That is all you give us on the rep page. At least that composes the majority of the reading, and it's all under the heading of "rep." The Billboard and picture scouts would do well to investigate the tent rep field—they may learn a little more about this branch of the business. In conclusion, The Billboard is a dead issue in the rep field and they have cast it aside as they did Equity. It can be won back by placing a man in the field to give us news about our division of the business.

FRED POOLE.

Editor's Note—You dared us to publish this, Mr. Poole, and we did, showing we "can take it." It's too bad, tho, that you don't exercise greater care in reading. We quote part of one statement from the published article to prove that assertion, as follows: "These figures are the result of compilations prepared by the theatrical unions."

Show Trucks and Drivers

THE importance of crens and other show owners having trucks that will pass the most rigid inspection and truck drivers that fully qualify as such is brought out forcefully again—this time in the accident near Ebensburg, Pa., that resulted in the death of the well-known elephant Tip, which belonged to Mrs. Ernest Haag, of the Mighty Haag Circus.

Tip, as many will remember, used to go on foot from stand to stand of the show, but lately has been carried on a truck with another elephant. Tip was a docile bull, a good performer and was always anxious to please every one.

The hills and curves of the roads in that section of Pennsylvania where the accident occurred are treacherous, being both sharp and steep. The road for many miles is protected by steel guard posts to keep drivers who take the curves too fast from plunging down the 1,500-foot ravines, and there are plenty of drops this deep.

According to a showman and reader of The Billboard who happened to be near by but did not see the accident, the truck carrying Tip and the other bull got beyond control, made two stiff curves but piled up on the third sharp one, hit the steel guard rail and threw both elephants out. Tip landed against one of the guard rails and was killed instantly. The other bull landed on the shoulder of the road and while bruised was not killed.

Our informant says the driver of the truck told the officers of the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol who investigated that the brakes were defective and that he had reported this defect three times. Our informant also had a talk with the driver, who told him the brakes were no good and wouldn't hold and that the load weighed 14,700 pounds (more than seven tons). Whether true or not, the truck was too badly damaged to permit of an inspection. The accident was a tough break for Mrs. Haag, who will find it hard to replace this elephant, a distinctive attraction.

After the Haag wreck, our informant continues, one of the State Highway officials announced that he would at once recommend that truck shows traveling thru Pennsylvania be moved under supervision of the State Highway Patrol, which supervision would mean added expense to the shows.

Our informant goes on to say that he has visited four truck shows this year and was very much surprised at the ragged and unkempt appearance of the drivers and their methods of driving. Many of them, he declares, were reckless and foolhardy and others stupid and incompetent. It appeared to him that little care was used in selecting drivers and less care in seeing that they drove carefully. On one circus, however, he says he found drivers that were very careful and that they were watched closely and promptly fired if they showed evidence of being highway cowboys.

The Haag wreck will no doubt cause more attention on the part of some show owners to their trucks, drivers and methods of driving, but it's too bad a fine animal had to be killed to bring this about.

Frederick W. McClellan

Frederick W. McClellan, 68, suddenly July 18 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Myron Morgenroth, Akron, O., from a heart attack.

Over a period of 40 years he was identified prominently in outdoor show business in general and during many exhibitions held in the United States since the Cotton States Exposition in New Orleans he played his part as a showman.

At exhibitions held in Nashville, Omaha and Buffalo he was associated with Thompson & Dundy, who later built Luna Park, Coney Island, N. Y., and the New York Hippodrome. When the late Elmer S. Dundy and Fredric Thompson moved their activities to Coney Island following the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo McClellan was made manager of The Trip to the Moon spectacle which opened at Tilyou's Steeplechase Park. The following year, 1903, Thompson & Dundy opened Luna Park and he was made assistant manager. When the New York Hippodrome made its debut he served in the same capacity, and following this he was manager of several of Thompson's theatrical enterprises and later became general manager of Luna Park.

GEORGE GERSHWIN

George Gershwin, 38, internationally famous writer of jazz classics, at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Los Angeles, July 11, from an operation for removal of a brain tumor, as briefly mentioned under Late Deaths in last week's issue. He had been ill only two weeks. Gershwin had been on the West Coast, working on songs for the picture Goldwyn's Follies, and had completed five songs when he collapsed in the studio.

Born in Brooklyn, he began his study of the piano at the age of 12 and secured his first job with the Remick Music Publishing Company when 16. Shortly after he had his first active contact with the theater when he secured the job to play for rehearsals for Miss 1917, written by Victor Herbert and Jerome Kern. He performed so well that he was kept on the pay roll and among other duties assigned him was to play for the Sunday night concerts, which were a part of Miss 1917's run at the Century Theater, New York. Shortly before the show's closing he was offered a position with Harms Music Company, which he accepted.

When 20 he composed the music for Half-Past-Eight and La, La, Lucille, in 1918. Other shows for which he wrote music were Broadway Brevities (20), George White's Scandals (20-24), A Dangerous Maid (21), Our Nell (22), The Rainbow (23), Sweet Little Devil (23), Lady Be Good (24), Primrose (24), Tell Me More, Tip Toes and Song of the Flame (with Herbert Stothard) (25), Oh, Kay (26), Strike Up the Band, Shake Your Feet and Funny Face (27), Rosalie (with Sigmund Romberg) and Treasure Girl (28), Show Girl (29), Kiki Crazy (30), Of Thee I Sing (31), Pardon My English (32) and Let 'Em Eat Cake (33).

The composition, however, which brought Gershwin more fame than any other song written by him was Rhapsody in Blue, which was played by Paul Whiteman at his concert in Aeolian Hall, New York. Other songs which brought him additional fame were his An American in Paris and Concerto in F. Gershwin was interested in two music publishing businesses, the Gershwin Publishing Corporation, recently formed, and the former New World Music Company, a subsidiary of Harms, Inc.

Funeral services were held in the Temple Emanu-El, New York, with burial in Mount Home Cemetery there. Survived by his widowed mother, Mrs. Rose Bruskin; two brothers, Ira, lyric writer, and Arthur, and a sister, wife of Leopold Godowsky, of Rochester, N. Y.

R-B NOT TO COAST

Will Go as Far As Omaha, Neb.

Planned to close in Florida second week in November—Dover, O., a surprise

DOVER, O., July 17.—That the Ringling-Barnum Circus will not go to the Coast this season was disclosed here by Sam W. Gumpertz, general manager. He informed The Billboard representative that the show would go as far west as Omaha, Neb., playing extensively thru the Dakotas; pick up some Texas territory, leaving the remainder of that State to the Barnes show; linger longer than usual in Southern territory and bring the tour to a close in Florida about second week in November. Mr. Gumpertz also confirmed the report that the show would not play Cincinnati this season, the first time in years, due, he said, to the inability to obtain a suitable lot there.

Mr. Gumpertz stated that business in New England States was the biggest in its history and that grosses to date are substantially ahead of any season in recent years.

He also said business during the show's Ohio invasion, which started at Akron, was not up to expectations, due possibly to the steel strikes general thruout Eastern Ohio. The switch in original route did the show no good, as Marion and Mansfield gave it only fair business. Akron's matinee was big and the night near capacity.

The surprise of the season was the Sunday stand here under auspices of American Legion, made possible thru the efforts of Olen Z. Wagner, Legionnaire, lumber man and circus fan. Counted on to give the show its Sunday "nut" in lieu of loafing at Pittsburgh, show, despite a heavy rain just before start of the afternoon, grossed almost as big as Akron, despite the fact that population here is under 10,000 as compared to Akron's 250,000. Mr. Gumpertz expressed himself as well pleased with the response here and promised the Legion that the show in the future would play here every other year.

The many circus fans and former showmen living near by spent the day visiting. Acquaintances were renewed by the Canton, Massillon and Dover delegation with Mr. Gumpertz, Ralph Clawson, Eddie Vaughan, Merle Evans, Clyde Ingalls and Doc Oyler, Jack Minehart, formerly with show, from Massillon, was on all day, as was his father, Ralph Peters, Canton stockman, and daughter, spent day on the lot.

Fire Damages Cole Quarters

ROCHESTER, Ind., July 17.—After a four-hour battle Thursday flames which threatened the winter quarters of Cole Bros. Circus here were brought under control by firemen. It was estimated that the damage was between $3,000 and $4,000.

Lightning during a severe rain and electrical storm caused the fire.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Altho fighting spasmodic downpours thruout its two-day stay here, which failed to relieve an excessive heat wave, and despite the inroads Cole Bros. and Hogenbeck-Wallace circuses admittedly made into the big tent fans' wallets in their earlier appearances here this year, Ringling-Barnum drew several thousand dollars more this stay than last year, General Manager Sam Gumpertz informed.

Faced by Dexter Fellows, whose annual visits to the Steel City cause its three dailies to publish hosannas on press-agency and the tankard, the show sold out completely its first night show, July 12, and enjoyed a near-capacity house Tuesday night. Afternoon performances were relatively weak, with plenty empty seats.

OSCAR WILEY, general agent of Wallace Bros. Circus, who has spent all his time on the advance of leading shows.

Atterbury Tour Of Dakotas Good

GEORGE, Ia., July 17. — Atterbury Bros. Circus and Trained Animal Shows recently finished a successful tour of the Dakotas. Few changes have been made since opening. Fred Harper's dogs closed at Watertown, S. D., to make fairs. Kirk's high-school horses are filling the spot. Pop McCallister, who had candy and lunch stands, also closed.

Side Show, managed by Robert Atterbury Jr., is doing very good. A big orang-utan has been ordered.

George Barton, general agent, has booked many Sunday stands. Show will have a long season and expects to winter in San Antonio, Tex.

Fritz Olober has an eight-piece band and will soon have new uniforms. Mary Atterbury is now working pony drill. Annie Atterbury rides elephant in spec.

Cook-Tent Innovations At Boy Scout Jamboree

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The recently concluded Boy Scout National Jamboree introduced some cook-tent innovations which have set circus oldtimers to wondering if some of these ideas could not be used by traveling shows to great advantage.

The idea which captured most attention was the use of mesh sidewalls for the cook tent. The material allowed free passage of air but was fine enough to keep out flies. It appeared to be made of fabric. All inquiries as to where the material was procurable were referred to the New York Scout headquarters.

Barnes Has Four Packed Houses At Denver; Colo. Springs Is Big

DENVER, July 17.—Business for the Barnes show here July 9-10 was phenomenal. There were four packed houses. At opening matinee there were 1,200 orphans from several Colorado institutions. The papers were exceptionally liberal with space to Gardner Wilson, general press agent.

Show had two capacity houses at Colorado Springs. All the past week was good except Loveland.

Mrs. Bert Bowers and party visited the show at Denver. Governor Clyde Tinsley of New Mexico visited at Santa Fe. James Cronin, brother of Manager S. L. Cronin, visited in Denver, having come from Hartford City, Ind., to spend two days. Brought his young son along. Dr. Henry Martin, of New Britain, Conn., while in New York City decided he would attend the Elks' convention, but got there ahead so as to catch the big show. He made connections on the Zepher, making it to Denver in 16 hours. He renewed acquaintances with Long Season For Kay Bros.

Will run until Christmas—biz in Maine fair—has had plenty of opposition

BATH, Me., July 17. — Kay Bros. Circus, in its 15th week, has been doing nice business but has had no straw houses. Biz in this State is fair. Manager William Ketrow expects to have show on road until Christmas and will winter in Miami, Fla. It will probably remain in Maine several weeks. Show has all new canvas.

Show has had plenty of opposition. At Plainville, Conn., five shows had paper in some store windows—Ringling-Barnum, Cole Bros., Tom Mix, Eddy Bros. and Kay Bros.

Sixty-five people are with show. Jake Kokenehi has the band; Buck Leahy, George Greig, Bob Ketrow, Lew Gish and Andy Howe are in clown alley. Performers are Mary Ellen Ketrow, Edith Bookman, Si and Nellie Kitchie, Buddy Bookman, Four Greigs, teeter-board acrobats; Skippy Koskie, bar and ladder; Captain George's ponies; Art Mix and company in the concert.

Shorty Bookman is keeping the trucks moving; Frank Ketrow, general agent, has six assistants; Dan Stewart and wife have charge of cookhouse, with three assistants; Bob Ketrow and Milt Robbins, wife and daughter have Side Show; Mrs. William Ketrow is treasurer.

Recent visitors, Walter L. Main, John Van Arnam; W. L. Mellor and Arthur Campfield and wife, of Baker-Lockwood Company.

Birthday Party Given Mrs. Cronin

OGDEN, Utah, July 17. — Mrs. S. L. Cronin, wife of Manager Cronin, of the Barnes show, was given an elaborate birthday party between shows at Ogden, Utah, in the cookhouse, which was decorated for the occasion. Several hundred of the personnel were present. Big show band rendered several selections, including Happy Birthday to You, and Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here. A 72-pound cake (a replica of a big top, with guy ropes and flags waving from the lanyards) was cut in generous pieces and served to all present, besides a specially prepared dinner by George Tipton.

Mrs. Cronin received many fine presents and cards and wires of birthday greetings. After evening performance she returned to Los Angeles.

Stutz Establishes Quarters Near Reading

READING, Pa., July 17.—Stutz Bros. Circus has established permanent headquarters near here and animal acts are being broken at the farm. Props and cages are being built and recently an old-time circus office wagon was acquired. It is planned to have a one-ring show on the European style. However, show cannot be readied in time to go out this summer but may play indoor dates this fall and winter. Show owns all ring stock and performing animals but may add one or two other animal acts.

J. F. Stutzman, who has been in show business for last 10 years, is sole owner and manager. He is supervising training of animal acts.

Zoo for Boo?

DETROIT, July 17.—Devers Lonzo, elephant attendant on Cole Bros. Circus, was injured at Bay City by Boo, elephant with the show. The animal had a bad previous record, according to statement by the circus officials, altho the present injury was blamed on the heat. Boo is to be given to any zoo that wants him, according to statement issued.

Chase Enlarged At Cass Lake

CASS LAKE, Minn., July 17.—Chase & Son Circus was enlarged here. New spread of canvas is a 90 with three 40s; side show has a 100-foot banner line; No. 2 side show, an 80-foot line. People from the Howe, Atterbury & Hoxie show joined here. One act came from Seal Bros. Altogether there are 42 more folks.

Business has been big in the iron-range country and show will return there.

J. O. Admire and wife, agents of Chase show, have been making St. Cloud their headquarters. They met Frank Kindler, circus fan, and wife, and Frank Welsh, fan and owner of St. Cloud Billposting plant. Kindlers spent an evening at the Admires' trailer, also Welsh, and following day the Admires were served dinner at Kindler home. Admire called on CFA Dr. Mulligan.

St. Cloud will be on route for Graham-Admire Indoor Circus. Dates will probably be arranged four days late in November under auspices.

Admire stated that circuses must be out of this State 18 days before the State fair, which opens September 4, and not 30 days as previously mentioned.

Barney Headed For Calif., Nev.

ELGIN, Ore., July 17.—Barney Bros. Circus is now in its 18th week on its tour of the Northwest. Is headed for Nevada and California. Show opened March 6 in Arizona. Business has been excellent, with a slight slump in Eastern Montana due to drought conditions. However, picked up wonderfully in Washington and since entering Oregon capacity and straw houses have greeted show at every stand. Three performances were given in La Grande, Ore.; three in Enterprise and there were two straw houses at Wallowa.

The rolling stock has been increased by five Chevrolet trucks since opening, and Ruth, large elephant, has been added. John D. Poas is now general agent. Mona, dancer on tight wire, has joined. Milt Herriott, equestrian director, has program running smoothly in an hour and a half.

It is intention of management to stay out until late in November.

Mrs. Milton Herriott and children and "Buddie" Devere are recent additions. Professor LeRoy recently purchased two giant pythons for Side Show.

Heat Affects Mix Mats; Nights Okeh

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., July 17.—The Tom Mix Circus has run into a heat wave. Has affected afternoon business, but night business has held up satisfactorily.

S. T. Jessop, of the U. S. Tent and Awning Company, has been with show for several days arranging for arrival of new canvas equipment, which will go in the air at Washington, D. C.

Many of the personnel of Jack Hoxie Circus saw show at Wheeling, where they are awaiting the reopening of Hoxie show.

Manager Ted Metz of the Side Show has added Major Littleman, midgot, to his splendid lineup of attractions.

By CHARLES WIRTH

RINGLING BROS. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is not playing Cincinnati this year, therefore several members of The Billboard—E. W. Evans, Dan Weber and the writer—made a trip to its nearest stand, Dayton, O.

CHARLES WIRTH

last Thursday afternoon and certainly enjoyed the performance. Show, as usual, was on the fairgrounds, a most ideal location. Had a three-quarter house at the matinee, weather being hot. Bill Hewitt, who attended the night show, informed me that the tent was packed, also that there was a terrific rain and wind storm just as the grand entry started which kept up for more than an hour. A special announcement was made, asking that the folks be careful in leaving the tent owing to the condition of the grounds.

The show was reviewed in its entirety when it opened at Madison Square Garden, therefore will not go into detail at this time. However, want to say that it is a most wonderful organization and has a top-notch performance; in fact, have always seen the best there is on this show in the way of entertainment. And how the show does move—in every department.

From the opening spec, India, to the closing number, cannon thriller, the performance moves with precision under direction of Fred Bradna. And the band—well, Meric Evans and his boys certainly play swell music.

The show is beautifully dressed throughout—there has been a tremendous outlay for wardrobe. It's a show that absolutely cannot miss at the box office, big crowds having attended it along the line. It is worth going a long way to see. General Manager Sam W. Gumpertz can certainly feel proud of the Big Show, aptly termed. He informed that the show is having a wonderful season.

Clyde Ingalls has an excellent lineup in the Side Show, as has Col. Tim McCoy in the Wild West concert. Both having a fine season.

Contracts are contracts, no mistake about it. It is better to think twice before breaking any.

Altho Flint, Mich., has had industrial disturbances this spring, and with more threatening, the day and date engagements of the Hagenbeck-Wallace and Cole Bros.' circuses in that city recently turned out extremely good for both organizations, indicating that the circus is great entertainment and a great draw. The H-W show had the better attendance in the afternoon, while at night it was the Cole show's turn. With two big shows playing day and date there, from the side lines it didn't appear as if both shows would do the business they did. From what I have picked up there was no rough stuff in the opposition fight, which, of course, is as it should be and a credit to the industry. When it comes to an opposition fight let it be clean.

ROCHELLE, Ill., July 17.—Harold Barnes, wire walker of Cole Bros.' Circus, who suffered a broken shoulder while show was in the East, is getting along nicely and is convalescing at the home of our good member N. Harry Cancie in Brookfield. Last Thursday Cancie took Harold to Joliet, Ill., for a visit to the show.

F. E. Loxley, CFA, of Cranston, R. I., caught the Boys' Club Outdoor Circus at Pawtucket, R. I., July 17.

Thomas Brownlie, of Cleveland, Mont., sends the following: "Visited Henry Bros.' Circus and Menagerie at Harlem, Mont. Big top is 50 with two 25-foot middles; performance given in one ring; menagerie a 40 with one 20. There are 14 acts and every one good. In menagerie are four African lions, Alaskan bear, leopard, cougars, ocelot, puma, bobcat, porcupines and monkeys. Show is moved on six Cadillac semi-trucks, one International and five trailers. Todd Henry is in charge of show."

Gainesville Community Circus, of which several CFA members are connected, will be at the Golden Jubilee celebration at Avdmore, Okla., July 24 and 25. Contract has also been signed for the appearance of this show at the East Texas Fair in Tyler in September for four performances.

Cole Loses Two Horse Cars in Fire

DETROIT, July 17.—When Cole Bros.' Circus played Battle Creek two horse cars were burned in the railroad yards with an estimated loss of $5,000. Switch engines were coupled to save the remainder of the circus train, which was pulled to safety.

Circus folk in the other cars abandoned their berths and a volunteer fire brigade was formed under the personal direction of Clyde Beatty and Ken Maynard.

Mix Visits R-B Show

DOVER, O., July 17.—Tom Mix motored from Huntington, W. Va., Sunday to attend night performance of Ringling-Barnum Circus here. In greeting S. W. Gumpertz, Mix said: "I've been so busy these several years around my own circus I just thought I'd like to see how one of these things was run." "You're looking fine, Tom, and we're glad to have you with us, make yourself at home," Gumpertz replied.

In the Mix party were Mrs. Mix and her sister, Erma Ward, and others.

Little Bongo, pet dog belonging to Mrs. Bary, caused great concern to her in Flint, Mich., when it strayed away, but was returned that night by three little boys following a radio announcement. The finder received $10 and the other two $5 each. George (Blackie) Darlington, old-time animal man, retired on his farm at Hartford, Mich., visited Danny McAvoy and Cheerful Gardner at Traverse City. Walter Goodenough, clown, visited at Mt. Clemens and had dinner with the show July 4.—BETTY CASE.

BARNES-SELLS-FLOTO. — Hal Silver met with an injury when falling off his wire and returned to his home in South Carolina. He was replaced by Phil Escalante, who hopped a fast train and made the spot in time. Phil had been off the wire for 18 months but went over with a bang. Helen Wight received a fall in Roman standing race and although out of a spot a couple of days is back in an' at 'em again. At La Junta there were 172 showfolks in a swimming pool, which was a block from the lot. The same lucky break happened the next day at Loveland. A big turnout was given by clown alley when call was made for the Children's Hospital party in Denver. Harry Ross has left for fair dates. Fay Avalon was visited by relatives in Denver.

TOM MIX—Fourth of July was enjoyed by all. A boxing show was held in big top between shows. First bout, Little George Hanneford vs. George Sunbury, two rounds, a draw; second, Tommy Ross vs. Ray Waio, three rounds, a draw; third, McDuff vs. Spealbody, four rounds, decision Spealbody; main bout, Rex Cowboy Rossi vs. Allen Stabler, six rounds, a draw. Referee, Jack Knapp, and judge, Danny Gordou, promoter. At Wheeling the Jack Hoxie folks visited. They were George Myers, Vic Clark, Jerry Starr, Ora and Minerva, Chief Chico and wife, Shorty Hinkle, Barth and Miler, Montana Earl, J. O. Ernst and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pence, known as Mrs. Cottrell. Hank Linton and Charles Arley parked their trailer in front of one of big top trucks and as truck had to leave early Hank and Charles had to get up at 4 o'clock and move out of the way. Said they never knew the sunrise was so beautiful.

(From The Billboard Dated July 22, 1922)

Manchester, Ia., came very near being without a circus July 10 as a result of a wreck at Plymouth Junction when the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus train south-bound on the Milwaukee short line from Austin, Minn., crashed into a north-bound Rock Island passenger train, holding up traffic for five hours. Several persons sustained injuries, none serious, however.

Mugivan-Bowers-Ballard officials announced that they were making plans to present an indoor circus during the winter.

Sixty Masons and widows of Masons, members of the Masonic Home, Wallingford, Conn., were entertained by the Walter L. Main Circus July 10 with a three-ring show.

After a lapse of several years the exhibition of an animal circus in Shelbyville, Ind., was brought about when the city council voted to permit the use of city streets without imposing the provisions of the city ordinance which fixed a charge for the privilege.

That circus folk are ever loyal to their dead was demonstrated at Potsdam, N. Y., July 2 when more than 100 members of the Sparks Circus visited Bayside Cemetery and placed large floral pieces on the grave of the late George S. Cole.

The Atterbury Bros. Overland Animal Circus was playing to good business in its second week in the Iron Range country of Minnesota.

Ringling-Barnum Circus was obliged to pass up the scheduled Sherbrooke, Que., date due to a soft lot.

Baseball, the national pastime, had taken a half-Nelson grip on the John Robinson Circus and the organization boasted of three distinct teams, with two of them comprising the fair sex.

Cy Green, the Yankee Rub, closed with the Walter L. Main Circus after its New England tour.

Due to the late arrival of the Sells-Floto Circus train at Decatur, Ill., the 11 a. m. performance scheduled was omitted, only the two regular performances being presented.

Around the Lot With R-B Show

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Many notable attendees Ringling-Barnum Circus at Buffalo. Mr. Kennedy of Buffalo News, took full rights in dressing rooms of performers and clowns. Roland Butler and John Eric entertained members of press and city officials. Jamestown, next stand, early arrival, big attendance. Visitors, John L. Steiner and C. H. Droaga. New Castle, Pa., lot in heart of city, threatening weather, but big top jammed to capacity. Visitors were Charles Beach and wife, Charlie, former big-show cornetist, sat in band during matinee. Was guest of Merle Evans for the day. Paul Schumacher, backdoor officer, spent day with relatives and friends in New Castle, his home town.

Hot wave at Akron, O., 112 degrees in big top, so Art Concello reports. Art is vacationing for short period in his new car, brought from Bloomington, Ill., by his chauffeur, Jimmy Mooney. Charlotte Shives, aerialist, visited with her folks, Akron being her home town. Marion, O., short haul, unloading from Erie Railroad on grassy lot. Thunder shower at matinee. Another hot day at Mansfield. Many were shedding to shorts. Saw Betty Stewart hanging wash on line, the Twin Sisters parked in a cool spot. Repenski family making cold drinks, Louie's coffee stand crowded to capacity. Dirty Dozen Club has private dressing room under sidewalk. Rumors are there is to be a new judge.

Hot weather has no effect on Everett Hart. He is on a diet. Lawrence Anderson can't eat steaks—dentist fixed that. Jack LeClair is building a radio. Eddie Ward and Joe Yacopi in a hot wave argument—it was a draw. Rummy game sewed up by Tan Grew. Mickey, Jerome, Gordy and Jimmy are hard to find. Charles Brady and wife visited and left for Peru, Ind. Frank Ottario, manager of big cross act, temporarily vacationing on show. The missus will remain until close of season. London Boliza, member of Magyar troupe, sustained injury during stunt they feature, tandem somersault.

Around lot and midway sidelights. Stopped to see crowds milling to and from for night show. At yellow ticket wagon chatted with Ray Floyd, Lou Woodruff and Gene Graves. Stepped over to red wagon—there were J. W. Robinson, Joy Boynton, Hubert Sicks and Floyd Morgan ready to serve crowd. At white wagon, Harry Minor, John A. Jones, Paul Ringling and Devanahan Carlton. Doc Oyster, assistant to Clyde Ingalls on Side Show, needs no introduction—is a master in his line. Mr. Ingalls reports his wife and children will arrive from London July 23 and to be on show indefinitely. Visited kid show for first time, going around with Austin King, inside lecturer (lineup appeared at opening of season). King reports he has booked, thru Dick Hugo offices, Jack Earl, giant, and Jenny Reynolds, midget, for tour of China and Japan for three months, sailing early in December. King will be manager. Dover, O., on fair-grounds on Sunday was a winner for small town. Arrived at Pittsburgh late, show on time, matinee fair, night house straw on both ends. JOE LEWIS.

and all took a good bath. Joe Bowers is still hunting for his clothes, as his trailer was wrecked, so he moved in with Tommy Ross, and next day that trailer was wrecked, so it keeps Joe busy trying to find a place to sleep. Jimmie Davidson has joined out a dog. Mrs. Mabel Mix and Mrs. Flo Burslem are taking moving pictures. Mrs. Mix has a camera that takes colored pictures. Max Gruber was kicked by his zebra and had 11 stitches taken in his hand, but he didn't miss any shows. Roy Brown is giving the trailers a new coat of paint. He wants a big flash for Canada. Jessie Arbaugh is back working again. Mrs. S. T. Jessop, wife of president of the U. S. Tent and Awning Company, had her first meal in cookhouse and said she enjoyed it. Bud Asher is always making something. Last week he made a portable clothes-line. He is now making a carving knife out of aluminum. Red Parker is doing a swell job on lights. Jimmie Davidson makes up at half past 6.

At Chillicothe many old friends visited. Pat Highland saved the day by bringing a case of beer. With Pat was Miss Hess. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brandt entertained Mrs. Lillian Ar buckle, Bumpy Anthony and wife, Jimmie Davidson, Mary Kinko and the writer, also little Eva Anthony and George Sunbury. A chicken dinner was served and a backyard plunge was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Duff was a visitor for two days. Alfred Shafer visited at Portsmouth, also the Russell Bros. Plumer Haynes was a visitor. Charles Warrell is acting manager while Dall Turney is away on business. Note a large crowd of people seeking Tom Mix's autograph, so will have to beat it before they come after mine.—KINKO.

DAN RICE—Andy Colloeno has taken a great interest in his salary. He feels if he is splitting it with Pa and Ma Graham that he is getting all the worst of it. After Saratoga, Sam Marietta is in love again. Emmett Moss went in a big way, too, but that's another story—Bluefield, please write. Arrived in Mechanicsville an hour late because Slim Webb, master auto mechanic, couldn't get his car started. Kokomo Morrison got mixed up on whether to celebrate July 3, 4 or 5, so he straightened everything out by celebrating the entire three days.

Marquette, Indian princess of renown, celebrated her 36th birthday anniversary. Doesn't look her age, tho. Even Bill Storey is practicing the art of makeup, preparing to make his debut in pictures to be taken on show. Dutchess doesn't know which half to present when the sound men go to work on her. And did Elizabeth worry when her Slim made the trip to New York with Bill Henry? Even Esther started thinking things. Johnny Carpenter made it plain that he was from Belgian Congo when he told the Dixie Minstrel boys where to get off. Band boys on fair behavior for the last two weeks. Department about 40 per cent. Cuban Mack now king of Ace Deuce, with Sam Marietta running a close second. Kokomo Anders getting acclimated in short order. Made an honorary member of Sports and Pastime Club, Initiation fees waived—for a while.

COLE BROS.—Yes, it's hot here, too. Harold Nicholson broke all records for Coca-Cola sales at the lunch emporium.

Not quite so much sun-tanning, mostly hunting the shade now. See Jack Pfeifferberger with his palm-leaf fan. Even the private wagons must be warm. See Jorgen Christiansen sitting out under the umbrella. The swimmers, led by Radio Charlie, are at it nearly every day. Baseball is out, too hot. Near-by beer taverns are always humming with activity. Can't find out who is the champion beer drinker. See Clyde Bently's boy busy chipping ice for something. Water wagon is always busy. Some of the boys are even taking baths to keep cool. Tough weather on putty noses. Happy Kelleem is working Wild West concert with good results.

Percy Smith, Jew comic, sprained his ankle, which has slowed him up a bit, Reno McCree also limping around with a sprained ankle, which makes the Jargo walk lopsided, as they are both in it. Otto Griebling still limps slightly but manages to tell the boys how to get in and out of the back door. Plenty of room in the clown canopy—not fewer clowns but bigger canopy. Someone must be having a birthday anniversary at the band top—all eating watermelon. Pfeifferberger there for his share. All the women on the run to the menagerie because the three baby elephants have arrived.

Art Lind busy juggling clubs. Albert Bernard burning matches by the gross learning a new trick of juggling. Gretona kid busy juggling, using empty bottle. Ilene Larey, brown as an Indian, lying out in the sun on her cot. Pat Lindsey busy knitting something that has all the colors of the rainbow. Scotty, the painter, kept busy painting buggies in backyard. Ernie Sylvester is boss but keeps mostly on banners, assisted by one of the clowns. Homer Hobson makes a nice-looking Chinaman in spec. Ches Howell and wife are new additions to Wild West. Quite a few of the gang went for a ride on the miniature train at the House of David in Benton Harbor. Tommie Poplin still looking in vain for fresh sea food.

—EMMETT KELLEY.

Arehie when the cat got in the tent. Rogers, the peanut king, is away on a trip to Steubenville, O. Fair association there insisted on his coming back to handle concessions for the fair and races. Mrs. Captain Scymour has rejoined, having been called to bedside of her sick mother. Joe Becker entertained visitors from Peru at Benton Harbor. Paul Isenberg also visited there. Ray Euling Hebler had a nice visit at home when show was at Saginaw and the papers ran front-page story and picture of Harold Voice when show made his home town. Alex Picard and Fred Jenks visited at Saginaw and Fred Zimmerman at Flint. Charley Davis on hand at Saginaw. Charley is now with the Michigan State Liquor Control Board. Hilgard and son visited at Kalamazoo. Frank O'Donnell also visited. Doc Waddell visited at Jackson. Other visitors noted were Grant, George Primross, Jimmy Gallagher, Am Jones, Mr. Stephenson, John Orace, Billy Dunkle. Lee Carter, of 74 car, went out to mail a letter at Battle Creek and when he came back show train had left. Paul Nelson spent the week-end at Mt. Clemens. Going over to Side Show found Lou Delmore, Judge Palmer, Jack Ryan and John James entertaining a group from the House of David. Delmore has recently given some broadcasts of side show, having Gibbs Sisters! Professor Lowery and Company, including Billy May and Shorty; Forrest, the Armless Wonder; Mazie, fat girl, and Royal Hawaiians, on the air. The top of Dan the barber is daily meeting place for baseball fans, reports coming in on Dan's radio. Colonel Courtney and Polly expect to make their winter home in Atlanta instead of Memphis.

CIRCLE BAR F RODEO is having good business in West Virginia, where it has played four weeks. Bob Follette reports. Showed at Terra Alta July 2-6 and an extra show had to be played in the afternoon to accommodate the crowds. According to the report, it was the largest gathering of people ever to be seen in that mountain town. Show was under auspices of Terra Alta Fire Company, which spared no effort in advertisement by radio, newspapers, billboards and posters. Show is booked again for the Fourth in 1938. Bob Follette is owner.

Cole in Number Of Mich. Cities

JACKSON, Mich., July 17.—The 17th week of the season—10th under canvas—saw Cole Bros.' Circus crossing back into the States after two weeks in Canada. Detroit was the first stop and a very appropriate day to return, as it was the Fourth of July. Only a one-day stand there and being Sunday no parade was given.

Flint was next with everything moving on time, with parade downtown shortly before noon and a banner day's business was recorded. Port Huron followed, with thousands coming across the river from Sarnia, Ont. The ferry people here ran almost continuous service.

The engagement at Bay City was first visit of show to this city. Parade attracted great attention, as it was the first in many years. It was in this city four years ago that Clyde Beatty was injured during his act and spent several weeks in a local hospital. This was his first visit since, and just to keep him reminded of this town a terrific free-for-all battle took place in the steel arena at afternoon performance and was only stopped after many breathless moments by the intrepid Clyde.

Saginaw, Lansing and Jackson finished the week with three more towns to be made in a 10-stand trip in Michigan.

Joe Barnes, retired police officer of the Saginaw Police Department and a real circus fan, visited the show at Flint, Bay City and Saginaw. Joe is hale and hearty, although he has been on the retired list now for some 15 years and has a wide acquaintance among circus folk.

Jack Davis and Ernest (Whitey) Kelpert, of Bay City, visited the show at Flint and then drove Al Hoffman, 24-hour man, to Bay City.

Thomas (Skinny) Dawson is serving as utility man, having recently worked in press department and is now on inside tickets.

Ab Jones, of Crawfordsville, Ind., joined at Detroit for a visit.

A great addition to the front door is a large neon sign which is hung just in front and the entire width of the marquee with two-foot letters "Circus Entrance."

LINCOLN, Neb., July 17.—Cole Bros.' Circus will play Omaha July 28, Lincoln 27 and Falls City 28. Announcement was received with much gratification by the State Fair board, since it had feared a tent concentration during August right ahead of the fair. Ringling-Barnum Circus comes in later, but is so far only booked for one date, Omaha.

Pastor Visits Rice; Rhoda Royal Joins

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 17.—Bob Pastor, heavyweight contender, visited the Dan Rice Circus here at afternoon performance, accompanied by 30 children from the Hawley Home and stole all honors from the performers. All eyes were centered on the white hope, who enjoyed the show to such an extent that he returned at night. Straw houses ruled here with the show getting a red-letter day.

Rhoda Royal, late of the Mix show, joined the Rice organization at Warrensburg and has the title of equestrian director. Notwithstanding the heated spell Margaretville, Stamford, Cobleskill, Mechanicsville, Hoosic Falls and Greenwich delivered good crowds. The entire show was transferred to St. Christians Home at Saratoga Monday morning and the children were thrilled.

Visitors from all parts of New England visited during the past week. Sam Freed, of Schenectady; Larry and Frank Burns, of Hoosic Falls; Forrest Wallace, former performer with Hagenbeck-Wallace; Jack Lyle, of O. C. Buck Shows; Joe Beach and Charles Davitt, of Springfield, Mass.; Beanie Frey, of Gloversville; Paul Pelletiere, famous organist of Thompsonville; Max Cohen and wife, of Rochester; Lyman Dunn, Mabel Mack, Milt Hinkle and Jack Knight were a few of the notable visitors.

Performers are busily studying the art of makeup before the camera preparatory to the taking of the talking picture My First Love, the Circus, which is expected to begin next week.

Mike Pyle, in charge of advance brigade, has enlarged his billing crew to 12 men, with five trucks ahead.

Topless Forum

REHOBOTH BEACH, Del., July 17.—Sentiment for topless bathing suits here seemed to increase as a public forum on the issue approached. Something like an old-fashioned town meeting will discuss the question of the hour. It is a battle of petitions, topless group claiming more than 1,500 names and opponents of the scanty men's attire claiming more than 400, mostly property owners. Rehoboth has an anti-topless regulation, but signs to that effect posted on the Boardwalk were torn down. Law was fairly well disobeyed until life guards were ordered to enforce it rigidly.

A. C.'s Mayor Raps 2 Piers

Would condemn Central and Steeplechase—income of Garden to go for taxes

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—Mayor C. D. White has proposed that Central Pier and Steeplechase Pier be condemned as "eyesores and nuisances," at the same time starting foreclosure proceedings against Garden Pier. A conference has been held between City Finance Director David C. Reed and Edward Ayres, representing owners of Garden Pier, and all pier income during the season will go into city coffers on account of taxes.

Garden Pier was once in heart of the amusement district but this has now moved further downtown. For several years one turkey after another has folded on the pier. This season, however, it appears that the pier would make a comeback with Tobacco Road playing a two-week engagement to crowds, following with Dead End, now being plenty ballyed.

Louis St. John, general manager of Central Pier, one of the newest of resort structures, withheld comment on the mayor's proposed condemnation until "hizzoner makes himself more clear." Two years ago St. John took over the pier and changed it from a dead spot to one of the liveliest on the Boardwalk, now housing Texaco exhibit, Baechnut Circus, Old-Time Movies and a model home erected by the FHA. It is declared (See A. C.'S MAYOR on page 43)

Hollister Kennywood P. A.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Jack Hollister, sports announcer for KDKA and former newspaper man, has joined the staff of Kennywood Park as press agent, succeeding J. J. Reis, who will devote his time to booking picnics and exploitation.

Maryland Beach Improved

CHESTERTOWN, Md., July 17.—Improvements at Tolchester Beach by Tolchester Lines, Inc., which took over holdings of Tolchester Steamboat Company recently, include putting the large pier in first-class condition for ferry and excursion steamers and a large amusement pavilion erected in the park. Resort is under management of Frank Clements, succeeding C. Frank Wheatley.

To Remember Spokane Fire

SPOKANE, Wash., July 17.—Louis Vogel, Natatorium Amusement Park owner, plans to hold a celebration on August 4, anniversary of the great fire of 1889. He will hold the first "arena" fireworks show Spokane has ever seen, display to depict historical buildings and events. Show will be built up to a jubilee in 1939, 50th anniversary of the destructive blaze.

Bare Backs in Galveston

GALVESTON, Tex., July 17.—Galveston Beach Association will conduct a "perfect back" contest at the beach on August 13 and 14 with $300 awards and a plaque. Judging will be held in sport costumes on opening night and finals in evening clothes.

Protest Mayor's Idea of Banning Masses From A.C.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—Mayor C. D. White's plan to charge visitors an admission at gates of the city, together with another for exclusion of excursionists, has raised a storm of protest, with those with big investments in the amusement field lending majority of the opposition.

The mayor has made several proposals to discourage mass business in favor of class and declares the former do not spend enough money here. While Wildwood and down-beach resorts are doing everything to attract excursion business, Atlantic City is going in the opposite direction.

Over protest of merchants, civic and business organizations and political groups Mayor White is installing parkometers in all sections of the city, placing a fee for parking on any street. A number of sections of public beach, especially in front of the hotel owned by the mayor, have been marked off (See PROTEST MAYOR'S on page 43)

Great Outlet in Europe for U. S. Device Makers, Says Thompson

Denies partiality exists in favor of rides and games manufactured on other side—interview with Baker indicates American concerns should not overlook field

NEW YORK, July 17.—That there is a great market in Europe for American amusement rides and equipment and, in fact, that European operators obviously seem to lean in preference toward American goods was revealed this week by Leonard Thompson in an interview with Harry C. Baker, president of the National Association of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches. The prevalent belief that European ride and game men were being partial to manufacturers on their side of the Atlantic was incorrect, said Mr. Thompson. Especially so does this opportunity exist for the maker of small rides and similar equipment. Naturally, said Mr. Thompson, the demand is not so great for big permanent structures such as Roller Coasters.

Swim Meet for Eastwood

DETROIT, July 17.—Annual Detroit Times championship swimming meet will be held on August 8 in the pool in Eastwood Amusement Park, Manager Benny York said. This event for women is expected to be a major attraction with record crowds. Michigan AAU Championship and National Junior Championship will be competed for.

MANAGER AND SOME OF BIG ACTS appearing recently at Pontchartrain Beach, New Orleans. Left to right: Oscar V. Babcock, Loop of Death; A. E. Selden, "The Stratosphere Man"; Harry J. Batt, managing director of Pontchartrain Beach; Harry V. La Van, of the Flying La Vans, now director of attractions at the beach. Patrons this year are being given the biggest array of acts in history of the resort, result being record attendance. Preceding the acts named above was Bee Kyle, high diver, whose stay was extended to four weeks.

Agreement With Eyerly

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Baker discussed the exportation situation on the eve of the former's departure for Blackpool, England, where he operates the big Pleasure Beach Park and is interested in the amusement game thru other angles. He has been making one of his periodical tours of this country in quest of new ideas and additional knowledge of the business, besides renewing old and fast friendships established in the past on these shores.

Before departing it is understood that Mr. Thompson entered an agreement with the Eyerly Aircraft Corporation, Salem, Ore., to manufacture and distribute the new and sensational Octopus ride which has been so successful in this country this season.

Other European Rights

It is the belief of Mr. Baker that Mr. Thompson's acquisition of European rights on the Octopus will open added possibilities for the young English showman. He already manufactures and sells to European patrons the Auto Scooters and Water Scooters of Lusse Bros., as well as Ferris Wheels for the Eli Bridge Company, Jacksonville, Ill.

"We congratulate Mr. Thompson and look forward to his early return to our land, where his friends are so numerous," said Mr. Baker.

Fireworks and Excursions Boosting Gate at Playland

ROCKAWAY BEACH, L. I. N. Y., July 17.—Activity at Rockaway's Playland is in full swing. Newly erected skating rink under management of James C. Affent is doing far better than expected. Weekly fireworks presented in conjunction with Rockaway Chamber of Commerce are drawing more than 150,000 people on nights of the shows, and business in the park on these nights increases 25 per cent.

Tieup with The New York Daily Mirror, which will give the park much publicity, has been in effect since July 16. Metropolitan AAU water-polo championships, to be held in the park pool on July 22, had already resulted in a great deal of publicity.

Excursions are coming to the park from all over the metropolitan area. General Manager Louis Meisel reports that there has been a marked increase in number of excursions this year.

Philly Pools Are Jammed

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Pools reaped bumper trade last week when the city was sweltering. All city and nearby pools reported capacity crowds. Attendance records were broken at municipal pools last Friday with 114,000 for a new high over the mark of 90,000 for a single day. Pools averaged more than 50,000 persons each day during the heat spell.

ZANESVILLE, O.—Manager George Anagnost, Moxhaha Park, has added another new ride, the Rolling Wave, and the spot now has the largest lineup of attractions in its history, officials said.

Eastwood Outdoor Ballroom Idea Bucking Weather on "Big" Nights

DETROIT, July 17.—After getting off to an excellent opening, Eastwood Amusement Park is showing a regrettable slip due to bad weather. Conditions have affected all parks in this area, but probably Eastwood has taken the heaviest loss because of its adoption of the outdoor ballroom principle for the first time this season.

Seven Saturdays and five Sundays have been practically considered as lost because of rain. Last week, for instance, rain occurred on five consecutive nights, with Cab Calloway's Band in the big gardens. Orchestra was forced to play inside on two nights, resorting to the remodeled former skating rink, which serves as a shelter at one side of the ballroom. When rain hasn't hit the park cloud-bursts in the neighborhood have kept people away.

"Naturally you can't do business if you don't have weather," said M. B. Kerner, secretary and treasurer of the park operating company. "And rain is the most dangerous thing you can get. People have plenty of money and are willing to spend it. Strikes have hurt business only a little. Our grosses have actually been a little better than for the same period last year despite conditions. It would have been a top year if it hadn't been for rain."

In the gardens new noon lighting has been added at either side of the mammoth stage and an indoor garden effect finished. Ballroom is being managed by Harold C. Berg, well-known publicity man, and Frank Kutzen, former manager of the temporarily defunct skating rink. Special exploitation campaign is being staged for next week in co-operation with Willys dealers, with all in the territory putting in window displays plugging the park. On night of July 23 there will be a Willys party.

Edward P. Ford is managing the Showboat, formerly the Coliseum, after several years of connection with it. Louis Mylls, former manager, is in charge of Coconut Palms, Ford takes pride in his regular customers, of whom there are scores of weekly repeaters. He believes some of them get as great fun from just (See EASTWOOD OUTDOOR on page 43)

Grand Island Park Company at Buffalo, N. Y., has gone, temporarily at least, into the hands of a receiver. Friendly it is presumed to be so that by fall it may work out of its present difficulties. Receivers hope to have ample money to do things in a great way for 1938. Location on the American side obviated the great handicap of passing immigration authorities in going to the park and again on returning from the park into Buffalo.

It also eliminated duty on anything billed to the park from anywhere in the States. Maurice Smith had high hopes for the place, largely because he knew from first-hand experience what Erie Beach did while he was employed there in the heyday of that resort. Dr. Martin put some money into this development, all in apparent good faith. Perhaps it can be worked out so as to save his investment.

Rain has been hitting hard again. Sunday, July 11, was not so good along the Atlantic seaboard and the following Monday was a blank with hardest rain of the year thus far. Nevertheless it clicks for us when the weather permits.

Passing of G. W. Hull

We regret the passing of one of the old guards, Gladden William Hull, of Boise, Ida. He operated White City there for 27 years, previous to which he was at Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore. He was at Lagoon, Salt Lake City, with a Shoot-the-Chutes and Funhouse for 17 years. He was a Pullman conductor with J. W. Ely for many years. As young men they were on the run from Omaha to Portland, Ore. He never resigned from the Pullman Company, but took a leave of absence which was never canceled. He attended the NAAP convention in Chicago in 1933 and after spending a week at the exposition came on to New York City. He spent a half day with the writer, who had known him for many years.

While in Washington, D. O., he called on Secretary of State Cordell Hull, to whom he was related. No park man in the country had such capacity for friendship or held friendships better. Like Bob Ingersoll at Lake Conrary, St. Joseph, Mo., Hull at Boise, Ida., became a fixture, or would it better say an institution? Mrs. Annie V. Hull, his widow, will carry on with the help of a nephew, Russell H. Hull. Here is an honorable conscientious woman left to carry on. Let us render her every assistance and encouragement. With prospects of better business she should soon be able to sell to advantage and not suffer the tremendous losses widows have seen since 1929.

Lesson From Burlesque

Burlesque houses in New York City are starting on a new path of clean operation. It has interest to us in showing that unless an industry is willing to clean its own house it is far more costly to run contrary to public sentiment until the authorities step in. Once launched a clamp-down must go thru to save the prestige of authority. They can be lenient and tolerant until the open break comes, then the offenders must pay. They are sure to be watched closely, especially if the city gets a new administration this year. The officials can't let old practices return else their political opponents would become the severest critics.

It's better to practice prevention than to pay so much more for a cure to restore one's health. Immunity from typhoid costs only a small fraction of nursing thru the malady and leaves a constitution unimpaired. The same is true of business. Better take warning.

Old Orchard Beach

By HOWARD STANLEY

With cloudy skies, cold winds and rain, pennies from heaven didn't fall very fast the week-end of July 10. Only indoor enterprises had fairly steady play, with entries, dance places and theaters in the lead. Altho the season thus far has been good, many concessioners are not yet on the profit side. Grand Circuit races with pari-mutual betting are expected to attract money people and top business is anticipated during the next two weeks.

Fred Dittmer increased seating capacity of his Tango corn game, which means biz must be good. His staff includes Leo Feldman, John Jacobson, James Riley, Eddie Moore, Joseph Kierce, Bill Varnadoe, Harold (Trader) Horne, Sidney Porshin, Joseph Rankine and sons, Joe and Bill. The latter and Arthur Murphy and Jim Drew are on the mike, good men all.

Fred Allen and wife, Portland, are cottaging here for a spell, then will head for the Coast where, with Gypsy Rose Lee, they will make a picture. George Gershwin, the late composer, had many friends at Old Orchard, where he occasionally vacationed. Howard Duffy, of the Pier and Whiteway, rates handclaps for his Broadcaster, a weekly advertising pamphlet. Pep Mariano and John Sorrento, formerly of Boston's Club Bagdad, closed two successful weeks at Tom Kane's. Billy Earle, favorite old-time singer, holds forth across the street.

In the entertainment line Old Orchard has a shortage of good talent. The 12th unit of the Beech-Nut Circus on Wheels, after covering 235,000 miles and playing to more than 10,000,000, brought here in miniature all the thrills of the big top. Philo Zoppi and wife are to have a new Packard. Few know that Jerry Gardner, boss of Keane, is one of Boston's leading fight promoters. This is the season when resorts are sometimes flooded with spurious money. Be careful of your 50-cent pieces, $5 and $10 bills.

Palisades, N. J.

By MARION CAHN

Week-end of July 10 proved only fair as to weather but good as to business. It seems every week-end is big here no matter what the weather. California Collegians, of Fred MacMurray and movie fame, were in for two days and showed a top-notch organization with plenty of crowd appeal. Sol Solomon and Boxing Bear still making three acts for the week-end. Willie and Gustave Walldorf, just over from the other side with their boxing bear, are getting a big kink out of everything. They went into New York City to see their newscasts and the they couldn't understand the announcer they laughed at seeing themselves in the plex. And the they can't talk much English they made themselves understood when they were hungry.

Owing to big rush in the pool it has been decided to build an additional beach section and children's wading pool on site of the old skating rink (dance hall). There will be beach chairs, beach mats and umbrellas, a veritable miniature Riviera, all free to pool patrons. A Chinese wishing bridge joins the new beach section and swimming pool.

Bob Sled is running capacity now. Al McKee is working hard to compete with the Bob Sled on his favorite ride, the Skyrocket. New three-car train has been built for the Skyrocket to speed up things and enlarge capacity. Altho adding five new Scooter cars to the 25 which we already had, it begins to look as if before the season is over they'll add 10 more, as the ride is working to the hilt every night.

Creamer and Dyer certainly went to extremes in building their new hot-dog stand, probably the most elaborate in the country, with indirect lighting, glass bricks and chromium. Schwarz changed his watch wheel to a candy, bowl and novelty stand, but he spends most of the time around his mice, his favorite game. All cold drink stands doing top-speed business. Mitzi Mannes, of malted milk stands, was so rushed for five days that she hardly had time to eat. Oh, how we love that hot weather!

Atlantic City

By W. H. McMAHON

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—Resort this week got a taste of midsummer city heat and as result crowds flocked in but found the beach cooler than the amusements. However, in midweek came a cold spell and gates increased. Auditorium, getting ready to open its ice carnival, won't use polar bears for bally as first planned because Publicity Director Mal Dodson found they ate too much. About 400 of the nation's headliners in the news game were in town over the week-end and plenty of good publicity for the resort resulted. The Rev. H. Anderson Jardine, of Windsor-Wally fame, booked at the Auditorium, failed to enthrone more than about 77 in a 5,000-seat house.

Harry Lucey and Pete are back at Steel Pier for another season. Pete as well as might be expected for a dog his age. At the Warner as bally for New Faces is Claude, the mechanical man who made such a hit on Steel and Million-Dollar piers. Eddie White, usually good for two or three returns at Steel Pier during winter, is doing his second week at Million-Dollar Pier. Sam Ranor, Eddie Kaplan and Murray Briscoe, of the burlesque company at the Globe, have opened their own night club. Their slogan, "Bring Your Wife—if You Must."

Spectators got an eyeful when sperm whales were caught in Million-Dollar Pier nets. Eugene Lynch, midget, is ballyhoosing a brand of ciggies dressed as a penguin. Ed Hackney, of the famous Hackneys at Inlet, was refused admittance to a snooty walk cafe because of his polo-shirt attire and exclaimed, "It's a shame when a man has to go back to his own place to drink." Rolling chair parking against Boardwalk rail, once a favorite pastime, has been outlawed by Mayor White.

Octopus ride at Surf avenue and North Sixth street. New ride has proved a hit. Novins operates with I. Kranz and together they control the Octopus, Giant Loop-o-Plane, two regular Loop-o-Planes and a Scooter ride.

Paul Bergfeld and son, Luke, are again handling sales of The Billboard at Coney this summer. After 18 years of continued service in these parts Paul says it looks like this might be a swell season. . . . Grandma Merkle's Parkway Restaurant at Surf avenue and Fifth street is still a popular hangout for show people and concessioners. . . . Arthur Merkle and Tony Polaskas are running one of the nicest beer gardens and clam bars on the Island. Have evidently spent plenty of money and should capitalize. Andy Auer, chief operator; Bernard Mulsell, operator, and Sydney Schlater, ticket taker, form staff of the Giant Loop-o-Plane at Sixth and Surf. . . . "Stitch" McCarthy, making his headquarters at Stillwell Coffee Shop, gave up his position with the 20th Century Bus Company recently to run for mayor of Stillwell avenue. After being endorsed heavily by the public he was elected unanimously.

Royal McGoey, one of the few remaining oldtimers, is celebrating his 17th season at Coney Island. Is at the Scooter Speedway again, his third straight term there. Royal has always been a participant in Mardi Gras parades and plans to be in again this year. He's one boy none seem to be able to stop.

Biz is holding up fine. Weather is very caliente and I don't mean maybe. The torrid weather brought biz to Bathhouse Manager Tom Woodward and his sweetering crew, who worked heroically to care for the thousands who crowded the big pool and bench. Well, so much for the heat wave.

Current attraction is Eric, high-pole artist. Car award, chink award and bi-weekly fireworks display are clicking nicely, thank you.

There goes Dot Feuer, of LeGrande Studios. Funny sights: Margaret Cliffe explaining to a lady patron of anti-Nazi extraction from the Bronx why she must have a ticket to go on the bathing beach. Nick (Vallec) Marino telling a sympathetic crowd how hard he has to work, and Kiki Dunkel, manager of the beach cafeteria, washing down after a big day.

Walter DeLuna was a recent visitor, having closed with West Coast Dead End Company. Management has again made a tieup with a Westchester chain of datties and we will again have Newspaper Children's Day on August 23. Lee Bloom has been appointed aid to the Voice of Playland at the Music Tower. Character handwriting studios report biz very good, also Pennyland. Arthur Marras has installed a tropical jungle bar at his boardwalk spa and it makes a very attractive appearance. Well, the heat is getting me, so will say—Hasta Luego.

Wildwood, N. J.

By ORO

On petition of 36 Boardwalk concessioners, Vice-Chancellor W. Frank Booy restrained officials of Cape May County and Wildwood from closing their stands. Injunction was directed against the officials, who were ordered to show cause on July 13 why the injunction should not be made permanent. Charges were dropped and business along the Walk resumed as usual. Anthony J. Cafiero, counsel for the concessioners, presented their cases, arguing that none came under legal classification of gambling. Games were closed for 24 hours.

Better Boardwalk Business Men's Association retained Cafiero as counsel to ward off any attacks of a similar nature. Charges that the game men were butt of a political tiff are current, but a repetition of last week's closings is not anticipated. Credit goes to S. B. Ramagosi for making it a fair apportionment in getting up the defense fund, which almost totaled $2,000.

An indication of business done over the Fourth of July holiday is total of bank deposits made on the following day. Wildwood Trust Company reports week-end deposits were more than double those of last year; Union Bank reported deposits totaled more than $120,000 or better than 80 per cent more than the same week-end in 1936, and Marine National Bank reported deposits totaling $246,000, as compared with $181,000 last year.

Hunt's Plaza Ballroom heralds coming of Benny Meroff and his band with a 30x40-inch lobby poster carrying The Billboard correspondent's review of the orchestra. Art Shaw's Band jammed 3,800 into the ballroom on opening night. Name bands will carry on for the season, a fortnight booking for each. Hunt's Ocean Pier again putting on Mardi Gras nights, which met with success last season. Uncle Wip, of WIP, Philadelphia, is broadcasting his kiddie shows from the pier Tuesday nights. Bradway Republican Club plans to sponsor a carnival on Spencer avenue. Bradley's Bar and Cafe joins nitery ranks as the season goes into full swing.

The Pool Whirl

By NAT A. TOR

(All communications to Nat A. Tor, care of New York Office, The Billboard)

Going Semi-Technical

Altho I have steered clear of running technical articles about pools, the lead-off item here a few weeks ago concerning proper sanitation was received with such response that I have been tempted to do a similar piece on some other phase. I received a letter from Paul Huedepohl, of the Jantzen Swimming Association, Portland, Ore., last week, relaying some scientific data from my equally good friend, C. A. Hyatt, pool sanitarian for Illinois Department of Public Health. So with a nod to Paul and to C. A. Hyatt:

Importance of frequent (daily at least) overflowing cannot be overstressed, for unless frequent overflow takes place, the pool cannot be maintained in a satisfactory condition. Much of the polluting material floats on the surface for a considerable period before becoming water-logged and dropping to the bottom. Frequent overflowing often prevents this, and thus prevents excessive bottom deposits which are detrimental to the pool's appearance. From a sanitary standpoint, overflowing the pool is important, for this material, which, for the most part, is organic wastes, has heavy chlorine demand. It is practically impossible for chlorine to penetrate into the interior of such deposits and render them innocuous. Removing them is the answer.

Regarding backwash. G. Hyatt, by way of Huedepohl, claims that, as one pool operator put it, we are interested in two kinds of backwashing: that practiced to clean up the swimmer before entering the pool and the other in connection with filters. We're only discussing one. For a filter to continue to function properly and deliver the kind of water which a high-class pool requires, one must be able to clean it and here is where proper backwashing comes in. Average unit should filter at a rate of between two and three gallons per square foot per minute, and if it is serving its purpose it will remove material which causes water to be turbid. For proper backwashing an amount about five times the filter rate is necessary. To test the backwash rate in the pressure filter, remove the manhole cover and, by opening the necessary valves or removing clean-out plugs, drop the water in the filter some distance below the top of the filter sand; then with a yardstick or some other means, measure the vertical distance from the top of the sand to the rim of the manhole (if located on top of the filter); then have someone turn on the water or pump to backwash the filter from the top of the sand to the edge of the manhole. For proper backwashing, this rise should be equivalent to 24 inches in 60 seconds. If the rise is less than this, steps should be taken to remedy this defect if you want your filter to continue to function properly.

Continuing the Hyatt to Huedepohl to Nat A. Tor play, we learn that if a filter is doing its proper job in a matter of hours considerable material has accumulated in the upper part of the sand layer and naturally a greater pressure or head is required to maintain the normal rate of filtration. Ordinarily the pressure gauge on the inlet side of a filter is several pounds higher than on the outlet end even with the filter clean. When this difference in pressure reaches 8 to 10 pounds it indicates that the filter is building up a resistance to the flow of water, is dirty and should be backwashed. Under ordinary operation this condition necessitates backwashing and would probably occur only once in several days.

During the filter run the water of greatest clarity is obtained during the latter part of this period for it is then that the filter film or "schmutzdecke" (the Germans had a word for it) has been built up. It is in this fine jelly-like film where the smallest of the material is trapped and thus immediately after a filter is washed the first water filtered does not have zero turbidity. This explains why in many pools where filters are washed very frequently and immediately placed back into service water of the desired degree of clarity is not obtained. If possible the filter should discharge to waste for about 10 minutes after washing to build up this necessary film on the sand, or if it is not desired to waste the water the filter should remain idle for a slightly greater length of time, giving the alum floc in the water above the sand a chance to settle on the filter surface. It is to the observance of such operation kinks that some operators owe their secret of a crystal-clear water in the pool. Clear water and pool popularity go hand in hand.

And, as a parting shot, remember that bathers and swimmers make a pool unclean. Swimming pool sanitation starts with your efforts to properly prepare them before entrance into the pool. Hot and cold shower facilities and plenty of soap are the answer to this.

Postman Rings Once

Ben York, manager of the pool in Eastwood Park, East Detroit, writes:

"Have just put the finishing touches to Swim-for-Health Week. With lots of co-operation, it went over with a bang. I do hope it becomes an annual affair. Thanks to Martin Stern and his committee. It was a good start for our Industrial Learn-To-Swim campaign.

"Our Industrial Learn-To-Swim campaign is an annual affair. It runs for five weeks. One night each week is set aside for one or two automobile factories. They get a 25 per cent discount ticket, plus a half-hour swimming lesson, which takes place at night and, of course, helps our night business. In all shops are unionized, we had to attract their respective union locals. They went for the idea 1000 per cent.

"The course of lessons consists of crawl, back, breast and side strokes. First week we teach the crawl and following weeks the other strokes. Each week we review the previous lesson. Last week we hold a swimming meet for club members only. Events take in all the strokes and include all the shops. If any of your readers should want a copy of this program I will be glad to mail them one.

"See where Commodore William Fischman, guard at an Eastern seashore beach, is wearing a clip on his nose to prevent possible sinus and ear infection. I contend that if Commodore Fischman would practice deep breathing there wouldn't be the slightest possibility of any sinus or ear infection.

"By taking a real deep breath you build up an internal resisting pressure to combat external pressure. By exhaling slowly thru your nose you keep water out. Internal pressure on the ear canal will also help keep water out of the ears, thus eliminating that possibility of sinus or ear infection.

"Out of the thousands who have learned to swim and dive under my personal supervision none have ever been troubled with sinus or ear infections. I hope you do not think I am audacious in making this statement."

Pittsburgh Pools Raise Ante

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Pools and parks in this steel district are finding industrial prosperity reverberating in their cash registers. Kennywood Park reports a big year over 1936, West View and Burke's Glen ditto, with Wallrose, Verona, the Willows and other nearby tanks going full blast. A couple even raised the ante from 37 to 50 cents when gates started clicking so fast.

and anyone venturing into the inclosed sections is told by city policemen he is not wanted and that the section is for exclusive use of the hotel.

Mayor White's comment on the admission fees is that visitors should spend money if they come here. Don Riddle, son of a former mayor and holder of big beach-front realty on which are many amusement enterprises, came out flatly against the plan. "It is merely another attempt to exclude certain types of persons who constitute a large percentage of the resort's customers. After all, why appropriate $100,000 a year to advertise if we want to keep the masses away," he said. Other amusement interests voiced like opinion.

Mayor White's proposal came after he had made a checkup on the July 4 crowd, commenting that it was a one-day crowd and that for its size not enough money was left behind. "They (the visitors) should all contribute something toward the running of our great park," the mayor said.

Traube, Warming Up, Hurls Some With N. E. Managers as Backstop

NEW YORK, July 17.—The following letter was received by The Billboard from Leonard Traube, erstwhile member of its staff and all-round athlete of no mean ability. Traube, always the subject of much concern when New England Section, National Association of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches, plays baseball at its annual midsummer outing, was again put in the spotlight by Fred L. Markey, secretary, in a general announcement last week of the organization's forthcoming meeting in Providence, R. I.

Mr. Traube now has his inning. . . "All I know is what I read in The Billboard, and I see by that rag that Fred L. Markey, sorrel-topped sec of the New England Section of the National Association of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches (whew!), has me in the middle in connection with the organization's forthcoming annual summer meeting, scheduled for Crescent Park, Providence, R. I. on July 29. (Adv.)

A Hamid Booking

"Mr. Markey, bless him, has blandly announced that, owing to the great controversy centering about one Leonard Traube, it has been decided to play him on both sides of the annual baseball classic. The inevitable inference (or do the grammarians call it implication?) is that I am that valuable. That being the case, and especially in view of the fact that it will hurt my professional standing to be associated with the simon-pures of the NAAPPE (National Association of Amateur Players of Phony Baseball), a slight monetary consideration deposited with me in advance of the great diamond struggle will possibly mitigate my objections. And maybe spur my financial batting average.

"My boss and impresario, George A. Hamid, himself a former ball player, having performed notably as a member of the nine of old Buffalo Bill Show and Congress of Rough Riders of the West (whew!), who has seen me in action, submits a counter-proposal. (He likes to play the nags over the counter, you see.)

He declares that he is willing to book me for a percentage of the gate receipts, but when I responded that even the flies stay away during the rumpus between Wallace Jones' Invincibles and Danny Bauer's Insuperables, he immediately made arrangements to round up all of New England's flies and permit them past the gates on merchants' ducats. He didn't mention that a p. c. on nothing would be too much for me.

Somebody on Second

"Having performed my diamond duds stupendously, colossally and spectacularly and, in fact, with mediocrity under such distinguished sponsorship as the Public Schools Athletic League of the City of New York, which awarded me a gold medal and asked me to use same for my teeth, which need filling; having pitched against the famous Hudson Guild, which scored only 10 runs in the first inning against my super-hurling; having a paid-up union card and, finally, having on more than one occasion stolen second base whilst that keystone bag was in a state of tremendous occupation, your correspondent feels that he is being taken advantage of when he is asked to play for both sides—consecutively, not concurrently—which is very decent of the Way Down Easterners.

"Why don't they also book me for calling them behind the bat and watching the bases at the same time? These New Englanders are conservative only when they don't have baseball stars in their midst. Maybe the boys will burn up at this note, but that is much better than burning me out. Sincerely, "DIZZY HUBBELL TRAUBE."

to be in excellent condition and progressing well.

Steepchase Pier, once owned by the Tillyou interests, burned some years ago and a small Steepchase with baby rides has been created by present owners, a long fishing pier also extending far out. Don Riddle, one of the officers controlling the pier, loudly denounced the move. He took up for both piers, declaring they have greatly improved the properties and attracted national exhibits.

Riddle Hits Hotels

Mayor White said condemnation proceedings would be based upon violation of the easement and beach park deeds. "Piers give a Bowery tone to the central section of the Boardwalk," he remarked.

"The easement deed distinctly states that there shall be no business conducted on the beach, exclusive of piers now existing," said Riddle. "The beach is a public park dedicated to both masses and classes. Illegally, the hotels have roped off sections to exclude the masses from the beach and if it keeps up we will all be driven out of business. I have seen high tides force the masses from the beach when only roped off sections remained dry and they were told to 'scram.' The piers give them some amusement, some place to go. Does the mayor also want to take this away?"

watching as other customers do from playing the devices.

The older ballroom is kept lighted constantly and presents a splendid front corner for the park. This is open two nights a week, Mondays and Thursdays, at admission price of 15 cents and draws a large steady business, primarily of the younger crowd. Regular broadcasting is done these nights from the indoor ballroom, a policy in effect for the past four years.

Rainy nights have proved a sort of boon to Coconut Palms. Customers in the park, finding weather wet outside, tend to go in there and spend the evening in the night club.

Charles Rosenzweig, secretary-treasurer of Eastwood Coaster Company, operating all rides and the pool, reports business 35 to 40 per cent ahead of last year. This percentage is well in advance of business for the park as a whole. New Kiddieland and Loop-o-Plane are especially popular, as is the Pretzel, installed about middle of last season.

"People are not saving as they used to do," Rosenzweig said. "They come here for a good time and are willing to spend money for it. Decoration Day and Fourth of July were two of the biggest days in our history."

DIAMOND, O.—Craig Beach Park has purchased a Chevrolet sound truck for advertising, and Manager Art Mallory reports direct results in increased attendance, publicity before having been confined to newspapers, window cards and usual routine.

Long Island

By ALFRED FRIEDMAN

FROM ALL AROUND: With temperatures close to the century mark beaches were packed solidly on the week days of the hot spell as well as week-ends. Rockaways jumped into a record that it has been long shooting at, 1,000,000 persons for a single day. On that same day Jones Beach packed in 50,000 automobiles for parking.

An odd and enjoyable phase to concessioners was the necessity of many places, particularly refreshment spots, keeping open all night. This was done on three successive nights, something never done before in the annals of the trade locally. It makes one rub his eyes to hear of an orange drink stand selling its wares at a fast clip at 5:30 in the morning. That's exactly the type of thing that was going on. Concessioners at Rockaway and Long Beach proved that where there is a dollar to be made sleep is secondary.

Frank Buck's Jungle at Massapequa is doing a fine brand of biz these days. Rag dolls are the latest items selling on Island roadsides. Pavilion Royal and Surfside are the standout local niteries, doing huge trade, with the latter, open for the first time this year, showing the way in biz. Some talk about a pre-World's Fair event of some sort next year on the Island, and all that stands in the way presently is sanction from the World's Fair heads.

ROCKAWAY BEACH: Wreckage of the big Seaside fire remains, tho a large part of it has been removed. Mass of charred buildings right in the heart of the amusement center doesn't do much to enhance the sector. Joe Vitale contemplating a Long Beach-to-Rockaway swim as soon as sponsors put their signatures on the line. Mabelle Klein back in motion at 77th street after illness set him down. Local gang looking forward eagerly to Mincola Fair. Chamber of Commerce asking for more fire alarm boxes on the Boardwalk.

Will Oakland is star at Harbor Inn. Cops seem to be pretty lenient with ice cream and drink hawkers on beaches. Now that Allen's is no more, because of the fire, Jimmy Haunon's seems to get all the play of the cabaret crowd. The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down is far and away the most popular song for this and many seasons past. It's a cutout for the Boardwalk.

On the three-mile stretch of Boardwalk between Beach 19th and 79th streets there are four places that sell beer against 31 peddling malted milk. Most of the bathing pools came back strong during the hot spell, following slow biz during biggest part of June. Mrs. Rand and daughter, Bea, preparing victuals to hungrier Boardwalkers.

LONG BEACH: Heat spell needled biz up to a high point. Seen: Nassau District Attorney Littleton, conductor of past raids on the Walk, promenading peacefully and apparently enjoying the amusements. Bernie Welner, Ed Donner and Mitz Young seem to be doing real well at Walk concessions, working in flannel trousers, no less. Big kiddie outing, with Mayor Gold and Police Chief Kohut gulling, set for early in August.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—S. M. T. Bus System, with base in St. John and operating more passenger lines in the maritime provinces than any other, is reported to be considering establishment of an amusement park at a beach site on the Kennebecasis River, or St. John River, near St. John. St. John Motor Line, which has been merged with the S. M. T., once operated a park at Gondola Point on the Kennebecasis, 14 miles east of here, but the venture did not prove successful.

CANTON, O.—Howard Peters, Canton showman, who has toured Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania with his freak animal show and who again has the pony track in Meyers Lake Park here, reports business best in several years. He also operates two miniature rides on the park midway. He will play fairs with pony track, animal show and cook-houses.

AKRON—Recent rainy weather, particularly on July 10 and 11, caused a drop in receipts of most Northeastern Ohio parks, said Lew Platt, ballroom manager at Summit Beach Park here. Summit Beach had a good day on July 14 when 15,000 attended a picnic. Ballroom, using name bands, operates six nights weekly and is doing well.

FRANK RAFUL is manager of the rehabilitated Summit Beach Park, Akron, O., operated by a new company. He was manager of Crystal Pool in the old park three seasons and was placed in charge of the resort this season. He formerly managed a chain of theaters in Akron and vicinity and also has been in other branches of outdoor show business.

Carl's, Baltimore

By CLEM WHITE

Hot spell caused play to shift to evenings, but turnout then more than makes up for daytime slack. Conservative estimate has receipts 50 per cent better than last year. Busy Bobby Burns, of the ballroom, went to New York last week to book bands directly. Closed for Mal Hallett on August 3, closely followed by Don Bestor, Hudson-Delange, Johnny Hamp and Mike Riley, all one-nighters. Other names follow, Dan Gregory taking two weeks starting on July 21, following Louis Armstrong on July 18 and Bob Craig on July 19 and 20. Ted Brownagis returned to the ballroom with Helen Ruth, Red McCarthy and his orchestra and by popular request have been booked for a return of two weeks in August.

Congress of American Indians, Sioux and Cheyenne, under direction of Mrs. Edna Acker, popular free feature, encamped on the grounds in tepees with squaws and papooses re-enacting their lives on the plains. Long succession of features arranged, including a wedding, Indian church, Western barbecue and Feast of Green Corn. On last two spectacles patrons are invited to join in as guests of tribes. With concessioner A. C. (Slim) Anderson things always are ok. If it rains at 9 it still could have rained at 8. And J. J. Carlin, head man, is the same. On bad days he smiles but when the sky is clear you just had better hustle. Warm weather has made things bad for Norman (Popeye) Alden. It's no joke carrying water for the horses on his Carousel. And Super Carl Hulseley wants to know that it's done. Manager Cliff Neld is happy about his outings. Wheaties Days having gone well and Independent Dairies Day looks even better. Annual Home News Day looks like best ever, due to swell co-operation of Editor Harvey Rivkin.

Wonder if anyone can find the beach where Chief Cashier Rose Saunders goes these warm nights. And when does she sleep? Both questions have Joe Hanna thinking hard. Someone should ask Norma Metcalfe if she's out for the title of best dressed gal in town or whether it's just natural. No award for best announcer can be made until the committee hears Slim Porter, Sam Ford and Ray Sullivan doing a mike bally at Mountain Speedway. And what looked like a swell romance between Clarence Jacques, at the Old Mill, and the lady called Mahel is no news. They've been married for some time. Barton's Society Circus leaves here after an extended stay to appear at Mr. Carlin's Buckeye Lake (O.) Park.

Park Free Acts

BUCKEYE LAKE (O.) Park booked Rita and Dunn, high wire, on July 11-15. "We had some competition in the way of monkeys," said Dunn. "Management had a small duplicate rigging made, similar to ours, including a small platform." (See PARK FREE ACTS on page 49)

M.-D. Pier Open With New Array

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—Young's Million-Dollar Pier, open with an enlargement of last year's policy and new lineup of bands and acts, has a new bally front and tropical setting made for the lobby, with Boffi and his Filipinos returned for the second year. Additional bally is a mechanical man.

Ballroom, with side open to the ocean, has been redecorated, two band stands erected. Opening was with Ozzie Nelson on No. 1 stand and Jan Savitt on the other, followed by Johnny Hamp, Clyde McCoy and Eddy Morgan. Last named will alternate with names for rest of season. Small ballroom has been set aside for mechanical village. Fish aquariums are filled with catches from net hauls. Seal tank has been turned over to Picards' educated seal act.

A big game room has been added with Skee-Ball and coin-operated games. Hippodrome houses main vaude and picture shows. On opening bill Stepin Fetchit held top billing, Liazeed Arabs, who made such a hit two seasons ago in the circus program, took honors with a fast tumbling act. Harry Savoy handled the laugh end, with Sarge Flash stopping the show with his routine. Joyee Brothers and Dean rounded out with Maurice Swerdlow and orchestra in pit. Second week's show was Olympic Ice Carnival. A magic theater has been built where the Great Huber presides. Circus arena has Kenneth White and his clowns playing a return engagement. Dr. Bernard's Elephants and the Carlos Circus of dogs, monkeys and ponies.

Pier features free bathing lockers with special tag to go off pier for swim and return in time for attractions, only amusement structure here doing this. Pier is being operated by Harry Waxman, Hollywood Theater, for second year, assisted by Jack Waxman; C. A. Hill, general manager; Capt. John L. Young, in charge of fishing activities.

Strike Is Called Off In Paris Expo Park

PARIS, July 6.—Strike of ride operators, showmen and concession holders in the amusement parks of Paris International Exposition was called off Thursday night as result of a temporary agreement between the showmen's defense committee; the CRCC, operator of the park; exposition and government officials.

While demands of the strikers for abolishing a separate gate charge to the amusement parks of the exposition and transfer of these two parks to the exposition committee were not definitely granted, strikers were promised that an effort would be made to find a satisfactory solution. Showmen are not satisfied but have resumed operation until the CRCC, exposition committee and government representatives have had an opportunity to seek a compromise.

Threats of further trouble loomed on Saturday when the CRCC tried out charging admission to the Old France section of the principal amusement park, but the attempt was abandoned when restaurant and cafe operators in the section threatened to close their establishments.

Even with a free gate it is doubtful that a large proportion of the showmen will find reason for optimism, as the layout of the park is such that certain sections are almost entirely overlooked by visitors, even when the park draws fair crowds.

New rides and shows opening during the week were Enchanted River, a de luxe Caterpillar and a Magic Palace with Gill Gill. Due to the strike and failure to properly advertise reopening of the parks business was light over the week-end.

The third amusement park at the exposition, Centre Parisien, is open. It is a small one outside but adjoining the expo grounds. Attractions are two Auto Speedways, Pretzel, motorcycle wall and numerous stands and concessions.

CINCINNATI.—Fireworks were given at Coney Island Saturday night in connection with outings sponsored by Oola Khan Grotto, employees' organizations of Norfolk & Western Railroad, Crosley Radio Corporation and Airtempes Corporation, Dayton, O. Rose's Parisian Midget Revue is a popular attraction on the Mall. Nine performers are featured in song and dance revues which change weekly.

Chi Riverview

Concessioners have given up trying to guess what crowds will do for amusement when they hit this spot. Some nights customers are strictly ride conscious and keep the ride runways jammed while the boys in the stands sit on their hands. On other nights the reverse is true and concessioners reap a harvest. When it's all added up at the end of the week, tho, everyone has received a generous slice. It takes more than rain to discourage the duet buyers, too. On July 13 after intermittent showers all day people streamed into the park and played hide and seek under the tarpaulins until midnight, trying to keep as dry as possible. Biz is still up way over last season.

Mrs. Marie Slaughter in town from Marshalltown, Ia., visiting Lillian Robinson, who is showing her the hot spots before she returns to take up the post of checker on Li's corn game at Marshalltown Fair.

Daley L. Vaughn, talker on the drome, is building concessions for Southern fair dates and is trailer shopping. Al Berman returned last week from the land of tortillas and Bosavvy to take up his old post at Henry Belden's shooting gallery. Says he's really a beginner, as this is only his 15th year there.

Henry Rolff finished celebrating another birthday and can still ring the bell harder than most of his customers. Roster on Thomson's new monster and rep show includes Otis Loyd, curator and lecturer; Bert Lyon, front, and Eunice Lyon and Ginger Loyd, handling the big reps.

This department received a beef from Capt. C. Sorenson, who didn't like that second "o" we had in his name last week, so we stand corrected. Kids of the freckled species will get a break this week with free admish and a chance to enter a contest to crown a prince and princess of the specs.

Ops at Santa Cruz Foresee Big Season

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., July 17.—With the summer season the Boardwalk is doing one of the most prosperous businesses in many years. Decoration Day started things in real earnest and with the passing of July 4 concessioners see a very good season ahead. D. E. Clipperty, who operates the Midget Speedway and probably one of the most successful operators of this type of ride, feels well repaid for work he did on his ride during the past winter. With cars repainted, track overhauled and changed in many respects and with a crew that is entirely familiar with this ride, Clip expects a year far in excess of those of the past two seasons. Charles Clipperty and David Downing, mechanics, and Operators Donald Anderson, Gene Liston, Francis Liston, Jack Connor, Donald Singer and Collector Floyd Saunders comprise the personnel. Clip operates 15 cars.

Drive-a-Boat, operated and owned by Don Sinkinson and probably the only one of this type in operation, is doing fine business so far this season. The boats are of multi-colors and he has worked hard to make an outstanding novelty ride. With assistance of Bill Heidloff, Lefty Webster and Capt. Vic Beck, he should top all rides on the beach.

Henry Okuno has a new store, his flash the most varied on the walk. Jim Conner has added another fine shooting gallery this season. He has been on the Boardwalk many years and has a large clientele. Jimmie Dominic still features his eat and cane rack and, from looks of business, should make some real money this season. He is one of the oldtimers on the walk.

Bill Heidloff and Archie Gerle have opened a gold-fish pond at lower end of the walk, a new venture. With Mrs. Homer Barker in charge this should prove an outstanding concession, since nothing new has been added to the beach for the past few seasons in the way of such business. Charlie Fitzsimmons, owner of the balloon game and cat game, has opened a basket ball court, a new attraction. Altho this has been operated before in many places, he has incorporated many new ideas. He is an oldtimer at this business and with his three games should surely go to town this year.

Gus Paturel has been doing well with his doll rack. Another oldtimer, he brought to the walk the first E. B. doll rack, an original idea of his. He has a varied assortment of prizes and (See OPS AT SANTA CRUZ on page 49)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead (Dem., Ala.) this week appointed as members of the United States New York World's Fair Commission Representatives Sam D. McReynolds (Dem., Tenn.) and Matthew J. Merritt (Dem., N. Y.). The speaker announced that he would appoint a Republican member later.

Representative Clarence F. Lea, (Dem.), Frank R. Havenner (Prog.) and Richard J. Welch (Rep.), all of California, were appointed by the speaker to be members of the U. S. Golden Gate Exposition (San Francisco) Commission.

Commissioners are to supervise spending of federal moneys and to handle governmental participation in the expositions.

Weather Hits Gate at Fiesta

Showers bring a slump and concession biz is off—Fridays are kids' days

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 17.—Attendance at Frontier Fiesta slumped during the past week because of showers and cloudy weather. Business for the few concessions has never been outstanding this year, as almost everyone comes for the shows only.

Calgary Brothers, signed for Casa Manana Revue, and who were dropped after the first week when length of the show was cut, are here and still drawing pay, it is said. After leaving Casa Revue, the brothers refused to go into Pioneer (See WEATHER HITS on page 46)

Badger Stand Is Dedicated

WEST ALLIS, Wis., July 17.—New $100,000 State Fair Park grand stand was formally dedicated on July 9, with Ralph E. Ammon, manager of the State fair, accepting the stand from the WPA, Maj. George H. Boyer, WPA district director, making the presentation. Theodore Dammann, secretary of state, outlined the purpose of the State fair. About 4,000 people watched the program, which included ground and aerial fireworks displays. Stand now seats about 15,000.

Trade Exhibit for Toronto

TORONTO, July 17.—Old transportation building at Canadian National Exhibition will be remodeled by the British government in co-operation with manufacturers and a substantial sum will be spent in transforming it. Display will be a general exhibition of British-manufactured goods. Captain Wallace, parliamentary undersecretary to the board of trade, said the government would participate in the exhibition this jubilee year on a scale "adequate to the occasion."

Sloan-Boyles Memorial Services Held in Atlanta

ATLANTA, July 17.—Joint memorial exercises were held here on Sunday, July 11, for J. Alex Sloan, auto races promoter, who died last spring, and the late Wayman Boyles, former advance man for Lucky Teter, both of whom had been connected with Lakewood Park and Southeastern Fair for many years.

Memorial markers were placed on each side of the race track to form a perpetual starting line for races. John A. Sloan, son of "Alex," was promoter of the July 4 and July 11 IMCA auto races here.

A tribute was given over the loudspeaker by Mike Benton, president of Southeastern Fair. Race drivers, officials and members of the American Legion Post stood at attention after a girl bugler played taps. Beautiful floral wreaths were placed on each marker.

OKLA. OUTLOOK BIG

Greatest Crop Prospects in Six Years Pep Show and Fair Field

In preparation for $2,000,000 plant, State annual enlarges departments and adds premiums—Manager Hemphill reports demand for space for exhibits and concessions

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 17.—With a golden wheat flood of more than 62,000,000 bushels, largest crop in six years, putting more than that many dollars into Oklahoma trade channels and best corn crop forecast since 1932, prospects for fairs and other outdoor shows in the State are best since 1929. Other farm products and live stock reflect in direct proportion to wheat, corn and cotton to forecast Oklahoma's spending power and success at county and State fairs. It is reported by federal statisticians here that total income from farms, ranches and oil will exceed the 1936 total of $444,000,000 by January 1.

Comeback on in Wayercross

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 17.—After a lapse of seven years Ware County Fair will be resumed here this year. There are county-wide activities with 17 communities arranging for space, and with a live-stock show as one of chief attractions. Gordon Nesmith, county agent, and Miss Annie Mae Ooss, home demonstration agent, will have charge of exhibits, and F. Paisley Davis will manage the fair. Brown Novelty Shows have been contracted.

More Bulls

DES MOINES, July 17.—Iowa State Fair is planning an exhibition bullfight which will not be like its last one. The way the news bureau tells it, which is practically the same way it was told for the 1933 fair, "this exhibition bullfight will be a new thriller on the State Fair rodeo program." This time will be entirely different, bureau says, because the fair will not have an un-Spanish cowboy clown but a noted torador. It is to be hoped the bulls will show a little more enthusiasm than they did four years ago. After that exhibition spectators are reported to have felt that the bulls had been cheated out of the Nobel peace prize. The 1933 exhibition, officials agree, was "toned down" somewhat because of protests by Iowa Humane Society and other organizations, attitude of which has not yet been expressed on 1937 plans.

Paint, Palms Cover U. S. Paris Pavilion

PARIS, July 12.—Official inauguration of the United States Building at Paris International Exposition on July 4 was mostly symbolical, as the pavilion was not yet completed. However, in spite of it being necessary to round up a volunteer crew of paintbrush swingers, who daubed the walls all Saturday night, the building presented a completed aspect on Sunday and absence of exhibits was (See PAINT, PALMS on page 46)

Lincoln, Ill., Plant Ready

LINCOLN, Ill., July 17.—For the newly organized Logan County Fair here race track has been completed and grand stand and other buildings are up, reported L. B. Shroyer. About $10,000 has been raised and $12,000 in premiums will be awarded. Fair will open with Farm Bureau picnic and 4-H Club stock show will be held in conjunction. Sidney Belmont will furnish free acts. Layout for auto show and merchants' exhibit has been entirely sold out.

New Buildings for Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 17.—Construction of two exhibit buildings for the Exchange Club at its new fairgrounds at Third and Hale streets, old ball park, got under way on July 12. They will cost about $2,200, built from salvaged material of the old fair building at East Boundary.

FIRST OFFICIAL VIEW of Golden Gate International Exposition Island, San Francisco, as it will appear in 1939. View from shore of Yerba Buena Island, looking north.

In the midst of a campaign to get a new $2,000,000 plant by 1939, Oklahoma State Fair here has enlarged its live-stock program and added parish stock shows for dairy cattle in the State to stimulate showing by small exhibitors for its 51st annual this year.

State Fair has added breeding classes in live stock to its junior department and a class for milking shorthorns in adult stock department. Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce is adding $2,500 to dairy money, of which $800 is to be used for parish shows to send selected herds to the fair and the other $1,700 added to the fair's dairy premiums. In most stock classes premiums beyond fifth place are on State-owned stock only.

Secretary-Manager Ralph T. Hemphill reports more than half of the 40,000 square feet of the commercial exhibit building and about 60 per cent of ground space already under contract. Progress is being made on a Dairy Products Show to be held in the 23,000-foot building formerly used for transportation show on north end of the midway.

Beckmann & Gerety's Shows will be on the midway, with Barnes-Carruthers' The Star Brigade the night show and Theoric-Duffield fireworks. Fair will put on its own championship rodeo on six afternoons and IMCA races of John A. Sloan will go on the other two afternoons.

Ohio Board Given Scolding

LEBANON, O., July 17.—Charged with the "improper and illegal" use of funds and with laxity in conduct of its business, Warren County Agricultural Society was scolded in a report to State Auditor Joseph Tracey by State Examiner George Taylor, Wapakoneta. The report stated that affairs of the board had been conducted in a most "unbusinesslike manner" and that both the former secretary, Heber D. Williams, who resigned some time ago, and Treasurer Z. O. Worley had intrusted their duties to A. H. Turner, who recently resigned as a member of the board.

Hallock, Minn., Has Best

HALLOCK, Minn., July 17.—The 1937 Kittson County Fair on the improved grounds here was best in county history, attendance records being broken with a daily average of 10,000 for the three days, said Secretary D. J. Larson. New grand stand had 3,500 each night. All space in the exhibition buildings was taken. Farmers spent money freely at shows and concessions. One of the features was dedication of the grand stand by Governor Benson of Minnesota. Among acts were Six Avalons, Baker and Evans, Lorraine Wallace, Spirals and Lew Rosenthal Revue with changed program nightly. Dee Lang Shows were on the midway. A public wedding was closing feature.

ST. PAUL.—Gladys M. Williams has returned from Portage La Prairie (Man.) Fair, where one of the grand-stand shows, being supplied by William & Lee for the Class B circuit, was reviewed. Among acts are Great Morris Troupe, Aerial La-Zella, Chilcott's Novelty; Lightning Duo, roller skaters, and Sparklette Revue.

Closing of Rio Rumor Denied

Talent is contracted for added editions of show—
Black Forest boosts ice

DALLAS, July 17.—Road to Rio will not fold and Manager Walter Herzog has gone ahead contracting for talent for the third and fourth editions of his outdoor stage show, Kent Watson, spokesman, declared during Herzog's absence on a visit to Houston. Watson's statement was made to put an end to rumors that the largest village of Pan-American Exposition is due to close because of lack of funds. "We are not contemplating closing," said Watson.

Opening next Friday evening the third edition will be a tribute to the late George Gershwin. It was announced by Alexander Oumansky, producer. Rhapsody in Blue, played by Jack Crawford's Orchestra, will be theme for the most spectacular and lavish ballet number of the edition. Joaquin Garay, tenor, will be retained as leading singer.

Main talent shift on the grounds came last week when Jack Arthur, a star of Pan-American Casino, went to Black Forest for a nightly concert between the ice-skating shows and ice dancing.

Foley Resigns Post

Black Forest management has begun extensive exploitation of ice dancing as a novel recreation and has made each Wednesday amateur night on the rink. By registering at the box office customers may take part in ice-skating contests, management furnishing skates.

Ray A. Foley, director of participation, resigned his position to re-enter the engineering profession, in a letter received on Tuesday by Director General Frank McNeny. Key man on exhibits and concessions this year, Foley was engineer in charge of construction of the $12,000,000 plant of Texas Centennial. He was one of the first department heads retained by the Centennial organization, and has made many friends in all branches of show business. Mr. Foley's office will remain unfilled, McNeny said.

Previews of a 1,000-foot new reel, first films of the fair to be prepared for general distribution, were conducted during the week and officials heartily approved. Cavalcade of the Americas is featured, but all other chief attractions are given space in the film.

Spending Crowds Help

Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of the postmaster-general; Lewis Johnson, assistant secretary of war; Karl Crowley, solicitor-general of post office department; Robert Thatch, vice-president and general counsel of Pan-American Airways; Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian ambassador, and Souza Costa, Brazilian minister of finance, led the parade of dignitaries who arrived on Thursday to take part in opening of the Pan-American Games, promoted by George P. Marshall, director of entertainment.

Colorful ceremonies were staged at opening of the games, scheduled to be concluded on Monday. All games and field events are being held in the Cotton Bowl. Admission to the games is free, with 4,000 reserved seats on sale at $1 and 92.

Concessioners were highly pleased when they found that last Tuesday was the second best Children's Day to date. Gate was especially large at the Ripley Believe-It-or-Not show, where Manager J. Ed Brown had his largest kids' attendance of the season.

Good spending crowds helped to keep the midway cheery during the almost continuous rains of last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. About 300 excursionists aboard a special train from Arkansas spent Saturday and Sunday on the Magnolia Petroleum Company brought a special train of its employees from Beaumont on Saturday, but will stage its regular special day later in the season.

Gainesville Circus a Hit

Rain hurt Friday and Saturday night attendances at performances of Gainesville Community Circus in the Live Stock Arena. Innovations this season in the famous amateur circus include an International Pageant opening and improvements in the aerial and bareback riding acts. Wire-walking acts are also especially good this year.

Dallas engagement opened night of July 9, when C. V. Terrell, chairman of the Texas State railroad commission, blew the whistle opening the show. Performance was presented in five rings, and was cut to one hour and 15 minutes. An added attraction were Power's Elephants. Newspapers were so enthusiastic in their reviews and showmen praised the Gainesville show to the extent that one Dallas promoter proposed negotiations for a Madison Squares Garden engagement in New York for the only amateur circus actant.

Returning to Gainesville on July 12, equipment was set up in the open air for a newsreel photographer to complete shots desired for his film. The show moves next to Ardmore, Okla., where it will open the Golden Jubilee Celebration of that city with two performances on July 23 and 24. Contract has been signed for appearance of the show at East Texas Fair, Tyler, in September for four performances, longest out-of-town engagement of the circus in its eight years' history.

De Pere-Green Bay Act Platform Has First Show

DE PERE, Wis., July 17.—New $7,800 free attraction platform on Brown County Fair grounds was dedicated on July 4 and 5 during an American Legion Post Celebration, when a record crowd witnessed free attractions, horse and midget auto races and a midway of independent rides and shows.

Acts included La Blonde Troupe, Cycling Kirks, Leo Demers, Matsumoto Japs and Venetian Trio, and, said Clarence E. Riley, secretary, were a credit to the occasion. Elmer Bodart's rides were on the midway. Mr. Riley attributed success of the celebration to reduced admissions, adults being charged 25 cents while autos and children were free at gates, with 5 cents for children in the grand stand. Platform is 100 by 50 feet, surface of soft planking over an asphalt roof.

Concrete section with dressing rooms, comfort stations and scenery rooms provides facilities for 10 troupes and there is a large dressing room for choruses. All electrical controls are in a booth at top of the grand stand. Plan calls for installation of shower baths for performers. Exit from dressing rooms is provided at the rear with an inclined runway leading to the stage.

MONCTON, N. B.—Ronald McBeath, Moncton, has been appointed manager of 1937 Moncton Fair. Elected as executives are A. S. Gunn, president; R. H. Bannon, vice-president; George F. Fillion, treasurer; H. D. Lockhart, secretary.

W. HORACE JOHNSTON, secretary of Columbia County Fair, Portage, Wis., is opposed to plans for a free gate this year. Having been in charge of the firemen's Fourth of July Celebration on the grounds with a free gate and big crowds which did not patronize the grandstand enough to make a financial success, he declares that the 1937 fair should have a pay gate. Because of public demand, a grand-stand revenue will replace horse racing.

Texas Annual Is Enlarged To Comprise 10 Counties

GRAHAM, Tex., July 17.—Young County Fair, which has operated here 14 years as a one-county exposition, has been changed to a district proposition to serve 10 counties and name has been changed to North Central District Fair of Texas, to include Young, Archer, Wichita, Clay, Wise, Jack, Palo Pinto, Stephens, Throckmorton and Baylor counties.

County and home demonstration agents in all these counties are arranging for their club members to exhibit at the district fair. General exhibit departments have all been expanded to properly care for the expansion program in effect this season.

The plant has been enlarged from one building four years ago to 11 exhibit buildings. Full entertainment program has not yet been completed. One feature will be a one-act play contest. Officers are G. O. Cozart, president; D. F. Ford, A. B. Eddleman, vice-presidents; James G. Staples, treasurer; J. C. Watson, manager.

Profits Into Albion Plant

ALBION, N. Y., July 17.—After a period of deficits and having made profits the past four years, Orleans County Fair board, President Earl Strickland, Vice-President Glen P. Clark, Treasurer James H. Ryan and Secretary Wilbur W. Mull, has been building up track and buildings. This season the floral hall is being reroofed and main entrance and fences are being repainted. Strates Shows have been booked for the fourth year and Milt Hinkle's Texas Rangers Rodeo will be a night free attraction. Horse racing will be given daily, horse-pulling contests on Friday and Saturday and fireworks Saturday night.

WEATHER HITS

Palace Revue and there the matter stands.

Highlight of the week was the program broadcast from the new Gulf Radio studio, which was Paul Whiteman's part of the nation-wide broadcast on NBC of a memorial to George Gershwin, who died the day before the broadcast. Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue was featured on Whiteman's part of the program, with old and new hits of the late composer.

Candid Camera Awards

Fridays have been designated by Manager James F. Pollock as children's days, same as last year. Children, between 5 and 12, if accompanied by an adult, are admitted to grounds for 10 cents. Kids' admission is 25 cents at other times. Those under 5 are admitted free.

Each Monday night is to be Candid Camera Night at the second show at Casa Manana. A contest will be held weekly and prize awarded for best shots of show. Boyce House, publicity director, is to judge pictures.

A new ticket booth in front of the Melody Lane show should aid business, as former built-in ticket windows were hard to find. New entrances also are being used. This building, which housed Jumbo last summer, has always been the hardest building to get into and it has always trailed other shows in attendance. Only midnight show now is at Pioneer Palace.

Cafe Task Is Big

Edward J. Moriarty is manager of all catering interests for National Hotel Management Corporation, with this staff: John J. Tucker, manager of Pioneer Palace; Albert Vance, assistant; Edward Babcock, manager catering in Pirefly Garden; Tom Moore, at Pioneer Palace last year, managing Chuck Wagon; Nino Bagnani, maitre d'hotel, Casa Manana; Egmi Belli, chief wine steward; Andrew Kitcher, head chef; Jack Aronson, manager of package store adjoining Casa Manana; Emma Lesater, secretary; J. O. Cornette, auditor.

Probably the biggest cafe task in the country is handled by this company at Casa Manana. Table service is provided for more than 3,000 at the cafe-theater. More than 200 are used in kitchens, including 70 cooks. Casa Manana receipts this year are said to be about one-third less than they were last year because of the ban on mixed drinks enforced by State liquor agents. Last year all spots made neat profit on drinks as well as on food.

Turf Catering Company, which has cat and drink stands, as well as watermelon garden, Iceland and beer garden, has contributed much to the midway, not only in attractive stands but in entertainment for customers. Manager W. B. (Bill) Wolkin has provided. Beer garden across from thrill show offers playing and singing by cowboy entertainers, Bill, Bob and Don Beeman. Small dance floor has been installed in the Turf's Watermelon Garden across from Melody Lane and a five-piece Negro orchestra plays for free dancing. Ethel LaGrande has been giving her trick rope act here. George Hart is manager here for Turf Company. Attractive girls in Mexican costumes attending drink stands and selling show programs are in charge of Matt Graham.

Princess Yvonne Arrives

Galen Gough's contract with the Fiesta has been canceled by mutual consent, he having been out of the thrill show a week, after he was injured by truck used in the strong act. This left the thrill show with five acts. Princess Yvonne, mentalist, and her husband, Doc M. Irving, came into the Fiesta on July 11 for an indefinite stay.

J. R. Wilkinson is with Jimmy Gavett's photo shop. Noel Rosen is now stationed at the old-fashioned photo gallery on Sunset Trail. Frank Hill, who assisted Gene Berry at guinea-weight scales last year, is assisting Ben Himmelstein, Murray Goldberg's scale man, this year. Ed Konetchy is backstage manager at Melody Lane. William Glen Johnson, brother of Albert Johnson, designer of the show, also is with Melody Lane.

covered up by profusion of palms and flowers.

Among notables at the Inauguration were Ambassador Bullitt, General Pershing; Edmond Labbe, head of the exposition; Thomas J. Watson, commissioner general of the United States; members of the American colony and French officials. A French military band and a detachment of Republican Guards in dress uniforms enlivened the ceremony.

Despite the military band and free champagne at the United States Building attendance at the exposition on Sunday was only 184,145, as compared with 263,000 on the preceding Sunday. Many competing events were held largely responsible for the slump. Construction is advancing, with grounds and buildings approaching completion. All sections of the exposition are now open to the public with only a few gaps remaining to be filled.

STATESVILLE, N. C.—Iredell County Agricultural Fair, Inc., here has received a charter from the secretary of state. Authorized capitalization is $100,000 and incorporators are given as Hugh G. Mitchell, C. O. Hadley and S. H. Houston, all of Statesville.

Fair Breaks

By CLAUDE R. ELLIS

LIKE the federal tariff and prohibition, the free-gate question has about proved itself to be a local issue. That is, unless a board, determined to establish a free fair regardless, is willing to spend several years in its buildup and developing the other sources of revenue which must make up for missing gate receipts. Once a free fair gets 'em coming in big numbers, concessioners and exhibitors can not object to a jacking up of space rates if the business is there. How true it is that some fairs are cheaper at $20 a foot than others at $5! And free fairs that have big parking space get thousands of cars at a quarter apiece. Like Anderson, Ind. There are some towns that are just naturally free-gate spots. Just as in the days before carnivals had all put on gates there were "gate towns," where the public almost insisted on paying to enter a still-date midway. Like Duluth, Minn. Two fair boards in Wisconsin have just decided that a free fair is not for them. In Portage and Platteville they sponsored Fourth of July celebrations on their grounds with free gates, as an experiment looking to lifting of the gate charge at the fall fairs. The folks came out in great numbers. It seems, but didn't give the pay grand stand a tumble. Just kept coming in and going out and spent nothing except the afternoon and evening. This has thrown a chill into the free-fair advocates. But whether it was a reliable test is something else again.

WHY, O WHY, do so many in outdoor show business have to be such dumb scholars? But some are not. The teachers (Mr. and Mrs. Public) are rapidly and rightfully moving these to the head of the class.

DON'T look now, but that distinguished appearing gentleman who came down the gangplank is Maurice W. Jencks, president of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions and manager of Kansas Free Fair, Topeka, back from a trip to Europe. He'll have something interesting to say, too, you may be sure.

SO THE Ohio boys can't take it—or can they? For a couple of years they have been belly-aching about the quarter gate at the State Fair, put on in 1932. Seems most of them go for 35 and 50 cents and hollered that many of their prospective patrons were passing up their county shows, preferring the big two-bit annual in Columbus. Midsummer conference of Ohio Fair Managers' Association recruited that the State Fair gate should be hoisted to 50 cents for adults. And that was done by the State board on July 12. It is probable there will be a couple of 25-cent days, tho. So results on attendance of the gate tilt will be watched with interest. And also, no doubt, by concessioners, exhibitors and Mr. Gooding, who has the rides. If the four-bit fee helps the county fairs, will it also be an asset to the big one?

IT HAS been commented that it is easy enough to sit in offices and find fault—that some critics do not ever go on the road. But it also must be remembered that those on the road generally move too quickly to get real reaction on their methods and conduct. This often comes later to those who have troupeurs' interests at heart and are alert to defend them while they are going on, making the same old mistakes.

THEY used to tell of a big-hearted fair manager who at times became especially convivial and during those periods he hired so many free acts that he had trouble placing them when they all showed up. So some of his friends were only mildly startled when they noted that a capable and personable feminine whistling soloist was working down in the sheep sheds!

W. R. (BILL) HIRSCH, secretary of Louisiana State Fair, and J. W. BATEMAN, agricultural extensionist, of the State University, prepared essays for publication in newspapers all over the commonwealth hallyhooping the coming State fair. . . . DR. L. B. WOLFE, secretary of Harrison County Fair, Corydon, Ind., 15 years, says that annual hasn't missed a year in the 78 since its incorporation and never failed to pay a premium. . . . That was RAYMOND A. LEE, secretary, with a hammer and saw in the throes of that big building program on Minnesota State Fairgrounds.

HARRY KAHN, hustling pilot of Auglaize County Fair, Wapakoneta, O., is nothing if not versatile. Latest stunt is at the mike for Ohio circuit of horse-pulling contests. What has become of the old-fashioned fair see who wore a rosette official badge as big as a dinner plate? . . . And the one who liked to ride about the grounds, especially in front of the grand stand, on a swabbacked horse, his annual equestrian stunt? . . . Secretary R. F. (BOB) BUCKLEY, Bid Axe, Mich., and Secretary JULIUS CAHN, Luxemburg, Wis., like to get tired enough during their annuals to need a Florida vacation.

Add Ground in Gordon, Neb.

GORDON, Neb., July 17.—For the 1937 Sheridan County Fair here a new floral hall is under construction. Grounds are being enlarged and improved. Association has just completed a deal in which it acquired about four acres adjoining the present site which will help relieve congestion on grounds. Lots of enthusiasm is being shown, reported Secretary F. B. Pitch.

Grand-Stand Shows

UPPER Peninsula State Fair, Escanaba, Mich., will have Barnes-Carruthers' World on Parade revue, harness and running races and a world's championship log-rolling tournament.

IRTA AND DUNN, high wire, with elephant stunt; Christy Duo, rolling globe and juggling; Dyer and Moore, comedy rings, and Fearless Tommy, high trapeze, were at Boswell (Ind.) Fair on July 3-5.

IN ADDITION to other large Virginia Fairs, Smith's Superba Band has been booked for Staunton (Va.) Fair, reports Manager Hugh M. Smith.

JE RANCH Rodeo, Jimmy Eskew directing, will play New York State Fair, Syracuse, this year for the George A. Hamid office, and not Milt Hinkle's rodeo unit, as stated in a previous issue of The Billboard. Eskew has been re-engaged by Hamid to furnish entertainment in front of the grand stand largely because of the popularity of the unit enjoyed at the fair last year.

ADDITIONAL fairs recently contracted by Neeld's Concert Band are those in Kearney, Neb.; Duquoin, Ill.; Charleston, Ill., and Ithaca, Mich., reports Conductor James Neeld.

FOUR units, produced by Henry H. Lueders' United Booking Association, will play fairs in Fowlerville, Mich.; Wayne, Mount Pleasant Gas and Oil Exposition, Yale and Standish, Mich.; Portman, Ind.; Corunna, Bax Axe and Ludington, Mich.;

Nevins on Hamid Staff for Trenton

NEW YORK, July 17.—Bert Nevins, publicity director of Palaades Amusement (N. J.) Park and of other amusement and commercial enterprises in New York and the East, came out of a huddle with George A. Hamid this week with a contract to assist in publicity handling of New Jersey State Fair, Trenton, of which Mr. Hamid is director for the second consecutive year.

Nevins, who will work with Leonard Traube, publicity and advertising manager of the Hamid enterprises, will concentrate on stunts, tieups and general exploitation. He will start his campaign early next week, beginning work on a number of tieups on a Golden Jubilee theme. Fair is celebrating its 80th anniversary this year, having been inception in 1858. Traube will work out of New York on general publicity and national space.

Ed Connelly, press adviser to Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, who will be third member of Trenton's publicity staff, will supervise local publicity and tieups and assist Resident Manager Harry E. LaFroque in receiving newspaper men, cameramen, etc. All three, with another, whose name has not as yet been revealed, will be in attendance on the grounds during fair week. Several tieups with New Jersey and New York department stores are being worked out and the Pennsylvania Railroad, which runs into Trenton and maintains spur rights to the fairgrounds, is being approached to move its historical coach and sleeper exhibit, currently at Penn station, to the grounds for the Jubilee theme.

Delphos and Wapakoneta, O.; Groswell, Marne, Traverse City, Ann Arbor and Cadillac, Mich.; Montpelier, O.; Imlay City, Mich., and Paulding, O. Several other dates are reported practically closed. Two large units are Rhythm in Moonlight and Cavalcade of Stars. The two smaller units are Fads and Follies of 1937 and Parisian Revelers. Acts signed include Rose Sisters, Harmony Niser, Dubell's Pets, Armstrong, Jimmie and Carlie Hughes' Dogs; Allen, Linda and Aileen; George Gook's Funny Ford, Sam and Jennie, Adja Baba and Company, Rochelle Trio and Bert Nagle and Girls.

Great Lakes Exposition

CLEVELAND

By HARLOWE R. HOYT, The Cleveland Plain Dealer

Gate Upturn Has Started

Attendance better as rain lays off—special midway tickets are put on sale

CLEVELAND, July 17.—With attendance of 183,043 for seven days, Great Lakes Exposition begins to feel that the tide is starting to turn, particularly since rain has been less frequent and only two cloud-bursts have been unloosed to soak everything in sight. July 10 saw attendance of 45,058, second best Saturday of the season, being exceeded only by opening day, May 29, with 59,092. Sunday came thru with 43,161 and Monday added 20,624, third best Monday of the season, being beaten by the first Monday, May 31, and Monday, July 5, when the holiday crowd was rampant. Concessioners are beginning to feel more optimistic. Week-ends are bringing business, the week days are not so hot. In another week, expo heads are convinced, business will have assumed a more healthy complexion.

One of the efforts to build admissions along the midway and Streets of the World is a special midway ticket selling for $1 with a value of $2.65. Admissions are good for 13 of 24 attractions. Special ticket hoots have been placed near the overhead bridge and I. B. McCoy and Al Ross delegated to handle sales.

Given Military Touch

Another buildup is in Streets of the World, where special attention is being devoted to the vaudeville performance in the International Circle. Current bill has Phil and Dottie, novelty act; Bob White, Whistling Doughboy; Ballard and Rae, knockabout turn; Jack and Jay, xylophones and bells, and Bulson and Tamara, comedy ballroom knockabout turn. Coming next is another lineup of variety headed by the Alexanders, ball bouncers; Nikolas and Sylvia, adagio dancers; Malania, gypsy turn; Tom and Verne Cowan, knockabout novelty act; Malania, contortionist, and Belmont Brothers, hoop rollers. Johnny Gower and his band continue to furnish music for main gate bally and vaude which follows.

A touch of the military was given on Tuesday when Major General William E. Cole, commanding the Fifth Corps Area, U. S. A., came to inspect Company C, 11th U. S. Infantry, from Fort Benjamin Harrison, detailed at the expo for the summer. General Cole arrived with his aid, Capt. Foxhall Sturman, of the Coast Artillery Corps. He was received by Lincoln G. Dickey, general manager of the exposition; Associate Directors Peg Willin Humphrey and Almon R. Shaffer. Capt. Don Riley and Lieuts. Thomas Clifford and Curtis Herriek. Monday night General Cole was entertained by officials and officers at Billy Rose's Aquacade. Tuesday noon he was luncheon guest of Dr. Nicola Cerri, United States commissioner general at the exposition, in Santa Lucia Cafe in Streets of the World, where an Italian meal was served. Well known in the show world, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Bie came to spend a month looking over the exposition. They were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Shean on their first night, being given a view of the exposition in general. They were guests of Hargrave & Reichert at a performance of The Drunkard and afterwards were taken to the Pioneer Palace to view the Billy Rose show.

Pirchner Has New Show

Saturday's crowd was undoubtedly built by appearance of James Melton, Tom Howard and George Shelton, Jane Pickens, May Robson and Jenn Muir. Melton arrived Saturday noon and made a tour of principal streets, accompanied by Associate Director Peg Willin Humphrey. He brought an automobile of 1910 vintage, painted a fiery red, with which he paraded thru Cleveland. Radio gang came to present the Scallest Sunday House program at Sherwin-Williams' Radioland Sunday afternoon. Attendance was further boosted that day by between 17,000 and 20,000 Goodyear employees and families. Executives of the company were guests at Recess Club and at Aquacade. General Manager Dickey bestowed a gold medal for distinguished service on Paul W. Litchfield, of the Goodyear Company.

Monday drew more than 500 youngsters when Cuyahoga County 4-H Clubs came. Forty-five clubs were represented and were ushered thru grounds under direction of Gabriel Simon, 4-H Club agent, and his assistant, Miss Edna Weston. It was Children's Day as well, with youngsters under 12 years of age being admitted at a 5-cent rate and with special events staged to entertain them. Foremost of these was a figure skating contest for boys up to 12 and for those from 12 to 14, with similar classes for girls, held at Winterland, with Evelyn Chandler, husband Bruce Mapes, Walter Arian and Frances Johnson as judges.

Herman Pirchner inaugurated a new show on his Show Boat, with a line of yeomanettes and a new assortment of acts. Holly Leslie and Jack LaMont add some salty touches for fresh-water sailing with a series of blackouts with chorines doing hornpipes between. Mildred Smith is an operatic coloratura. Fanchon and Fanchon, father and daughter, offer an acrobatic novelty. Bromley House, of WTAM, adds a pleasing baritone and furnishes comedy with LaMont and Holly. L. Nazar Kurkjdle furnishes music.

City Delegations Coming

Preparations are on for reception of Postmaster-General James A. Farley, who arrives on July 25 to participate in celebration of Post Office Day. Special events planned by Elwood T. Bailey, director of special days, include appearance of Cleveland's famous Letter Carriers' Band. A delegation of Cleveland and Ohio congressmen, headed by United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, will participate.

On successive Sundays, starting on August 8, delegations from Detroit, Chicago and Pittsburgh, headed by their mayors, will come for special days. On Wednesday 180 orphans from Akron were brought as guests of "Tarzan" Weismuller and Eleanor Holm Jarrett at the 3:30 performance of Billy Rose's Aquacade. Transportation and lunch boxes were furnished by Sam Real, manager of the Olmsted Hotel, who the week before did the same for 400 orphans and cripples from Cleveland Institutions. Residents of Willard, Norwalk and Tiffin also observed the day as their own.

Another publicity stunt has been started thru a hookup with WHK-WJAY. Program Director John T. Vorpe and Mendel Jones arranged with Floyd Zimmerman for a series of swimming lessons by microphones. Zimmerman, who helped drill the crack swimming chorus at the Aquacade, will do the broadcasting. Shep Fields and his band come for a stay of four days, starting on Monday. On July 23 Roger Pryor brings his band for a fortnight's stay.

Ross Has Detroit Program

DETROIT, July 17.—Response of exhibitors and entertainment features of merit from the entire State to the announced new management policy, under direction of Frank N. Isbey, has been gratifying, it is announced. Every major industry in the State and many public service utilities will be represented by exhibits. Dr. Galen Starr Ross, educational director, announced appointment of a good-will educational committee of national prominence. Committee will meet each week under chairmanship of Dr. J. S. Thomas, president, Chrysler Engineering Institute. Major events will be a Patriotic Sunday and Labor Day program, International Day and Inter-City Civic Day Luncheon. Outstanding educational feature will be a State-wide high-school oratorical forum for seniors of the next school year. The two grand prizes will be one $500 scholarship for grand champion girl and the same for grand champion boy high-school orator. Musical and entertainment organizations will appear daily in the new shell band stand.

Lakewood Auto Races Draw

ATLANTA, July 17.—On July 11 John A. Sloan presented a postponed IMCA auto race program to more than 18,000, largest Sunday race crowd in history of Lakewood Speedway. While grand stand fell a bit short of July 4 receipts, general admissions mounted and throngs saw what was the greatest series of thrill events ever at a Southeastern Fair plant auto race.

Rinks and Skaters

(Cincinnati Office)

SKATELAND, newly acquired roller rink of the Wood-Dillon Company, will have its opening in Erie, Pa., on September 9. Report officials of the company, now operating in Winland Auditorium, East Liverpool, O. At the start four night sessions will be held weekly with Saturday matinees. Operators are looking for a skate-minded populace, pointing out that Erie has been without roller skating two years. Free of any posts, Skateland is 120 by 180 feet. A balcony runs across the entire front and an inset stage is at the opposite end. Dressing rooms, lavatories and offices are conveniently located. Ample parking space surrounds the building. Skating nights will be Sundays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, with addition of Saturday with advent of cold weather.

INTERNATIONAL Skating Union held its 20th convention in St. Moritz, Switzerland, during first week of July, with delegates from 17 countries. United States was not represented. Three Jewels roller skaters, appeared at the Nuit de Longchamps, night show, at Longchamps race track in Paris on July 3.

LA BENTEN'S SKATERS, four American girls, who are appearing at the National Theater in Havana under management of H. Garcia, arrived there from Panama, where they were working at Kelly's Cabaret. Girls are Audrey Stevens, Celestine Eckling, Juanita La Benton and Joan Reed. Their work is well received by Cuban audiences. It is reported.

BRIGHTMOOR Roller Rink, Detroit, is being operated a few nights a week by Carl Couyoumjian but will probably close shortly for summer. A series of special club programs is helping to draw extra warm-weather business. Typical of these is that of the Armenian Junior League, bringing about 100 skaters out next week. Business in selling skates is also continuing good, Manager Couyoumjian said, with more skaters buying their own equipment.

WHILE on vacation visiting rinks, Ed Goldschmidt, Chicago, sponsor of "Ed's Waltz Club," visited William F. Sefferino, Sefferino's Rink, and Edward J. Von Hagen, Norwood Rink, Cincinnati, and arranged to bring club members from Chicago for parties in the fall. Visitors will demonstrate waltz skating and fox-trot and there will be a relay race in Norwood Rink on September 5, the skaters to appear on Labor Day in Sefferino's Rink.

"A TOUR on July 3-5 took me to Niagara Falls and Crystal Beach, Ont., where I met a group of about 80 skaters of Arena Skating Club, Detroit," writes Armand J. Schaub Sr., Cincinnati. "That evening all went skating at Dexter's Summer Rink, where they received a rousing welcome. On evening of July 4 all met at Dexter's Roller Rink, Niagara Falls, N. Y., for a special visitors' session. I was asked to put on my special too dance roller-skating novelty (minus real wheels) and was given a good hand. Then one of Dexter's girl skaters put on a figure-skating exhibition, followed by a waltz number by Detroit skaters and trick and fancy skating by several local boys and girls. Later the floor was cleared and refreshments were served and souvenir billboards and vanity cases were given all present. There is a fine spirit among the club members and they surely should appreciate having such a fine leader and club secretary as Ann Fivek and full co-operation of their rink manager, Fred Martin, of Arena Gardens. Many interesting week-end trips are scheduled for the members to rinks and summer resorts."

LAURITA STOVER, 16 months old and belted by her grandfather, Manager T. L. Keller, Midway Roller Rink, Eugene, Ore., to be the world's youngest roller skater. He made her shoe skates (aluminum rollers) and started her when she was 11½ months old. She stood alone on them at 13 months and skated alone all over the rink floor at 15 months.

ROLLER RINK in the entrance lodge of Knox Cave, near Albany, N. Y., in charge of Charles Zwetsch, is operating to 50 per cent better business than last year and probably will double present volume during July and August, reports D. C. Robinson. Knox Cave is a major cavern and the lodge, accommodating 2,000 people, is used for roller skating and dancing. Big increase is attributed to prize contests and presentation of acts and other entertainment. The perfect floor is 16 laps to a mile and new skates have been installed, with modern music and public-address system.

"WE are still running three seasons daily with good crowds at nights," writes Manager Joseph Fuchs Jr., Diamond Square Roller Rink, Pittsburgh. "Beginning next week we will be open three nights a week until Labor Day, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, with band. We have about six weeks of cleaning, painting and alterations to complete. We are installing a balcony-stage in rear of rink for band and amateur nights, converting front balcony for spectators with seats. In far corner over rear check-room we are building a watchtower office and over the skateroom we have already built a workshop. Planning on installing a crystal ball with light effects and other decorating changes. Floor re-surfacing will take about 10 days. Our exhibition troupe has been busy lately. The exhibition was in Evans City Rink on June 30 for the third time since last November. That place is always packed and they even had a church party after the regular session until 1:30 a.m. Mr. Besnecker says they want to see exhibitions and he is open every night in the year with always a good attendance. Evans City is 30 miles from Pittsburgh. Outlook for Pittsburgh skating business for the coming season is better than ever."

FAIR GROUNDS

at south end of the grounds is being re-modeled and repainted. Almost the en-

Eight centers are tentatively in the circuit, all from the mainland of Nova Scotia.

WEST ALLIS, Wis.—As a result of arrangements made with Ralph Ammon, State Fair manager, the race track in State Fair Park here has been opened to bicyclists on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 4 p.m. until dusk in an effort to remove hazards of bicycling on streets. If the experiment proves successful West Allis safety commission may arrange to erect floodlights at the track to permit night riding.

CANTON, O.—Installation of lighting on Stark County Fair grounds here to cost $7,000 will be completed in time for opening of this city's first night race meet this month. Pari-mutuels and auction pools will be operated. Night racing has proved profitable at two other Eastern Ohio fair plant tracks this season, Berea and Canfield, despite rains.

MANSFIELD, La.—De Soto Parish tax election for a proposed half-mill assessment for construction of new fairgrounds resulted in defeat, 150 for to 304 against. Taxes would have retired a proposed bond issue for erection of a complete plant for De Soto Parish Fair Association, recently reorganized.

Traver Doing Very Well Now

Fair at Home Shows get choice lot and try out 15-cent gate

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 17.—Traver Fair at Home Shows after once being turned down on admission to this city obtained permit to play best lot in town; established a record for city on opening day, July 5, with 9,600 admissions despite 15-cent gate.

City council, which had previously refused permits to several others, finally granted permission due to fact that Traver, who usually makes the city each year, has an established record for co-operation with local authorities. An illustration of this was given on opening night when neighbors complained of noise of public-address systems and of late hours. Traver had sound systems deleted for this stand and ordered complete closing of all attractions by midnight.

Business was consistently good throughout the week with extreme hot spell aiding greatly. According to officials, week's receipts topped former record week for this city set in 1928. High gate on opening day because of fireworks display, only one in the vicinity this year. Remainder of week the gate fee was a nickel.

The show is well framed, carrying five major rides and four kiddie rides but rather light on shows; however, they seem unnecessary thru this territory.

Staff: George W. Traver, general manager, with Mrs. Traver as secretary and treasurer. Pat Hanlon, formerly with Pine Tree State Shows, joined here to work advance. Free act, high diving, includes Minerva Travers, daughter of owner, in straight and trick dives; Capt. Jack Todd, fancy diving; Pauline Black doing 80-foot high dive, Smiles Washburn and Freddie Navarra working the springboards as clowns.

Nealand to Hennies; Scholibo to Houston

MENOMINEE, Mich., July 17.—Orville W. Hennies, associate manager of Hennies Bros. Shows, announced here Wednesday that Walter D. Nealand had been appointed general press representative of the shows, succeeding Joe S. Scholibo. He also stated that F. J. McLane, the well-known trainmaster, joined and had taken up his duties on the show.

In speaking of the changes in these divisions in the shows' personnel Hennies said to a representative of The Billboard: "It is with regret that we are losing the services of our publicity director, Joe S. Scholibo, as he has been called to his home in Houston, Tex., on account of legal or court entanglements in an estate in which he and his mother are vitally interested. Due to the uncertainty of how long he will have to stay away he left our staff for the balance of the season. He and Mrs. Scholibo will visit a few days at her home, St. Louis, before continuing to Houston."

Dog Gets "With It!"

At Basin, Wyo., there was once an unusually large Newfoundland dog. He was the town's pet. What happened? When the Western States Shows played there he "joined out" and selected his sleeping places both in front of the bingo game and in the ticket box of the Big Eli Wheel and he refused to leave the lot, calling at intervals at the cookhouse to get his meals. He positively refused to leave the lot during the week, so the city officials of Basin gave him to Mrs. Jack Ruback, wife of the shows' manager. So "Buck," this is the dog's name, is now the mascot of the shows and is proving himself a regular trouper as assistant to the night watchman of the show.

FIRST TWIN TILT-A-WHIRL RIDE SETUP THERE IS ANY RECORD OF: Twins, triplets and quadruplets have long since been prominent issues in the Big Eli family, but now comes the innovation of twins in the Sellner family of Tilt-a-Whirls, which may yet reach the triplet and quadruplet status. The above Twin Tilt-a-Whirl photo was taken in Downers Grove, Ill., June 8 and are 1935 and 1937 models owned and operated by N. S. Dispensa, who with his three sons is active in the riding device field around Chicago. Florence Dispensa sold the tickets and on the night of this "Twin event" said she sold tickets out of the one box shown with the speed of that resembling the operation of a typewriter. Dispensa and sons also own and operate another unit of this popular ride. Note prominent location in front of a residence on the streets. Photo by Downers Grove Photo Studio.

Max Cohen Heads N. Y. State Moose

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 17.—A 30-year-old Rochester attorney whose sideline hobby is in organizing American carnivals into one strong central association last week became the youngest president in the history of the New York State Moose fraternal order.

Chosen by unanimous vote, Max Cohen, general counsel of the American Carnivals Association, was named to head the 12,000 New York Moose members during the State convention held here. Cohen will serve as president for one year.

Entering the carnival field several years ago, the young Rochester lawyer persuaded five major carnival managers to organize the American Carnivals Association by pointing out the benefits to be gained thru united strength. Today there are representatives from 35 carnivals listed among the members of the association.

Like Carnivals But Not On Sunday in Jackson

JACKSON, Mich., July 17.—The city commission recently decided not to license any more carnivals for Sunday showings in this city. Carnivals have always been welcomed here and will be when dates are confined to week day showings only.

Com. William D. Hunt pointed out at the meeting that when voting for recent-carnival licenses he did not know the shows would operate on Sunday. Hunt's move that carnivals be prohibited to operate on Sunday was supported by Com. Glen Mayett and the action carried unanimously.

Fairly-Martone Broadcasts

JAMESTOWN, N. D., July 17.—Entertainers from Fairly-Martone Shows, playing Stutsman County Fair here, were featured during the week in 15-minute programs. Entertainers include Lucille Young, accordion; Mital Morgan, soprano; Carolina Redbirds, Streeter Fryc, Robert Shelton and Hillbillies. Bruce Barham officiated as emcee.

Ballyhoo Bros.' Circulating Expo. A Century of Profit Show

By STARR DeBELLE

Tin Badge, — ?
Week ended July 10, 1937.

Dear Red Onion:
Note that we are not letting anyone in on the secret. Perhaps the readers will wonder and lay awake at night trying to figure out the State that we showed in. But the bosses have decided to keep our route hid for opposition reasons. Furthermore they know it's too late to join the show in that spot, so why worry about it. Those interested in our past route may secure same by writing us care of The Billboard Mail-Forwarding Service, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply and a dime to tip our mailman.

For the information of those interested the show is still in the Western States. The hooking of the above spot is unusual and might be called freak booking. General Agent Lem Trucklow, while out on a booking trip, accidentally got off of the main highway and after driving for five hours on a dirt road he stopped at a farmhouse for information. He was informed that the road to the left ended a mile away at Hungry Hollow, the one to the right ended a mile away at Wolf Door Hollow and a half mile straight ahead at the end of the road lay Happy Canyon.

He immediately chose the half-mile run and arrived in time to sign up a committee before supper, saving the show the expense of dining the auspices and giving the Ballyhoo Bros.' Circulating Exposition credit for being the first carnival to ever run a highway down.

Tin Badge is a thriving city located on the edge of Happy Canyon with a population of 10,000 retired sheep herders and boasting of a drawing population of 20,000 from neighboring Indian reservations. The auspices here was the annual Hide-Away State-Wide Sheriffs' convention. Monday over 50,000 sheriffs and deputies, accompanied by their best local crap-shooter, arrived for the picnic. All crashing in the front gate on their badges. Every sheriff and deputy in the State was present, making it good for the other shows that were playing the State. The shows and rides doing capacity badge-recognizing business the rest of night.

Tuesday a big shipment of badges arrived in care of the local sheriff from the Cheese of Police Badge and Banner Company. These were used as passes and handed out freely by the local law-enforcement officers. A judge was brought on the lot and whenever a native without funds wanted to see a show or go on a ride either the sheriff or the judge deputized him immediately and pinned a badge on him.

From all indications the business outlook for the week was terrible. Then Pete Ballyhoo straightened the local sheriff out for a week's work. The concessions were instructed to not go for over a badge a rattle Wednesday and Thursday. Friday they raised them to their guns and flashlights. Stripping them of all equipment.

Saturday night found the visiting officers without any flash and amusement-hungry, giving the show a big closing day gross. Early Sunday morning the visiting sheriffs heeded to the local sheriff and the gun and badge scores were kicked back. High Sheriff for a day, Pete Ballyhoo said: "Well, now they can't pin a thing on us when we enter their counties." MAJOR PRIVILEGE.

Dodson Shows Put in Phone

Telephones now on midway and plans in making for air-conditioning train

INDIANA, Pa., July 17.—An innovation was inaugurated last week in Erie, Pa., under the supervision of C. Guy Dodson, general manager of Dodson's World's Fair Shows, in the modernization of that midway.

A keen observer and always willing to experiment with a practical idea, he had installed on the showgrounds a complete telephone system. The equipment, all new, was purchased in Erie from the Bell Telephone Company.

One phone was placed in the room of the semi-circular ticket booth at the main entrance and another in the show's office wagon down the midway.

Lee Polkner, chief show electrician, and his crew of assistants set the phone equipment and strung the wires. The arrangement has proved a success in every way, according to Dave Carroll, press agent for the shows. The system enables the office force to keep posted as to what is going on at the head of the midway and has speeded up the sending of messages to the various department heads while on the lot.

The management plans to install other phones at advantageous points along the (See DODSON SHOWS on page 55)

Clayton Is Helping To Boost Louisiana

OPELOUSAS, La., July 17.—J. E. Clayton, known in fair and carnival circles, stated here this week that he has been chosen as manager of the Louisiana Business Men's Association, which was perfected here recently. Mayor D. F. Hollier, of this city, a friend of the showman, was elected president. The major objective of the organization at this time is a good-will tour thru the Middle West, with stops at Little Rock, St. Louis, Springfield, Champaign, Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Sandusky, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville and Memphis. At Cleveland the party will visit the Great Lakes Exposition and will have charge of the "Louisiana Day" program on the occasion of its visit there.

As manager of National Organization Service, Inc., Clayton announced that this organization will have charge of a number of fairs in Louisiana this fall, which will include Bastrop, Rayville, Winnsboro, Ruston, Homer and Minden, and Royal Amusement Company will furnish midway attractions.

Dufour Exchanging Places With Rogers

CINCINNATI, July 17.—Lew Dufour flew to Cincinnati yesterday from Cleveland and after a few hours' stopover here, during which he visited The Billboard, left by plane last night for Dallas. He had been spending most of his time this season looking after the Dufour & Rogers interests at Great Lakes Exposition, Cleveland, while Joe Rogers has been handling their interests at Pan-American Exposition, Dallas. They will now exchange places for a few weeks. Dufour said rainy weather has been their greatest handicap at Cleveland, but that business for their interests in Dallas has been very good.

Churches and Fraternal Auspices Should Not Do!

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 17.—Carnivals and celebrations held by religious and fraternal organizations where more than two riding devices are set up for operation, even the not more than two are in operation at any one time, are an evasion of the city ordinance. This situation is according to an opinion to the chief of police by Assistant City Attorney C. W. Babcock. The opinion was asked after the chief found that some organizations had received permits from the mayor's office to operate two riding devices and had installed more than that number.

"WHAT BECOMES of them after they play Toronto?" Late John G. Kent, then general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, asked Red Onion this question once. It is something to think over.

BERTHA (GYP) McDANIEL seems to have about only "Rocky Road to Dublin" best day. Stored my rides until fair time in August."

HEAT FROM sun and heat from some of concessions seems to be just about too much heat for some carnivals so they closed.

GEORGE HIRSHBERG, secretary Cettlin & Wilson, says: "Looks as tho 'Love Bug' has surely hit shows this year, as there have been three secret marriages performed already this season. There are rumors of several more. Must have been rainy weather that show has had, which gave boys time to fall in love, or is it?"

BE SURE to get that letterhead before season 1937 is over. "My show!"

GIBSON AND GIBSON inform The Billboard from Rochester, Ind., that they have been presenting their performing cats and dogs as free acts since May 1 with Harris Carnival, but will start park, fair and celebration bookings soon. They also report that they laid off for a week's rest at Lake Manatan.

SEVERAL CARNIVAL MANAGERS and owners have decided that their organizations shall become better, but no bigger. This sounds like something or other.

JOHN T. HUTCHENS letters from Danville, Ill.: "After 14 weeks with J. T. McClellan Shows joined Ralph R. Miller Amusements. Engagement with McClellan was very pleasant from a personal standpoint and show played some prosperous towns under good auspices. That business was far from expectations was due entirely to weather conditions, first weeks being marred by rain. Fourth of July at Vincennes, Ind., was a red one for all on McClellan Show. It was biggest Fourth in 15 years for our museum."

THE LATE Kent Hosmer was never spectacular in his press work for Beckmann & Gerety. However, he was honest and conscientious in his work. He is missed by all who know him. Rest in peace, Kent Hosmer.

A MAN in the show business who knows a thing or two about it says that very few carnivals in the East, strictly speaking East, having anything of real entertainment value behind their show fronts. The Mixer knows, however, that this does not apply to a few of the real outstanding independent carnivals shows that are playing east, who have real shows that are seldom duplicated. Wake up, Eastern showmen!

HE CLIMBED A POLE: Leo Zacchini, 24, brother of Vittorio Zacchini, who is shot from a cannon on Dodson Shows, was injured when he climbed a 25-foot pole, slipped and fell Friday, July 2, while shows were in Ashtabula, O. He was taken to a hospital but later showed up on lot at Erie, Pa., and was getting along satisfactorily. Dave Carroll, press agent for shows, reported. He hails from Tampa, Fla.

IF RED ONION thinks he wrote show business he is off his nut. However, Joe Hep (Charles McDonald) and Dr. Grouch (late Arthur Davis) did a pretty fair job of it when on job long years ago.—Tillie Fow Clothes.

C. W. CRACRAFT, the well-known general agent, arrived recently from New York and visited his home in Covington, Ky., for a few days on business. He visited The Billboard offices last week and then left for the East. It is bruted about in some parts that C. W. will have an important announcement to make before the season has advanced much further. Cracraft happens to know his business quite well.

IT IS my opinion that there are some concessioners who should be suffering right now with a good fresh punch in the nose. Wonder how they expect to get money from customers they insult.—Soapy Clue.

GEORGE E. MATTHEWS letters from Galax, Va.: "Mr. and Mrs. George E. Matthews, latter professionally known as Madam Zetta, mentalist and Professor Milo, magician, who had Side Show on Crystal Exposition Shows, have taken over Side Show on World of Fun Shows. Besides acts mentioned above Milo presents Patsy, movie dog, and six-month-old dog, "Lucky," that does 32-foot ladder; electric chair, Punch and Judy, fire and glass eating, torture dance, sword box and Babetto in annex. Jack Holder is on tickets."

WELL WE can still note that there are a whole lot of carnival managers and owners who do not get peevish over trifles as some do. This would seem to indicate that success has not gone to their heads.—Wadley Tif.

HAVE YOU noticed how Sol's Liberty Shows has been forging to front in recent years? Sol Solomon may be headed toward becoming "Royal American" style of motorized carnivals.

"HAMMER MIDWAYS!" Some midways seem to be laid out with a hammer. The method seems to be that lot man takes a hammer and throws it to a spot on lot and tells show owner to locate where it falls. He then picks hammer up and tosses it to another spot and from there to other places for free act and concessions. A well laid-out lot is most essential to appearance of a midway. Few in business that can balance attractions as they should be.

SEEMS THAT a great number of men are operating shows, rides and concessions, have bands, free acts and present fireworks as an amusement unit, yet they contend they do not have a carnival. Wonder just what it is they have.—Wadley Tif.

W. E. BROWN letters from Dearborn, Mich.: "William Bahnsen, of Bahnsen's Lion Hippodrome with Happyland Carnival, was tendered a birthday party on July 14 while at Dearborn Day Celebration. This was third year that this event has taken place on same spot. Following attended: Mr. and Mrs. William Bahnsen, owners; Neil Groce, mechanic, and Mrs. Groce; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brown, calliope and tickets; Paul Carpenter, trainer; Jack Brown, bear wrestler; William Pace, Joe Hishom and Frank Fabyancic, canvas men."

BECKMANN & GERETY have added cars to their train and are adding many new features to their carnival attractions. This show built about 18 new wagons in winter quarters and many more since taking to road. Fred Beckmann gets up every morning and goes to lot to personally superintend building operations. He knows how show property should be constructed. When it comes to building fronts Barney S. Gerety is there, as can be seen by chromium front of "Fountain of Youth" show, which is just one of new fronts this show built in winter quarters under direction of Barney S.

WITH A motorized carnival one must have a spare tire or two, even if there is no money in the office wagon.

NOW COME FAIRS: At a great number of fairs carnival owner and manager has absolutely nothing to do with sale, locating and operation of concessions. This division is entirely up to fair association and fair secretary. Yet in many cases carnival manager is charged that he is permitting gambling at fairsgrounds, when there is gambling, simply because he does not think it necessary to inform local law and newspapers that he has nothing to do with concessions at fair and that carnival manager is only furnishing rides and shows as case may be.

SIDNEY AND MILDRED PERSSON letter from Pawnee, Okla.: "Since leaving burlesque have been operating girl shows on T. J. Tidwell Shows and carnival. This makes our fifth year on here and we have had from two to three shows each season and with only one exception all have proved pleasant and successful. Tidwell Shows are well established in this territory, present a good midway and enjoy good business. We have a lot of friends in tabloid and burlesque. Know Bill Sachs, Vern and Dora Phelps, Harry Harris; Frank Wakefield and daughter, Marlon; Rex Jewell and Tommy Symore. We have new Covered Wagon trailer."

SEVERAL CARNIVAL owners found out this past Fourth of July that it does not pay to split show into two units to play "that" celebration date.

OAKMAN AND MASON, of Wilson Shows, letter from Gibson City, Ill.: "A birthday party was given Mrs. Ray Wilson after closing hours on midway Thursday night, July 8. Affair was held in bingo top. A birthday cake and refreshments were served by ladies. A program of music, tap dancing and speeches was staged and Mrs. Wilson was given several useful presents by members of show. Those present: Roy Wilson, Lois and Buster Wilson, J. P. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. George Christian; Dorothy Gruber, bride-to-be of John Scott; Ike Oakman, William E. Mason, Doc Staunton, George Wilson, Chris Long, Cloyd Greenwalt, Ted Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mossey, Bud Diamond, Otte Valentine, S. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cady, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis and Ed L. Hienz."

AGAIN WE call carnival concessioners attention to that game called "Fascination."

SOME CARNIVAL MANAGERS have press agents for the specific purpose of mooching space in the newspapers by giving out passes. They never seem to think that advertising in newspapers is a good investment and not an expense. Yet the press agent is supposed to go on and on mooching space and kidding newspaper circulation managers by entertaining the newsboys. Why can't most carnival owners and managers wake up and be business men? Then they tell how many friends they left in certain towns. Business is business and mooching should have no part in business transactions. Circuses do not do this mooching thing. If they did there would be no circuses.

IT IS too bad that so many talented people drink and that so many hard-working efficient carnival men in general are not paid the salaries that they had been promised when they joined dem operas.

MURRAY MIDWAY Shows closed its tour recently following its engagement in Dayton, O. In speaking of this Jack Murray said in a letter from Tiffin, O.: "In the first place I played one of the worst bloomers I ever experienced. Another one of those things played under a committee with a set price, who promised fullest co-operation, and the most they gave was to send a member out the first few nights to collect their money. Another big reason was the fact that I was tied up with a ride man who wanted to muscle in on everything. Another was to clean off a lot of parasites and another was that my partners at the start neither kept their obligations. As it stands now I paid off everyone connected with the show. Am placing a few concessions with R. G. McHendrix, of the Majestic Shows. May open again about August 15."

IF ALL the showmen are going to have attractions of New York World's Fair, as they seem to have planned, what is going to become of carnival business? However, there is a rising young generation that may show some of the self-satisfied ones something.

TALKERS IN UNIFORM: Some seem to think that a talker is some kind of a freak and should be dressed up like a monkey or something. Ever see a talker with a paper minstrel high hat, flashy minstrel trousers and wearing a long duster with big buttons on it, paste diamonds in his tie and on his fingers? Not Well, The Mixer did. He went into a park recently and saw the talker on a midget show presenting such a spectacle. A talker is a salesman, and should be dignified and dressed as one, and not as a freak or clown. It is all right for them to wear business suits in the daytime and dress suits in the evening. Latter is proper. Former is ridiculous. So high-hol Some so-called showmen do have funny ideas as to how their talkers should dress. Never mind, however, talkers with sweaters on or in their shirt sleeves with suspenders showing are taboo also.

MEN WHO have their business under control never seem to worry about it. Only those who do not know what it is all about annoy themselves and all others around them about their business. This doesn't seem to be just right somehow.

"JUST A FEW LINES to let The Billboard know what is driving concessioners from carnival midway. I am a novelty concessioner and was wondering what was reason, so I wandered down among shows and rides on a certain carnival. There were six shows on this midway and each of them had high-powered loudspeakers. They were all either grinding, playing music or talkers were making opening and some were just simply making noises and all at one and same time. To cap all this there was a callopie in center of midway which was playing continuously, most of which was just so much more noise. Each and every one on a front was trying to outdo others in adding to bedlam. If I were a carnival manager I would not allow all this hub, bup de bub on my midway. My advice to concessioners is to join a show like this, but at same time they should get X on aspirin. Yours respectfully for good old-time talkers who could talk."—Happy Atwood.

OFTEN WONDERED why so many concessioners are called "jack" when they finish season with so little of it. "Hey, Jack!" locate that skill-o near entrance so we can cop 'em coming and going to midway.—Soapy Clae.

A VISIT TO GOODING: It was a hot rainy afternoon in Cincinnati last Tuesday, so Bill Sachs and Red Onion thought it was a good time to visit a carnival. So they selected Gooding Greater No. 1, Middletown, O., and went there. When two reached lot it had stopped raining. Were greeted by Manager J. F. Murphy, Secretary Ed C. Drumm, George Gregg and Honorable Punch Allen. Henry Lincoln, pop-corn man, was there and as always was busy selling his wares, rain or shine. Gregg has Life Show. Punch Allen has an entirely new top and inside and being a good showman was busy making it better. Murphy showed "Two Bill," a wonderful chimp, ape, monkey or whatever it is. He was in a cage with his master, who was not feeling well at time. This animal is a marvel. He showed Sachs that he had hair on his head and did not wear a hat alike sammie Sachs. Smoked a cigaret given him by The Onion, talked in his own language and did a lot of other interesting stunts. His name is Sammy and a great performer. Everything in equipment on this Gooding unit is first class in every particular. No concessions were operated in Middletown except those that permitted eating and soft refreshments, so Sachs and The Onion went to a foam parlor.

ONE TIME in Florida a couple of "the boys" were in a fence corner on a fairgrounds and were seen by the law as they tried to touch an orange picker the deep mysteries of tossing three cards over each other. The law asked the carnival manager what was going on. The carnival executive said: "Those boys are okay, they are my troupe of broadcasters." Law said: "You say!"

Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—There has not been in years such large business done in outdoor amusements as has been recently. Two nights at Olympic Stadium, circus, vaudeville and fireworks drew each night, it was stated, over 20,000. The Los Angeles police department's annual show drew one night, according to the committee, over 80,000. It was held at the Olympic Stadium July 9. Program was made up of circus, vaudeville acts and the appearance of film notables, a profit of $30,000, it is stated, was made.

New California Zoo park is drawing unusually large week-end crowds, and the beaches are getting immense crowds.

Concessioners and others at Ocean Park Pier, Venice Pier and Redondo Beach state they are having big crowds consistently. Oceanside, Calif., had the Steffen Shows for Fiesta week. This has always been a fine spot. However, this year the business was much affected by the Del Mar race track, a new million-dollar plant erected by behemoths of the film colony. Bing Crosby is the president, and with a 55-cent admission and grand-stand price draws a lot of people.

Capt. Ed Mundy and Roy Draper, with a show at the Oceanside affair, stated the business was not up to previous years.

Reports from the shows north are that with the exception of some interference by rains they are all doing very well.

Wrightman Shows had a big Fourth of July week at Eureka, Calif.

15 Years Ago

(From The Billboard Dated July 22, 1922)

Clear, cool weather in Detroit during the week of July 15 was favorable for outdoor amusements, and the various carnival companies working in and around the Motor City reaped a harvest. . . . J. F. Murphy Shows were forced to cancel their Montgomery County Fair date at Mount Sterling when C. & O. Railroad officials announced that due to strikes within the company they would be unable to handle the carnival between Lexington, Ky., and Mt. Sterling, Ky.

World of Mirth Shows were also caught in the railroad disorder. After failing in their attempt to continue the movement north from Covington, Ky., they arranged to exhibit in Bellevue, Ky.

Altho rain made its appearance and spoiled the "Fourth" itself, business during the remainder of that week for Macy's Exposition Shows at Lundale, W. Va., was reported to have been good.

Sam Stricklin, concessioner with T. A. Wolfe's Superior Shows, left that organization and returned to his home in Canton, where he placed a fruit concession at the Midsummer Exposition.

For the first time in the seven years of its existence the Rubin & Cherry Shows' midway was devoid of all concessions, with the exception of the candy stands and cookhouses. Stringent city laws not even allowing a ball game caused the concessions to be left in the cars for the week.

Clarke B. Felgar had completely recovered from an attack of stomach trouble and returned to his position as press representative of the Siegrist & Sibson Shows. . . . Two of S. Dukoff's concessions, one being silverware and the other fruit, blew down when the Nat Reiss Shows played at La Fayette, Ind., and caused him considerable loss.

Volume of business accorded the Walter Savidge Amusement Company was not the greatest in its history, but the organization was showing a balance on the right side of the ledger.

Heavy rains at Paris, Ill., cut down attendance considerably when the W. J. Torrens United Shows played there.

De Kalb, Ill., was proving a red one for the S. W. Brundage Shows. . . . Marinette, hustling Wisconsin town, was a banner stand for the Con T. Kennedy Shows. A new 86-foot arrived from St. Louis and was added to the show train.

American Carnivals Association, Inc.

By MAX COHEN

ROOSTER, N. Y., July 17.—An announcement of extraordinary interest to the members of our association will go forth in the mail within the next few days.

After several years of research and diligent inquiry on the subject, the association is now finally able to obtain public liability insurance for its members at rates which, in our opinion, are fair for the coverage afforded.

The association can obtain for its members public liability insurance which includes all mechanical rides, concessions and shows. The limits of liability are $5,000 to any one person and $10,000 for any one accident involving more than one person, subject to a $100 deductible clause for each accident or series of accidents resulting from one occurrence. The premium is $85 per ride, $10 per concession and $25 per show, covering a period of 30 weeks, with the arrangement that in the event the whole of the 30 weeks covered is not used in any one season, the unexpired portion will hold over until the following season at no extra cost.

The policy is to provide the standard public liability coverage, which means that in the event of an attachment resulting from an accident covered by the policy, that the insurer will at its own cost obtain release of the same. In the event of favorable experience with the setup, premiums will be subject to a refund to the association and thus to its members.

Applications covering this type of risk will be sent each of our members so that those interested may be in a position to obtain the same without delay.

The association has also been able to obtain coverage for motor vehicle equipment at rates which are 10 per cent below average rates, and applications for this type of coverage are also being forwarded to our membership.

We have had occasion to discuss this matter of insurance with the owners of several of the shows we have visited thus far this season, and indications are that the plans submitted will have an enthusiastic reception by our membership. In our judgment the savings effected to our membership will alone justify an increase in the membership of the association.

We continue to receive favorable reports from Associate Counsel Richard Kaplan, of Gary, Ind., indicating much activity in the Middle West, a full report of which will be made at a later date.

Dodson were recently in consultation with the representatives of a nationally known engineering concern in reference to placing air-conditioning systems in all of the show's railroad coaches and sleepers and the family private car. It is anticipated that the deal will be closed soon and thereafter the work of air-conditioning the train will start.

Trailer Legislation

AKRON, July 17.—People beating high rents by living in trailers or tourists' camps in the greater Akron district are going to find their activities materially curbed if council enacts legislation which is now in the welfare committee. There are two pieces of legislation under consideration: First, to license and regulate all tourists' camps and prevent any person from living in them more than 80 days. Second, to prevent the parking of trailers on any city street, or in any parking lot, privately or publicly owned, where it is proposed to establish even a short-time residence. The measure regulating tourists' camps would charge $1 a unit, or cabin, as a license fee, with the minimum fee of $15 a year. No camp would be permitted within 600 feet of any school. City water and proper sewerage facilities would also have to be provided.

lette of Bill No. 285-S the present ton mile tax is abolished as of January 1, 1938, when the act becomes effective, and establishes instead a flat quarterly fee, payable in advance on all truck and bus operators. Exceptions to the fee basis have been made in certain instances, including trailers or other similar equipment of such size and weight as to require special permits under section 85-83.

Measure provides that the tax for each quarter be based on weight, tax running from $5 for vehicles having a gross weight of less than 4,500 pounds to $105 for vehicles having a gross weight of 28,000 pounds or more plus $7.50 per each ton or fraction thereof of gross weight in excess of 14,000.

The statute also provides that any motor carrier may elect to operate any motor vehicle in taxable operations under a special permit instead of under the regular motor vehicle permits and Stillwater, Okla. Six days ended July 8. Auspices, Chamber of Commerce. July 4 celebration. Location, fairgrounds. Weather, warm. Business, good.

However, Foreman Clarence Rounds had ride ready for business Monday. Frank Du Shane, general agent of show for several years, is a very busy man. Besides booking show, he is acting as assistant manager, secretary, keeps Social Security records, sales tax records, supervises his four concessions, handles office work for show and announced that all contracts have been made up to October 1. Children's parade that was to have been held on Friday was postponed until Saturday because of rain. Saturday was fair, although rain late in evening flooded lot. Monday midway was jammed with crowds and everyone had a good day. Octopus and Ride-O were top money among rides, doing capacity business most of day. All shows were crowded from early until late. Bartlett but enjoyed evening performance. Two Beau Brummels of show, Assistant Manager Jimmy Kellihier and Sylvester Aloysius (Sky) Putnam seem to be trying to outdo each other in summer raiment. Office this week had many tasty decorations, including a huge bowl of flowers, again bespeaking feminine touch of Secretary Florence Dickens and her assistant, Mrs. Gertrude Putnam. General Agent and Business Manager Billy Breese away from show on matters pertaining to some still dates. BEN H. VOORHEIS.

Johnny J. Jones Exposition

Anderson, Ind. Week ended July 10. Anderson Free Fair. Weather, ideal. Business, very good, beating 1936 record. Seemingly impossible happened. Two consecutive weeks without rain or muddy lots. Last two dates both previous record breakers for show. Exact attendance of Anderson Fair is really unknown due to its being a free-admission event, but drew many thousands of people daily. Grounds were literally packed with fair and show goes nightly. Assistant Manager Tom Allen had to do a lot of headwork to locate midway on these grounds. Even a lot stretcher wouldn't have helped him much. To make room for shows and rides many concessions were canceled by fair management and the show. Home town of Mrs. Bertha (Gyp) McDaniel and a tary and treasurer and now has full charge of office. A. C. Jolly left here to play Fergus Falls Fair. A pictorial painter has been engaged and is now working on banner for all new fronts. Pat Murphy is doing a good job ahead. MACK MERLIN.

Wallace Bros.' Shows

Marshall, Mich. Week ended July 10. Auspices, American Legion. Location, Brooks Field. Weather, very hot. Business, poor. Inclosed midway.

An influx of hordes of mosquitoes and other insects and an unprecedented heat wave that greatly retarded attendance were principal factors in placing this stand on wrong side of ledger. It was first carnival in five years, a hustling committee and good location, but of business there was none and attendance was lightest this season. Writer back for his third visit in as many months. Was entertained at a belated birthday party by entire personnel which was given in his honor and J. R. Hall's, whose natal day anniversary was more recent. Visitors: John Francis and Dick O'Brien, of John Francis Shows, and Primrose and Gordon, of Lewis Bros.' Circus. Practically every attache of Majestic Shows spent Monday night on lot while en route to Decatur, Ind. Some who greeted old friends were Manager R. G. McHendrix and family, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Brien and Danny and night. Penny pitch, Mickey Mouse game and other concessions joined. Madame Zilda's shooting gallery topped all concessions. Visitors: William Meehan; Thomas L. Finn, of Finn's Shows, and Phil J. Houston, Cambridge (Vt.) Fair secretary. B. W. HARDENBROOK.

White City Shows

Bellingham, Wash. June 28 to July 5. Location, downtown on streets. Weather, warm. Business, excellent.

Opened Monday and showed thru to Monday, July 5, including Sunday. Show did a very good business first three nights. Thursday, July 1, was Canadian Day. Nearly 20,000 Canadians attended, breaking all previous records for attendance and also spending. Mario and LeFors, spectacular free act, held the crowds until 3 o'clock every morning. Doc Wickerman added a wild girl show. George and Edna LeBrell reported their largest week of their 11 years in girl show business. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Corey purchased a new electric motor for Merry-Go-Round and organ for marquee. Jerry Foster and George Morgan purchased new cars and Jack Elhart a Studebaker truck. New concessions were added by Mario and LeFors and writer. Secretary Young was very busy all week entertaining and taking care of Social Security. JACK ELHART.

C. F. Zeiger United Shows

Writer has been with show for 17 years and this is by far best Fourth of July celebration show has had in that time. Free acts worked at 1:30 a.m. of the 6th. Everything opened at 9 a.m. July 5 and worked thru to next morning. Frank Ward, general agent, has show booked until November. C. F. Zeiger has advised workmen that they will receive a 20 per cent raise in salary week ending July 10. W. W. BARNES.

Frisk Greater Shows

Fosston, Minn. June 28-July 1. Auspices, American Legion. Weather, good. Business, fair.

Crookston, Minn. July 3 to 5. Auspices, business men. Location, streets. Weather, good. Business, very good. Everybody did good at Crookston. Tilt-a-Whirl top money of rides. Boots McCarthy topped shows with her Hawaiian Village. Committee on job all hours of day and night and proved a fine bunch of men to do business with. Charles Rapin, John Padden and George Chapus were especially helpful to see that everybody was taken care of. Manager Frisk purchased a new International truck from Stone Implement Company. Ollie Bryer a De Luxe housecar and Langmo Brothers a fine Chrysler. Visitors: From Dee Lang Shows and S. E. Olson, of Ade, Minn. Denny Hogan joined with a new hoopla. Mr. and Mrs. Frisk received word of arrival of a granddaughter June 20. Their first. GENE REIL.

Golden State Shows

Watsonville, Calif. Week ended July 5. Location, Van Ness and Second streets. Auspices, Chamber of Commerce. Weather, ideal. Business, very good.

Spot fully lived up to its reputation as being a good show town. Business opened good Tuesday, with every day getting better. July 3, 4 and 5 being a splendid climax to a wonderful week. Location in heart of town, but Manager Will Wright had many a headache before show was finally set, eventually using two lots and part of streets. Committees gave full co-operation, as did local press and radio station. Joe DeMouchelle wrote many stories, all of which papers used and added many of their own. Special mention should be made of Fire Chief Haggerty, who worked like a Trojan to make everything pleasant, as did chief of police and street commissioners. Mrs. Dick Kanthe really got tired selling tickets and counting receipts of Athletic Show. Professor Hickman, owner and manager of miniature circus, made a big hit in parade. Attired as an old-fashioned ringmaster, accompanied by two of his wives and some of his miniature circus wagons, he was honored by first prize for most novel entry. Pop Hanna, veteran in show business and now operating kiddie rides, was visited by his children on the Fourth. Just 14 of them, some of them married with children, the whole party numbering 21. Pop was a little embarrassed but appreciated surprise. Fortunately the show was not bothered with fire crackers, they being banned. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey, of bingo, have son and daughter with them from Dallas. Fred Collins, who had diggers on show, left at close of spot to fulfill previously made contact. Mrs. Will Wright put on diggers. Additional lighting effects have been added to double Loop-o-Plane. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dobbert, connected with Downie Bros' Tent and Awning, were visitors. JOHN H. HOBDAY.

Beckmann & Gerety Shows

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Week ended July 3. Auspices, Labor Temple, Inc. Weather, cold. Business, excellent.

Canadian Soo contributed plenty of patronage. Extra ferry boats were operated, enabling Canadian visitors to stay late. Bill Goll, water star, who was in money five times in annual Toronto race swim across St. Mary's River on Friday with his hands and feet tied. Large crowds were attracted to both American and Canadian banks and Bill displayed plenty of showmanship, not to mention a brand of intestinal fortitude second to none. Not satisfied with merely making it one way, Bill electrified crowds by swimming back again. Icy water plus a powerful current made feat a dangerous one and garnered swimmer no mean amount of publicity. Nancy Miller, Gay Paree producer and dancer star, bedecked her stage with new plush drapes and a set of illuminated stairways. Trainmaster Archie Bradford building new wagons and reconditioning recently purchased coaches. Doc Hartwick, snake show impresario, busy with plans for a Showmen's League benefit to be staged at Rockford, Ill. Forrest Lewis, Popeye impersonator, arrived from Cleveland and joined Peto Kortez' circus-style side show. Two children's matinees were given, one on Thursday, Dominion Day, and other Saturday. WALTER HALE.

E. J. C. Shows

Cardston, Alta., Canada. June 28 to July 3. Auspices, Cardston Golden Jubilee Celebration Board. Location, in town. Weather, variable. Business, good.

Big Eli Wheel packed all week. Local and visiting United States bands combined with pioneer organizations and Indian chiefs made a most colorful parade. Wednesday night was a washout. A sudden mountain storm caused anxious moments around canvas, but only slight damage done. Ford Braden efficiently handled crew and tops stayed up. Desert Show added several rattlers and a brace of coyote pups. Bossman Casey and wife visited W. & G. Shows playing near by. Bull Moose Kerslake and Iron Man Prescott report the West still sold on crown and anchor. At Broadview, Sask., colorful Cree Indian powwows followed induction of Ed J. Casey as Big Chief Wa Sun Dee Quap of their tribe, the red men presenting him with all the fancy regalia utilized during the ceremonies. House of Mystery and Illusion Palace reported good business. Joe Carter's hoopla still center of action. Brother Bailey dodging corks and attracting dimes in pop guns. Madeline Casey making 'em ride Big Eli Wheel. Valjean and missus showing their best. Ernie Willis successfully withstanding volts in his chair act. Len James, voice tosser, having a tough time keeping dummy from getting more dates than he does. Squeezebob Smith making populace part with its pelf on front of Palace of Illusions. Red Walker, advance agent, reports local business eating up space offered for advertisement on Eli Big Wheel. Harold Brooks, milk-spill tyro, reports soup-bone exercise in brisk demand and replaces Harold Jones, called away by greener fields. Bill (Shebalure) Carton handing out a prize every time. FRED L. PRESCOTT.

L. J. Heth Shows

Connorsville, Ind. Week ended July 5. Show split two spots. Business, good. Location, city park. No. 2 played Sellersburg, Ind. Business, poor.

After showing four days of the week of June 28 to Dayton, O., show split in two units to play above dates for Fourth celebrations. At Connorsville, July 5, turned out ideal and grounds were a mass of people. Rides and shows did very nice, with Octopus topping. For unfavorable business at Sellersburg two things could be held accountable. First No. 2 unit was too big for spot and second labor unrest. All in all it could not be classed as a total blank. A very unfortunate accident occurred when L. J. Heth, Joe J. Fontanna and George Spaulding were on a business trip to Seymour, Ind. On outskirts of that Ishpeming, Mich. Week ended July 3. Auspices, American Legion. Location, midway between Ishpeming and Negaunee. Legion Park. Weather, threatening, cold. Business, very good.

Closing to an estimated attendance of 14,000 paid admissions this show played to an excellent week's business starting on Monday with people wearing heavy coats and with a severe rainstorm a couple of hours before opening time Saturday night after playing to plenty of children during the day. Folks came in every conceivable carry-all from back in those mining districts. Lou Hoffman arranged for 20-minute bus service on round-trip schedule from both towns, as this show played Negaunee last year for the firemen, therefore had plenty of good boosters and newspapers were very liberal with art and stories. Talent from Casino De Paree, Club Plantation, La Bomba Rumba and Cleo Hoffman's Artists and Models broadcast over The Mining Journal's WBEO radio station.

SATISFIED OWNERS EVERYWHERE!

Hommerson, Belgium, says: "Ridee-O carried 10,000 people in six hours—operated it five years with no repair bills—best ride we ever had."

Max Lindermann, World of Mirth Shows, says: "When I bought the Ridee-O in the middle of the depression business generally was very bad, nevertheless the Ridee-O more than paid for itself the first season, and of more importance is the fact the ride increases in popularity and business each year. I believe Ridee-O will remain popular forever."

Rubin Gruberg says: "For a thrilling, money-getting ride none equals the Ridee-O." Owe Stock, Goodman Shows, writes: "Ridee-O is a dandy, making me some real money." F. E. Coading wrot: "Ridee-O going over big, just the kind of ride we have been looking for. Crossed $1,900 first five days." MR. TUCKER SAYS -

"The TILT has been erected here and we must say that the same satisfied us very much. The ride reached us in the same way as loaded on car in Faribault and we must thank you for the careful attention given to packing and loading.

"Erecting it we had no trouble, every part fits exactly and the whole ride makes a splendid sight. The cars, we must say, are so finely painted and upholstered that they call the attention from everyone who sees them.

"We predict that it will be a long time before a flashier and better playing ride is over built. It is easily loaded into two Eli Semi-Trailers."

one group each afternoon just before supper hour. This engagement was a success from every angle, all concessions working thru the week, tho some talk of district attorney acting but did not. Show billed like two circuses inasmuch as Beckmann & Gerety followed in July 5 at Negaunee. However, as Macon Willis and the writer have been friendly for many years found there was no need for any big opposition methods such as used by some shows. R. & O. naturally had the best billing in Ishpeming and they in Negaunee, but Clyde Halstead and old Joe, his assistant, surely made those country routes look pretty on one 80-mile round trip and two 40-mile routes. Writer worked on extra Fourth celebration with Ishpeming merchant group and show gave them 500 special cards and $250 worth of fireworks at the grounds before closing time Saturday night. However, many concessions still doing business and had to be closed at 1 a.m. sharp in order to make regular Fourth of July celebration at Calumet. Joe Dohlan's Lion Motordrome got top money and the brunet and red-head combination of Leona Lee and Evelyn Forrest topped concession row.

Goodman Wonder Show

Minot, N. D. North Dakota State Fair, July 5 to 10. Weather, every variety known to the bison, oldest inhabitant hereabouts. Business, good.

Tenderfoot with show are learning at first hand things for which North Dakota is famous in matter of weather. They arrived in Minot under a sun that was trying to chase mercury thru top of tube. Monday on fairgrounds each and everyone ate his "nearly a peck of dirt" when a duststorm gave them a sample of life in dust-bowl area. Yet business was good. During week business fluctuated under meteorological conditions like stock market in war time. It soared and fell and Saturday night show closed with best day of business on week. Everything was lively until midnight. Sunday train left for Bismarck. Seven miles from its destination it ran into a cloud-burst and was delayed several hours. Those who drove overland met another trial. Grasshoppers by millions splashed on windshields and materially delayed fast driving. When train was stalled seven trucks ran out to bring passengers in. However, they could not reach ears and their troubles were their only reward. Note: Walter K. Sibley and wife celebrated 41th anniversary of their marriage July 7. But they told no one about it until July 9.

Crystal Exposition Shows

Pulaski, Va. Week ended July 3. Auspices, fire department. Location, Cool Springs showground. Weather, fair. Business, very good.

Spot proved to be biggest of season. All shows and rides did a capacity business at times. Young Billy Bunts added two concessions, ice cream and hearts. Jean Biddle joined with three concessions. Manager Bunts presented his youngest daughter, Irene Crystal, with a thoroughbred Scotland pony. Mr. and Mrs. Frantz joined with their iron horse show. Billy Arnts has taken charge of Minstrel Show. Southeast Times Daily gave show plenty of publicity. Wonderful tieup with paper for Madame Zetta, mentalist, with Side Show. Bunts and Benjamin, concessioners with show for past three years, added two more concessions. Manager Bunts does a lot of boasting about his minstrel show band, carrying 22 people with George Brocton directing. Shorty Rice, chief carpenter with show, has done some good work. He carries a 20 by 30-foot top that is used as a workshop exclusively.

Cetlin & Wilson Shows

Williamsport, Pa. Four days ended July 10. Auspices, VFW. Location, Maynard street circus grounds. Weather, hot and rain.

Owing to staying over in Clearfield, Pa., for July 5 show opened Wednesday to fair weather, also clear Thursday. Rain Friday and Saturday put another engagement on wrong side of ledger. This was first show to exhibit within city limits in several years. Weekly meeting of Boosters Club held on Thursday instead of Wednesday was another huge success. Credit for entertainment goes to Sammy Lewis, who really can and did put over songs and dance as only Sammy can. He also spoke of visiting local hospital to see one of his performers who was laid up with a wrenched knee. He told of pitiful sights of several old ladies who were confined there. Immediately after his talk a collection was taken up and he was appointed a committee of one to purchase little necessities for those there without relatives. A rising vote of thanks was tendered to Sammy for his humane interest. Death took from show three people during this engagement, two from drowning and one from an accident. Ernest Biehm and Clara Trappen, two performers from the Illusion Show, were drowned, and John Robert Carter, who was hurt in Clearfield, Pa., died there in the hospital on Saturday morning. On Friday night J. W. Wilson read a eulogy for first two, with taps being sounded by members of the VFW Drum and Bugle Corp. and on Saturday Ted Miller read a eulogy for John Carter, with taps again being sounded. Two sisters of late Johnny J. Jones were visitors on Saturday, Mrs. Ray Meade and beloved sister, Sue Smith. GEORGE HIRSHBERG.

Buckeye State Shows

Blount, Miss. Week ended July 4. Location, Community Park on beach. Weather, occasional showers. Business, excellent.

Everyone glad to be enjoying cool Gulf breeze. Opened Saturday night to big crowd. Sunday had excellent business. Lull until Saturday, first day of events. Queen and her maids and Governor White arriving that day were mid-way visitors, enjoyed rides and other attractions. Fourth everyone had excellent business from 8 a.m. until midnight. Wednesday show members chartered President Roosevelt, excursion boat, and went on fishing trip to Ship Island 12 miles out in Gulf of Mexico. All were successful fishermen. Then visited Port Massachusetts and enjoyed surf bathing. Visitors on trip were Mr. and Mrs. Farle Bashem, formerly with show; Jauweeee Gentsch, daughter of J. A. Gentsch; Gentsch's mother and sister, and Josephine Spearman, formerly with show, visited. Manager Galler purchased a new candy race track. Frank Gaskins is in charge.

Warren, Minn. July 1 to 3. Auspices, Marshall County Fair Association. Location, fairgrounds. Weather and business, good.

Short move of a few hours. Shows and rides up and ready for afternoon play. Large crowds each night. Dodgem continues to score among rides, with Duplex Big Ell Wheels close second. Endy Bros.' Shows Souderton, Pa. July 5 to 10. Auspices, Business Men's Association. Weather, rain opening night, fair balance of week. Business, excellent.

Many new additions have been added to show. A new 80-foot front for Hawaiian Show has been built, with indirect lighting effects. Show now has all new canvas from marquee to last top on midway. From Baker-Lockwood are five new concession tents of brightly striped blue and orange, purchased by William J. Tucker for ball game, riding devices and other concessions. New features of shows' publicity in advance are specially designed paper for Bench Bentum's diving sensations. This was produced for Endy Brothers and Bentum by Metropolitan Printing Company. To aid in presentation of set new sound equipment was furnished by Donald T. Hankins. In addition Hankins furnished new systems for front entrance and all main shows. Visitors: Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Patrick, The Billboard; Doc Jacobs, legal representative, Philadelphia; Herb Lyons, Metropolitan Printing Company, and Ben Weil, Weil's Curiosity Shop. Both Dave and Ralph Endy are known to almost everyone in this vicinity, having been born and reared close by. Show opened big on July 5. All parades of 50 Years of Progress Celebration ended in front of showgrounds. Two hours later it started to rain, but people still rode riding devices and attended shows until a driving rain finally drove them home. Thus a grand opening was spoiled. Harry Burke joined as special exploitation representative. His first job was Souderton celebration. He did good work in lining up special matinees and a public wedding. David Endy, Ralph Endy and Eddie Lippman gave a dinner to all magistrates in Montgomery County. After dinner they were all entertained on midway. Billy Ditchie, of water-show note, visited Bench Bentum and staff of shows. In his party were Mrs. and Miss Ritchie; George Craig, high diver, and Mrs. Ray Richard, high diver with act, and Bill Glass, chairman of Firemen's Fair, Springdale Pa. Mrs. Herb Tinsley and daughter joined show again.

Fairly-Martone Shows

Aberdeen, S. D. Week ended July 3. Auspices, Brown County Fair Board. Location, fairgrounds. Weather, good. Business, fair.

Originally contracted as a celebration and race meet, spot turned out to be "still" due to committee's failure to secure State permit to hold races. Business better than average. A display of fireworks Saturday night drew crowd estimated at 8,000, with majority on midway. Display was bought and shown by management of show. Decision of county officials that show must close at midnight Saturday, conforming to State laws, was strictly enforced, causing a big loss in gross. Work of painting rides completed during week. Local broadcasting company co-operated with publicity department of show, as did local newspapers, resulting in wide publicity. Entertainers from show were on air every afternoon with a program. They were Lucille Young, accordion; Mitzl Morgan, singer, and Carolina Redbirds; Streeter Fryc and Herbert Shelton. Bruce Barham handled programs for show. Duke Mills and wife, of Polack Bros., Circus, were nightly visitors, as was William Owsley, past president fair board and prominent circus and carnival fan. Mr. and Mrs. George Ames and daughter, June, left to join an Eastern show.

Madison, Ind. Week ended July 3. Location, circus lot. Auspices, none. Weather, cold to Friday. Business, fair during week and big Friday and Saturday.

This city has been a stand-by for the Terrills for many years. This date making 22d stand since 1907, and that makes a record of some kind, as various shows exhibiting over this period have always had a winning week here, never a loser. Business was light to Friday owing to cold weather, but Friday and Saturday made up for the lean days with all the business that this size town could give. Madison, a river town, isolated from any trunkline traffic but surrounded by valley towns of fair size that make Madison the trading center, put thousands of people in town during weekend. Frank Vevoe joined with a string show. Ma Green added two concessions, mall stock store and high striker. Hughy Lowe added two concessions.

After remaining over for an additional week in order to catch entire camp pay day on Friday had beautiful weather first four days and rain Friday and Saturday. Show received very good support from both newspapers and radio station. Chairman William Wren and members of committee gave every co-operation and proved themselves splendid fellows. Mayor J. P. Hilderbrand's United Shows Aberdeen, Wash. Seven days ended July 5. Location, Franklin School site. Auspices, American Legion Post No. 5 Flash Celebration. Business, excellent. Weather, fair. Pay gate, 10 cents; breaking all previous records.

General Manager E. W. Coe was forced to leave off 200 feet of banner line and two small rides in order to place show on lot. Lucille King's advertising campaign was most extensive ever undertaken by this organization and results spoke for themselves. Special broadcasts were made over KKRO using various acts off show. Four local concerns personally sponsored Don Varo, "Human Icicle," by featuring his act in their advertising. Betty Coe proved her rating as champion ticket seller by handling entire marquee unassisted with a nonchalance that was interesting. F. G. Roper, secretary of Josephine County Fair at Grants Pass, Ore., was special guest of show. Opening night entire personnel of Martin's United Shows exhibiting in Raymond were welcome visitors. During week members of Hilderbrand's returned visit. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wright, formerly with Leavitt-Brown-Huggins Shows, entertained several showfolk at dinner in their home in Hoquiam. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Alton had his mother, Mrs. C. H. Alton Sr., and his sister, Mrs. Grover Wright, as guests. Mrs. Annette Heller was entertained by relatives all week. Bud Cross' two gigantic bingos ran until wee hours of morning. "One-Gun" Keith Terwilliger Sutton departed for West Coast Shows. Hazel Fisher and Verna Seeborg's stands sold out nightly. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Barle and writer were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Martin and Mrs. Lelia Groff during their visit to the Martin Shows. They were also entertained by Florence and Edward Walters. "Love-bugs" Lucille and Lyman Grisham carry on to amusement of showfolk. Due to recent illness, Vivian Taylor was forced to cancel her contract with Four Thrillers and return to her home in Los Angeles to convalesce. Louise Maynard recently returned from her engagement with Four Corintas at Japanese Exposition in Tokio, replaced Miss Taylor in act. Maynard's performance made an instant hit. E. B. and Emmy Clifford with family departed to play fair with their cookhouse. Fred Stewart and Betty Coe were selected to represent Hilderbrand's Shows this year in contest for membership for Pacific Coast Showmen's Association and Ladies' Auxiliary. Campaign for new members on 5th. Showmen's Day, was most successful. Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Hilderbrand and Betty-Jean departed on vacation to their newly acquired farm in Oregon. Morris Rocoway, of Portland, accompanied Hilderbrands after spending holidays as their house guest. Art Sussman was a visitor from Portland. All of shows were equipped with loud-addressing systems with musical attachments, consequently show does not lack musical entertainment. WALTON DE PELLATON.

West Coast Amusement Co.

Klamath Falls, Ore. June 28 to July 5. Auspices, July 4th Celebration. Location, uptown. Weather, ideal. Business, excellent.

For second time show played this celebration, and for eight days and nights behind a 10-cent pay gate. Four Bell Thasers, high free act, booked by Jack Schaller, pleased great crowds. A payroll town but not troubled by strikes, mills working day and night. First and only show to be here since last July 4 and it was "gigantic." Every show and ride did capacity all during engagement. Midway closed last Saturday night at 3 a.m. Concessions did a healthy business, and Carl Holts jammed them in 10 times a day in his big specialty built top. M. E. Arthur and his four attractions did a most satisfactory business. Manager Krekos handled front gate exclusively and had a grand crew headed by ticket seller Nick Sotogos, better known as "Russian Nick." Glen Loomis had two Eli Wheels full of banners and a car on exhibition. Writer handled publicity, using 4,000 sheets of paper, mostly from Donaldson, on routes out of here. Secretary and Auditor Leo Leos were busy from daylight until dark counting up. W. T. JESSUP.

Byers & Beach Shows

Fairfield, Ia. Week ended July 3. Auspices, American Legion. Business, good. Weather, favorable.

One of best weeks of season. With a variety of attractions as an added inducement good crowds turned out entire week. Saturday morning all show trucks were paraded thru town with huge banners advertising a free fireworks display in evening and a free kiddie matinee in afternoon, consequently rides reported best matinee to date. However, after sidetracking Saturday night jinx for a week, threatening weather shortly after opening time scattered crowd early. A light shower followed, spoiling most of evening. Mrs. Carl Byers drove Mrs. Mack Fralley to Springfield, Ill., where latter was called due to serious illness of her husband. Fralley later died on July 3. Monday morning June Byers, daughter of Carl Byers, suffered painful injuries when she fell from a trapeze, breaking her right arm and spraining her left wrist. Visitors: Bill Grand, Des Moines, Ia.; Bert Merrill, State Center, Ia., and Oscar Rice, Clarion, Ia. DON TRUEBLOOD.

West Coast Shows

Everett, Wash. June 28 to July 5. Location, N. P. lot. Weather and business, good. Auspices, American Legion.

This spot somewhat of a disappointment on account of losing one of big days, Sunday, July 4. Lot was full of people about 7 o'clock Sunday evening and disappointed to find everything dark. Monday was big. Lot was filled at 10 in morning and people stayed all day and late into evening. Visits were exchanged between Douglas Greater Shows and personnel of West Coast Shows. Ed Smithson, who handles banners and lays out lot, was stricken with an attack of gallstones and was taken to hospital here, recovered and is back on job again. Ray Hamilton, with wife, Ann, closed with Wonderland Show here and has joined Douglas Shows. Ray to take charge of front of girl show and Ann to work in cigaret shooting gallery. Wonderland Show now operated by writer and several changes made in personnel. Al Johnston now has charge of front; H. J. Olson joined and has No. 2 ticket box; Ellen Ridenour, Dorothy Bauch, Georgiana Clemens and Nellie Drodzy working illusions and bally; writer handling inside and John Wolcott taking care of canvas. Clark Willey, who operates motordrome, stated that he broke all previous records for dromes at this spot. Gladys Dodge, who rides under name of Virginia Dare, was born and reared in Everett, and as this is her first season riding drome home-town folk were much interested in seeing her ride. Harry L. Gordon, general agent, was at head of midway all week greeting visitors. Dugout Crawley arrived to take charge of cookhouse. Hal Compton reports side show as doing good business. Jimmy Kling joined to take job as lot superintendent. Owaer W. C. Huggins made several trips to Seattle. Slim Tyramaine busy looking after office and his high striker concession. E. O. Douglas and Bill Myers among visitors. FAY RIDENOUR.

Hennies Bros.' Shows

Kenosha, Wis. Week ended July 8. Fourth of July Celebration. Auspices, American Legion Post No. 21. Showgrounds, 52d street and 30th avenue. Attendance, 37,000; seven days' engagement. Business, excellent. Weather, ideal.

Wonderful committee, strictly business and fine bunch of live wires. Showgrounds gave show an opportunity to set up in proper style and manner, and with new entrance arch set up for first time helped make an imposing picture of midway. Kenosha Evening News gave show a wonderful play with publicity and art in advance and during showing week. Visitors: Mrs. Ethel Murray Simonds, secretary of Muskogee (Okla.) Fair, accompanied by husband, Doc Simonds; S. W. Mitchell, secretary Kansas State Fair, Hutchinson; Mr. and Mrs. Lew Keller, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Louie Torti, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Torti, Mr. and Mrs. Sunny Bernet; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hutchinson, Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCaffery and Joseph Streibich, Chicago. New Heyday ride arrived and was set up and operated. JOE S. SCHOLIBO.

World of Mirth Shows

Tonawanda, N. Y. Week ended July 10. Location, streets of city, business section. Auspices, Niagara Hose Drum Corps. Weather, fair but hot. Business, fair.

In face of strong opposition from pools and beaches as first heat wave of summer set in, show had a fair week on downtown street location. Ideal from angles of accessibility and advertising, location did, however, lack size needed to properly display show. Narrow in width, it was necessary to cramp shows and rides together, with the Big Eli Wheels setting three city blocks away from marquee. Florescu, swaying pole act, worked on adjacent property off midway proper. Shows arrived from Oswego in time to catch July 4 evening trade handily. T. W. (Slim) Kelly's new jungle monsters were displayed for first time, nicely framed in a pit presentation with Mrs. Lawrence (Giggs) Bowe lecturing. Front, in keeping with other new ideas introduced this season, offers four chromium towers in a pyramid design that is set off by indirect lighting. Mrs. Hans Mertens, on sick list for several weeks with an infected finger, rejoined her husband after having rested a week at Ilion while the show was at Oswego. Visitors: George H. Cramer, president, and O. V. Starkweather and Elmer Rhodes, of Spillman Engineering Corporation; W. C. (Bill) Fleming, of H. Wm. Pollack Poster Print; Ralph Hinkson, State editor of The Buffalo News, and wife, and Max Cohen, general counsel of American Carnivals Association. Mr. and Mrs. Max Linderman, together with Victor Wetter and Nicky Page, of Midget Theater, were dinner guests at home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cramer. GAYLORD WHITE.

Happy Days Shows

MaLeansboro, Ill. Week ended July 10. Auspices, the fair. Weather, ideal. Business, only fair.

Great grand-stand show. Lum and Abner and others held the large crowds until 11 p.m., consequently midway shows, rides and concessions never had a chance to gross much business. However, local papers stated that all attendance for this fair was broken. Due to late harvest and a very large one people were so tired after the grand-stand blow-off that they rushed home and into beds. Crano and Logan joined with frozen custard, grab stand, jingle board, pop corn and short-range shooting gallery. All preparations are being made for an operation on Mrs. T. L. Dedrick to remove the stiffness from her left knee. Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Brundage are still on the active list and are getting around as mere youngsters. All shows and rides are being painted. Maggie, Midget and family of black and tans are all healthy, frisky and popular with showfolk. FLOYD R. HETH.

Keystone Shows

California, Pa. Week ended July 10. Auspices, American Legion. Location, California bottoms. Weather, rain. Business, light.

Legion's fourth annual homecoming was almost ruined by rain. Mrs. Hartzberg is authority for statement that this "dark" Saturday is first in history of show. Independence Day celebrated Monday, July 5, with fireworks and parades went over to good business despite an occasional shower. Then post-holiday lull, winding up week with lot flooded, necessitating hiring of towing equipment to get show off lot. Manager Hartzberg added two trucks to fleet, a semi equipped with a winch to load and carry Octopus, the other for electric wagon. Rowland, who does swaying-pole act in Aerial Circus, scaled tallest building in town to a record-breaking crowd. Frank Graves turned from showman to concessioner. Tom Kirk out of town most of week. Ed Hilderbrand, busy rain or shine, building and designing new fronts and show equipment. Observations: Photo booth always registers in Pennsylvania—so many uniforms. . . . Pop corn next to West Virginia. . . . Pennsylvanians take a lot of chances on automobiles. Nearly every committee starts an auto contest (donations) early, winding it up last day of festival. . . . Towners compare free acts and revues. CHRIS M. SMITH.

Fete Bigger In Manistee

National Forest Festival better draw, deficit paid and balance is reported

MANISTEE, Mich., July 17.—National Forest Festival here on July 2-5 proved a greater success than the first festival last year. Event was under direction of Jack King, manager of Butterfield Lyric Theater, Manistee, who also was general manager in 1936.

An estimated 80,000 people attended, with peak attendance on July 5, which had the major events. Sponsored by business and professional men of Manistee, who subscribed $6,000 to cover expenses, and with no admission charge to any amusement it drew big crowds from other cities. A limited number of concessions were allowed on streets.

Program included Festival Museum, Lumberjacks' Puppet Show, Ottawa Indian Village, Spike Horn Meyers and his trained bears, 10 ships in the fleet from Great Lakes Naval Reserve, an illuminated yacht parade with naval ships and private yachts, historical and floral float parade, kiddies' parade, band concerts by nationally known organizations, championship lumberjack contests, national champion Lumberjack Orchestra and display by Ohio Fireworks Display Company.

This annual event was conceived by Manistee men as a medium of aiding development of Manistee National Forest and stimulating nation-wide interest in its value as a recreation and conservation center. A non-profit organization, entire cost of celebration is covered by subscriptions in an annual campaign conducted each fall. Sponsors include city of Manistee, Manistee County, West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association; Rotary, Kiwanis and Elks clubs; St. Joseph's Men's Club and U. S. Forest Service.

Altho there was a slight deficit in 1936, all expenses have been paid for 1937, with a small balance in the treasury. Election and annual meeting is scheduled for latter part of July.

Mills' Vacation Carnival Plays To 42,000 in Tieup With Shows

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 17.—At the Mohawk Mills Association, Inc., sponsored Vacation Carnival on July 6-10 in Mohawk Mills Park, in celebration of the first annual vacation week with pay granted to 5,200 employees of Mohawk Carpet Mills, Ideal Exposition Shows had 8 rides, 9 shows and 10 concessions. All rides and shows being free to employees and families during afternoons, operating at night to the public. Mill foremen and office workers assisted ride and show operators in afternoons in taking care of crowds. Competitive and exhibition athletic events were held each day, and free dancing and roller skating were provided.

Fireworks, comprising more than 20 set pieces and more than 100 aerial bombs, on night of July 10 were obtained from and shot off under direction of Imperial Fireworks Company. Free act presented twice daily by Ideal Exposition Shows was an aerial trapeze act by the Original Four Queens, working 132 feet in the air without nets.

It is hoped by the association and management of Mohawk Mills that this can be made an annual affair. Association, with assistance of mill and city administration, has made extensive improvements to the park. Roller rink is open every afternoon and evening, while dancing is held in Pavilion every Thursday and Sunday, using local orchestras on the former day and traveling bands on Sundays. The MMA plans to continue its policy of improving the park to make it an outstanding amusement center.

Publicity for Vacation Carnival week involved no outside-the-mill placards or bills, job being to make every employee aware of all planned activities and get them to enter into the spirit of the week. Temperatures of 90 to 95 on Thursday and Friday were responsible for slight falling off in attendance, following being actual count: Tuesday, July 6, 5,000; Wednesday, 8,000; Thursday, 7,000; Friday, 7,000; Saturday, 15,000; total, 42,000.

Streator Downtown Celebration Is Big

STREATOR, Ill., July 17.—Streator's fifth consecutive Fourth of July Celebration played to 80,000 people despite the fact that at a late hour it was turned into a two-day affair instead of three. At request of city officials there was no midway activity on Sunday.

Midway of the Hofner Amusement Company was packed on Saturday. It could not hold the crowds on Monday. Details of State police were dispatched to the Streator area to handle traffic coming in on four arterial highways.

Highlights of the celebration included children's parade, children's free circus; free acts, furnished by Joe Cody Producing Company; balloon ascension, Thompson Brothers, and fireworks by Thearc-Duffield. Celebration was handled by an incorporated committee, with rides and concessions booked thru advertising in The Billboard. Committee assumed one-third of the expense, raised by the midway, balance being subscribed by business men. Donaldson lithographing was used extensively in 35 communities outside of Streator.

All bills were paid by July 9, with enough on hand for an outdoor picnic for committee members. William J. Lewis served third year as general chairman; P. J. Hart, fifth year as secretary-treasurer. Midway was in charge of E. J. Barrett and Al Dietman for fourth year.

Neb. Chamber Stages Event

OAKLAND, Neb., July 17.—Ewalt Amusement Company, carrying five rides and 20 concessions, did well at a celebration here staged by the Chamber of Commerce, with funds donated by local merchants. Eleven thousand attended. Other professional features were the Hammond Twins, comedy free act, and a rodeo. Event was advertised by handbills, posters and free notices in newspapers.

Home Show Presents Acts

GARY, Ind., July 17.—Acts at National Home Show here on July 6-11 were DeKohl Troupe, Don Bernardo, the Gometz and Merrill Brothers and Sister, reports H. K. McGuire, president of Gary Real Estate Board, sponsor of the event. Federal Housing Administration displays were used and 55 booths were operated by merchants.

Largely Responsible

WARSAW, O., July 17.—"Warsaw's Annual Homecoming will be held in August and The Billboard, which has been used each year, is largely responsible for making this event one of the largest crowd getters in this section of the State. Last year the midway was so crowded that it was almost impossible to get thru. I am thankful I am a reader of that wonderful weekly. The advertisement we carried last year brought so many replies that the committee is debating whether an ad is necessary, but I think The Billboard will get one. We are thankful for its cooperation."—FRED G. BUCKLEW.

Five More Permits Granted Sponsored Shows in Detroit

DETROIT, July 17.—Midsummer spurt of sponsored carnivals brought in permits for five organizations sponsoring shows and granted by city council on Tuesday. These include two American Legion posts and three churches. Most church dates in the territory continue to go to Krause Amusement Company, headed by Mrs. Beulah Miller, with the Two Macs, who operate the concessions with the show.

Dates are for P. W. Beaudry Post, West Warren and Livernois avenue; Vernor Post, West Fort and Rensler streets; St. Cyprian's, Cobb and 13th streets; Gate of Heaven, West Chicago and St. Mary's, and St. Cecilia's, Livernois avenue near Stearn street.

Gooding Draws in Marietta

MARIETTA, O., July 17.—Despite rain during the day midway of Gooding's Greater Shows was jammed opening night here of an American Legion Celebration on July 5-10, reports D. E. Drennen, general chairman. Fireworks were furnished by Ohio Fireworks Company, and Mae Collier, high diver, was free attraction. Shows and rides did good business all week except the final night, when it rained.

Midway in Minn. Is Asset

MOOSE LAKE, Minn., July 17.—Rides and concessions furnished by Bert Osgard and Carl Kuckenbecker helped make the celebration here on July 5 a financial success, reported Chairman V. F. Pemberton. Large crowds attended dances in afternoon and evening. Other features were a parade, band concerts, speeches, field sports and a baseball game.

Shorts

SIREN, Wis., is planning a Silver Jubilee and Home-Coming Celebration to include parade, dancing and carnival attractions.

FIREMEN will sponsor the 150th Anniversary Celebration of Nicholson, Pa., managed by F. Eugene Sykes, who has outlined a program including free acts, parades, bands, contests, Polly Jenkins and her Flowboys and fireworks.

ACTS for Rock Rapids (Ia.) Fire Department Celebration will be booked by Williams & Lee.

BROWNING Amusement Company had charge of attractions at Lebanon (Ore.) 28th Annual Strawberry Festival. Committee collected and spent about $2,500 this year. One of the features was the world's largest strawberry shortcake.

CHICAGO MARKET WEEK

15,000 see advance showing of mds.—new trends forecast big winter biz

CHICAGO, July 17.—For most Americans the Fourth of July is a welcome holiday, but for many men in the merchandise world it means throwing some clothes into a suitcase and heading for Chicago. Each year for a two-week period beginning July 5 Chicago Market Week is in full swing, and at the various merchandise centers advance showings of fall and winter merchandise are on display.

During last two weeks more than 15,000 buyers looked over the various exhibits. At the Merchandise Mart were held the five interlocking Summer International Home-Furnishing Markets, operated under the headings of furniture, floor coverings, lamps, toys, housewares and major appliances, curtains and draperies. Furniture Mart played host to buyers of furniture, lamps and toys, while a special exhibit of toys was held at the Morrison Hotel.

First of all, better type of merchandise was much in demand. During the past year this demand has been steadily increasing, and the result was plainly evident at these markets, where more items of a better quality were presented than was customary a few years ago.

Another significant development was the styling of items to fit the small home. There was a definite demand for smaller, better items which will do a full-sized job despite small size. In styling colors were stronger but not flashy and the streamline influence has affected many offerings.

These trends have presented a serious problem to the manufacturers of items for prize and premium use. With the public demanding items of a better quality in such merchandise the manufacturers are faced with the necessity of turning out merchandise that has a definite quality appeal and yet will sell at prices low enough to be adaptable for premium and prize use. Many of the exhibitors at the Merchandise Mart seemed to have solved this problem by keeping the profit margin down as low as possible and by depending on volume sales to compensate for the smaller percentage. The conviction that it is better to sell more goods at less money than to sell less at more money has encouraged many manufacturers to develop items which look good and are good and which cost less than one would think.

Several orders for 100,000 units of some items were reported to have been placed and some others of twice and three times that figure. In addition a large number of smaller orders were placed which counted up to a sizable figure. Many items of a wide variety of lines were shown which were within a price range suitable for concession, prize and premium use.

In general, exhibitors as well as buyers were manifesting the belief that fall and winter business would be the largest since 1929. Lamp sales were reported to be approximately 45 per cent higher than they were two years ago and corresponding gains were seen in toys, housewares and other lines.

A PREVIEW

Twice each year, in January and July, Chicago plays host to thousands of buyers who come from all parts of the world to see the advance showing of merchandise for the coming seasons. During the last two weeks more than 15,000 members of the merchandise industry viewed the displays of fall and winter goods at the Merchandise Mart, the Furniture Mart and the Morrison Hotel. Many items were shown in a wide variety of lines that should be of prime interest to the concessioner, the pitchman, the small store owner, the prize and premium users, as well as members of the wholesale merchandise industry in general.

In this issue The Billboard presents an authentic review of these markets. Of course, space limits make it impossible to present the new trends in furniture, draperies, bedding, floor coverings and some of the other wares exhibited. As a result reviews have been confined to those lines which are of prime interest to our readers. In them are presented what was new and good at these markets, as well as what improvements in the way of styling and materials may be expected in fall and winter goods.

Housewares

What's new in housewares? That's a good question to ask at this time of the year because the International Home-Furnishing Markets held at the Merchandise Mart were the occasion for many worth-while items to be introduced to American buyers for the first time. To give a complete list of all the new products would be out of the question, but a consideration of a few will give an impression of the whole.

A small wooden clothesrack which may be attached to the back of a chair, to the towel rack or practically anywhere is a new low-priced item which combines small size with great utility. A new clothesline reel is a compact automatic drum which unwinds and rewinds the line.

A common fault of many electric waffle irons has been the uneven distribution of heat to the cooking surface. This has been overcome in a new iron by the use of a new-type ribbon heating element offered in attractive price range. The popularity of fruit juicers has been responsible for a new item which looks to be much more expensive than it actually is. A new alloy known as Magnalite is being used in a new line of kitchen utensils. It is light, strong and extremely durable. These pieces are designed in a streamline manner with smart wooden handles. The metal itself has a brilliant luster, cleans easily and presents a good finish.

A three-piece refrigerator set is being shown in white enamel with a black trim. It is offered in a choice of enamel or glass tops and is something most every housewife would like to own. Several lines of wooden bowls suitable for salad and mixing purposes retail for 35 cents up, depending upon their size. A wide variety of enamelware, aluminumware, culinary gadgets and other kitchen accessories attracted considerable attention.

Toys

Stuffed animals popular—Disney troupe in new role—new adult games

It's an animal year. Judging from the large number of stuffed animals on display at the Toy Exhibit at the Merchandise Mart, the Furniture Mart and the Morrison Hotel, old Santa had better put on an extra shift of elves if he expects to have half enough to go round on Christmas Eve. Exhibitors at the toy markets agreed that stuffed teddy bears, dogs and other members of the animal kingdom are riding on the crest of a popularity wave and seem destined for the biggest fall and winter season in years. Done in plush and other fabrics of the cuddly type, dolled up in a wide range of eye-catching colors, the animals have been getting the biggest play. One of the manufacturers reported that teddies were accounting for 50 per cent of his business and that the new Panda bear was moving the best.

The Betsy Wetsy doll was reported leading the parade of the dolls, with the Tyrolean type in second place. Betsy Wetsy is the little gal who sleeps, drinks, wets and can be bathed and dressed just like a flesh and blood infant. Other lines of dolls were about the same as last year.

Mickey Mouse and his companions were shown in a shining new role. They have been reproduced in cut-outs which glow in the dark. Treated with a luminous compound, they are not dangerous, according to the manufacturer. These well-known characters form a gay and colorful decoration by day, and glow fascinatingly at night. The exhibitor stated that they banish children's fear of the dark when hung on the wall or placed on a table in the nursery. They are durable and may be cleaned without destroying the luminous coat.

For the toddling tot many attractive pull toys were shown. Among them were Mickey Mouse, Pop-Eye and Donald Duck, who plays drums, cymbals and

Lamps

Crystal designs to fore—metals good—trend toward plain design with colors

Thousands and thousands of lamps of every size, shape and description were on display at the Merchandise Mart and Furniture Mart during the last two weeks. Exhibitors were lavish in their praise of the best lamp market in years, and many orders were reported to have been placed. The buying trend seemed to be toward the better grades, but activity in the lower brackets still continued at a fairly fast pace.

Among the lines suitable for concession, prize and premium use was noted a definite trend toward crystal lamps. Both domestic and imported glass is being used, often in combination with deep colors and wood and metal treatments. Predictions are that crystal will be better than for some seasons past.

In the metal designs silver finishes predominated, with those done in copper and brass running a close second. More than 40 varieties of globe lamps in both the illuminated and non-illuminated types were shown. The popularity of this low-price line seems to continue on the upgrade as more and more prize and premium users are reported to be taking advantage of the strong appeal it carries. Worthy of special mention at the Merchandise Mart was a new set of lamps consisting of a headboard bed lamp and two boudoir lamps to match, done in attractive pastel shades in a wrinkled enamel finish and selling at a reasonable price.

Style trends in lamps indicated a strong tendency toward plainer lamp designs with more of an accent placed on colors. Dull reds, rich blues, greens and pastel shades are being featured. Decorated porcelain and china styles, as well as reproductions of antique oil lamps, were being shown. Wood lamps done in maple and blond effects were attracting their share of attention.

As far as prices go no advances in the manufacturers' offerings were noted. There is a general feeling, however, that it won't be long before they will rise. Increased costs of materials, together with the anticipated rise in labor costs, caused many exhibitors to refuse to guarantee their present prices for more than 15 days. On a whole the lamp industry is reported moving at a faster clip than for many years past as more and more lamps of the depression antique types are being replaced. According to Milton C. Levy, president of the Lamp and Shade Manufacturers' Association, more than $50,000,000 will be spent for portable lamps this year.

xylophones as they are pulled along. A line of interlocking blocks have all the former attraction of building blocks for the kiddies with an added feature that removes the danger of topping. Along with blocks must be mentioned the attractive display of Design Blox. A wide variety of scenes and figures may be built from the three basic shapes of wood in various hues which make up the sets.

One of the toys that attracted a lot of attention was the Wyandotte Carnival. This item consists of a little metal ferris wheel, a merry-go-round and an aeroplane ride mounted on metal base, which go round and round upon release

Limber Leash

According to officials of the Zephyr Products Company, its new Limber Leash has been designed to keep dogs of any size under control without any strain or pull on the arm. The leash is made of a specially treated rubber that stretches up to one-quarter of its length, yet always returns to normal size. It is said to be treated with a chemical that is harmless to dogs, but so distasteful that they will not attempt to gnaw it. May be washed with soap and water and will not soil gloves or clothing. Item is sporty looking, well made and popularly priced.

Race Horse Ornaments

A new line of colorful race horse ornaments is now being marketed by the Joseph Hagn Company. Item is artistically designed and made of cast metal. The horse is finished in bright polished silver, while the jockey sports a red jacket, black cap and boots and sits astride a brown saddle and yellow blanket. Item comes in three sizes. The largest size comes complete with a silver-finished base and is 4 1/4 inches in height. The two smaller numbers come without the base. Item is attractively priced and should be a winner as a prize or souvenir at race tracks and other spots where horse crowds gather.

Marvel Jr. Utility Rack

A small but useful wooden clothes rack is the Marvel Jr. hosiery and utility rack. Made of wood, it may be put to a great number of uses in the home. May be hung on the back of a chair, towel rack, molding or almost anywhere and is just the thing for drying handkerchiefs, stockings, undergarments, etc. Folds up when not in use and takes up very little space. Item is 24 inches long by 16 inches wide. Comes complete with two tin-plated, rust-resisting hooks that are adjustable to any size towel bar, chair back, etc. Has brasswood sides and six smooth birch bars that are securely nailed. Sells at a reasonable price.

New Line of Rings

A new line of rings and similar items made from plastic materials is now being marketed by the Detroit Plastic Craft Company. Products have been prepared on cards suitable for use by street men and carnival workers. Each card holds about 100 rings. Cameo head is made in white and other colors, most of them, however, come in ivory. Any desired colored base may be obtained. Three or four colors may be had in the finished product. Ring itself is of a similarly molded material in a contrasting color. It is claimed that the process used in these rings enables different colors, including mottled shades, to be used. A line of photo bracelets, containing a small picture in the snap-on style, is to be marketed by the firm as well. Rings are intended to be sold for 25 cents. It is reported.

10-in-1 Garden Tool

The Wonder 10-in-1 Cultivator is the name of a new garden tool just introduced to the direct-selling trade by the Wonder Manufacturing Company. Embodying a new patented principle, the tool is operated by shoving (like a floor mop) in an easy, natural movement. The tool is so constructed, the makers claim, that it hoes, rakes, shovels, furrows, trims lawn hedges, spades, plows and picks weeds with equal efficiency. Item is easy to demonstrate and initial acceptance by the buying public is reported most pleasing.

Lewis Plans To Organize Toy and Novelty Workers

WASHINGTON, July 17.—According to an Associated Press dispatch released last week, Santa Claus will be a union man if John L. Lewis has his way. The industrial union chief has announced a campaign to organize the country's 100,000 toy and novelty workers.

This announcement followed a recent conference with Alexander Ravitch, secretary-treasurer of the Doll and Toy Workers' Union of New York, and Allan S. Haywood, of New York, regional director of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Bumper Crops, Vacation Spending Spur Business

NEW YORK, July 17.—A bountiful grain harvest plus playtime spending by vacationists greatly animated business in many places the past week, according to an Associated Press observation. Seeking relief from soaring temperatures or starting summer tours, millions were on the move in and out of cities and favorite vacation spots. Transportation was crowded by the summer migrations, which swung into full tide over the fourth of July week-end.

Dun & Bradstreet report that hot weather needs and the attraction of price inducements helped spur sales in most divisions of the country's retail trade, the increase varying from 3 to 8 per cent over the preceding week. Buoyed by well-attended trade shows in several principal markets, most branches of the wholesale trade also shifted to higher gear the past week, with buyers encouraged to more liberal commitments.

run menders, which include the needles he has worked successfully himself for many years. Shoemaker is at present working one of New York's leading department stores and has been on that location for over a year.

The new water-bath canner made by the West Bend Aluminum Company is reported to be attracting wide attention on concession stands these days. The size of the 16-quart Kettle alone imparts quite a bit of flash to the stand, and the many uses to which it may be put make it more desirable than ever in the eyes of women patrons.

of the spring catch. Attractively decorated in brilliant colors, the number should capture the fancy of the kiddies with its whirling action.

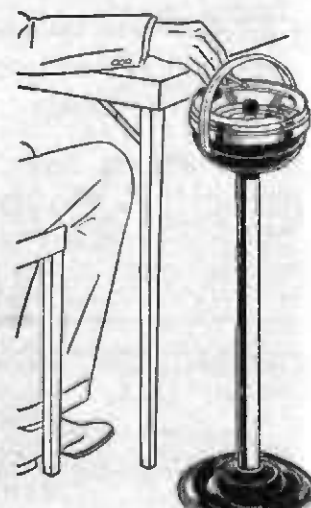

Quite a few new adult games were on display. Among them was the Mor Fun Stock Exchange game, which embodies dice, cards and wheel of fortune, the three oldest games known to civilization. A New Deal game based on the monopoly type of play and featuring the various phases of government was shown. One exhibitor reported that the crokinole boards are making a strong comeback. A sand pen which can be used to paint various scenes in multicolored sand, together with improved lead molding and wood-burning outfits, were attracting their share of attention.

In the gun line, a new const-defense gun was copying the honors. The gun rises, shoots a wooden pellet and disappears behind a fort in a whirl of fast action. An automatic glider gun which shoots rubber suction darts at a target was also shown. Elmer Elephant is the latest edition to the Disney troupe in rubber goods. A new style three-foot wire hoop with a patented striker and named after Jane Withers was given its premier showing. A streamlined train with four cars, two switches and a clanging bell was selling for less than 75 cents. Along with the train was shown a line of Tee-nie crystal set radios for the kiddies, finished in small walnut cabinets just like the popular midget sets.

A wide variety of mechanical toys, scaled models of trucks and busses, bicycles and other wheel toys were displayed. In general, they are being arrayed in more brilliant colors for the coming season. Most of the exhibitors voiced the opinion that the better types of toys will get a big play this year. Brick buying was noted in some exhibits, especially in the stuffed animal lines.

 By WALTER ALWYN-SCHMIDT

WITH the Fourth ancient history by now operators have begun to talk of the agricultural fairs. I understand that fair secretaries have been more active this year than usual. The general impression seems to be that the fairs of 1937 will outdistance everything that has been had so far. More local advertising banners, etc., will be resorted to, and several fairs are reported to be planning heavy advertising campaigns. There seems to be little doubt that farmers will support these events to the limit.

While talking to a shirt man I was informed that dollar shirts have shown considerable activity. Many operators have covered themselves for late summer and fall fair promotions. The idea is that fair visitors will be interested in "practical premiums and that wearing apparel is finding more interest. Other men's articles seem to have come in for added attention. A fair secretary tells me that he expects unusual interest in poultry this season. I am passing this information on because it may be of value to the men who handle small poultry equipment and similar stuff.

Men returning from the strike zones say that the actual effect upon local business has been much smaller than they had expected. However, practically all agree that farm regions present greater profit opportunities than do the cities. Sporting goods, handbags and cameras are mentioned as the best bet for local rural promotions. Novelty lines are in demand. The general impression I have obtained from these men is that merchandise of better grade can be sold at higher prices easier than the usual run. This goes for house-to-house selling as well as pitch promotions.

In spite of a few discouraging reports I would not refrain from making a round of the New England spots if I had been in the habit of working them in the past. There will be an enormous number of tourists in that part of the nation during the coming two months.

PITCHMEN

(Cincinnati Office)

CARL HERROM . . . postcards from Washington that the Boy Scouts' Jamboree was a success only for the scouts: "No pitchman or peddler dared light anywhere near the camping grounds," Carl writes. "I have been working on a lot here to no success. Olson and the missus blew in and worked one-half day with the cutters, then blew right out again. Friends, weigh carefully those jackpot stories you hear about Washington and think twice before filling up the tank and driving east. Greetings to Frank Libby, Tom Barrett, Frank Vale, Ralph Pratt, Morris Davidson, Murphy Brothers and all my friends of pitchdom."

OPPORTUNITY: Fort Lewis, Wash., is preparing to receive the largest military concentration in the Northwest since World War days. Approximately 14,000 men of the regular army and national guard will train there August 17 to 31.

T. D. SENATOR ROCKWELL . . . the inks from Anaconda, Mont., that the people there sure want for the razor blades. He says that he has been traveling with American United Shows for five weeks and that he has made some good towns, including Missoula, Livingston and Great Falls, all in Montana. He will work Butte, Mont., then head thru North Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota and points east. Rockwell would like to read a pipe from Carl Leander, of Jar wrench and peeler fame. Rumor has it that R. Guild Stewart, of knife sharpener fame, is working in a furniture store in Portland, Ore., Rockwell reports.

DR. GEORGE M. REED . . . pipes from Columbus, O., that Fergie Ferguson would like to see pipes from Ross Dyer, Bert Cayton, Red Feather, Harold Woods and those he met in Miami. Reed writes that Jay Hobson and Dr. Fraudree have had good business and that they have completely remodeled and doubled their assembly and packing rooms and equipped it with modern fixtures. Reed says that he expects to be able to tell it to the natives at the fairs this fall.

ONE FOR THE KNOCKERS: How many of you guys would be known as pitchmen if it were not for the Pipes column?—The Onion.

I. W. HIGHTOWER . . . comes thru with a pipe from Detroit, saying that the Shriners were there 1,000,000 strong during their recent convention. "The guess-your-weight boys got top money," Hightower writes. "Two of the official Shrine pitchmen that got top dough on Woodward avenue in front of Sander's store at Cadillac Square selling pens were Jack C. Burley and Hi Hightower. The next big Shrine convention will be in Los Angeles June 7, 1938." Reader during the convention was $25, and boys were privileged to pitch anywhere, Hightower says.

IF EVERY town in the nation was wide open some of the fellows standing behind tripods still would not succeed. Perhaps that is the reason for the success of most pitchmen who are not bothered by would-be-

J. D. DYER . . . postals from Dothan, Ala., that Sagan, veteran road showman, died in Alabama recently.

MAURICE L. JULIEN . . . pipes from Montreal: "I cover the French territory of Quebec, actually working Montreal with the sharpener, doing satisfactory business. But I am looking for something new and different. I often meet some of the boys from over the border. Recently in this city was Bob Lederer and Art Fredette, who introduced themselves while I was working corners. A Montrealer, Dave Johnston, is around Detroit. I believe he is Montreal's oldest pitchman, excepting Billy Hearn, who is still grinding razor blades."

TRIPOD OPINIONS: Many a pitchman thinks back to the time his dad said: "Some day you'll be sorry you didn't keep up your violin lessons."

JOE MORRIS . . . shoots from Festus, Mo., that he is still in the money.

AMONG THE KNIGHTS . . . of the tripes and kolter fraternity in the Mount City are Bill Knott, with the keys; Charles Lorenzen, Red McCoy and Bert Doto.

SAM BERMAN . . . pipes from Grand Rapids, Mich., that he is waiting for the fairs to open and that he has framed a new layout. Shops around Grand Rapids and Muskegon are going strong, he says. He intends to make a few spots in Michigan, Pennsylvania and North Carolina. Says he made a few still spots to a good green bank roll and that he hopes all the boys and gals have a good fair season. Sam would like to see a pipe from Bill Myers and Art Engle.

PITCHMAN'S SAYINGS: "I'm passing out samples."—Jake Holtzman.

DR. PAUL COMPTON . . . owner of an itinerant med show, found a loophole in the Austin, Tex., ordinance requiring payment of $10 a day for the privilege of showing there a week, according to a report by The Austin American. Since the ordinance covered only shows that had an admission fee, Dr. Compton escaped payment of $10 because he charged no admission. Compton, however, violated an ordinance which prohibited operation of loud-speakers without a permit. He had no permit, but was freed of obligation, the report stated.

RICTON . . . squibs from Rogersville, Tenn., that it is all virgin territory in that neck of the woods and that everywhere his show is the first show in five to eight years. Business, he says, is marvelous.

THINGS WE NEVER HEAR: "Move closer to the corner, you're too far back."

JIM FERDON . . . known as the Great Pizarro, letters from Sharles, W. Va., to contrast himself today with what he used to be. He says that for 20 years he carried the largest med show that ever traveled, 40 to 80 people; that he owned his own Pullman car, had a staff of registered physicians, two brass bands (black and white), and toured the largest cities in the United States. He says that today he has a troupe of black and white performers,

Pitchdom Five Years Ago

Tommy Adkins and Guy Warner doubled up and were working spots in Cleveland. . . Bert Dunlap resigned as clerk of the Plaza Hotel, Indianapolis, and headed for Detroit with a new set of tripe and keister. . . Joe Wahl was operating a three-truck platform show out of Kansas City, Mo. . . Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kahnroff, Billie Lochhart, Ben Jones, Bud Shamel, Eddie Routhmann and Tom Rogers were among the knights of the tripe and keister fraternity in Dayton, O. . . W. S. Ruffing and wife were back in harness and reported a fair season's business from New Haven, Conn. . . Sir Tom Rogers and Nat Golden, high-pitch acers, passed thru Cincinnati looking healthy, happy and prosperous. They were following the Ringling-Barnum Circus. . . Perambulating sign man Al Burdick reported from Tulsa, Okla., that he had found another red one in the Sooner City. . . Elks' National Convention at Birmingham was almost a total bloomer for the pitch boys who flocked there. . . Shorty Treadway, veteran soap worker, turned up in Cincinnati and was given the glad hand by the boys of the craft who were spending the midsummer in the Queen City. . . Hoot McFarland was finding things plenty tough in Maine. . . Doc Kreis was cliking in Milwaukee with his platform shows. . . A. C. Houck Med Show was enjoying good business in Pennsylvania. Heber Becker was knocking 'em dead in Indiana. . . Rufo McGivney, paperman, was garnering the lucre with the leaf in Pittsburgh. . . T. A. (Slim) Rhodes went into Maine territory after a profitable month's engagement at Worcester, Mass. . . That's all.

HUSTLER'S TIPS: Those of you who are working the shampoo suds could greatly increase your business by offering a scalp brush, hair brush or scalp comb as a special inducement. The cost wouldn't be great and the offer would increase business to a point where it would pay for itself in addition to the extra profit.

TOM SIGOURNEY . . . has postcards from Morris, Ill., that he has joined the Pan-American Shows, owned by Bob Strayer, with whom he trouped 35 years ago. Tom says he will continue his epigrams. Here's one: In polite circles the art of lying is called diplomacy, with others it is just plain lying; but well-told lies have been the means of preventing many wars and many heartaches.

WILLIAM (BILL) RUIZ . . . is confined at Meadville City Hospital, Meadville, Pa., with a broken collar bone. Says he will be there four more weeks and that he would like to hear from his friends.

IT IS written that the meek shall inherit the earth, if that is any consolation to some pitchmen we know.

RICTON . . . posts from Sneedville, Tenn., that everything is great. "While killing time in Morristown," Ricton writes, "all our equipment was parked along the highway awaiting the finish of one of our trucks, which was being repaired, when a car drove up and out hopped Doc Frank Hauer on his way to Grundy, Va. Had a great talk right in middle of highway. Damn near got run over a half dozen times."

JIM KELLEY AND KID OWENS . . . have been Sundaying it together recently at Linden, N. J., where the latter has had his trailer parked. The Kid and Mrs. Owens have left to make their annual tour over a string of fairs. Jim says that Owens and his wife keep a wonderful icebox.

SOME of you pitchmen who blamed all of your troubles on the drought last summer should rejoice since the government weather bureau announced that there will be no repetition this year.

JACK (SMOKY) BLACKWELL . . . inks from Shallowater, Tex., that he is back on George F. Barnes' Med Show. Roster includes Doc Barnes, Mrs. Barnes; Dollard Ohver, guitar, singing and straight; Johnnie Dempsey, guitar, banjo specialties and toby; Mrs. Dempsey, nickel stand, and Blackwell, blackface. Jack writes that the West Texas territory is not an answer to a med showman's prayer, but that the show keeps above the nut and looks forward to better business this fall.

TRIPOD OPININGS: When a pitchman villifies a fellow pitchman simply because there is plenty of distance between them it's the same as hitting below the belt.

CHIEF OWEN RED FEATHER . . . ex-puglist, writes that he is pitching out of Zanesville, O., his home town, to good business. He says that he spent the Fourth with Cherokee Kid at Buckeye Lake Park, Buckeye Lake, O., pitching oil to fair business. He writes that doorways are open in Zanesville.

SLIM CHARAK . . . cards from Indiana, Pa., that he is turning some good tips in that vicinity with card tricks and traveling with Dodson's World's Fair Shows at the same time.

Hartmann's Broadcast

WE BELIEVE transient showmen will find something of value, not so much this season because of its lateness but in future years, in the data on employment just released by the Social Security Board.

At the end of June, the Board says, applications for Social Security account numbers received at its Baltimore office numbered 29,954,821. These applications were filed with the post offices of the country which, until July 1, assigned account numbers to workers in industry and commerce for participation in the old-age benefits program. On July 1 the Board's field offices took over this work.

A. C. HARTMANN

The number of applications, of course, does not mean that all these people are employed regularly, as some of them might be on part time and others merely available for employment.

In breaking down the total number of applications made in the 48 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii, New York leads the nine States that are over the 1,000,000 mark with 4,292,366. Pennsylvania is second with 2,781,098. The other seven States where the number of applications is over 1,000,000 are Illinois with 2,240,724; Ohio, 1,897,389; California, 1,729,941; Michigan, 1,488,303; Massachusetts, 1,396,290; New Jersey, 1,180,729, and Texas, 1,086,152.

States with applications ranging from a half million to a million number five, as follows: Indiana, 838,991; Missouri, 798,065; Wisconsin, 632,370; North Carolina, 589,211, and Connecticut, 558,137.

States having between 100,000 and 500,000 applications number 24, these consisting of Minnesota with 498,225; Georgia, 492,321; Virginia, 450,466; Tennessee, 466,177; Maryland, 427,299; West Virginia, 396,336; Washington, 394,884; Oklahoma, 379,318; Iowa, 374,854; Florida, 374,098; Kentucky, 365,138; Alabama, 363,614; Louisiana, 390,911; South Carolina, 298,776; Kansas, 291,685; Rhode Island, 248,421; Colorado, 220,206; Oregon, 208,700; Maine, 200,599; Nebraska, 185,199; Arkansas, 176,322; Mississippi, 161,253; New Hampshire, 134,379, and Utah, 101,196.

States with account numbers under 100,000 are Arizona, 86,519; Delaware, 64,786; Idaho, 74,296; Montana, 91,782; Nevada, 24,899; New Mexico, 57,181; North Dakota, 58,525; South Dakota, 64,895; Vermont, 69,708, and Wyoming, 39,826.

There were 179,024 applications from the District of Columbia, 92,807 from Hawaii and 9,436 from Alaska.

HARRY F. GILLIAM (Ah! Ha!) thinks Gene Whitmore's article on the Royal American Shows was splendid. "Nothing but the truth—so help me," he says. "I still say there is apt to be a Royal American Circus that will make circus history, as these boys can certainly take it. When these three heads are together big things are in the air. Look out!"

TERMING it a welcome addition to the Fourth of July celebration, Charles Sparks' Downie Bros.' Circus was showered with praise in a 13-inch double-column editorial in The Plattsburg Daily Press, Plattsburg, N. Y., of July 5, the day the show appeared in that city.

"The Fourth of July will always hold its place as the date of the institution of this great country of ours," the editorial read, in part. "All that has followed has been the result of that great institution. It has survived in spite of all the noisemakers which seem to have been designed for the purpose of driving people frantic.

"By a happy coincidence the celebration of the Fourth this year brings to us another American institution which is almost as old as the nation itself—the American circus. We have had circuses with us since before the War of 1812 and while they may have been insignificant with the big circuses of today, of which Charles Sparks' Downie Bros.' Circus is a conspicuous example, they nevertheless commanded favorable attention."

The editorial then went on to quote Franklin Graham on what he had to say in relation to what was probably this country's earliest traveling circus (Ceyatano's) and was closed with these lines on the Sparks show: "The performance is always swift-moving, clean and high class. That is the reputation he has made for himself and has continued it thru the years. This year the show is reported to be larger than ever and several exceptional acts have been added. We take pleasure in welcoming Mr. Sparks to Plattsburg, for we know that he always gives a performance worth seeing, his patrons are treated with courtesy and respect and every effort is made for their comfort and enjoyment."

“EVERY show is clean and every concession is run strictly on the level, and when one spends a nickel he receives a nickel's worth in return for his money. There is fun galore for both young and old and one can be assured of safety for his or her children while attending this show. . . . A visit to this show will satisfy the most skeptical person that shows of this nature are worth while.”

The above are excerpts from a 17-inch story that appeared under a double-column head in the July 1 issue of Watervliet Tribuna, official weekly paper of Watervliet, N. Y. The story was written by F. H. Pryor, editor of the paper, after he and his family were escorted around the midway of Max Gruberg's World's Exposition Shows by Press Representative Dick Collins while appearing at Beattie's Fields, just outside the city limits at Menands.

There is no doubt about the tremendous good a story of this kind in the public press does, not only for the show concerned but carnivals in general. There can never be too many.

Mix Planning Publicity Stunts for Wash. Dates

WASHINGTON, June 17—Tony, Tom Mix's famous horse, will be 33 years old and plans are being made to celebrate the occasion during the three-day stop of the Mix show here, beginning July 26. Remembering that Tom Mix almost stole the show in his appearance at the Inaugural Parade in 1933, the show management is planning to take advantage of the Mix popularity in Washington by promoting several publicity stunts which should crack the front pages of papers all over the country. A new side show and a new candy concession have been added to show.

The lot at 25th street and Benning road will experience its first visit from a circus. Bus lines, street cars and abundant parking space, plus agreeable surroundings, makes this lot more attractive than the lot on Florida avenue which has been used heretofore. Show will appear under auspices of the District of Columbia National Guard. Press Agent Irish Horan will be in town for a week prior to the opening.

Tent Men Instrumental In Killing of Bill

CHICAGO, July 17.—A concerted effort last week on the part of prominent local tent and awning manufacturers is said to have been instrumental in killing Senate Bill No. 337 introduced last April in the Springfield Legislature.

Manufacturers felt that the passing of this bill would have left their field open to labor racketeers who might have set up a virtual dictatorship among tent and awning workers.

wife of Pauline's real husband, Dutch Moore. And David Shirkey, Pauline's cousin, becomes the detective who finds out that Pauline's mother is neither Ed Reno's wife in reality nor Dutch Moore's wife in the play but a thief wanted for robbery, so the play can have a climax and Pauline can marry her cousin, David.

Pauline and her husband, Dutch, hurry out and find Skipper sleeping peacefully in the trailer, Gladys Sylvia, Pauline's baby sister, is lying beside Skipper. They haven't noticed, but the ugly space is full of dim light, for the moon has come out clear-eyed thru the ranging clouds, and the children's faces are wrapped in a heavenly peace as they slumber side by side, Skipper 2 and Gladys Sylvia only 16 months.

They look for a long time at the sleeping children, and the man and woman of the road are tired and utterly worn, but there is a great peace and satisfaction now. They've done a good job, a damned good job of this mess tonight was. At least they'll have enough to eat until tomorrow night, and enough to eat and a chance to fight is all that anybody wants to keep on living for.

At last she looks up at the sky and there is the clear-eyed moon and the ranging clouds broken apart in the deep clean sky. The moon is like the heart of a blue flower, and the clouds, with their white-tinged edges, are petals waving in the night sky that is a blue flower smiling on the earth. Four generations have seen the show people like this. On and on they go, thither and yon, like the flower-petal clouds that blow on and on. They stopped once, long enough for her father to be born under an old tent show like this, and they stopped again when the girl was born under this old troupier tent that the storm has wrenched and torn; and then when the time came that the girl grew up and married a tall young troupier the show people stopped once more, and Skipper was born. Born under the same old tent. Four generations it's been their birthplace. But the way it leans and the tragic shadow it throws it will never see the birth of Skipper's children.

Yes, the boy will be a troupier. And Gladys Sylvia, too. Maybe they will soar high to Broadway or to Hollywood. They will be troupiers, like the little Virginia lad walking miles up the highway with his thumbs hitched in his overalls, who thinned corn all day for a quarter to come and see the show and some day be a farmer like his dad and his dad's dad. And he may come and see the Reno show when Skipper is the head of it.

Biz Fair for WPA Show at Ozone Park

NEW YORK, July 17.—The WPA Federal Theater Project's circus closed its week-end run at Ozone Park, L. I., July 10. Despite the terrific heat wave, biz was fair, with Friday night the biggest house. Thursday night Alberta Jones, known professionally as Compina, was painfully injured by Japino, the show's elephant. She narrowly escaped having her head crushed by the pachyderm.

It seems that Compina, a specialty dancer in the Savage Africa spectacle, was resting on the ground inside the padroom. Japino was munching hay outside when he raised one foot and brought it down with a curving motion, which brought one of his nails across the left side of her face, cutting her left eye. Dr. Luigi De Minico, of the Jamaica Hospital, attended the dancer, closed the wound with several stitches and advised her to go to the hospital for further treatment to prevent blood poisoning. The Manhattan newspapers devoted columns of space to the accident. Incidentally the Long Island newspapers came thru again with stories and pictures on the Ozone date.

Oscar Lowande, who left the show several weeks ago to appear with the Federal Circus in the Boston area, is back in clown alley, reports Wendell J. Goodwin.

tent, with its roof rented with long dripping holes, out of the mud puddles, off the soggy canvas seats, got to do it or else the show flops on opening night. Go ahead and go thru with it—business, till the storm wakes anew and carries the damned old tent over your heads and lets the precious rain strike you in your gaping mouths. Those farmers worked all day and grew the potatoes you ate for supper. They sold them to the merchant and the merchant sold them to the restaurant and the restaurant sold them to you. All they wanted was your money. But you got what you wanted from the poor damned fools. And now they've come, all of them, them farmers, the merchant, the restaurant keepers, to snicker and laugh at you and call you poor damned fools. But you've got what they want. And all you want is their money.

And to entertain them Ed Reno, all his life a troupier, with his red shaggy wig and red brows and red nose, becomes the bump brother to his real daughter, Pauline, who plays the part of a winsome pretty country girl, with her aunt, Auline Shirkey, Ed's sister, for a play mother and old Mr. Swaine for a father. And Pauline's real mother becomes the pale-faced snake-in-the-grass

Dexter Fellows Tent Tattles (CSSCA)

By FRED PITZER

NEW YORK, July 17.—Getting home from a short vacation and find desk piled high with this and that. Find a circus advertisement from a Chinese newspaper sent to me by Frank V. Baldwin Jr. If you want to get the inside on what circus folks are doing while on the road ask Frank to let you wade thru his personal correspondence for an hour or two. I know the Chinese advertisement has to do with a circus, for set in among the mess of dewdabs are the words Barnum and Bailey. . . . Had a short chat with Ed Thornburg and he infos that in The New York American J. E. (Dinty) Doyle had two columns in his radio department devoted to Circus Saints and Sinners. The story is built around the initiation of Dave Sarnoff. Among other things, Doyle writes:

"This hasn't much to do with radio, you will probably suggest, but it really has, as the members of the Dexter Fellows' Tent have enrolled as Water Boy the number one man of the radio industry, David Sarnoff, president of the Radib Corporation of America. As Water Boy he is entitled to the full privileges of an organization which has as its paramount purpose the building of a home to house comfortably those aged and infirm circus performers to whom the world has been unkind. The initiation of another Water Boy into the Circus Saints and Sinners isn't any great shakes and won't be recorded in the history books. But this one was somewhat different."

Among other things praise is heaped on Tex O'Rourke and his rapid-fire biography of Sarnoff. "Tex O'Rourke is probably the best ad lib. speaker your correspondent has ever heard." And to think Tex is our own equestrian director. May this ad libbers' advertisement never appear under The Billboard's column headed "Ad Lib-erty."

Heard that the Carlton Hubs are going on a month's vacation to Alaska. That fella Carlton does the darndest things. The chances are he'll bring back with him a few Eskimo girls to work the night clubs. Igloo-100 gals. Ig 100 oom bibba si voo piar mungus—which, when translated from the Eskimoese means "Here's hoping you both have a restful and healthful four weeks."

Interesting Item

The most amusing circus item we picked up while away was a copy of The Utica (N. Y.) Saturday Globe of September 16, 1903, which shows a picture of the Frank A. Robbins Circus caught by the flood at Norwich, N. Y. The picture shows the water halfway up the side walls and the horses are all belly-deep in it. The title under the picture reads, "The Frank Robbins show had pitched its tents on the fairgrounds. In the night the water came so suddenly that the employees narrowly escaped death and many lost their clothes."

Chal Pancoast changed the name of his lean-to from Hotel Montclair to Hotel Belmont Plaza. However, his name will still remain Chalmers Lowell Pancoast. . . . Bim Pond is in England, partly pleasure, partly business. . . . Hereafter the daughter of Jolly Bill Steinke will do some of the Fall Guy caricatures. She has talent. . . . A sum has finally been appropriated—or will be appropriated—for a club paper and with the talent on the club's roster

Wild Animal Exhibits
ANOTHER large consignment of wild animals landed in New York recently and it was little more than a couple of days before the specimens were distributed to all sections of the country. More than likely nearly all of them were picked up by community-operated zoological parks. That's where they go today. Possibly a very small minority found their way to some of the larger circuses and a few more to some of the New York animal dealers, who will attempt to sell them later on to anyone who is willing to feed them.

Notwithstanding the fact that there are undoubtedly more animal acts and exhibits on traveling shows this year—on circuses and carnivals—it has been the stationary zoos that have absorbed most of the untamed beasts arriving from the jungles. Reasons for this may be many—but the most outstanding is that most zoos emerged from the depression sadi in need of additional stock. And with the general uptrend in city budgets and in many instances with the aid of federal funds, managements again found it possible to supply their needs.

It strikes us, however, that a larger percentage of the consignments coming from Africa, India and European ports should be directed to our carnivals and circuses, or to dealers catering to those fields. After all, outdoor show business in America, as well as all over the face of the globe, was originally founded on the exhibition of strange and novel attractions. Freaks were naturally an integral part of early show business, but just as important, if not more so, was the exhibiting of strange animals, birds and reptiles from far-away lands. In other words, freak human beings and wild dumb beasts formed the backbone, the foundation, of American outdoor entertainment.

But times have changed and today there are many circuses as well as carnivals that have so subordinated the exhibiting of animals that in some instances it is darned hard to find any on a midway. Arthur L. Hill, veteran showman of widespread and varied experience, expressed his views on the subject last week and, in our estimation, summed up the entire situation pretty handily. Hill said: "The United States in the only nation in the world where trained and untrained animals are not still being fostered in a big way. It's the only nation where animals do not still fulfill the bill as the backbone, the basic factor, in outdoor show business. And I wonder if that is right. After all, there are plenty of carnival shows, circuses and parks that are not enjoying exceptional business this year despite the tremendous betterment of general conditions. Yet up near Naahua, N. H., there's a man 'cleaning up,' so to speak, with a veritable zoo situated off the beaten track and away from any center of population. John T. Benson is the name of the man who runs this jungle farm—and a visit there on almost any day of the week will enlighten showmen of the pulling power of a well-managed zoological display."

The circuses FEATURING animal acts are not doing so badly either, are they, Mr. Hill? Jess Adkins and Zack Terrall with Clyde Beatty, for instance.

Emmett Kelly to England

IT WAS interesting to learn that Emmett Kelly, sad-faced Joey with Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty, has signed to appear with the Bertram Mills Circus in London next winter. For some reason or another we thought the popular pantomimist who created nothing short of a sensation at the New York Hippodrome last spring would find himself in Hollywood or a Broadway production. He had the offers—we know that.

The Dexter Fellows Tent of the Circus Saints and Sinners Club is being besieged by Sarasota contractors interested in the proposed circus home the org is sponsoring in that city. Tom Mix show, headed back east, will open a new lot in Washington, D. C., July 26-28.

Incidentally, Mix will return to pictures at the close of the '37 circus season—but will be back on the road again when spring rolls around.

Jesse Klugman back in New York from a tour of up-State New York, where he caught the Big Show a couple of times. Reports that Paul Ringling, who recently joined, has already made a hit with the personnel. Paul, not yet 20, will be gradually worked up in the organization provided he shows the proper stuff. And from what we've heard he will.

Vera Bruce Codona has moved from Long Beach to Livermore, Calif. Is not trouping.

Federal Theater Project is thinking about routing the WPA Circus thru other parts of New York State. Unit has been confined to Greater New York for almost two years now.

Ed Kelly, "The Great American Tourist—from Coast to Coast without a net," as he bills himself, shoots from Michigan that it did his heart good to see both Hagenbeck-Wallace and Cole-Beatty go to town on the same day in Flint. "It proves something or other," quotes the New York circus photog. "Everything would have been absolutely even had not the H-W ticket sellers appeared on the scene in lily-white Palm Beach suits."

New York show people, I guess all show people, are lamenting the death of Harry (Doc) Sloan, who passed away recently at his home in Youngstown, O. Doc, a veteran of long standing, was one of the popular showmen of his day.

Kern With Hoxie Show

VINCENNES, Ind., July 17.—Jack Hoxie, accompanied by his wife and R. M. Harvey, were here Thursday for a conference with Barney Kern. Kern, who since closing with the Hagenbeck-Wallace advance has been handling Hayden Enterprises' Florence Musical Varieties, a floor show, will be advance representative of the new Hoxie-Harvey show (Jack Hoxie Circus), opening in Ohio in the near future.

Notes From the Crossroads

By NAT GREEN

YE CROSSROADS ed, feeling the need of a little respite from the office grind, sneaked away from Randolph street last week and high-tailed it for the wide-open spaces. This is being written up in the Rockies, where few shows have the hardihood to penetrate, although I'm told some do make the grade (grade is right—we never before encountered so many hairpin turns). We had expected to see many carnivals on our way west thru Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, but only two little ones and a lone Tilt-a-Whirl were encountered. Crops in the sections thru which we passed looked very good and apparently it should be excellent show territory. No lack of circus paper along the route—Ringling-Barnum, Cole-Beatty, Russell Bros. and a couple of others. We were particularly struck by the thoro job Ringling is doing. For miles thru Iowa we saw one-sheet reading, "Warning: This space leased to Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus," or words to that effect. At Sterling, Colo., we met up with the Al G. Barnes Circus and had a pleasant visit with S. L. Cronin, Harry Bert, Capt. W. H. Curtis, Theo Forstall, Duke Druksbrod, Bert Nelson, Eddie Woekener, Virginia Butterfield, the Christanis, Harry Chipman, Harry Levy and others. Show looks great and had a fair day's business for so small a town.

At Sterling we met Olive Attree, serialist, formerly with the act of Stanley Bros. and Attree. Miss Attree, on her way from Chicago to Denver with a friend, was in a bad auto smashup Tuesday morning near Sterling. A young jockey whom they had given a ride from Omaha was driving and apparently fell asleep at the wheel. Car went over the bank and was completely demolished. The jockey was killed and Miss Attree's friend badly injured, about the head, but miraculously Miss Attree escaped with minor bruises.

From Sterling to Denver, where the Elks had taken complete possession of the city, so we didn't pause to see whether Allen Lester and Floyd King were in town. Thru Rock Springs, Courtney Ryley Cooper's home town, and on to Lookout Mountain. A visit to Col. William F. Cody's grave and the Buffalo Bill museum, Pa-Hus-Ka Topce, was one of the most pleasant features of the trip. There is a wonderfully interesting collection of Buffalo Bill relics and paintings in the museum, which is situated atop the mountain and affords a marvelous view of the country for miles, with Denver visible in the distance. From Lookout Mountain over the Virginia Canyon highway thru Edna Springs, named for Edna Curtis, to Central City, where S. L. Cronin once had a picture house back in the days of 5-cent picture shows.

A visit to the Barnes show is a genuine pleasure. From Manager S. L. Cronin to Able Goldstein, the clown, we found everyone cordial and pleased to welcome us. The show is pleasing thru-out, nicely dressed and presented. Barnes has one of the finest looking herds of elephants on the road. Eddie Woekener, "Sousa of the White Tops," is still giving 'em that circusy music for which he is noted, and when he gets going with that trick whistle he makes them all sit up and take notice. Capt. Curtis has the canvas in great shape, having just completed double-roping the big top. Harry Bert found time between his many duties to be the perfect entertainer. Manager Cronin, too, took time off to see that visitors were well taken care of. He expressed himself as well pleased with the business done to date.

Able Tavlin is highly pleased with the success of the Del Rio Living Dolls. They are a marvelous attraction, holding anywhere from 40 to 85 per cent of the audience for the concert. Able is in no little degree responsible for the way the Dolls go over, for he makes a great sales talk.

They're telling a good one on Chester Pelkey, superintendent of concessions. It seems many of the boys had got in the habit of reaching into the pop corn as they passed the stand and helping themselves. So the boy in charge of the stand planted a mouse trap in the pop corn to put a stop to the practice. First person the trap caught was Chester, the boss!

Beers-Barnes Biz Good in Northern N. Y.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., July 17.—Beers-Barnes Circus is doing good business in the tourist and lakeshore towns of Northern New York. Management receives many compliments on appearance of its autos, trucks and trailers. George Daniels, of Ogdensburg, paid several visits while show was in his vicinity. July 12 show "played day and date" with O. J. Bach carnival at Rouses Point, N. Y. The circus and carnival had engaged the same lot, but since the circus was on the lot first it erected its tents in front. The carnival did not erect until the circus vacated Tuesday morning. Most of the carnival personnel saw the performance. Members of Walter Lankford's Family Band augmented Frank P. Meister's circus band, playing midway concert and night performance.

Advance of Russell Moving on Nine Units

REDDING, Calif., July 17.—The advance of Russell Bros.' Circus, now in this State, is moving on nine units, five of which are used by billposting department. Headed by Ray Blankenship, general agent, the advance includes Justus Edward, press representative; J. C. Webb, special agent, and J. E. Mead, programer and country press. In the billposting department Francis Kitzman is serving his sixth year as car manager. Others on the roster are Elsie Kitzman, secretary; Abe Adelman, boss billposter; Mike Grabola, Roy Long, W. S. Ladd, Mike Kitzman and Louie Hadley, billposters; Henry Barth, boss lithographer; William Wilson, Harry Hevener, Claude Poe and Clyde Haskill, lithographers. The show has been receiving excellent billing all season. All special paper is used and several new pieces have recently been added. Little opposition has been encountered and that has been clean and efficiently handled.

Hamid in American Weekly Tells of Biz of Dare-Devs

NEW YORK, July 19.—A full-page spread of cuts and story on "Why the Devil Don't Break Their Necks" appears in Hearst's American Weekly, issue of July 18. Piece, written more or less as an interview with George A. Hamid, president of George A. Hamid, Inc., of this city, describes the "ins and outs" of a dare-devil's business and quotes Hamid as saying that the reason his people get away with stunts that would kill the average man is "that they have experience, splendid muscle co-ordination and are careful to inspect their always good equipment before each show."

Cuts show Lucky Teter, automobile dare-devil; Lorena Carver, horse high dive, and other "thrill merchants" in action.

P. A. BRANSON and Dall Turney made an inspection last Wednesday of the new government-owned circus lot in the nation's capital. "It is one of the finest lots I have ever seen," said Mr. Turney. "It is like a beautiful lawn, adjoining the river, and in my opinion it is going to be a tremendous success. The Mlx Circus feels highly complimented in being asked to initiate the use of these beautiful grounds. We will have all new canvas for this engagement and naturally we are looking forward to the privilege of entertaining official Washington on the occasion of our first visit to the capital." Town is being heavily billed. A unique feature of the engagement will be the illumination of the exterior canvas at night by use of giant army searchlights.

Frisco Expo Sets National Fete Days

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—That Golden Gate Exposition is attracting world-wide attention is evidenced by many requests to honor various nations with special fete days. Stanton Bright, member of special events committee, said the following days in 1939 have been designated: February 27, Dominican Republic; March 17, Irish Free State; May 20, Cuba; July 5, Venezuela; July 21, Belgium; July 28, Peru; September 15, Costa Rica and Honduras; October 10, China; October 12, Spain.

All of these days, he said, were set in co-operation with consuls representing these nations here. Foreign colonies in Frisco are completing plans for a colorful International Folk Festival which will feature dances, music and games of the various countries, with participants in native costume.

worth of space in the building to be constructed for group exhibits by Western States, Oregon has been allotted a plot of outdoor space where it will hold its wild life exhibit. Other exhibits will feature Oregon's lumber industry, dairy products, fruit and tourist attractions.

Oregon, it was anticipated, will expend in excess of $100,000 for its exhibit. It was the first State, expo officials revealed, to sign a space contract at the 1916 Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that the Al G. Barnes-Sells-Floto Circus was forced to pass up Devils Lake, N. D. Reason—moving picture opposition. When double features, bank nights and screen keno fail to attract patrons, short-sighted moving picture operators might reflect on the advantage to their business of a change of amusement fare.

COMPETITION

"Competition is the life of trade."

It is about time for the debunkers to get busy and show the falsity of this axiom that has long since outlived its usefulness. Whatever half-truth there may have been in it in the years of pioneer development has been overcome by the complex elements that make up modern business.

Competition is war, and war is hell. That is much nearer the truth than the original statement. Actual war is simply an explosive form of competition, and many forms of modern competition ultimately lead to war.

WALTER W. HURD

But there is little that can be done about competition, unless it be that some individual is persuaded to forget the competitive struggle as far as he can and turn his attention to getting more personal enjoyment out of life and business. Many people will have time during vacation to think the whole thing thru and perhaps come back to work with a new resolution that the competitive game is not worth the struggle after all.

It seems to me that the Williamson Candy Company is really pioneering an idea in debunking whatever halo may have attended the word competition. In paid advertising space this firm is suggesting that heads of candy distributing firms go to their competitors personally and ask them to cut out the cutthroat competition. If the first visit fails go back again and again, the advertising says. The house of Williamson says that such personal missionary work will eventually convert most unfair competitors into fair competitors. At least it is an idea and one manufacturer is spending good money to spread the idea.

The customary evil assigned to competition is that of cutthroat prices. A wave of fair trade laws has swept the country in an effort to remedy the situation. The NRA and preceding that thousands of trade associations made various attempts to eliminate unfair competition of various kinds.

But the evil spirit of competition goes deeper than the various practices which laws and organizations would eliminate. The evil is as old as human history and perverts and destroys the best purposes and ambitions that any race, trade or group may possess. To analyze the competition in any line of business today is to get at the source of all the ills and discouragements that infect our struggle for existence.

Examine any business today and you will find the competitive struggle driving men that would otherwise be decent and fair to use any and all kinds of underhanded methods to get an advantage over their competitors. There is no line of business that is an exception.

If we go to the top and examine the reason for the attitude of the Morgans, the Fords, the Mellons, the Tom Girdlers and others who head big business it is that they do not have the time nor the inclination to consider the underdog as a human being because of the intense competition in big business. Their craving for power, or whatever it is that they want, is increased to the point of bitterness because of ever-present competition.

Or man's inhumanity to man takes an even worse form when these men at the top hire others to go out and get the business, with their jobs depending on the results. It is among these men hired to get results that competition develops into its worst forms and all the evils known to modern business are invented and practiced. These are the executives, the managers, the salesmen and agents who must beat their competitors or else soon there will be no job. These men soon learn that by what means they get the business, fair or foul, does not count. It is no wonder that such men are driven to all the extremes of competition in order to show results. The picture could be extended to cover the whole story of business as it is today.

This competition brings to light some of the worst troubles in our business setup at the present time. On July 13 two Chicago daily papers published statements from manufacturers with the following idea: "I may want to pay the highest possible wages and operate on the shortest possible hours, but I'm smack up against the chiseler whose long hours and sweat-shop wage scale and total freedom from conscience make possible prices that the decent employer can't meet." Such are the troubles of business, large and small.

Among the smaller firms competition among private companies and individuals often becomes more personal and perhaps more bitter. It sometimes seems that a little fellow gets the idea the odds are against him (and they most likely are), so he decides to do a little underhanded work. Then all his competitors are forced to fight the battle on the same ground.

It is a well-known fact that even the criminal mind is produced in those persons of poor circumstance who come to feel that the odds are very much against them in the competitive struggle, and hence they come to rebel against a society which they feel is unfair to them. To them being an underdog is unfair competition in its most bitter sense.

Progress in alleviating the evils of competition still leaves much to be desired. The increasing efforts to effect controls and regulation by legislation reveal the fact that legislation itself is becoming a tool for competitive effort. Hence many of the new laws proposed to eliminate competition, or at least to set up rules of fair competition, will in the end serve to agitate more bitter competition rather than calm the struggle. It so happens that many trades, groups and industries have discovered the possibility of promoting laws that will curb or hinder a competitor. So legislatures are becoming crowded with the kind of bills that bear all the marks of being promoted by some selfish business interest. That is something of the extent to which competition can go, even corrupting the law-making functions of the government at its source.

There is an idealistic theory of co-operation which is being developed from many angles. It would not be wise to belittle the progress of co-operative ideas, for much good has been done in many fields. Trade organizations of many kinds have built up progressive programs of endeavor and have also done much educational work among business enterprises and men to promote fair competition. All of this work should be encouraged for what it is worth and maybe the slow process of education is the path by which we will eventually reach a plane of better business relationships. The vacation season is a good time to weigh all these things and personally decide to take business competition a little easier.

Coin Devices Get Big Play

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Coin-operated machines at the Great Lakes Exposition here are receiving a great play, according to E. M. Marley, sales manager of The Markepp Company, Ohio distributor.

A great many of the people attending the exposition come from the rural sections of Ohio and neighboring States and, as a result, the different coin-operated machines hold a great deal of appeal for them.

Marley reports that in proportion to other amusements the coin-operated equipment receives much attention. The two penny arcades are, of course, outstanding. They are run by a prominent Cleveland operator.

In addition to the cranes and rotary merchandisers, there are the usual punching bags, strength-testing machines, fortune-telling machines, novelty pin games and all of the other equipment that is characteristic of such arcades all over the country.

While many of the machines are operated by a penny, a great many are nickel machines and seem to be doing very well.

Skee Ball alleys, of which there are several scattered around the exposition grounds, are receiving a good play. The point system is used to award winners.

Candy bar and peanut machines are scattered thruout the exposition grounds. However, they do not seem to be attracting much attention, possibly because of the many different types of restaurants and sandwich stands that dot the

Lane Trains Lane

NEW YORK, July 17.—Bert Lane, spark plug sales manager of George Ponsler Company, Inc., went to a college graduation in Ohio recently and brought home the new advertising manager of the firm—Eddie Lane, A. B. Showing the insight that has marked him as one of the industry's climbers, Bert invested four years of schooling at Oberlin College in his younger brother and expects the investment to be the best he has ever made.

"I want new blood, with plenty of that enthusiastic up-and-at-em spirit. That's what my kid brother has. I know he's going to show the coltsmen some topnotch promotions."

grounds. The prices charged at the stands in restaurants are no higher than the public is accustomed to paying ordinarily and, as a result, they all are doing a lively business.

According to Marley, there is room for a great many more coin-operated machines around the exposition grounds. There are no ray rifle machines, and because people in the rural sections are not acquainted with the machines that shoot a beam of light instead of a bullet they would probably be a profitable investment for some operator.

"It seems to me," Marley states, "that operators are overlooking a good bet at the exposition. Some criticism could also be directed at some of those who have exhibits. A coat of paint and general shining and cleaning of the equipment would draw a great many more people."

Liquor Industry Pays Big Taxes

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Coin machine industry, directly interested in the progress of the liquor trade, will note with interest the report of the United States Treasury that alcoholic beverages are now one of the mainstays of the federal government.

According to a revenue statement made public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, all the country's corporations paid in income taxes only 33 per cent more than the liquor consumers in the fiscal year 1937 and individual income taxpayers only 40 per cent more.

Income taxes paid by corporations totaled $893,855,578 and income taxes paid by individuals $896,361,289. Liquor taxes, which ultimately are paid by the consumers, totaled $502,301,181. Excess profits taxes were only a drop in the bucket compared with what the liquor consumers paid. They totaled $24,987,188.

The Revenue Bureau reported total collections in 1937 of $4,652,503,174 as compared with $3,520,208,381 in the previous year. Income taxes from both corporations and individuals in 1937 were $2,149,381,039 as compared with $1,412,938,303 in 1936. Liquor taxes were more than $60,000,000 higher than in the previous year.

Danny Odom Sees Old Pals in Chi

CHICAGO, July 17.—Danny Odom, of San Antonio, was in Chicago last week. He put in his time visiting his old friends Bill Gray and Lee S. Jones, of the American Sales Corporation. Since leaving the circus business Odom has been distributing and operating coin equipment in Texas to good results.

He was also guest of Ed Pace and Dick Hood, the latter of the H. C. Evans Company, during his stay here. Odom timed his visit here to meet Bill Gray, who also dropped in town for a few days from Florida. Bill has been putting in most of his time in Florida for the last two years, and he expects soon to return to Chicago, where he has been well known for 25 years.

The boys made Lee S. Jones' new location their headquarters while here. Dan knows that when the weather is hot beer is dispensed freely there. And when the weather is cool quantities of bourbon are available.

Changed Lineup Boosts Earnings

CHICAGO, July 17.—With the baseball season at its peak, the close races in both leagues is creating intense interest among baseball fans. The Rock-Ola Manufacturing Corporation reports that this interest is reflected in an increased demand for its 1937 World Series baseball game. Many location owners who have had World Series in operation for several months say their present earnings are greater than the first weeks the machines were installed, Rock-Ola officials report.

Jack Nelson, vice-president in charge of sales for Rock-Ola, reports a novel arrangement for cashing in on the rabid interest of the local baseball fan in his local team. Under his plan, the player-lineup on World Series is changed to conform with the lineup of the local team. Henry C. Lemke, Detroit distributor and operator, states that the play on his World Series machines has increased over 20 per cent since he installed a complete Detroit lineup. Operators in other large cities are having the same success by entering to local pride, it is reported, and many operators of World Series have organized regular baseball teams to play in competition to other locations. Not only does this increase the earning power of the machines but serves as a real business stimulator for the locations. Rock-Ola heads claim.

Track Meet Is Setting Pace

CHICAGO, July 17.—"Men are working shoulder to shoulder at Exhibit Supply Company these days turning out Track Meet, newest five-ball novelty game. Where to put more workmen so as to speed up production has been a real factory problem," say Exhibit officials.

"In addition to Track Meet, Exhibit is running full production on three deluxe console machines called Silver Bells, Chuck-a-Lette and Exhibit Races.

"The great popularity of the console machines," said Sales Manager Kelly, "is due to the best machine principle of construction. They are just about 90 per cent mechanical in operation and 100 per cent mechanically perfect. They are the only seven-coin, seven-play console type machines on the market using regulation spinning reels. No wonder we are swamped turning out four winners at one and the same time—and don't forget we have a Skill Draw—a winner in counter games, as well as Novelty Candy Venders and Diggers in production. We likewise supply several other factories with our payout and ticket units.

"Please tell our friends who are pressing us for deliveries that we are doing all possible to get machines to them promptly," he added.

Keeney Says Biz Better Than Ever

CHICAGO, July 17.—J. H. (Jack) Keeney, well-known head of J. H. Keeney & Company, reports business better than ever. "We are surprised at the way summer sales have been holding up," he says. "Whereas previous summers have seen a certain amount of dropping off, this summer has been quite the reverse, inasmuch as we are enjoying exceptionally large orders for our latest games, Great Guns and Navy, and for our deluxe payout, Track Time.

"It is my belief that of the many reasons underlying the good business we are experiencing this summer one is most important. That is we have presented operators with a group of games which prove profitable in every location, in every section, under all conditions. We have dared to be original in Great Guns and Navy with our accelerated humper, and operators have been well rewarded by that originality. In playing these games on location they have given players a faster, more exciting form of pin game amusement, and the response is visible here in our factory.

"Production has been increasing daily on the two pin games," he continued, "and hundreds of machines are being shipped daily, exclusive of Track Time. The latter continues to lead in popularity among de luxe games because it affords the operator a greater opportunity to profit on his investment. This he can do easily by using the interchangeable tops we have provided for the game. In addition to Track Time, the game can be operated with Keen-Ball, Keen-Exto and Keen-Kubes tops."

South African Distrib Sails

CHICAGO, July 17.—Max Jude, distributor and jobber from South Africa, sailed for home this week after spending many enjoyable weeks here as guest of the Atlas Novelty Company. It took Jude a month to get here and he will spend another month on his return trip; but, according to his statements, the enjoyable time he had on his visit more than made up for the length of the journey.

Jude was fortunate to be in Chicago during the time Joe Louis and Jim Braddock were preparing for their championship bout. Morris and Eddie Ginsburg escorted him to both camps, and while at the Braddock camp he was photographed with the ex-champion and Barney Ross. The Ginsburg brothers report that they shot quite a few feet of film at the training camps and extend a cordial invitation to all operators to view the films at their offices.

National Premium Has Rock-Ola Line

CHICAGO, July 17.—National Premium Company, Omaha, has just been named representative for the Rock-Ola Manufacturing Corporation. It was announced today by David C. Rockola, president. Territory to be handled by National Premium, of which Al Johnson is president, includes all of Nebraska and Iowa.

Among the Rock-Ola products the National Premium Company will handle are World Series, Rock-O-Ball, scales, radio rifles and full line of phonographs. In announcing the appointment of National Premium as Iowa-Nebraska representative Rockola said: "The fine sales record hung up by National Premium in the last few years has prompted us to take notice of its ability as salesman of amusement devices. With expansion of business generally and addition of new items from time to time to our line we feel that the territory will be more than adequately covered by our new representative."

Securities Agency Hits Vending Sales Promotion

Two companies in Detroit had planned use of investment idea—committee report explains how plan works—asks purchasers to report to agency office

DETROIT, July 17.—The plans of agencies in this territory to sell vending machines on an investment basis were given a serious blow Tuesday by the Michigan Corporation and Securities Commission. There have been at least two companies in the city which have planned such a method of distribution. In one case the company appears to be operated by a straightforward group of business men who have been acting under the impression that they were offering a legitimate proposition. The other organization has consistently refused to divulge any information about its operating plans, either for publication or "off the record."

Opening gun in an attempt to prevent the unwary from buying rights in machines under such a method of distribution was fired two months ago by Frederick E. Turner, president of Automatic Merchandisers' Association of Michigan. Action has apparently gone on in various forms to investigate the situation, and its alleged illegality was evidenced in the statement of the State commission Tuesday. The report said, in part:

"The company handling the machines purports to sell them as investments. A bill of sale is issued to the purchaser and simultaneously therewith a lease is entered into between the purchaser, as lessor, and the company, as lessee. The company agrees to service and locate the machines and to pay the purchaser a certain percentage of the intake or collections.

"In the opinion of the commission and its counsel, this vending machine sale and lease scheme and particularly such bills of sale and leases, constitute securities within the definition of the term as used in the Michigan Blue Sky Law, and that such sales violate the law."

Criminal penalties are provided for those who sell such securities not accepted for filing by the commission and not otherwise exempt, and the purchaser may receive refund of his entire money paid in under the law.

Any person who has made a purchase under such conditions has been asked to report to the Detroit office of the commission, located in the National Bank Building, or at Lansing, the capital, or to the Detroit Better Business Bureau. Further investigation is under way and the deal may later be presented to the prosecuting attorney for action.

An interesting angle is that a careful study day by day of bills of sale and similar commercial documents in this county has disclosed practically no registration of such documents by the companies involved, with either the city clerk or register of deeds. Such failure to register may be a legal loophole avoiding making the transactions subject to prosecution; it would also appear that failure to register does not properly protect the rights of the parties to the transaction. Most other sales not on a cash basis are so registered locally, including thousands of coin machine sales annually.

Turner Firms Move To New Quarters

DETROIT, July 17.—Offices of the Detroit Vending Company and the Nik-o-Lok Company have been moved to Room 1103, Lafayette Building. Both companies are headed by Frederick E. Turner, president of the Automatic Merchandisers' Association of Michigan.

The same offices also serve as general headquarters of the Michigan Association and are well known to operators in this State. The move was made necessary by the expansion of offices of the Detroit Racing Association, operating the track at the Michigan State Fair grounds here.

New Co. Formed To Distribute Vender

DETROIT, July 17.—Offices were opened here last week by the Vendit Company of Michigan, new organization, to distribute nationally a selective type of vender. New offices are at 2316 David Stott Building, with Wilbert H. Brookner, proprietor, in charge.

The machines to be sold are of two models, both made by the Detroit Tool and Manufacturing Company. Both are selective type venders, said to allow choice of about 20 different items, including candy, gum, nuts, pretzels and similar bulk merchandise.

As far as distribution goes, the company reports that it will sell direct to operators, following the usual plan of distribution in the trade. In addition, sales upon an investment or income basis will be made, presumably to the location owner. Details of the plan have not been fully made public, but will be handled thru a staff of salesmen.

New Soap Dispenser Is Being Developed

DETROIT, July 17.—A new soap dispensing machine is being developed here for the general market. While no company has yet been formed to promote it, it is understood it has reached the stage where such action may be considered in about two months.

The developers are G. A. Chaustovich, who was president of the National Dispensing Corporation, and Chester A. Jones, secretary of the same company. This organization manufactured a soap vender for some time, but it was taken over a few months ago by the Venitor Corporation.

Development of the new machine will make the fourth manufacturer in this city producing venders of industrial hand paste type soap. The machines already out have proved successful and indicate an enlarged field of usefulness for the vending-machine principle in washroom service.

Wide Response To Liberty Bell

CHICAGO, July 17.—It's a strange papa who doesn't think his new-born babe is the grandest thing alive. Much of the same parental feeling applies to coin-operated machines. A manufacturer introducing a new number usually thinks he has a world-beater. But in the case of the Liberty Bell Console type bell machine just put on the market by O. D. Jennings & Company the parental pride does not seem to be misplaced, as W. J. Ryan, general manager of the Jennings organization, reports that preliminary announcement of this machine met with an almost instant response and that sales are highly satisfactory. Indeed, the Jennings organization is now planning purchases for the third large run of the machine within only a few weeks after the preliminary announcement.

Ryan explained that their decision to manufacture this type of machine was based on the belief that the console bell is destined to be a popular and stable number. Their analysis of the market showed that a number of machines of this type were being built and offered at substantial prices and it was the opinion of the Jennings personnel that if a console bell could be produced for approximately half of the average-priced machine of today it would have a wide-spread appeal. The new Liberty Bell Console is the answer of Jennings' engineers to the demand for a machine of this type to sell between $100 and $200.

Ryan points out that Liberty Bell is constructed from standard Jennings units on which they are already in production. The advantage of an arrangement like this is that first it enables them to keep down the cost and second it enables them to assure the operator that the machine is already a proven success from a mechanical standpoint.

Skee Balls Score At Kennywood Park

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Kennywood Park, known as Pittsburgh's playground and recognized as one of the leading amusement parks in the country, recently installed a large battery of Wurlitzer Skee Balls as one of the 1937 attractions. Originator of the idea was Ben Sterling Jr., manager of Sterling Service, Wurlitzer operator of Moosie, Pa. According to reports, the games are getting a big play from park patrons ever since they were put on location.

A. B. McSwigan, president of Kennywood Park Corporation, stated: "The Skee Ball allays are working out nicely and we are gratified with the business they are doing. They certainly are beautiful allays."

Music Op Tells Profit Methods

CHICAGO, July 17.—A question many music operators ask is about what can be done to guarantee themselves and the locations a steady income from the operation of an automatic phonograph, says H. E. Roberts, sales manager for J. P. Seeburg Corporation.

"Apparently, the question seems difficult to answer," Roberts added. "One can't promise a location owner a definite amount of patronage, and by the same token an operator cannot say of any average location: 'This spot is going to net me so much and so much.'"

"Yet in contacting music operators we do get ideas and tips from music men who have proved to their satisfaction that there is an answer to the question stated, and their proofs are not one or two isolated cases, but a majority of their locations. One operator told me his locations have a few that are naturals; that is, thru a combination of circumstances, the owner's personality, his wide acquaintance, lack of competition, etc., made them very profitable.

"But he affirmed that the majority of his locations require painstaking work to build up to a point where they are profitable for the location owner. He has advertised, featured extra attractions in the way of singers, parties and other stunts and depends to a great extent on the reputation of his place to draw patronage. Consequently, the proprietor is mighty particular about the coin-operated machines that go into his place and even more careful about automatic phonographs.

"The operator then told me that he always recommended the Seeburg Melody King, Model K, for such owners and in every case decided improvement in the returns of the location had been noticeable within a short time. The appearance of the location was improved, among other things. Then patrons got the habit of coming in oftener and staying longer to enjoy the music. It is a plain case of where the operator improves the general business of the location by installing a high-grade phonograph. Location owners will surely appreciate such a service from the operator."

Stahl Reports Biz on Upgrade

DETROIT, July 17.—Stahl Specialty Company, East Detroit, reports that its business has been steadily improving. Manager Harry Stahl states that his company is specializing in the newer models of Capchart phonographs and now has 28 of the new machines on locations.

"Most of the phonographs have been placed in beer gardens," Stahl disclosed, "but we also have three machines in the clubhouses of golf courses. Golf courses are naturally far and few between, but the grosses from the machines on these locations are among the best we have. People at these clubs want rest and enjoyment, and the music machine completely satisfies both of these needs."

Most of the company's locations are located in Macomb County, where Stahl makes his home. In addition to its music operations, the company also operates a number of air rifles. Elrick Renaud, a former operator, was recently appointed service manager of the company. Stahl also reported that a new Ford V-8 pickup truck has been added to the fleet to facilitate service.

Supreme Will Operate Music

BROOKLYN, July 17.—William Blatt, president of Supreme Vending Company, has set up a phonograph operating department in his large offices in Brooklyn, which will work under his direct supervision. The "Little Napoleon" has purchased a route of a hundred music boxes to begin with and has placed an order for 100 new Wurlitzer machines.

Blatt contends this is only the beginning and he expects to build up the operation to about 1,000 pieces.

In order to take care of the new department Supreme Vending has hired three men and intends to employ additional people as the operation gets larger. A unit of trucks has been placed at the disposal of these men so that they may move around easily.

The operation will be conducted in the metropolitan area.

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—While some operators are beginning to complain about a letdown in play, distributors, generally, are reporting continued brisk demand for all new models of well-known makes.

Louis Bousberg, of the New Orleans Novelty Company, Gottlieb distributors, is again on a raving spree. It's been quite some time since he has shouted so persistently about the merits of a new machine like he now is about Gottlieb's new Foto Finish. "The only complaint I have to offer about Foto Finish," he says, "is the fact that the Gottlieb factory cannot ship me the machines fast enough."

Jack Sheehan, manager of the Sport Center, and Ray Bosworth, co-owner of the New Orleans Novelty Company, are spending a week at Grand Isle, gulf island resort, fishing for Silver King. From latest reports both have caught a wonderful tan. But leave it to Jack, he'll stay down there until he can safely come home with a good yarn or bust. In his absence the Sport Center is being managed by Boh Bosworth.

Herby Mills, popular New Orleans operator, has placed on location one of the first arrivals of Bally's new Classic. Herby is enthusiastic about the new machine and has hinted that he will buy several more soon.

Harry Batt, operator of Pontchartrain Beach, finds play at his beach sportland, doubled this season, is holding at the peak for all time. With almost three dozen machines on location there, there is hardly a dull moment anywhere in the place. Batt shows good judgment by changing ideas and over half of the machines now on location are less than a season old. He keeps a large phonograph going continuously to entertain his patrons.

The baseball season in New Orleans rolls merrily along, no less than a half dozen baseball and soft-ball teams now representing groups of coin-machine ops and distributors here. Last Sunday the Dom Pazzo Stars dropped their game to "outsiders" by a 7 to 2 count; the Great Southern Novelty nine won their game by a short count; the Carondelet Street won 4 to 2; Phillips nine, of the General Novelty Company, won and lost, 8 to 6 and 4 to 0, respectively. The Sport Center team won its seventh straight by beating another good nine from another industry.

Emile Iacopanelli tells about the wonderful results of the Dixie Belle ad inserted for several weeks in The Billboard thru the Jennings office. "There is little doubt in my mind that those ads have been a boon to my business," Yockey says. "While the ads were running my sales trebled, with one group in Tallulah, La., alone taking 38 Dixie Belles and several others, who admitted that they saw the ad, taking one to five each."

Julius Pace, genial local association president; Mrs. Pace, their son, brother and daughter, Jerry, and Joseph Pipitone, well-known local op, left together this week for an extensive tour by auto thru Texas. They are going from Galveston to Houston and later to Dallas and Fort Worth.

More than five years in the coin-machine business, a charter member of the local association and a darn friendly fellow is J. D. Elms. Elms' name has never appeared before in this column because we didn't ever know he existed. Operating the Broadmoor Amusement Company, Elms has never attempted to expand his business to that degree where he is so widely known as others. "But I make a nice living out of the limited business I operate and I am perfectly satisfied to sit back and let the other fellow get the publicity," Elms said. But how can a fellow who admits that he first operated Silver King machines way back when — be left out. Associated with him in his operation is Emile Willie.

Detroit Ops Hit Vacation Trails

DETROIT, July 17.—Vacation season is on for Detroit operators. With the anticipated summer slump coming on, many are planning on taking extended vacations. Others are confining their holidays to week-end jaunts to many of the resorts located within a short drive of this city.

Mack Barron, local operator, left this week to spend his vacation in Northern Michigan. Evidently his ambition is to get so far away from his business that nobody will be able to locate him.

Detroit

DETROIT, July 17.—The swing toward music machines in this territory gathered momentum this week with a number of sales reported by the Wurlitzer Company. Many Wurlitzer machines have been operated in Michigan by the well-known Marquette Music Company, one of the largest operators in the field. Nell O. McAllister, of Highland Park, and M. L. Farrah, of Detroit, were among the new names reported. In addition, Joseph Brillante, the Commercial Music Company, Max Dorsey and Arnold R. Miller and Frank D. Noble all were active buyers of phonographs this week, increasing their established routes.

Coin-machine business continues to grow in popularity with the women of Detroit. Lina Lovera is the latest operator to enter the field, taking over the business formerly operated by her brother, Joseph A. Lovera. Miss Lovera has added a new studio and four Do Re Me's to her line. She is placing her machines mostly in beer gardens, where she reports receiving satisfactory results.

Jack and Hattie Hewitt have recently entered the coin-machine field as operators and have just purchased some of the latest Model K Seeburg phonographs. They are placing their machines in beer gardens only for the present.

O. D. Griffin Company, Detroit jobbing house, is closing its store on Woodward avenue and moving to a new location, probably on Linwood avenue. This will make one more jobbing house on this central northwestern street, which is fast becoming the mecca of operators in this city. Griffin Company is now operated by Mrs. Griffin, who has some plans for business expansion likely to prove of considerable interest. Details have been carefully kept secret for the time being.

Mark-Time Parking Meter Company has been formed as a Michigan corporation with a capital of $1,000 at $10 a share. Company has established a plant at 12897 Woodward avenue, Highland Park, to manufacture coin-operated automobile parking meters. Officers are James S. Hunt, president; Harry S. Buchanan, vice-president and treasurer; Ellen Richards, secretary. George Muehl is general manager.

H. C. Grasseck, Detroit operator, who has been ill for some time, is recovered and is back on the job and looking fine.

Latest coin-machine company organized in the city is the Louis Novelty Company, headed by Louis Pappas. Pappas was formerly in the confectionery business, but has given that up to devote his entire time to the new enterprise. He has started with a small route of pin games and is watching the operation of them closely in order to keep an accurate control over his new business and gain the necessary experience in the minimum of time.

Edward A. Concy, president of Secon, Inc., spent the first part of this week in Chicago, visiting various manufacturers. He placed orders for new equipment.

George Manos has sold out his interest in the Grove Tavern to enter the coin-machine business. He is operating a route of Wurlitzer phonographs and amusement games.

Frank Goodyear, of Wyandotte, Mich., is among the new operators of vendors in this section. Another newcomer is George Koosis, of Detroit, who is starting off with a whole route of machines.

Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, July 17.—It's hot in Texas and it's hot in Fort Worth—so operators are taking advantage of the temporary shutdown on tables to go fishing and take long-needed vacations.

Sid Johnson and family, as well as Johnnie Wilson and wife, have just returned from Galveston and Houston.

where they spent a delightful week fishing and cruising. Johnnie and "Red" Johnson brought back a beautiful tan as well as the usual fish tales.

Ben McDonald left the operation of his machines in his capable assistant's hands and drove off to Colorado for a two weeks' vacation with his family.

Vacationing at the present time in Chicago and vicinity are Ernest Walker and his attractive wife and daughters. While in Chicago Ernest will be giving the various factories a lookover.

Big State Novelty Company, under the guidance of N. A. Nigro, has severed partnership with the Panther Novelty Company and is now located in new quarters at 13th and Taylor streets, this city. Nigro is centering his attention at the present time on phonographs and is giving some of the old-time phonops a run for their locations with his new and up-to-the-minute equipment.

Fort Worth Operators' Association met June 29 and elected new officers as follows: J. W. (Dad) Johnson, president; Ben McDonald, vice-president, and Helen Savage, secretary and treasurer. An executive committee, consisting of Bob Martin, Leslie Frankrich and Jack Maloney, was also appointed by the new president.

Out-of-town operators are coming in, with the Frontier Fiesta the drawing power, so it seems. Guy Kincannon, M. A. Walker, Jack Sprott, H. W. Carpenter and T. H. Brown were among the well-known operators who have dropped by the Automatic Amusement Company while in Fort Worth.

Clayburn Lindley and Shell Barth, of the popular and young operating team of Lindley & Barth from San Angelo, were also recent visitors at the Automatic Amusement Company buying new equipment for their territory. Clayburn was enthused over his recent vacation trip to California, which was his first, but he hopes not his last.

Mills Ball Teams Still Undefeated

CHICAGO, July 17.—Some of the teams in the Mills Novelty Company's soft-ball league are going great guns these days, particularly the Production and C. S. M. clubs, who have battled their way into the quarter-finals of The Chicago American Soft-Ball Tournament.

So far this season no outside team has beaten a Mills Novelty team. "This is all the more impressive," says Grant Shay, "when it is considered that we have always made it a policy to challenge the best teams available. Just this week, for instance, we gave the Erie Railroad outfit quite a trimming."

Two picked teams have been selected from the 12 clubs which make up the Mills League to play a feature game at the company's annual picnic, to be held this year at the Mills Stadium August 14. Everyone at the plant is reported to be becoming quite excited over the "all-star" game and it should be a rare dish for those who like their soft-ball served up red hot.

The picnic, by the way, will be attended by approximately 6,000 persons. All the employees and their families, together with the various friends of the company, are expected to be on hand. Officials in charge of the affair are reported to be bending every effort to make it a huge success. This week they announced that all food and refreshments will be free, and that a varied program is being planned to assure everyone a real honest-to-goodness good time.

Genco's Carnival Revives Memories

CHICAGO, July 17.—According to Dave Gensberg, official of Genco, Inc., the reason for the rapidity with which the country has taken to the firm's novelty release, Carnival, is not at once apparent.

As Gensberg put it: "The circus and the carnival are popular institutions and Carnival, our new game, has earned for itself a nation-wide acceptance. The game provides an unusual combination of bumper-spring and light-up action. It might take only one of the five balls to win an award for the player, inasmuch as a sufficient number of contacts might be made by one ball against a bumper spring whose number corresponds to the number of one of the scales on which the score is registered on the backboard. A colored button on the playing field is an added Genco touch which lends suspense to the play. If the button is contacted, odds and selections change.

"The backboard," he concluded, "shows five scales on which the score progresses in lights each time a ball strikes a bumper-spring numbered to correspond with the number of the scale. If a winning score is made on the scale whose number is lighted, awards are made according to the odds showing in lights along the bottom of the backboard."

Genco officials report that Carnival production has reached a point of several hundred games daily and that with the incessant demand for two previous Genco releases, Home Stretch and Auto Derby, the plant continues on an overtime schedule.

Coinography

By "SMITTY"

When one woman talks about another there is usually trouble afoot. But when one man talks about another, well, it is generally good news. And so it is with Smitty, otherwise known as R. E. Smith, service veteran of the O. D. Jennings organization. Smitty has been in every State of the Union and knows practically every operator and jobber by his first name; knows their virtues and their faults, knows their families.

So when anyone in the trade wants dope on Joe Calcutt he can figure that the best place to get it would be from Smitty. This is what he will say concerning Calcutt:

"Yes," says Smitty, "I have known Joe Calcutt since way back—1920, in fact. Those were the days when coin machine operating was a lot different than it is today and those were the days when the big names that we know today were just on the way up.

"When I first called on Joe he was little more than a boy. He had started in the coin machine business as an operator and was running postcard venders and candy and gum venders. In strange contrast to Calcutt's mammoth establishment today, his first place of business was a tiny shop behind a poolroom.

"When I came to call on him that first day he was wearing sneakers and overalls. He made his daily rounds to service the vending machines with a white horse and buggy.

"Even at that early date it was Calcutt's fixed determination to some day become a big operator. In fact, that has always been Joe's idea—to keep on growing and expanding. Altho he never said so, I don't doubt but that he believes in that old saying: 'When you're green you're growing, and when you're ripe you're rotten.'

"Calcutt's address has always been Fayetteville, N. C., altho he has had a number of establishments in that city. It isn't proper to classify him as a plunger, because he isn't that, but on the other hand he has always been a big buyer and his judgment has been sound, as proved by his expansion over the years.

"Today Joe Calcutt is probably Fayetteville's leading citizen. This statement is direct from a Fayetteville banker. Joe has a splendid family and is probably the best telephone salesman in the business. About other jobbers it has been said that they are always on the job. In the case of Joe Calcutt this is more than true. Salesmen, manufacturers' representatives or operators find no need to write or wire that they are coming, because they know in advance that Joe will be at his desk on the day that they call.

"The Vending Machine Exchange occupies a two-story building about a half block long. In this building is housed a warehouse, repair shop and office. Arrangements are such that trucks can drive into the building. The office is air-conditioned for best efficiency.

"A peculiar arrangement in Joe's private office is the well-stocked refrigerator. Here a visitor can find any sort of a drink to please his palate. Joe will join you in a drink if you wish, but his strongest is Coca-Cola.

"Today his organization has over 100 men in the field as territorial representatives. It is interesting to compare this big organization with the boy in sneakers and overalls who started business in a back room. Joe Calcutt's story is the story of a small-town boy who stayed home and made good."

Accurate Coin Counter Co.,

official, today announced the release of two new games, Turf Kings and Track Stars.

As the name implies, Turf Kings has a horse-racing motif, while Track Stars, drawing upon another popular sport, features foot racing. Outstanding among the innovations being presented in the games is the superize backboards, reported to be the largest ever built for novelty games.

According to Wolberg, lightup and ball action surpass anything now existent on games of this type. A novel light-up action on the new-type backboard is considered to be one of the few developments in pin games which may be considered completely original, it is said. Officials advise that location tests have brought a tremendous response from distributors and that advance orders forecast an unusually heavy production schedule. Further details of the game are to be revealed at an early date.

Billboard Publishing Company Billboard Building

Dear Sir:

Att: C. J. Latscha

For the past twelve years we have been advertising in the Billboard and have spent thousands of dollars with you and through your medium of advertising which has been the means of our establishing a national reputation of being one of the leading distributors in the United States of coin operated machines and amusement games.

Our full page ads in the Billboard not only bring immediate results after the ad appears but we very often receive orders referring to one of our full page ads possibly a year later which is quite obvious that these ads leave an impression on the buyer. He not only sell in the United States but also in foreign countries.

One of the many advantages the Billboard has over other coin machine mediums is that it is a weekly publication and should the market change on certain items the distributor immediately turn to the Billboard for information and also to advertise, as the Billboard is the only weekly coin machine magazine.

This letter is being written of our own free will and to extend our appreciation to you for the many courtesies extended us for this long period of time.

With kindest regards and trust that a continuance of pleasant relationship may exist for many years to come and that we may enjoy in the future, same as we have in the past, the response to our ads in the Billboard. Wishing you loads of success, we are

Yours very truly,

Ponser's Progress Brings Expansion

NEW YORK, July 19.—"We're going up and the sky's the limit," was Sales Manager Bert Lane's comment on the larger new quarters of the George Ponser Company at 31 W. 60th street here. "Every operator in New York and vicinity knows that the Ponser name behind any coin-operated device means that it has been location-tested over and over again. Because we go out of our way to make our customers our friends they have responded so generously with their business that we are forced to seek more space to accommodate them."

Ponser's new quarters are equipped to meet operators' and jobbers' needs from all conceivable angles. There will be a large stock of the latest games available at all times. An expert repair department and ample trade-in facilities will help keep everybody happy.

Among the new members on Ponser's staff are Eddie Lane, versatile brother of Bert Lane, who is reported to be doing a bang-up job as advertising manager; Leo Simon, formerly with the Supreme Vending Company, who now supervises the Ponser exports; Sol Silverstein, recognized as one of the most experienced and able "all around" men in the industry, and Milton Norton, who has gone out to New England to make that region Ponser-conscious.

Says George Ponser, president: "We've helped ourselves by helping others make money. We can stay in business only as long as we continue this policy . . . and we hope to be here for a long time."

Court Reopens Boardwalk Games

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 17.—Out of 32 boardwalk concessioners summarily closed last week by order of the mayor as skill games, chance games or raffles, 26 were given the word to reopen by New Jersey Chancery Court, granting an injunction to restrain the county authorities from closing the stands. Among the games given court sanction to remain in business were the bagatelle boards and all similar amusement machines.

Anthony J. Cafero, counsel for the game operators, presented their cases to Vice-Chancellor F. Frank Foy, arguing that none came under the legal classification of gambling. However, he emphatically refused to act until Cafero eliminated the names of six places which admittedly were either bingo games, monkey speedway or chances on autos, granting a blanket whitewash for all others, which included the amusement machines.

Dixie DOMINOES

This dynamic new Machine plays the 7-11 Game as realistically as floor. Ivory cubes rolling over the floor. At the insertion of coin, five Reels are set into rapid motion, at the same time shutters hide four of these Reels. As the Machine stops, first reel displays two dice. Perhaps they add up to SEVEN or ELEVEN, entitling player to reward, or they result in a total of 2-3-12, disqualifying player. But let a POINT show up, such as 4-5-6-8-9-10, and then watch the fun. Player can now make four "Rolls" by releasing one shutter after another. Every time the hope of making his "POINT" is when he did not roll a SEVEN and lots of thrill when POINT is finally made, entitling him to a reward of 2-4 or 10. DIXIE DOMINOES is the hottest Game on the Market. You can Dominate any Location with DIXIE DOMINOES. Price $29.50. Tax Paid.

Gensberg Returns From Vacation Tour

CHICAGO, July 17.—Sam Gensberg, official of the Chicago Coin Machine Manufacturing Company, returned to his desk this week after an extensive tour throughout the Southwest and South with his family. He reported his vacation as thoroughly enjoyable and says that he brought back several reels of film which are proof of the advantages of seeing America first.

Completely relaxed and refreshed, Gensberg immediately plunged into the work incidental to the production and release of two new Chicago Coin games, Turf Kings and Track Stars.

IABPB TO SEEK

the convention by President William Green of the AFL was a criterion. Cheered by what developed to be one of the most harmonious sessions in IABPB history, Green's message declared, in part: "We will resist every attempt made by subversive forces to impose upon the organized labor movement in America an imported philosophy designed to substitute dictatorship and autocracy . . . for democratic rule, individual and collective freedom and for the right to establish and maintain trade unions founded upon the principles of industrial democracy."

Numerous by-laws changes and routine business, as well as the president's report and all other convention discussions, will be distributed soon to all members in a printed booklet, Secretary-Treasurer William McCarthy informed.

The three-day parley, attended by 80 delegates, ended Wednesday night with a dinner-dance in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Pay boosts for circus posters will be determined at a meeting in December of a committee to be appointed by the president which will then present its plan to a combined meeting of circus agents, scheduled to be held to draw provisions for the 1938-39 contracts.

Average increase asked by the workers, unofficially considered by officers as too big a change from the agreement now in force, exceeded $20 weekly. Bill-posters with circuses now receive $120 per month plus $225 daily for meals, $2 for lodging when away from the wagon and free transportation. Carnival workers, in minority membership, sought no advances.

Recognition of the distributors by adding them to the signature of charters evolved from the executive board's desire to more closely regulate their activities since their unofficial acceptance thru the AFL several years ago, as well as to formally admit the IABPB's responsibilities to and exactions from the new members, according to C. C. Garrett, of Los Angeles, former second vice-president, who was appointed by Abernathy to the newly created post of assistant president in charge of IABPB affairs on the West Coast.

New York was chosen as the site of the next convention (1938), the first week in October instead of July as heretofore held, upon a telegraphed invitation from Mayor Fiorella La Guardia.

Officers elected to serve for the next two years are Leo Abernathy, Pittsburgh, incumbent, president; William McCarthy, New York, incumbent, secretary; Thomas Noonan, Boston, incumbent, treasurer; AFL delegate, Harry Gunderson, Chicago; Harry Cahill, Chicago, sergeant at arms; William Moran, Jersey City; William Willis, Paterson, N. J.; William Sharp, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Joseph Raymond, Westchester, N. Y.; Roy Fitzgerald, Indianapolis; Loyd Gilmour, San Francisco, and Carl Shade, Cleveland, vice-presidents; Robert Walker, St. Louis, trustee; Mike Noch, Detroit, second delegate.

has witnessed since Guy Weadick staged one in New York's Sheepshead Bay a quarter of a century ago.

Nevertheless the sponsors are not kidding the public or press about character of show, which they are putting forth as an exhibition of Wild West, but from looks of things will compare with out-and-out competitive shows, even tho it is admitted that the major rodeos in the East, as well as elsewhere, have usually had plenty of "contract" contestants and straight non-competitive exhibition events.

Hinkle and Hamid have set the machinery going to bring in the pick of contestant talent from the West. A carload of top-flight bucking horses, augmenting Hinkle's own array of stock, is due into the Hub from Bozeman, Mont., and negotiations are under way for other stock and available contestant and exhibition timber.

Capacity of Suffolk Downs is approximately 20,000 but will be made to seat close to 30,000 for the show. Midway inclosure just outside entrance to track will be occupied by rides, games, shows and other attractions of a carnival nature. It has not been decided as yet whether midway will be an independent proposition or whether an organized carnival will be booked in to fill the bill.

Billing and publicity on event are already in the launch stage. Nearly 10,000 sheets of paper will be hung early next week, with the big 24-sheet stands given to special billposters, including John Donnelly & Son, of Roxbury, Mass.; F. H. Birch & Company, Somerville, Mass., and the Eagle Advertising Company, Boston.

Floyd Bell, publicity director of the Eastern Racing Association and a veteran circus agent, is on the spot supervising all public relations activities. He will be joined next week by Joe Knight, head of the Hinkle press staff, devoting himself to features. About 10 days before the event begins Leonard Traube, press and advertising chief of the Hamid enterprises, will join up with Bell and Knight. Paul N. Denish, manager of the Hamid Boston office, is busy on his own end, with the Hub staff attending to details prior to Hamid's Boston visit to supervise the layout.

Show will be a nightly affair, with matinees thrown in on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday. General admission will be 40 cents, and reserved seats will go for $1.50, making a total of $1.90 for the better locations. Fireworks will close each evening performance. There will be two bands, Indian and cowboy, and guest stars in the rodeo category.

Mills Advertising

By JAMES T. MANGAN

Advertising Manager Mills Novelty Co., Chicago

People love to discuss advertising. I have never found so lively or general a topic for parlor conversation as advertising—plain, unvarnished, commercial advertising. Men and women alike have very definite views on the subject and their views are always useful, interesting and individual. I have often come across laymen who never had any occasion to create or sponsor advertising of their own who had a saner, more practical knowledge of the subject than many dyed-in-the-wool advertising men.

Mills customers, to whom Mills advertising is addressed, are just the same as other people. They, too, love to discuss advertising and on countless occasions I have traded views with operators on the subject. The general question that always comes up is "What do you put into advertising that makes it so different from that of competitors?" This question makes me feel great, for we certainly do try to distinguish our advertising from not only our competitors in our own field, but also every other kind of advertising used by any concern in the world. And there is something special behind it—a plan, an attitude, a sense of individuality and responsibility.

I have an undying respect for advertising as a craft. I say to produce a perfect piece of advertising—judged simply from the craft standpoint—is just as worthy as to build a great cathedral, write an immortal book or a noble poem. Of course, the advertising appears just once and then is gone. The other things last. But the act of creating each—of guiding it to completion with care, skill and spirit—is essentially, the same. You may have to get the advertising out faster, but you don't have to make it dull, sloppy or defective just because you act fast!

Building a piece of printed advertising is exactly the same as building a product. First, there is a need for the advertising. Then, thru idea and invention, you project in your mind something new. Next you fit this something new to your business plan; you make your design.

You design advertising in just the same way as you design a product. You make a layout. You devise specifications. You finish your drawings. From these issue the individual pattern, which in manufacturing, is known as a die and in advertising as a plate. The die and the plate are going to knock out hundreds or thousands of the same parts over and over.

In advertising, as in manufacturing, after you have your pattern you purchase your materials; you factor them into definite shape by means of your special pattern on the proper manufacturing machine. Then you take the parts and assemble them into a whole. Because advertising is all done on paper don't get the idea it isn't like manufacturing. It is manufacturing. And to get good advertising, just as to achieve good manufacturing, you must have a sense of craft. You must be proud of the work; you must be careful; you must consider the hundreds of different ways in which a job may go wrong and take the proper steps to prevent it from going wrong.

What you see in Mills advertising that seems to make it different is simply craftsmanship. I have an idea all advertising of any product should be as good in its way as the product in its way. Because if you produce shoddy advertising for a quality product you are simply harming the product by giving the public the impression it, too, is as shoddy as the advertising.

Because Mills Novelty Company puts so much time, money and care into the design and manufacture of its products I believe that we have to match the factory's care and the factory's quality with our advertising's care and quality.

Of course, you don't see the hundreds of changes, the hundreds of things that have been done to give our advertising that "different look." You don't see the hundreds of ideas that floated along the mental airways and were rejected as not fitting. You don't see the wealth of beautiful layouts that were thrown away. You don't realize that a certain drawing has been done several times—that a line of lettering is crisp, stylish and striking simply because behind it there are patient, competent execution, years of study and still more years of keeping up with styles and trends in lettering. You read the type because it is easy to read. You don't realize that the type in our advertising is easy to read only because a head, a heart and a hand made it easy to read; for you know very well that the type in most advertising is very hard to read, tires you out and causes your eyes to wander away.

You don't know of the scores of places where copy has been rewritten; where it has been cut drastically; where lines have been filled in to make the physical appearance of the page all that it should be. Everything looks so orderly, neat and well balanced that you just can't think that unless care were used, sacrifices made and patience shown with the unpleasant part of the work the whole thing would have been a disgraceful jumble of words and lines, uninviting to the eye and impossible for the brain to assimilate.

Craftsmanship is nothing more than ability acquired thru experience and exercised with everlasting care and thoroughness. Craftsmanship isn't merely the property of the artist, the mechanic, the man who works with his hands. There can be craftsmanship in writing a letter, in taking care of a filing system, in meeting and handling people. It's all a matter of caring. We create about 1,500 pieces of advertising each year and, tho a lot of it is produced in an awful hurry, I like to think that none of it is done without care or spirit. I like to be connected with advertising that can hold its head up wherever it appears.

Same Old Story

To the Editor: "I am inclosing an article which I believe is a dandy. I think, with your prolific pen, you can make comments on this which would be of interest to all of the operators."—Lee S. Jones, American Sales Corporation, Chicago.

THE SAME OLD STORY—VICE AND GAMBLING. (By Bruno Lessing, in The Sunday Herald and Examiner, New York.) The police commissioner of this metropolis appeared on the first page of every newspaper recently. He told all his inspectors that gambling and vice in New York must cease.

Personally I do not see any reason for it. I like to gamble occasionally, especially in an attractive government-regulated casino with beautiful and artistic surroundings. And I simply adore vice. By that, of course, I mean my own kind of vice. And I'm not going into details. But I abhor many of the vices of others. Such as intolerance, prejudice, bigotry, selfishness, gluttony, avarice, cruelty and dishonesty.

Nevertheless I applaud this police commissioner's heroic stand. And all good citizens should applaud in chorus. We should make all our cities cleaner and better. Even the streets should be so clean that no angel would fear to tread them.

But there is one thing about all this that sorely puzzles me. Many, many years ago there was a police commissioner in New York by the name of Bill Devery. Somewhat of a roughneck, to be sure, but one day, a few months before election, he called all his inspectors together and told them that gambling and vice must cease. Then, several years later, another police commissioner called all his inspectors together and told them that gambling and vice must cease. After that, every few years—usually on the eve of an election campaign—one commissioner after another told his inspectors the same thing.

And during all those years I noticed that the same thing has happened in other cities in the United States. Police commissioners gathered their inspectors around them and gave the ultimatum: gambling and vice must cease. Even as recently as last month, while I was in San Francisco, I learned that a grand jury had discovered that gambling and vice existed and that they must be stopped.

When I lived in Rome I came upon an interesting book giving details of life in Roman towns 2,000 years ago. It seems that progressive and enlightened citizens discovered that gambling and vice existed and made a great howl about it. The prefect or defect or whatever the police commissioner of that day was called gathered his subordinates about him and told them that gambling and vice must cease.

"St. Anthony at church
Was left in the lurch,
So he went to the ditches
And preached to the fishes."

He told them of their bad habits. He told the eels not to wiggle, the pokes not to steal, the crabs not to walk sideways.

"The sermon now ended,
Each turned and decended;
The pikes went on stealing,
The eels went on ceiling,
Much delighted were they,
But preferred the old way."

I hardly know whether to weep or to laugh. Mrs. Partington is weary of her task of sweeping back the waves of the ocean and an up-to-date police commissioner of this, the greatest city in the land, takes the broom out of her hand and announces that he will carry on.

Prophetic extract from The Evening Journal and New York American, two months before election, A. D. 1936: "Police Commissioner Goofus called his inspectors together and told them that gambling and vice must cease."

Inasmuch as the only remedy lies in civic consciousness, in the abolition of hypocrisy, prejudice and squeamishness, in a higher intelligence—and other unattainable goals—far be it from me to discuss it.

Warns Against Sending Deposits to Strangers

To the Editor: "Some time ago we received a circular letter from one 'Mr. Jack Jordan,' giving the address of 254 Drexel Building, Philadelphia, offering a lot of coin-operated machines for sale. We ordered six machines from him, sending him a $50 deposit.

"The deposit was sent June 28 and he promised shipment that day. As yet we haven't heard from him, and this is one of those things that happen regularly. I put in a phone call for him yesterday and learned that he had left Philadelphia. I also found out that he cashed my money order in Atlanta June 30.

"Today I am turning this over to the postal authorities in Washington, and I am merely writing you so that you may publish it in The Billboard and advise all coinmen against sending a deposit to anyone they do not know. This is our first experience along this line and I guess it is worth $50, as we will never do it again as long as we are in business.

"I am sending this letter to all coin machine publications for the benefit of the industry."—Joe Frank, Automatic Sales Company, Nashville.

Variety of Machines Operated by Strong

DETROIT, July 17.—William (Bill) Strong, of Saginaw, Mich., is one of the best known operators in that former lumber center of Michigan, which is now a thriving industrial city. Strong's routes cover the whole territory and extend considerably beyond the city limits as well. He is said to operate just about everything in the coin-controlled machine line. He is, in fact, ready to give a location owner his choice of just about anything he wants.

Planning to develop a more stable type of machine operation, Strong is placing a sizable order for a route of Jennings advertising scales which will, he believes, result in steady income regardless of temporary conditions in other fields of operation.

Small Store Best Location, Says Rohr

DETROIT, July 17.—"The most profitable type of locations I have had for my own routes," revealed L. V. Rohr, owner of one of Detroit's oldest jobbing houses, "has been the small neighborhood shop in some outlying district. Usually these are men I have dealt with for the last 10 or 12 years with gum, nut and candy machines. When pin games became popular I was able to install them in these locations on a profitable basis. I can even give these men the keys to the machines and I know I'll get every cent that is coming to me. That is the way I like to do business.

"Seventy-five per cent of my business is in merchandise vending machines. There's more profit in a $1-a-month net return on a small gum machine than in a much greater return from a $75 amusement game. A gum machine, for instance, put in 10 years ago and kept properly serviced is still good for a steady patronage. Novelty games don't last that way, as operators know.

"I have given up all downtown locations for pin games," he continued. "I prefer to operate on a maximum percentage of 64 per cent, but competition has forced the rate up in the downtown section so that location owners are getting 65 to 90 per cent of the proceeds. Hotels seem to get about the highest percentages of all. One operator undercutting the other to get a location started the whole thing, but conditions now look like the end of a price war is in sight.

"I'd like to see a three-month holiday forced on pin games with no machines allowed to operate during that time. I think that would drive out the operators who give these high percentages and leave a better chance for the legitimate operator."

"Duke" Sterner Joins Ideal Novelty's Staff

ST. LOUIS, July 17.—L. H. (Duke) Sterner, formerly with the Coin Machine Exchange, Springfield, Mo., joined the ranks of the Ideal Novelty Company here this week in the capacity of office manager and route supervisor.

Carl F. Trippe, owner and manager of the Ideal firm, believes Sterner's long experience in the coin machine game will be a valuable asset to his firm.

negotiations are completed affecting those employees upon which the film companies and IA have agreed.

When and if negotiations on basic matters are completed by August 15, a general conference will be called to set general standard provisions of each agreement.

New York City film exchange employees' contract is now ready for negotiating the early part of next week. In those departments with which the IA is particularly concerned, organization is practically 100 per cent.

unsurpassed intensity, is quietly scuttled. The Cradle Will Rock, done by a Federal Theater unit that has never known failure, is legislated off the production list.

"There is diabolic intent about all this. One thousand seven hundred firings, indiscriminate show closings, general demoralization, all point to the eventual wrecking of the Federal Theater unless the one ray of hope for these harassed workers should materialize.

"That faint augury of salvation is the Schwellenbach-Allen Bill, now in the House Appropriations Committee. This would continue WPA at full strength until everyone can be absorbed into private employment and would continue union wage rates so that the WPA would not undercut the wage standards of organized labor.

"You don't have to be told what this means to the theater.

"If you are a producer you know there are no jobs to give these thousands of hungry workers. If you are an actor you know that you simply cannot stand this murderous competition. In short, if you are at all conversant with the desperate situation in the theater you cannot but approve of the Schwellenbach-Allen Bill. Write and telegraph to the House Appropriations Committee, demanding that it be reported favorably out of committee."

DISCHARGED WPAERS—

sion of the City Projects Council stated the case for the discharged workers as follows:

"Last week 1,700 actors and entertainers were left stranded by a single producer. That producer was Uncle Sam himself, who decreed that the biggest show on earth, the WPA Federal Theater Project, should be out by 30 per cent.

"Broadway needs no psychic vision to foresee the specter of 1,700 hungry troupers storming its gates for jobs that do not exist. Last Friday hundreds of dismissed Federal Theater workers applied to every known theater employment source, but there was not even one job to be had.

"Way back in 1927-'28 Equity reported that only 30 per cent of its 8,500 workers were employed, 79 per cent of these marvelously fortunate souls working less than nine weeks. Since that 'prosperity' year the percentage has become even more deplorable.

"Federal Theater tried to stem this disastrous tide. It was beginning to succeed. Five thousand seven hundred workers produced 1,400 plays, giving a total of 45,000 performances. Now, at the apex of its young career, the Federal Theater is struck down. Successful shows are run off the boards. Power, a triumph of national scope, is closed. Professor Mamlock, a social drama of the removal of a brain tumor. His brother, Ira, who wrote lyrics for his music, was at the bedside. The composer had been on the Coast working on nine compositions for The Goldwyn Follies and had completed five.

His musical career started at the age of 12 when he took his first piano lessons. In later years he worked as plugger in Tin Pan Alley. His fans lay in the dignity he brought to jazz and modern composition, and in such compositions as his Rhapsody in Blue and the opera Porgy and Bess.

Besides his brother, Ira, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Rose Gershwin; a sister, Mrs. Leopold Godowsky Jr., and another brother, Arthur. He was a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the Lambs' Club and the Bohemians.

Both operators said that they cannot compete with such houses as Loew's State and the Paramount. Apollo opened yesterday with an elaborate show and the Oriental is due to open this Wednesday with a colored policy.

A checkup on the shows is being made by the mayor's censorship board thru Sam A. Scribner, who is executive secretary of the board. Scribner is assisted by Fred Sears. Very little censorship was necessary, as the shows were living up to the letter of the agreements signed by the operators. Only nudity is in the posing numbers, which has been oked, while the dialog has been scrubbed clean.

Lemke Praises Ray Rifle Guns

DETROIT, July 17.—"Ray Rifle Guns have met with the greatest success of any machines in my experience of operating," Henry C. Lemke, of the Lemke Coin Machine Company, said this week. "Our own orders have been so large that the factory is three weeks behind in shipping new machines to us. We can't obtain Eagle Eyes fast enough. The future of the guns looks mighty promising."

"Pin games, however, appear to be passe locally," he continued. "I haven't bought a new game in the last two months. I think one trouble that has contributed to this decline is the fact that too many new models have been brought out by different manufacturers at one time. I have had different location owners ask for as many as three new machines in a week because they were so confused over the different models brought out."

The huge variety of scoring reward cards gives every operator ideas for using the games. He can adapt each game to any particular location and also to pop up the play wherever interest in games may have been allowed to ebb thru the use of unattractive games.

"A new type of layout is provided to give the bumping action new meaning. By the use of the chrome-plated steel playing panel it is given flash and a suspense that all players like. The strongest possible appeal to the player is made thru the use of at least five definite points at which to shoot to pile up a high score. Operators have reported that this varied appeal is a winning feature in every location."

The Tournament table is described as having an artistic cabinet, bright scoring box, automatic scoring register, tilt and game complete notices. Its marvelous action is said to be the winning feature with all types of players.

Tournament Game Has New Action

CHICAGO, July 17.—The rebound qualities of rubber are put to full use in the new Tournament table game recently placed on the market by Mills Novelty Company. A thick, heavy cushion of rubber runs around all the bumpers and is also used to line all sides of the playing field. According to the maker, this gives the game far more bounce than any metal springs could possibly do. A new heavy type of rubber is also being used in the game, they state.

Since the first announcement of the game, the trade's response has been unusual. Mills officials report. "Operators quickly recognized that the wealth of ideas in design built into Tournament would provide a rich appeal to players.

Fever for Gambling

Less important than a head-on collision between the State Supreme Court and a local district judge concerning an effort to suppress alleged slot-machine gambling is the very evident fact that the country is now being swept by the greatest mania for gambling the present generation has ever seen.

More discouraging than the attitude of a single district judge to the forces of civic righteousness is the fairly evident fact that many people and possibly a clear majority of the people consider many forms of downright gambling a harmless procedure.

Not since the old and malodorous Louisiana lottery was driven from the States has there been such a widespread demand for the legalization of other lotteries. In more than one legislature serious efforts have been made to make lotteries legal. Even Congress has received a bill providing for the legalization of lotteries on a national scale.

Meanwhile there is a considerable demand thruout the country for the creation of lotteries to pay a part of the prodigious expenses of government. Meanwhile also a growing number of people are demanding that the restrictions upon all forms of gambling be removed.

Naturally, if a majority of the people ever come to look upon open gambling with approval, the laws forbidding gambling will be repealed speedily or nullified by neglect. For with gambling as with the prohibition statutes, the will of the majority is the supreme law.—(Editorial in The Daily Oklahoman, July 13, 1937.)

Pacific's Phantom Wins New Locations

CHICAGO, July 17.—Said to possess the most unusual combination of play-attracting features ever assembled into a payout table, Pacific's Phantom is winning locations at a rapid pace in every section of the country, according to current reports from Pacific distributors.

"They're setting them up as fast as they can," says Paul Bennett, Pacific sales manager. "Today you'll see one, tomorrow five, Saturday 50. It's the same story everywhere."

"Eight products now comprise the company's complete line, described in a broadside which has just been made available to operators seeking information on what's new and successful in coin machines. The line includes two pay tables, a new novelty game, three de luxe consoles, Pacific's Ball Game and Pacific's Gum Merchant, fulfilling Pacific's promise of 'Everything for Everywhere.'"

The demand for a variety of location equipment of the most productive and profitable kind is leading more and more operators to standardize on Pacific products, according to those with an intimate knowledge of current trends in the coin machine industry, Bennett adds.

Kirk Will Offer New Scale Soon

CHICAGO, July 17.—C. R. Kirk, president of C. R. Kirk & Company, gave out the word this week that his firm would soon place a new scale on the market. A preview of the scale appeared in The Billboard July 10 issue, as it is being tested in the Gerber gameroom of the Hotel Sherman. These and other tests, according to Kirk, have indicated the immense appeal which such a new departure in scales will have.

The scale combines the appeal of weight and an astrology reading on a card. The customer turns a button on the machine to his proper birth sign to get the reading. A novel advertising sign in motion is also on the front of the scale. It is a new scale designed to derive national interest in weighing machines, Kirk says.

Kirk also stated that he was in position to announce to the trade that all litigation between O. D. Jennings & Company and C. R. Kirk & Company had been settled to the satisfaction of all parties and that no further suits or claims are pending. He also announced that he had purchased the entire interest of O. D. Jennings in C. R. Kirk & Company and that he is now sole owner of the latter firm.

With the new arrangements Kirk is going ahead with important plans for the marketing of the new scale and also for the manufacture of other new products to be announced in due time.
