Trade Presses Spin at Peak; Race With Output Timetable

By RAY BRACK and EARL PAIGE

CHICAGO—The industry's pressing facilities are operating at 100 per cent capacity and manufacturers are scrambling to meet peak-season production schedules.

This is the first full utilization of the industry's full pressing capacity, according to some industry authorities. And the overtaxing of the industry's 3-million-unit-per-day peak pressing capacity is sending major, independent and minor record companies in frequently futile quest of auxiliary facilities.

"For the first time in my memory the industry's capacity for production is being utilized to the fullest," said Mercury Record Corp. executive vice-president Irwin Steinberg. "Other major companies are coming to us for capacity, but we're running at full potential."

Columbia Record Productions, the custom pressing wing of CBS, is running at peak production levels at its three plants, in manufacturing for Columbia, Epic and the Columbia Record Club, as well as numerous outside customers.

"We're at full capacity with both LP's and singles," said Ralph Williams, director of custom pressing for RCA Victor. "And from what we can observe, this is true throughout the industry. Most record companies are looking around for capacity. We're distributing our business among our regular accounts."

"Though this time of year is always a peak season, we're making more records than we've ever made at RCA. The surge began suddenly last summer and has been building."

"Yes, the pace began picking up in July," reported (Continued on page 8)

By DON WEDGE

LONDON—Pye's increasing involvement in exporting to Europe, which is playing an important part in its current boom year, has placed it in a dilemma along with other British firms, over production of compatible albums.

Since the introduction of compatible LP's in Germany, with a few labels marketing separate stereo and mono versions of the same release, acceptance has spread through most key Continental markets.

As French Vogue President Leon Cabat said "If you want to sell albums across frontiers in Europe you must offer compatible product."

The big hold-up seems to be Britain, although some firms, notably Saga and Ember, both heavily involved in direct export, are marketing compatible albums in Britain. No major is involved so far.

Technical objections are based on the unsuitability of pick-ups used in the UK. The majority are of an old design, whereas on the Continent faster turnover to reproducing equipment has encouraged manufacturers to switch to up-dated designs.

Liberty Going Diversification

By ELIOT TIEGEL

LOS ANGELES—Liberty will embark on a diversification program into related entertainment areas next year, corporate president Al Bennett revealed last week. "With one or two exceptions, we will make no other record company acquisitions," the executive said. "Instead, we will try to purchase several publishing companies and possibly expand into the manufacture of musical instruments and raw tape."

Bennett also revealed he has his eyes on the educational equipment field as well as the premium industry. The company will combine these two areas under one division, Bennett said, either by acquisition, or by the development of its own educational and premium operation.

Bennett outlined these goals last week in explaining his role—and philosophy—of the company, following the resignation of Phil Skaff, executive vice-president for the past three years. "My role is to guide and direct the company, keep it solid financially, diversify it in product lines and by acquisitions give it a broad base of representation."

Bledsoe Role

While Bennett foresees taking more of a role in daily activities, Ron Bledsoe, his executive assistant, will participate more in all phases of the corporation, the president stated. Bledsoe has principally been working in the tape cartridge and tape manufacturing end of Liberty's spectrum, traveling frequently to Omaha to oversee construction of Liberty's new tape duplication factory at TOC Electronics which should shortly commence operation.

Bennett said he is presently concentrating on consolidating management and sharpening internal operating procedures based on the company's swift expansion growth this year. Once these administrative guidelines are completed, he will begin actively pursuing the diversification program next year. Bennett said he anticipates at least one of the two record acquisitions in 1967.

Re-emphasizing his role as chief executive for "broadening the scope of the company," Bennett pointed to the organization's senior and junior executives as the "employees who are really responsible for the company. We have a strong young executive staff and they run the company."

In line with providing added responsibility to his division managers, Bennett said the divisional operating procedure would be strengthened. "We are giving more autonomy to division managers. So long as they (the division managers for Liberty-Imperial-World Pacific-Blue Note-TDC) live within policy, all I want to see is performance."

George Rose, Louise Troy and Norman Wisdom are at their delightful best in Capitol Records' original Broadway cast recording of the bright new musical, "Walking Happy" (SVAS 2631). The score is by seasoned collaborators Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen. (Advertisement)

The two actions were approved by the NAMM executive committee recently. The committee also:

- Discussed establishment of an active phonograph record dealer committee to promote association services in areas such as statistical studies, inventory control systems, methods or guides for reporting best sellers, standardization, etc.

- Scheduled a marketing session of the Phonograph Record/

500G Offer To Beatles

NEW YORK—Whether the Beatles are giving up personal appearances or not should be settled Tuesday (29) when Sid Bernstein offers them $500,000 to return to the States for two performances back-to-back at Shea Stadium. The British group walked away from single performances in 1965 and 1966 with $160,000 each time.

Bernstein attributed the slight loss due to the non-exclusivity of the show; this time he wants the show exclusive in the U. S. "so I can get all of the kids from Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington as well as the New York area." Bernstein is in Europe touring with the Young Rascals, whom he manages.

AFM Audits of Record Mfrs. Set Off a Controversial Storm

NEW YORK—Several controversial matters are being raised as a result of current American Federation of Musicians' audits of record manufacturers. The audits are for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of Trust Fund royalties which should be distributed to AFM members who participated on record dates. Starting with 1964, one half of the funds are placed in a Special Payment AFM fund.

One of the key points of dispute is the matter of free goods.

Manufacturers have admitted that the AFM auditors feel that large quantities of free goods should not be considered as promotional product; that such a practice reduces the amount of money for musicians.

One spokesman for a top record label said: "We and the union should try to set some ground rules. We should seek to arrive at an understanding as to what can be considered a 'proper' amount of free goods."

This executive also said that a similarly thorny issue was another type of free goods—albums given out free to members of record clubs.

Other troublesome areas, he indicated, were lack of agreement as to what constitutes the retail price, and whether the cost of covers or jackets should be considered as a separate item.

Still another source of controversy is the matter of interpretation of foreign contracts having to do with the sale of American-made disks overseas.

RCA's Country Artists Putting on Hot Sales Showing, Form Style

NEW YORK—Out of RCA Victor's country roster of 35 artists, 15 have either visited foreign countries or have achieved unusual foreign sales success without going overseas, according to Steve Sholes, division vice-president, popular artists and repertoire.

This activity on the part of Victor's country artists has been stepped up in the past several years as a result of requests of foreign licensees, and the treks have been facilitated by the international liaison department headed by Dario Soria and his aide, Dick Broderick. This increasing international activity schedule of foreign language recordings by the country artists.

the foreign activity by Victor country talent:

Eddy Arnold has visited England, Holland, Belgium and Ireland. His greatest foreign market is England. He has recorded in Afrikaans. Bobby Bare has visited Germany, Scandinavia, Japan, Holland and Belgium. His best foreign market is Scandinavia, and he has recorded in German and Swedish. Jim Edward Brown has visited Germany, Scandinavia, England and Japan. Germany is his best foreign market and he has recorded in German. Skeeter Davis has visited Germany and Japan. Her best foreign market is Germany and she has recorded in German.

Connie Smith, while not yet an overseas visitor, records in French. Her best foreign sales are in Japan and France. Hank Locklin has visited England and sales are in Ireland. Hank Snow has visited Europe and Japan, and the latter is his biggest overseas market. Floyd Cramer has traveled all over Europe, South Africa and Japan, and Chet Atkins has been to England, Germany, Holland, Japan, Italy and South Africa. They are strong sellers on a world level. The Browns have been to Germany, Scandinavia, England and Japan. Don Gibson and George Hamilton IV, while not known in overseas personal appearances, nevertheless have good sales—Gibson on a world level and Hamilton in Belgium and Holland.

'All-Product' Label Is Formed by Kapp

NEW YORK—Mickey Kapp, who resigned as executive vice-president of Kapp Records recently, has formed his own record label, Compass Records, with headquarters at 200 West 57 Street here. The operation gets underway Monday (28), and the first release is set for shortly after the first of the year.

Kapp said that the label will operate in the "pop mainstream" of the business. He explained that the firm will not draw any line of distinction between specific kinds of product and will be interested in any material with hit potential—including r&b, country, folk or any combination of these styles.

Kapp has also set up a separate firm, Redstone Productions, to handle production projects of a long-term nature. He will also acquire publishing interests.

First employee hired by the new label is Roz Schrank, who had been Kapp's secretary and right-hand girl at Kapp Records for eight years.

An alumnus of Stanford University, a U. S. Navy veteran and a radio producer for the Armed Forces Radio Services, Kapp started his record career as a trainee with Decca, but most of his career has been spent with Kapp Records, which his father, Dave Kapp, founded in 1953.

During his tenure at Kapp Records, Kapp produced five Jack Jones albums, the original cast album of "Man of La Mancha" and the Louis Armstrong single and album of "Hello, Dolly!" He also was responsible for the Jose Jimenez and "You Don't Have to Be Jewish" comedy albums, and he established the self-contained audio and mastering department.

Musicor to Open Unit in Puerto Rico

PUERTO RICO—Musicor Records is planning to establish a branch office here in early 1967, it was announced last week by the label's President Art Talmadge. Talmadge and other Musicor executives were here attending a reception for the press and deejay hosted by Musicor artist Tito Rodriguez.

The new Musicor office in Puerto Rico will eventually include studio facilities and a separate Latin producing firm will be established.

Signings announced at the press reception included the re-packing of the Los Hispanos, Chano Scotty and his orchestra from Argentina; the Montmartre Quartet who appear on Tito Rodriguez' Puerto Rican TV show.

Visiting Puerto Rico with Talmadge were Chris Spinosa, vice-president in charge of sales, and Latin promotion man Frank Billoni.

ATL. FALL LP PROGRAM HAS RECORD SALES

NEW YORK—The Atlantic fall album sales program has been the most successful in the history of the label, with the 20 October Atlantic-Atco releases topping $2 million in sales.

Artists pulling for Atlantic and subsidiary labels were Percy Sledge, Otis Redding, Herbie Mann, the Shadows of Knight, King Curtis, Acker Bilk, Leslie Uggams, Modern Jazz Quartet and Sergio Mendes.

November product is by Bobby Darin, Wilson Pickett, Sonny & Cher and the Young Rascals.

Len Sachs, Atlantic album head, said 1967 sales will be the best in the label's history.

FIGHT SETTLED OVER TROGGS

NEW YORK—Atlantic and Mercury have settled their differences about the Troggs, the British group whose recordings have been issued by both Atco (Atlantic) and Fontana (Mercury) in the U. S. The Troggs will be released only on Fontana, and Atlantic will discontinue the manufacture of all Troggs records. However, Atco distributors will be able to sell all Atco Troggs recordings they have in stock, and Atlantic will receive royalties on Troggs recordings issued on Fontana for a specified period.

Rosen Adding Its Own Label

PHILADELPHIA—David Rosen, independent record distributor, will add his own record label to the approximately 30 labels now handled by his David Rosen, Inc.

With Harry Rosen, vice-president of the company in charge of the record distributing division, at the helm, Rosen has set up DRinc Record Co. and a subsidiary DRinc Music Co. The record label will carry the DRinc name. David Rosen, Inc., is also one of the largest distributors of music, amusement and vending machines, linked with Rowe, AMI, and is the United States distributor for the new Cinejukebox machine which combines movies and jukebox in a single unit.

Harry Rosen said the primary purpose of the new record and music firms is to provide a medium for the development of local talent, including composers as well as performers. The company will also serve as personal manager for such talent.

COL. ISSUES CABARET DECK

NEW YORK—Columbia Records this week issued the original Broadway cast album of "Cabaret," which opened Sunday (20) to smash reviews. Based on Christopher Isherwood's "Berlin Stories" and John Van Druten's play, "I Am a Camera," the musical deals with Germany in the early 1930's. The cast includes Lotte Lenya, Jack Gilford and Jill Haworth.

Top Record Execs to Go To MIDEM

CANNES, France—A number of top U. S. record company executives will attend the forthcoming Marche International du Disque et de L'edition Musicale (MIDEM) event here.

Scheduled to be on the scene for the first international disk and music publishing exposition will be Columbia Records president Goddard Lieberson, accompanied by the CBS Records International head Harvey Schein; Mercury Records president, Irving Green; Atlantic vice-president, Nesuhi Ertegun, among others. U. S. participants will also include Mira Records' Randell Wood, the Greif-Garris Management firm, Go-Go Records and several music publishers.

MIDEM will be held Jan. 30-Feb. 4 at the Palais des Festivals, scene of the International Cannes Film Festival. The affair, believed to be the first of its kind in the record-music industry, is being organized and staged by Bernard Chevry.

Approximately 120 firms have registered as participants, representing the U. S., United Kingdom, France, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, Yugoslavia, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Finland and Brazil. Considerably more registrants are expected by year's end.

Mfrs. Mull Slapping a Royalty Fee on Radio Airplay of Record

NEW YORK—Record manufacturers in the United States and Canada are giving increasing thought to the possibility of levying a royalty on the radio performance of a record. In Canada, as in many European countries, the copyright law already provides for a royalty for such use—but the manufacturers have never pressed for the implementation of this right. The United States Copyright Act does not provide for a levy for such a use—but many argue that the morality of the issue cannot be questioned. Chief protagonist of this has been Alan Livingston, Capitol president, who presented arguments favoring such a levy in a statement to the subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, June 10, 1965.

Canadian record manufacturers, queried recently, admitted they were presently exploring the matter of seeking a royalty levy—which would be fixed by the Copyright Appeals Board. The Canadians, however, stated they preferred to see initial action taken in the United States. They also expressed the fear that stations would favor record labels which didn't exact a levy.

Meanwhile, back in the States, the matter of a royalty based on the performance of a record over the air was aired at the last board meeting of the Record Industry of America. The RIAA refused to divulge the nature of the discussion, other than to say it was "interesting."

Tradesters note that the increasing concern of manufacturers regarding a royalty on records reflects their concern over rising costs. It also reflects concern over projected changes in the Copyright Act—one of which is the suggested increase in mechanicals, from a ceiling of 2 cents to 2½ cents. One large manufacturer stated that if these rising costs are not met by such means as a record performance royalty, the increased production costs would have to be passed on to the consumer.

Tickets for Burton Fete Going Quickly

NEW YORK—More than 300 tickets have already been sold for the March 21 music-record industry dinner honoring the last BMI president, Robert J. Burton. Morris Levy, head of the dinner committee of the Friends of Bob Burton organization, said he expected 2,000 music-record people at the dinner.

Proceeds of the dinner will go to establish a $100,000 fellowship at Columbia University Law School for research in the field of music copyright.

At the first committee meeting last week, the possibility of having an annual dinner to raise funds for education in the field of music was one of the prime topics. Levy, who's currently lining up entertainment for the dinner feels that an annual event like this "is something we need in the industry. The record business has always represented something unsavory in the minds of most of the public. Yet, between publishing and records, it's a billion-dollar business. It's time we set out to improve our image."

But the dinner project represents more than just a public relations effort on behalf of the industry, Morris said. "Every one of the scholarships or fellowships we could set up with annual dinners like this could eventually benefit the industry. These trained personnel would be entering the business and helping advance it."

Among those attending the first dinner meeting last week were Joe D'Imperio, Hal Cook, Mike Stewart, Marty Ostrow, Phil Kahl, Theo Zavin, and Howie Richmond. The possibility of a second dinner to raise funds to endow a chair at Columbia University School of Business Administration in the field of music business was discussed.

Already, more than $50,000 has been raised by the Friends of Bob Burton for the law fellowship. This came from contributions from publishers and writers, mostly. But it falls far would be able to join and receive a monthly newsletter covering activities in the field. An amendment to the Academy's bylaws will be presented at the next monthly meeting. It would expand membership to the public. The Academy was originally created to foster country music through participation by professionals directly involved with the music. Now the idea is to involve the fans.

short of the $100,000 needed to set up a permanent fellowship to grant a student $5,000 each year for study. The dinner is expected to put the funds over the top.

EDITORIAL

The Burton Cause

We are glad to note that The Friends of Bob Burton are well on their way toward raising $100,000 to endow a scholarship in his memory (see separate story): One-half that sum is already in the till, and a considerable sum will be forthcoming as a result of the efforts of the dinner committee, headed by Morris Levy.

Burton's friends are countless. Though he left us in body, his impact on the music business is forever. He was a courageous and skilled battler for the rights of intellectual property. Writers and publishers will always be in his debt, for he always sought to protect and expand the values of their creative effort.

We commend Morris Levy for the aggressive way in which he has taken hold of the work entailed in heading up the dinner committee, and we look forward to the March 21 event winding up as one of the season's most important functions.

Finally, the industry should seriously consider Levy's suggestion that this dinner be the first of a series of annual affairs dedicated to raising funds for educational purposes of specific value to the music-record industry.

CBS Heads for Record Smasher

NEW YORK—CBS Records, the division which encompasses Columbia Records and its affiliated labels as well as publishing, audio products and pressing properties, is well on its way to the best year in the firm's history.

Sales for the first 10 months of 1966 are running 25 per cent ahead of last year, which was a record breaker, and Columbia's nationwide Christmas newspaper supplement campaign should bring the 1966 totals to a new sales mark by a comfortable margin.

Clive J. Davis, CBS Records vice-president and general manager, pointed out that in the third quarter alone, CBS had developed four new major artists — John Davidson and Jim Nabors on Columbia, and Donovan and David Houston on Epic.

Mainstays

In the teen market, Simon and Garfunkel, Paul Revere and the Raiders, the Byrds, Bob Dylan and the Cyrkle set the sales pace, while Andy Williams, Barbra Streisand, Tony Bennett, Eydie Gorme, Robert Goulet, Jerry Vale, the New Christy Minstrels and Ray Conniff were Columbia's mainstays in the adult market.

Increased sales in the Masterworks series were reported, with the Philadelphia, New York Philharmonic and Cleveland orchestras, as well as Vladimir Horowitz, Rudolf Serkin, E. Power Biggs and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir accounting for the bulk of the sales.

Columbia has become established in the 8-track tape cartridge field with a catalog of 52 tapes covering all musical categories.

Epic Sales Up

Epic sales showed a marked increase, with Donovan playing a major role, and substantial contributions by Bobby Vinton, the Yardbirds, the Dave Clark Five and a country entry, David Houston.

Epic's medium-priced classical line, Crossroads, was introduced in August. To date, 20 albums have been released under the label, with encouraging sales reports. Production calls for five Crossroads releases a month.

Okeh Moving

Okeh continued to gather strength in the r&b field due to releases by Walter Jackson, Major Lance, Ted Taylor and the Vibrations.

Masterworks Audio Products timed its entry into the tape cartridge playback field with the entry of Columbia Records into the tape cartridge field. MAP has augmented its phonograph, radio, tape recorder and component line with two cartridge playback models.

Sales increases were also reported by April-Blackwood Music, the Columbia Special Products Division and Columbia Record Productions.

Sipple: Percentage Key to Repeats

CHICAGO—The importance of the second record following in the wake of a "Winchester Cathedral" was never more crucial than it is in today's market, according to Mercury's John Sipple, who has an interesting theory on repeat hits.

"This was driven home to me while I was on a station promotion tour recently," Sipple said. "If an artist goes beyond 60 per cent of his capacity or potential in his first big record his chances of repeating are less and if he goes beyond 80 per cent then he's really got to come back with a blockbuster."

Sipple explained his theory in another way. "Take this '98.6' by Keith. Keith's first record, 'Ain't Gonna Lie' wasn't that strong. It might have rated in the 40 per cent potential bracket. This gives his second record a real chance because everybody knows he's got the sound and he's not fighting his own blockbuster."

Influences Patterns

This difficulty of the second release has had considerable influence on distribution patterns, too, according to both Sipple and Irvin H. Steinberg, Mercury vice-president. "Independent producers are more eager to turn product over to major producers because they don't have to worry about follow-up potential," Sipple related. "They know we'll have product."

The evil round-robin of the distributor not paying for an release unless the label repeated, has grown too vicious in the intensely competitive market today it would seem and the trend is toward major distribution, if on subsidiary product labels, to circumvent the problem.

Speaking of today's competitive and bullish market Steinberg noted, "This is the first time I can remember all companies working at their total capacity. I mean other majors have been coming to us for production here. You can get into production cycles with certain producers," Steinberg said, "but they can't guarantee you anything. Maybe a week to work off some quantity for your product, and maybe not."

On Indie Dealers

Exactly what this dynamic situation means for the independent dealers was touched on, too, when Steinberg offered, "I think there'll always be from 4,000 to 5,000 good independent dealers across the country. The knowledgeable dealer definitely has a role to fulfill and will continue to do so but it is becoming a very dynamic and competitive business."

Sipple seemed to agree when he said, "It averages out to about one dealer for every 100,000 population although this varies to a considerable degree."

Steinberg brought in another factor here by mentioning the college or campus type of dealers who are often quite isolated from certain large markets. "Here is another important segment of your dealer picture, especially with college populations increasing all the time," he said.

Rawls Promotion in January Will Kick Off Capitol's 25th Birthday

LOS ANGELES—Lou Rawls, a gospel singer who has gone the full cycle in the music business, will be feted with artist of the month honors by Capitol in January to launch the label's silver anniversary year.

The Rawls promotion will be the first of many planned by the major to celebrate its 25th birthday. Rawls has just completed recording the album "Carryin' On!" which will herald his campaign. Capitol's merchandising department is preparing a counter display which will hold 25 titles, window displays, a Rawls photo booklet for disk jockeys and dealers, an album size portrait of the artist for stores and radio stations with co-op advertising available. Rawls' eight catalog albums will be emphasized.

The honor afforded the 33-year-old singer is due to his emergence as one of the label's hottest young stars. His single, "Love Is a Hurtin' Thing," has shot past the 600,000 sales mark, with his LP "Lou Rawls Live" close to 400,000 sales. His current LP "Soulin'" is close to 250,000.

The vocalist now asks $5,000 a concert plus 50 per cent of the gross over $10,000. Six years ago he was singing in a Sunset Strip coffee house for $10 a night "and all the espresso you could drink." Here he began singing blues, which pushed him into the jazz field. But this year his "Lou Rawls Live" album became a national hit.

A former member of the Pilgrim Travelers gospel group, Rawls feels his "Love" single bridged the gaps between the blues-jazz-top 40 and good music audiences. He left the gospel field in 1958 following an auto accident.

Although he has maintained a hard coterie of blues and jazz fans, Rawls was fading at Capitol until his live album took off. Recalling his success at the 1964 Monterey Jazz Festival, Rawls said the success of the pivotal LP was due to its being cut before a studio audience. He feels he performs best "live."

As a result of the disk hits, Rawls has become an artist in demand. He's booked solid through next August and is first starting to play cities off the "chitlin' circuit," his affec-

Freeman Will Score Carol Channing TV

LOS ANGELES — Contemporary disk arranger Ernie Freeman has been tapped by Desi Arnaz to score the forthcoming half-hour Carol Channing TV series which Arnaz is producing-directing.

Jerry Herman, who wrote "Hello, Dolly," Miss Channing's Broadway smash, wrote the series theme. A network is being secured for the show.

The Channing series marks

Freeman's debut with a TV series. He has already broadened out of the disk field by scoring the "Cool Ones" for Warner Bros. Pictures and "What Am I Bid" for Liberty International.

For the past year Freeman has been used regularly by Reprise Records, with his charts adding alift to Frank Sinatra's "Strangers in the Night" sensation and his current smash, "That's Life."

Word Distribution Acquired by Decca

WACO, Tex.—Decca Records has acquired distribution rights to records and tape CARtridges of Word Records, a leader in the religious record field. Jarrell McCracken, president of Word Records, said that 10 Decca branches will handle Word product "at first on sort of test basis. It's a test for both of us to see just how good Decca can do with product of this nature."

tionate term for the small blues clubs.

Now the Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Carnegie Hall in Manhattan, the Fairmont in San Francisco and the Carter Baron Amphitheatre in Washington, D. C., blaze his name on their marquees.

He expected good results, however. "It may take a little time to acquaint their salesmen with our product and get them eager to sell it, but I feel they can do the job."

William Jelley, Word's sales manager for stores with headquarters in Ocean Grove, N. J., handled initial negotiations for the Decca deal with Lou Sebok. McCracken said that Jelley will probably visit one or two Decca branches before Christmas to get the project started. Jelley will co-ordinate the introduction of Word product to Decca's salesmen.

If the test in 10 branches works out, the entire Decca distribution setup will be handling Word product, giving the religious label a new field of sales.

Trade Presses Spin at Peak

Ed Turnley, manager of Southern Plastics, Nashville, one of the largest pressing plants in the South. "We are now running at 100 per cent capacity and have had to turn down companies seeking production of Christmas product. We've been at top capacity since mid-summer."

Turnley said that Southern is producing 90 per cent singles and has just constructed 4,000 square feet additional factory space for installation of album pressing equipment. "Some of the majors have come to us with album work and we've had to turn them down," Turnley said.

RCA custom pressing here, running with production orders at an all-time high, is not accepting new LP accounts. "I've never seen the time when we had to turn down orders," a spokesman said. "One contract reportedly turned down recently by RCA custom was an order for half a million albums from Columbia. We're getting inquiries from people who would normally do business with the other majors," the RCA spokesman said.

RCA here has found it necessary to farm out album work to Mercury and is taking some of that company's singles in return.

"We've worked 40 Saturdays this year and many Sundays," said a spokesman at one of Columbia's pressing facilities. He reported that the production pace is not the result of seasonal sales. "Just day to day orders."

The report from Capitol's Jacksonville, Ill., plant indicated peak capacity production. "And this is not just with us," a spokesman said. "It's an industry-wide pattern."

Said Floyd Kinsman, plant manager for Decca at its Pinckneyville, Ill., plant: "We're definitely at 100 per cent capacity, with both albums and 45's."

A major Cleveland producer, Kelmar Record Manufacturing, has been farming out work to firms in Cincinnati and elsewhere. "We're in the process of adding a new section to our plant," said president Joel Kischel. "Most of our work is with independents, but the majors are starting to seek us out, too."

"Let me assure you, we're terrifically busy," reported Bob Haake, plant manager at Kaybank Record Manufacturing Co. in Minneapolis. "Our plant in Charlotte, N. C., is also humming."

Haake said that by using the Swedish high spin plater, integrating its production patterns and handling for itself such operations as jacket fabricating, Kaybank is keeping up. "Right now we're delivering our orders."

Williams was asked if the search for more capacity will lead to some quality control problems.

"I don't really think so," he said. "At RCA we retain our own quality control when we have our work done outside. And work contracted with us, we believe, is of the finest quality possible."

What has brought on the boom?

Williams observed: "The record industry appears to be in a very creative phase, with product gaining unprecedented popular acceptance."

Handleman Buys Complete Control of Intercontinental

DETROIT — Complete ownership of Intercontinental Merchandising Corp., Ltd., of Canada, has been acquired by Handleman Co., major rack jobber as well as record distributor, President David Handleman announced. Handleman earlier had a 10 per cent interest in Intercontinental. Takeover of the remaining 40 per cent from the previous owners, Charlotte and Joseph Sugarman, was indicated in a Billboard story some six months ago. The present transaction for the 40 per cent interest represents and exchange of 18,500 original shares of Handleman stock — before adjustment for the recently approved 3 for 2 stock split, or 27,750 after the split.

A chain of 13 stores in the pharmacy and health and beauty fields and three leased departments, all in Ontario, is operated by Intercontinental.

Encouraging prospects for the business are indicated by current developments. David Handleman said, "Where business has been a little flat, it is starting to liven up a bit. On the West Coast, they seem just not to have had store traffic."

"As far as we are concerned, we are meeting the figures we projected for ourselves."

RCA Country Artists in Hot Sales Showing

Sholes urges talent managers to take the long-range view and seek to establish their artists internationally—even though this may mean relinquishing a block of lucrative domestic bookings. It ultimately pays off in record sales, Sholes states. He adds that in addition to the overseas personal appearances, tie-in dates on television are relatively easy to set up, and in some instances these are becoming income producers. Pop artist Peggy March, for instance, commands in the vicinity of $2,500 for a TV appearance in Germany.

Sholes stated that requests for country product were now coming in from behind the Iron Curtain countries, such as Poland and Czechoslovakia, and plans are being made to increase the distribution in those areas.

Meanwhile, on an industry level, the Country Music Association is planning to extend the influence of country music overseas, in accordance with its announcement at its recent membership meeting in Nashville.

Giving impetus to RCA's success overseas is artist Jim Reeves, who continues to be a big seller globally.

Beatles Offer

Bernstein hopes to tie in the event with the Police Athletic League and give them $75,000 out of a house scaled to earn $100,000 (on a sellout) over two shows. He wants to do the Beatles show mostly for the fun of it. Though the 1966 show lost $680, "it wasn't really a loss because the experience was so rich," he said.

Executive Turntable

The American Broadcasting Co. has formed four new operating groups and named four new corporate group vice-presidents. One of the new group heads is Sam Clark, who will be in charge of all non-broadcast activities. This includes records, theaters, film production and amusement centers. Clark had been vice-president in charge of theater administration. He is also on the ABC board. Clark had been president of ABC-Paramount (later ABC) Records from its founding in 1955 until 1964, when he became vice-president in charge of theater operations.

'Cabaret' New B'way Hit

NEW YORK—The question is: Can a serious work of art like the Christopher Isherwood short story series which was later the hit Broadway drama "I Am a Camera," by John van Druten, come across as a musical comedy? The opening of the Hal Prince-Ruth Mitchell production of "Cabaret" last week proved that it can be done and it can be a hit—if done right. Columbia Records, with the original cast album, has another big seller in store.

Jill Haworth, as Sally Bowles, projects her numbers with verve, gusto, and vivacious impishness, especially "Don't Tell Mama." Her "Life Is a Cabaret, Old Chum" is the musical centerpiece of the entire show.

On the male side, honors go, without doubt, to Joel Grey, playing the master of ceremonies, and achieving a certain decadent air in both tunes, his lines, and his poise. He set the whole atmosphere for the play, which is hinged upon the period in Berlin just when the Nazis began to come to power.

The first tune of the show was by Lotte Lenya — "So What?" — and was boring and dull. The tempo and the excitement picked up, however, at the Kit Kat Klub and Miss Haworth's first number. Miss Lenya later redeemed herself in other fetching tunes and with a sensitive portrayal as the landlady of a rooming house.

Bert Convy handles the male lead extremely well; his highlight was the tune "Why Should I Wake Up?" Jack Gilford, as the Jewish fruit store owner and wed to Miss Lenya, was outstanding and sympathetic in his role.

An intriguing aspect of the play is the musical numbers and choreographics which fit into the scene of "Cabaret's" cabaret without necessarily adding to the story line—for instance, the beautiful work—by a quintet of singing waiters between scenes. Music was by John Kander, lyrics by Fred Ebb.

The only flaw of the play, though this will by no means hinder its run, is the lack of a memorable tune or tunes of the quality of "Some Enchanted Evening" from "South Pacific" or the multitude from "My Fair Lady." CLAUDE HALL

TAPE CARTRIDGE TIPS

by Larry Finley

On September 30th, ITCC paid record companies and music publishers its third quarter royalties. The amount paid to these companies quadrupled our predictions of nine months ago, and most astounding was the IBM run which showed a tremendous increase in the sale of eight track cartridges over four track.

According to ITCC sales figures, eight track is now out-selling four track at a rate of 4 to 1, with the percentage of eight track cartridge sales increasing daily.

Most significant are the sales figures from Southern California where four track is gradually losing ground to the eight-track field. Up to this point, four track has comprised almost 80% of the volume, but today's report for Southern California shows that four-track accounts for 66 2/3% and eight-track accounts for 33 1/3%.

ITCC had a good indication of increased sales in eight track, when accepting orders for the new A&M album, "S. R. O.," with Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass. On advance orders for this cartridge, the ratio in Southern California was approximately 60% for eight track and 40% for four track.

Speaking of A&M, one of their top attractions, THE BAJA MARIMBA BAND, opens at Basin Street East, New York City, on November 28th. This is the same location where, almost a year ago, New Yorkers were first exposed to the magic of Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass! It is our feeling that this engagement will greatly boost the popularity of THE BAJA MARIMBA BAND; resulting in "plus" sales for cartridges as well as albums.

Elsewhere in this issue you will see our ad announcing the day and date release of the new A&M album, "S. R. O." This ITCC cartridge is available in both four and eight track and can be purchased from any A&M distributor or ITCC distributor in the United States.

If you would like to know the name of your nearest ITCC distributor, please contact us.

TAPE CARtridge

Japan's Tape Cartridge Picture And Its Recent Breakthrough

By REIKO YUKAWA

TOKYO—It has been only recently that the existence of tape cartridge has grasped the attention of the average Japanese.

Some 10 years ago, Nippon Victor was the first to release reel-to-reel 2-track, classical stereo tapes. Close on the heels of Victor, Nippon Columbia entered the market with two packages of 2-track tapes. Yet, these did not create a real demand for tapes, and what was worse, tape recorders themselves were not as popular then as they are today.

In fact, practical stereo tape recorders for prerecorded music listening here arrived on the market only in 1962, and prior to that period, recorders were used mainly as aids in learning foreign languages. When, in 1963, 4-track stereo tape recorders became available, just a small number of Japanese stereo tapes were found on the market, so that users had to turn to imported tapes to satisfy their needs.

Certainly, Japanese tapes were produced in those days but they were 2-track, at best, with recordings limited to radio programs, Japanese traditional folk songs and classics played by Japanese artists.

Reason Twofold

The reasons for the delay in manufacturing good domestic tapes were twofold: First, 4-track stereo recorders were not widely used. Too, it was impossible to record copyrighted works on tape because no fee scale for taped music was established with respect to the compositions administrated by JASRAC, a mechanical and performing rights society. The fee scale, however, was finally set this spring and one company after another began to concentrate on development and sale of various tapes.

Presently, the following companies and tapes are seen on the market:

1. Record Companies

Nippon Victor

- RCA Victor (open reel)—first domestic 4-track tape issued in March 1966. Sixty-five classic and 25 popular music tapes to be out by October.

- Philips (open reel)—first domestic 4-track tape issued in June 1966. Twenty classic and 16 popular music tapes out by October.

- Philips (cassette tape)—imported tapes from Philips, Holland. First release in June 1966 and up to now 3 classic and 16 popular tapes (both mono) out.

Nippon Columbia

- Car Stereo (fidelity-pack system)—first release in September 1966. Tied-up sales activity with Teikoku Dempa Co.

- CBS label (open reel, 4-track stereo)—first release in March 1966. Part of the imported records' dealers also deal in tapes.

King Records

- London label (open reel, 4-track stereo)—tapes produced by Sonny from London masters. First release in March 1966.

Teichiku Records

- Master tapes of domestic popular songs offered to Tokyo Denki Kagaku Kogyo (TDK), which then produces and sells both 4-track stereo and mono tapes under Teichiku label.

Nippon Grammophon

- Started sale of imported tapes, this April, of MGM, Verve, Alchiv and Grammophon all on a subscription basis.

Toshiba Musical Enterprises

- Started sale of imported 4-track stereo tapes in 1965, of Angel and Capitol on a subscription basis.

2. Other Manufacturers

Fuji Sound

- Since 1963, 4-track stereo and mono tapes of world's folk songs on sale but at present the emphasis is on tapes of easy listening music. About 70 per cent of the tapes represented by the Fidelipac system cartridge.

Tokyo Denki Kagaku Kogyo

- Started production and sale of 4-track stereo tapes, such as "Japanese Music" and "Asian Melody," in 1965. Also on sale are the above-mentioned Teichiku tapes, English textbook tapes, NHK program tapes, etc.

Tokyo Tanshi Kogyo

- Master tapes supplied by several American companies and already 80 open reel tapes and 40 cartridges, both classic and popular, out on the market. First release in March 1966. Also Japanese music tapes independently produced.

Mecca Record Pack

- Foreign—under contract with Muntz of U. S. and all tapes on 4-track Fidelipac system, produced from masters of four U. S. companies.

- Domestic—started production in August 1966 of tapes containing Hachidai Nakamura's works.

Philips, Nippon Victor in Deal

TOKYO—Irving Green, Mercury Records president, left Japan after completing a week's discussion with the Nippon Victor and the Philips companies here. According to B. Joppe, Philips Records representative in Japan, both Philips and Mercury will release stereo music, pre-recorded in Japan on Philips Cassettes late this month through Nippon Victor. Initial releases will include Japanese music.

Philips-type playback machines now made and sold in Japan are all battery-operated and designed for monaural operation. However, Joppe pointed out, the new stereo cassettes will be compatible with the monaural cassettes and may be used on monaural machines. Stereo playback machines will be made in Japan by a number of manufacturers and will be available in the near future.

there is a good possibility of other firms going into this field. Some are already at the stage of studying marketability of their tapes.

It remains to be seen how the versatility of cartridge tapes will grow in this country, but in any event, an entirely new market has been added to the old, time-tested record market.

Store Puts CARtridges to Work Selling Other Stereo Items, Too

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—The people who buy automobile stereo tape players are likely to become prospects for stereo phonographs, tape recorders and accessories, points out Raymond Cohen, young owner of The Record Shop here.

"There are a lot of people who have no real appreciation whatsoever for stereo music, until they installed a player in their cars," Cohen said. "It may well be that the stereo player went into the automobile as a status symbol, or because the customer is an automobile sports fan who wants everything possible on his car. No matter what the reason, once he has become accustomed to fine stereo music while driving the automobile, chances are that he will start thinking of the same sort of music for his apartment."

Cohen sensed these possibilities immediately after automobile stereo came on the market. Although he did not go all-out for stereo players, largely because his shop is in the center of a shopping mall and inaccessible to automobiles, he laid in a huge stock of automobile stereo tape cartridges.

One bay at the left center of the record browser area has been set aside for a mass display of stereo tape CARtridges, stacked in vertical rows. More than three feet high, and conveniently classified by artists as are standard tapes and records, the display began attracting interest, and has kept a steady parade of car owners. Most dealers whose primary interest is the profits from sale and installation of the unit carry only a smattering of tape, and many of them plan to go out of the field, as soon as the "cream has been skimmed" from the market.

While making no extensive plans for going into auto stereo merchandising, Cohen intends to capitalize on what he calls "conversion customers." He wants to hear the owner of a new GTO sport coupe, for example, exclaim over the excellent fidelity which he can get in his automobile. This gives Cohen the opportunity to point out that he will be even more pleased with results he can get in his home.

He points out that the automobile cannot accommodate as large speakers, or as many of them as a home stereo system, that the versatility which is possible through moving the speakers around, the use of different types of sound reflectors, the size of the room, and similar points. Sooner or later, Cohen finds, the customer will be back looking into the cost of a home high fidelity system. In this way the sale of a few stereo auto cartridges can easily become a $500 stereo equipment, record and tape sale in the immediate future.

Every customer sees that The Record Shop carries a tremendous line of auto stereo. Salespeople take the bull by the horns, point out the mass display, with the question "Do you have stereo in your car?" Quite often this leads to an explanation of auto stereo.

U.K. Seen Rolling on Locally Made Units

By GRAEME ANDREWS

LONDON — The RCA-Motorola team touring Europe to show the flag for the Stereo-8 cartridge is confident that its talks with car manufacturers and radio and instrument makers in Britain, Scandinavia, France, Germany and Italy will lead later next year and in 1968 to local manufacture of Stereo-8 players and, later, cartridges.

When the delegation gave a

Stereo-8 demonstration at the London Hilton, Irwin J. Tarr, division vice-president of recording tape marketing for RCA Victor, was optimistic about the future of his product—particularly in Italy.

The RCA promotion was designed to impress on the trade that Philips Musicassettes will not have its present monopoly of the British cartridge-cassette market forever. Already plans are being made to import Motorola players and RCA Stereo-8 cartridges into this country. With import duty and dispatch costs added, cartridges will retail for about $14 initially, compared with $5.60 for locally made musicassettes. This will restrict RCA sales to enthusiasts and wealthier customers.

No plans have yet been announced by RCA (Great Britain) Ltd., for the local manufacture of its cartridges. Until they are made here, which will eventually greatly reduce the price, and marketed seriously against the Philips product, the trade inevitably does not expect the RCA system to make a major inroad.

Philips has an added advantage here from the fact that EMI already supplies repertoire for cassettes on the Philips system, and both Pye and Polydor will do so in the new year. The EMI and Pye repertoire deals are known to be non-exclusive pacts, however. Philips will market Pye. EMI is distributing and selling its own, but using Philips duplicating facilities.

Decca, which distributes RCA Victor records here, has steered clear of the prerecorded tape field entirely and has no known plans to enter this market.

It is expected, therefore, that if RCA decides to give Philips proper domestic competition, it will do so entirely independently of Decca. One other major, CBS, is also not in the cartridge market here yet.

'Trade Getting in Stereo Groove'

By ELIOT TIEGEL

LOS ANGELES—The record industry is just now learning to properly use the long-play album and the stereophonic medium, in the opinion of Tutti Camarata. "The album wasn't designed to be 12 cuts," the gray-haired composer-conductor said. "It's beauty is its long-playing continuity."

As an artist on London Records, Camarata is developing a series for the Phase 4 line in which the music is never separated by the normal use of blank vinyl. He is currently in London to record a follow-up to his first venture, "Verdi Spectacular." The new album planned for taping Thanksgiving Day is a "Puccini Spectacular." These albums are classical in content, with Camarata arranging the opera arias for exclusive instrumental interpretation by the Kingsway Symphony. The original harmonies are never tampered with, the leader says.

"Instrumentally this material can take a different shape," Camarata said, adding he hoped to do a Tchaikovsky spectacular in the future, because that would be the "average person's cup of tea."

Camarata operates on several levels. He has been an artist for London 20 years, owns and records for his own Coliseum label, records and produces for Walt Disney and operates Sunset Sound Recorders, a thriving small studio.

Better Quality

It is through Phase 4 and his own Coliseum 20-20 sound concept, that Camarata believes stereo is accurately presented. The ping-pong effects, which marked much of the first successful stereo disks, are being replaced by true reproduction of instruments, playing arrangements correctly written to take advantage of the medium, he says.

There is more detail given to mike placement now, he adds, which allows for the exposure of instruments never clearly heard before.

With his own Coliseum operation which is distributed by London, Camarata hopes to expressly design packages for stereo. A forthcoming venture is called "Jungle Adventure" and is a potpourri of sounds of the jungle, interspersed with pop music.

Camarata hopes to develop projects for stereo by hiring individual artists when they fit the concept. Coliseum, which is two years old, had no signed talent, only the maestro. Camarata's 20-20 stereo formula calls for equal division of musical content on both channels. Originally the aim was for an all-stereo output, but this has changed. Coliseum now issues mono product, because, according to its owner, "Salesmen asked why prohibit the sale by not having mono product? At this point, with economics so important, you can't argue with that."

Covers Teen Market

While the "Jungle Adventure" will appeal to a certain kind of adventurous sound buff, Camarata covers the teen market by interpreting top 40 tunes with his Tutti's Trombones band and lets the trombones cover the middle-of-the-road field on other albums.

With his name on so many different labels, the musician

Margaret Whiting Credits A&R Men, Walt McGuire

By CLAUDE HALL

NEW YORK—As an artist who's had a great record career spanning 12 million-sellers, Margaret Whiting attributes the key to her new success as a record artist to a&r producers. That, and the faith of Walt McGuire at London Records.

Her first comeback try was "Somewhere There's Love." It got turned down by nearly every Hot 100 format radio station. Most music directors "flipped over this new girl singer," said Jack Gold, who produces her records with Arnold Goland. "But when they found out it was Margaret Whiting, they turned the record down."

Margaret was told the same thing. "It got turned down at top 40 stations because I was who I was. They said they couldn't play it until the record got on the chart. I asked them how I was going to get in the charts unless they played it."

McGuire was undaunted and said, "We'll do it again." So London came out with "The Wheel of Hurt." This second effort brought her success. The record climbed to No. 1 on

Free Spirits Give Out With A Spirited Performance

NEW YORK—Rock with a jazz flavor and straight jazz are being presented at The Scene by the Free Spirits, a promising young quintet, recently signed by ABC Records. In its rock numbers, the group used a driving style, with much wailing and shouting by lead guitarist Larry Coryell and rhythm guitarist Chip Baker in their vocal solos.

Baker was especially good in the Bob Dylan-Byrds' hit "Mr. Tambourine Man" and the Rolling Stones' "Satisfaction." Saxist Jim Pepper relied on his solid jazz background with inventions in most of the numbers. Two of his top spots were "L. B. O. D.," which is on the group's forthcoming ABC album, and "Cosmic Daddy Dance." Pepper, however, was hampered in "Girl of the Mountain," the Free Spirits initial single because his flute was broken previously. Instead the number had sax background, a different sound than on the disk. This song was done twice, first in a souped-up version, which had real power and drive, then in a softer style closer to the recording.

Two jazz numbers that ended the lengthy set were peaks of the evening. Here the group turned from a quintet to a quartet as Baker sat the numbers out. Coryell, a bright young jazz guitarist, and Pepper put their all into their solos in "Waltz Without End" and "A Night in Tunisia" backed by the solid drumming of Bob Moses and by Chris Hills bass guitarist, whose background includes stints with Miles Davis and Chico Hamilton. Unfortunately, Hills could not be seen during his solos because Pepper was blocking the view.

The group writes most of its own material as is the fashion with most rock ensembles, but some of the pieces lacked the originality to make it. There was enough inventiveness in other places, however, to indicate that the group has a chance.

Kitty Wells is the name and it can usually be found at the top of the charts. Now she's put her famous Road Show on a new Decca platter . . . "The Kitty Wells Show" (DL4831). It features Kitty, Johnny Wright, and other famous names. Turns out that Kitty's a Gibson girl. Johnny Wright plays the Gibson guitar, too, as do many of the others at the top of the current pop lists.

Swingle Singers Twinkle Giving Classics New Look

NEW YORK — The Swingle Singers, using the melodies of composers such as Bach, Telemann, and Mendelssohn, provided a delightful concert Nov. 10 at Town Hall. The Philips Records artists, duplicating the parts of various instruments with their voices, were backed by Guy Pederson on bass and Daniel Humair on drums, producing a jazz rather than classical sound. Mort Swingle, leader of the group, announced each number and explained what was happening with the ensemble, especially in a Gigue from Telemann's "Suite in F," which he used for demonstration. In this number, the individual singers represented a harpsichord, violin, basso continuo and other strings.

Major pieces of the evening were Telemann's "Concerto for Six Instruments," the "Sinfonia" from Bach's "Second Harpsichord Partita," and Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," which drew applause when announced. This last work formally closed the concert, but two lively numbers, the "Bourree" from Bach's "B Minor Suite" and the "D Major Fugue" from the "Well Tempered Clavier," served as encores.

As usual, soprano Christine Legrand, with her enthusiastic and engagingly manner and her clear voice, was a standout as she handled the lines originally written for flute, oboe d'amore, violin and other instruments. Humair's backing em-

Don Ho Is Testing Out His 'Hawaiian-Along'

LOS ANGELES—Don Ho, a favorite of the Islands, is testing his Hawaiian nightclub format on Coconut Grove patrons prior to working his way around the country. Ho's formula is designed to break the barrier between performer and audience by acting as a catalyst for group participation.

Unfortunately, there are kinks in the concept of running an unorthodox, loose format in which the audience participates in almost half the act. The vocalist has a warm, gracious personality and a rich, romantic voice and he could make it on this strength alone. However, he has developed a free-flowing concept in Hawaii which calls for girls in the audience placing a lei around his neck, and giving him a kiss; youngsters coming on stage to dance while Ho's back-up group, the Aliis, play for dancing; and asking the audience to sing.

The result is a combination professional-amateur hour. On the night reviewed, the show ran for 1 hour 45 minutes. His Grove audience was loaded with people who had seen him at Duke's place in Honolulu. They knew his songs and were willing to participate in the kissing and dancing.

Ho's audience joins in with robust hand-clapping and community-singing on the Hawaiian tunes. Ho called upon an ex-waitress, Robin Wilson, to sing "What Now My Love" and she was excellent with a dramatic interpretation. He brought up the room's maitre 'de, Gilbert Paoli, who sang two numbers, and a teen-age Australian singer who massacred "If I Had a Hammer."

Comedy runs through the act in Ho's polished one-liners and the Aliis own funny facial expressions backing several numbers.

When Ho did sing, as on "Born Free" and "I'll Remember You," his voice rang with sincerity. On "Pearly Shells" his happy and on "E Lei Ka Lei Lei" he's in the robust environment of his homeland.

Much of the time Ho's speech was unclear and his organ playing was barely distinguishable. The Aliis sung softly in a Hi-Lo fashion, harmonizing well. Whether audiences in other cities unfamiliar with Ho will support him, as Angelinos have done, is a moot question.

Mgrs. Collection Men: Diamond

NEW YORK—New performers shouldn't sign with personal managers, believes Bang Records artist Neil Diamond. "As a matter of fact," he says, "they'd be better off without them. Most of these 'so-called' managers are no more than collection agents who contribute little or nothing to their client's career and drain them financially."

Diamond, currently climbing the Hot 100 chart with "I Got the Feelin'," said, that the type of managers that new talent ordinarily attract are usually not good enough to help an artist's career. "Often they are club owners who happen to spot something special in a new group of artists working for them. They parlay their acquaintance with some of the other owners in the business, a few deejays, newspapermen and agents into an impressive-sounding sales pitch and a murderous management contract."

Diamond recalled that, while still in high school, he signed a personal management contract calling for 50 per cent of his earnings for seven years. "Nothing happened, but it still cost my father a lot of money to buy me out of the deal. Since then, without a manager, I have had two top records as a recording artist ('Cherry, Cherry') and 'Solitary Man') and another top 10 song as a writer: 'Sunday and Me,' by Jay and the Americans.

The 22-year-old artist pointed out, "In reality, a truly talented group or singer or writer who is persistent will come to the attention of a music publishing company, a booking agency, or a record company on his own."

"Many times the owner of a small record company looks to spread himself out and 'hedge' his bets through management. He will own a couple of publishing companies and have a deal with a booking agency, all for the sole purpose of exploiting and tying up his artists completely. He figures that, in the event of any small success that might come the artist's way, he's 'covered' from every conceivable angle."

Diamond considers artists "extremely fortunate" in rare occasions where they hooked up with a good personal manager from the beginning. However, Diamond feels good personal management is both available and meaningful only after the artist has attained a degree of maturity and recognition.

He explained, "In my own case, if I could find the right personal manager at this moment, I would sign with him. I've established myself as a hit writer and a chart artist. My booking agency tells me that the reports have been uniformly good on my personal appearances. To break into the other areas of show business in which I am interested, such as TV, films and to upgrade the quality of my engagements, astute management would probably be an asset. I don't think I would want to have him involved in my writing or recording, however, and probably I would be better off if he avoided that area completely."

But his advice to any new artist who is about to make a management agreement is to wait until he has a little understanding of the business and of himself. "Nobody can sing for you and nobody can write for you. When you're out there on stage—you're all alone."

admits that people have been confused as to his main loyalty. With London 20 years this January, Camarata feels his identity has been with the British firm. But he's no slouch with his domestic activities. For six years he's managed the recording studio, started mainly to handle his own productions. Now, he says, Disney, the Tijuana Brass, Elektra and Liberty are key accounts and he sometimes "has trouble getting into the studio himself."

phasized the Spanish rhythms of the Albeniz "Zortico." Two of the most familiar pieces which went over well were Mozart's "Sonata in C Major" and a movement from Haydn's "Symphony No. 94 (Surprise)" from which "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" is derived.

Possibly the most remarkable thing about the Swingle Singers is that even with style which would seem to limit variety, the group can produce a thoroughly interesting program.

Billboard's Easy Listening chart and high on the Hot 100 chart.

Today's record business has a whole new approach, she said. "It's now vitally important to have the right producers. In the old days, the record company would assign anyone to produce your session, but today the producer is all responsible. I work a month on a record now, and I never did that in my life."

After being on Capitol Records for years, she went to Dot, then Verve, but had not had anything for three or four years in the way of records.

"I wanted to have a hit record again. Bobby Darin and Frank Sinatra had proved it could be done. I studied the teen market. My 15-year-old daughter, Debbie Bush, helped by bringing in her friends to listen to me sing. Her opinion was that I was a little square and ought to change my name to Maggie. I played a record by Petula Clark before Petula recorded 'Downtown' and my daughter didn't recognize the artist. So I knew it was a matter of being commercial."

Programmed Commercials Help Pave Way to Success for WAYS

By CLAUDE HALL

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Even the commercials on audience-WAYS are "programmed." Commercials, as well as records, contribute to a modern station's sound, said program director Jack Gale.

"Our air personalities will move a air personalities they have just finished with a slow record and the commercials that can be moved during any given half-hour are marked on the log. Certain commercials, of course, are aired at designated times. Local commercials generally are not musical jingles; thus are not considered in the station's drive for a special sound.

Basically, the programming might be a fast record followed by a Wrigley chewing gum musical commercial, then another fast-paced record. "The commercial would fit perfectly in between, because it's slower paced than the records." Nationally produced records are coded for fast or slow in pacing.

While a few of these musical commercials can be switched about during a given half-hour period, the records can't. They're played, as called for, by Gale, who makes up the next day's programming list before going home each afternoon. Because of the commercials, several records in a row might be considered hard rock 'n' roll tunes, as long as the commercials give a change-of-pace.

Successful Format

This type of programming—diagrammed in Boston before Gale left WMEX—has proven vastly successful. When the new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Kaplan (Stan Kaplan is president, his wife, Sis Kaplan, is general manager) took over the station in May 1965 it featured automated tape programming of a rock 'n' roll nature and was only as high as fourth in the teen-listeners hours after school. The Kaplans and Gale went on the air June 7, 1965, with personalities and the type of programming that Gale and Kaplan, who'd been national sales manager of WMEX, had visualized.

Today, Hooper audience surveys show the station as a substantial leader throughout the entire day, even during the morning. From a staff of nine in 1965, the station has grown to 38 people. From the old building which normally housed the station, WAYS has expanded into a house trailer that contains the sales staff temporarily while a new building is under construction. The trailer will then be given away in a contest. The station has been very big on contest promotions; latest is an effort to give away a German cannon to some high school to use at football games.

Quite necessarily, WAYS does not program its music strictly for Charlotte. All surveys show the station with a tremendous audience in outlying cities like Gastonia, Concord and Monroe. In compiling the station's playlist, which varies anywhere from 36 records to 45, WAYS calls from 17 to 19 record stores, but

KHJ, TV'er Pull Singles Scoops

By ELIOT TIEGEL

LOS ANGELES—KHJ and its sister station, KHJ-TV, are riding a run of single exclusives. The TV wing recently entered the contemporary music scene with a "Boss City" Saturday afternoon program featuring KHJ disk jockeys and guest stars.

Two singles, "Good Vibrations" by the Beach Boys and the Association's "Pandora's Golden Heebie Jeebies" were debuted on the TV show, according to Ron Jacobs, who programs the AM radio operation.

Within the last six weeks the following singles were given KHJ exclusively, Jacobs said: Donovan's "Mellow Yellow," the Hollies' "Stop, Stop, Stop," Bobby Darin's "Girl That Stood Beside Me," Herman's Hermits' "East West" and "Dandy," the Monkees' "I'm a Believer" and the Rolling Stones' "Have You Seen Your Mother, Baby, Standing in the Shadows?"

A Vital Boost

Despite criticism from record manufacturers that KHJ's tight playlist makes it difficult to expose a significant number of new products, the station gives a single a vital boost when the tune is added to its "Boss 30" playlist, Jacobs said. He added that the acquiring of exclusives is a "mutual evolution" between the station and the labels. KHJ's ratings place it as the top rocker in the market.

In addition to the basic 30-title list, the station includes "a handful of 'hit-bound' songs" which are new records. Of the six "hit-bound" aired recently, three were exclusives. There are also select album tracks which are pulled, such as "I Want to Be Free" and "Monkee Theme" from the group's LP.

Cross-Channel

KHJ and KFRC, the RKO General top 40 station in San Francisco, are cross-channeling their promotional themes back and forth, said Jacobs, who brainstorms the local station's kookie contests and audience grabbers.

With more than a year in its current chart singles format, KHJ's sound has hardened into a tight, mechanical operation with soft station identifications bracketing news, reports and commercials. One important development has been the emergence of Don Steele's shouting, uptempo brand of announcing as the style which all the other deejays now imitate.

WLS-FM Backing Singles Stereo Fight

By RAY BRACK

CHICAGO — WLS-FM Station manager Harvey Wittenberg joins the growing number of stereo broadcasters asking for record companies to come up with some kind of stereo versions of hit singles.

WLS-FM bears little resemblance to its rollicking sister station—WLS, which programs Hot 100 chart tunes—and Wittenberg feels WLS-FM may be exerting more influence on album sales in this market than some record company promotion people realize.

"Not so the local guys, though," said Wittenberg. "They know we have an open door policy for promotion men and they can come in any hour of the day. We're called on constantly by Columbia, Capitol, RCA Victor, Command, Warner Bros., Reprise, London, and everybody else with LP's. We're not automated, and if we like something—and we listen to all of it—we'll play it right away."

WLS-FM has been known to air a cut within an hour after a record company representative brought it in. This happened with the new Streisand LP. Morning man (9-2:30 Mike Rapchak) is known for pulling this off regularly.

The station, which signs on at 9:30 and off at midnight, is now seventh in Chicago's FM ratings but hopes to move up a notch in future reports. Steve Hodges in the afternoon and Bob Porter in the evening round out the on-the-air-crew, save for Wittenberg himself, who handles play-by-play of Chicago Blackhawks hockey games on the station.

KTOK Album Winner By a Long 61% Slot

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—KTOK, with determination and hard work, has captured the No. 1 position in the market here as the major influence on album sales—indication of not only a vast young adult and adult audience, but a commanding ability to persuade them to buy product. The station ranked as leader by a heavy margin of votes in Billboard's latest Radio Response Ratings survey of the market, after ranking a close second behind KOCY a year ago.

This time, there was no doubt as KTOK scored 61 per cent of the votes of businessmen whose living depends on record sales—record dealers, distributors, one-stop operators, and local and national record company executives.

KTOK is owned by a group of interests that include movie actor Jimmy Stewart and station president William D. Schueler. The station now ranks No. 2 in audience surveys, Schueler said. This includes a Hooper rating of No. 1 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Schueler has been at KTOK about two and a half years. He brought music director Bob Riggins with him from KJEM in Oklahoma City. Together, they've built the station from an also-ran to a power. Schueler serves as program director and president; Riggins as music director and air personality.

Of the records played, about a third are albums, another third are current Easy Listening singles, the rest are past hits. The station has about 800 past hit records, but doesn't play them as much as current records—just, in fact, to keep the station from "sounding teenish," said Riggins.

Riggins, who selects all of the music, listens to both sides of every record. "And we get hundreds, so you can imagine the work involved. But it's worth it because we get some good records to play, even if many of them never become hits."

56% Go for WVON

CHICAGO—WVON is the No. 1 influence on sales of r&b records in this market, according to 56 per cent of the record dealers, distributors, one-stop operators, and record company executives. A typographical error in the Nov. 19 issue listed the station as No. 1 in the Radio Response Rating survey, but with only 5 per cent of the votes.

WTTO GOES TO HOT 100

TOLEDO, Ohio—WTTO, a 1,000-watt operation, switched to a Hot 100 format last week. Program director of the station is Don Kelly. New staffers include James K. Davis, air personality and assistant program director, and Rick Snyder, both from WTRY, Troy - Albany-Schenectady, N. Y.

Elektra's First Country LP

NEW YORK—Elektra Records began servicing last week of its first country music product—"Beatles Country" by the Charles River Valley Boys—to 2,225 radio stations programming country music. This includes, said promotion chief Steve Harris, every station playing even an hour of country music. However, Elektra is also aiming the unusual album, which hinges on tunes by the Beatles, at the pop market and will service key pop stations, too. The label scored recently with the chart-busting "Baroque Beatles Book," which was played by pop stations as well as classical music radio stations. It's hoped that both country music stations and pop stations will expose the new country record, Harris said. It was produced in Nashville by Paul A. Rothchild and Peter Seigel.

WKY Early Show Pace-Setter

By CLAUDE HALL

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—A morning radio show by Dan Williams, the program director of WKY here, sets the pace for the station's other air personalities. Within limits, they're free to select their own records for airplay and can, literally, play the five to eight new records of the week as often as they like . . . "as long as they pace their show well," said Williams. "If they have any question about pacing, I tell them to listen to me."

Williams has the morning show on WKY, the No. 1 station in the market on all surveys, including Billboard's most recent Radio Response Ratings survey. The station, in the Billboard survey, placed No. 1 in influencing sales of singles records, indicating not only a commanding audience of teens and young adults, but authority in persuading them to buy product. The station received 60 per cent of the votes of record dealers, record distributors, record company executives, and one-stop operators, for influencing sales of singles records.

Williams was the major deejay influence on singles record sales in the market, with 40 per cent of the votes.

50 Disks on Playlist
WKY plays 50 records on its playlist, plus new records and Williams said the 5,000-watt operation plays "every one."

New records are given three weeks' trial, depending on how many telephone calls come in to support it. But Williams estimates that it will get played at least a couple of times a day. The station even has counters on its hot-line phones to the deejay on duty in order to determine the popularity of any given record in relation to telephone calls.

"But we like to believe we're hep to what's happening in this market regardless of whether any given record is happening elsewhere or not. We have a full-time man researching two days every week on just the playlist. Records here aren't played just by happenstance."

Interesting to note that Jack Sterling's departure from WCBS, New York, after more than 17 years, was WHN's gain. THE RADIO RESPONSE RATINGS of stations and individual air personalities have been determined by survey of local and national record promotion personnel, distributors and record manufacturers. Not a popularity poll, the ratings are strictly on the comparative ability of the stations and air personalities to influence their listeners to purchase the singles and albums played on the air. The ratings likewise point up the importance of music of all types in building audiences and creating the framework conducive to influencing the listener to purchase other products and services advertised on radio stations.

WKY Early Show A Solid Pace-Setter

One of the records WKY was playing heavily at the moment was "Shadow of Your Smile" by Boots Randolph on Monument Records. "It's No. 11 on our chart this week and it isn't happening anywhere else. Monument Records doesn't even know they've got something," Williams said.

in Pulse, too. If we play the record, other stations are forced to play it."

To show how powerful the station is in influencing singles sales, the No. 2 influences on sales were—a tie—Don Wallace and the team of Terry McGrew and Jim Bowman, each with 19 per cent. So far as following the leader—Williams—the station occasionally has a pace meeting. Williams said he listens to tapes of the staff's air personalities and tries "to indoctrinate them about pacing so they'll do things by instinct. But, if there's any question, I tell them to listen to my own show."

His biggest complaint was against record company promotion men who weren't "aware." WKY breaks a few records, he said. . . . more than anyone gives us credit for. But record people are funny. They get a pet place (station) and stay with it. Few people realize that it was a radio station in Midland, Tex. . . . I can't even remember the call letters. . . . that started 'Down in the Boondocks' by Billy Joe Royal. That station never got credit for it. Little men never get credit for what they do."

Decent Service
Though WKY gets decent service from all record labels, "I don't get many promotion men dropping by. . . . perhaps I'm lucky. But in a recent Hooper survey we scored shares throughout the day ranging from 35 to 41 and we're No. 1

Like many deejays across the nation, Williams has noticed a trend to softer tunes and admitted that he's "playing quite a few. But we'll probably keep it up until something comes along to capture the imagination of the teens. The problem in the record industry at the moment is you don't have a leader right now. Always before, the industry had a leader. There isn't anybody setting the pace now and in this business you've got to have an act or a group setting the pace."

Borrowing Pays, WRFL-FM Finds

WINCHESTER, Va.—Feeling that if you're going to program country music, you should do it like an expert, WRFL-FM here "borrows" its nightly 6 to midnight country music programming. The programming originates from the studios of WSIG, an AM sister station in Mount Jackson, Va., which has been programming country music for 10 years.

WRFL-FM operations manager Clifford H. Davis reports, "The response has been tremendous." He hosts the Tuesday through Saturday segments, Jim Litten takes over Sunday and Monday nights.

only three of these are in Charlotte — a store that sells primarily r&b records, a major department store, and "one swinging record store."

Heard in 4 States

Gale said that WAYS is heard in Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia, as well as North Carolina. In the last Billboard Radio Response Rating survey of the market about three months ago, the station was shown as the leading influence on sales of singles records with 60 per cent of the votes; this RRR survey is a prime indication that the station commands a heavy teen and young adult audience and has positive ability to persuade this audience to buy product.

The station distributes 5,000 copies of its playlist each week to record stores in the area. It features 40 records and on any given week 16 records of these or more will probably be r&b records in nature. But today, Gale felt, more and more r&b records are being recorded to both the r&b and the pop markets. WAYS ordinarily plays very little of the psychedelic-sounding records. "Kids around here would rather have that Tamla-Motown type of beat. One week, we had 13 Tamla-Motown records on our playlist out of 40."

Upcoming records get stronger airplay than those that have begun to drop on the chart. An example is when "Cherish," by the Association had begun falling. While it was still No. 8 on the station's playlist, based on area sales, a new record by the Supremes was getting played more often, though it was still low on the chart.

Another factor in the station's success, Gale felt, was the permanency of the staff. "Since we took over the station in June 1965, we've only had one staff change and only because he was drafted."

Anderson TV Show Aims at Syndication

TORONTO—A country music TV series, "The Bill Anderson Show," with host Bill Anderson and top country artists in an informal music-and-conversation format, is being produced at CKLW-TV in Windsor, Ontario, by Stallion Productions, the Nashville-based company of Anderson, Hubert Long and Guy Zwalen.

The company proposes to produce 104 hour-long shows, in black and white (a couple of dozen of which are already completed), for syndication in the U. S. and Canada. (Because of the use of Canadian production facilities, the show will receive a favorable Canadian-content rating from the Board of Broadcast Governors, which legislates that 55 per cent of TV programming must be Canadian content.)

SOUNDTRACK SPOTLIGHT
A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM
 Original Soundtrack. United Artists UAL 4144 (M); UAS 5144 (S)

With the movie garnering rave reviews around the country, this soundtrack has got to be a smash. Starring Zero Mostel and Phil Silvers, the movie contains many of the songs found in the long-running Broadway play plus additional music by Stephen Sondheim.

POP SPOTLIGHT
THEME FROM "THE BIBLE"
 David Rose. Capitol DT 2627 (M); ST 2627 (S)

A truly outstanding combination—the richly lush orchestrations of conductor-arranger David Rose and some of the most beautiful epic film themes ever written. "The Bible," "Exodus" and "The Greatest Story Ever Told" are represented in this well produced album, which should enjoy healthy sales. "Love Theme From Ben-Hur" is especially moving.

POP SPOTLIGHT
WHISPER NOT
 Ella Fitzgerald. Verve V-4071 (M); V6-4071 (S)

Ella Fitzgerald's love affair with the lyric continues. Whether it's new material like "Wives and Lovers" and "Matchmaker," or the 30-year-old "Sweet Georgia Brown," Miss Fitzgerald gives the song her own stamp—the stamp of genius.

POP SPOTLIGHT
'ALF & ALF
 Merv Griffin/Arthur Treacher. MGM E-4381 (M); SE-4381 (S)

Watch this one. TV promotion on Griffin's show plus their regular exposure should help do things with this lively, raucous, and sometimes tender collection of English music hall songs. Included is Griffin's old hit "I've Got a Lovely Bunch of Coconuts" and "I'm Henry the Eighth, I Am."

POP SPOTLIGHT
STAY WITH ME
 Vic Damone. RCA Victor LPM 3671 (M); LSP 3671 (S)

Assemble a program of first-rate newer songs, add a bossa nova rhythm to Ernie Freeman's smooth arrangements, let Vic Damone caress the lyrics, and the result is an outstanding album: loaded with top sales potential. Highlights in the exceptional package are "How Insignificant," "Quiet Nights of Quiet Stars" and the beautiful title tune.

POP SPOTLIGHT
MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE WITH DRUMS AND GUITARS
 The Crusaders. Tower T 5048 (M); ST 5048 (S)

One of the most interesting and well thought out albums in some time and it should prove a big programming and sales item. Aimed right at the teen market it features current pop arrangements of material of semi-religious nature. A discotheque winner, the young quartet also displays a smooth blend of voices as heard in "Little Drummer Boy" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

POP SPOTLIGHT
THERE IS A TIME
 Lisa Minnelli. Capitol DT 2448 (M); ST 2448 (S)

Miss Minnelli has come of age in this, her most powerful album entry to date. The selections are predominantly French origin, and the vocal performances and arrangements are of the highest quality. "The Days of the Waltz" is exceptionally moving, and there's a rousing "One of Those Songs." The album is definitely a winner—artistically and commercially.

POP SPOTLIGHT
FROM RIO WITH LOVE
 Walter Wanderley. Tower T 5047 (M); ST 5047 (S)

Although under contract to Verve, this package of fresh material should garner top sales for Tower. The program is comprised basically of new and pulsating rhythms with the standby "Quiet Nights" to add to the programming and sales strength. Exceptional Wanderley performances.

POP SPOTLIGHT
THE AMIGOS "GOES LATIN"
 Capitol DT 2626 (M); ST 2626 (S)

The Latin Scene gets more popular in record sales every day; here's a group with mariachi trumpets and exciting Mexican guitar that comes through with strong teen dance appeal via drums. Great for listening, too, is "The Shadow of Your Smile" and "Strangers in the Night"—in English.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
SCHUBERT: DEATH AND THE MAIDEN
 Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau/Gerald Moore. Angel 36342 (M); S 36342 (S)

There's a total of 14 lieder in this excellent record which once again brings together two fine artists. Phrasing by both is remarkable. "Der Tod und das Madchen," "Der Wanderer" and "Der Winterabend" are perfect examples.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
TCHAIKOVSKY: EUGEN ONEGIN/THE QUEEN OF SPADES
 Wunderlich/Various Artists/Bavarian State Orchestra (Zalinger). Angel 36376 (M); S 36376 (S)

Although this album spotlights the late Fritz Wunderlich, vocal honors are definitely shared by soprano Melitta Muzzely and baritone Hermann Prey, who appear in both operas, and bass Gottlob Frick, whose singing of Prince Gremin's aria in the "Onegin" highlights is admirable. The quality of performance and timeliness of the disk, issued so soon after Wunderlich's death, should overcome the drawback of its being performed in German instead of the original Russian.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
PURCELL: DIDO & AENEAS
 De los Angeles/Glossop/Various Artists/English Chamber Orchestra (Barbirolli). Angel 36359 (M); S 36359 (S)

Victoria de los Angeles, Peter Glossop and Heather Harper are the excellent stars of this outstanding pressing of Purcell's 17th Century opera ably led by Sir John Barbirolli. With harpsichordist Raymond Leppard, the Ambrosian Singers and the English Chamber Orchestra.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
OPERATIC SAINTS & SINNERS
 Jerome Hines/Vienna State Opera Orchestra (Santi). Epic LC 3934 (M); BC 1334 (S)

Celebrating Hines' 20 years with the Metropolitan Opera, this Epic disk offers the deep bass at his best. Outstanding among the dozen arias are two each from "Nabucco" and "Mefistofele" and "Il Lacerato Spirito" from "Simon Boccanegra."

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
HAYDN: THREE QUARTETS
 Juilliard String Quartet. Epic LC 3931 (M); BC 1331 (S)

The many delights of these three works burst through in this effective recording. Development runs smoothly; interplay shines in technical achievement. Of special note is the Adagio of "Op. 54, No. 2." Harmonies here are telling.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT
THE YOUNG MOZART

Various Artists/Camerata Academica of the Salzburg Mozarteum (Paumgartner). Angel 36377 (M); S 36377 (S)

Simplicity and tight playing make this recording of three of Mozart's early works a pleasure to hear throughout. The three soloists, conductor Paumgartner and the orchestra unite in technique and feeling.

LOW PRICE CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT

TCHAIKOVSKY: 1812 OVERTURE/MARCHE SLAVE/ROMEO AND JULIET/SLEEPING BEAUTY WALTZ

Royal Philharmonic (Sargent). Seraphim 60023 (M); S 60023 (S)

Anyone who missed Sir Malcolm's superb "1812 Overture" on Angel has an opportunity to pick up this budget album. The repertoire is among the most familiar in the classical field, and the Royal Philharmonic's treatment is worthy of the composer.

LOW-PRICE CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT

STRAVINSKY: FIREBIRD SUITE/BIZET: CHILDREN'S GAMES/RAVEL: MOTHER GOOSE SUITE

Philharmonia Orchestra (Giulini). Seraphim 60022 (M); S 60022 (S)

Giulini turns his creative talents to these three imaginative and popular works. He gives "Firebird" fire and zeal, and brings a fresh rhythmic force to the passages, "Children's Games" and "Mother Goose" will be enjoyed by both the small fry and adults.

LOW PRICE CHILDREN'S SPOTLIGHT

SPY WITH A PIE

Soupy Sales. Simon Says M49 (M)

Soupy goes hero spy in the most part here, and the results are really funny in this disk formerly released under ABC-Paramount label. He takes up the chase against "INK" (Int'l Network of Kooks), then goes into a different bag with such things as "What Did the Animals Say?" and "We're Going to the Circus."

JAZZ SPOTLIGHT
BLUE PYRAMID

Johnny Hodges/Wild Bill Davis. Verve V-8635 (M); V6-8635 (S)

With electronic guitar, Fender bass and the Bill Davis organ, Hodges gives soul to today's rock tunes and passionately rides off a few of the old goodies. It all has a very modern and driving sound. This will appeal to young and old.

CLASSICAL SPOTLIGHT

THE ART OF HELMUT WALCHA

Archive KL 306/310 (M); SKL 306/310 (S)

Beautiful tone and range of colors created by a master organist make this specially priced, five-record set a prize collection. Performed on the grand organ of St. Lauren's Church, the works are given new grandeur and splendor. The sound, technically, is pure, and the interior's acoustics of the church adds to the selections' lyrical values.

ALBUM REVIEW POLICY

Every album sent to Billboard for review is heard by Billboard's Review Panel, and its sales potential is rated within its category of music. Full reviews are presented for Spotlight Picks or Special Merit Picks, and all other LP's are listed under their respective categories.

THE OFFICIAL ADVENTURES OF FLASH GORDON

Buster Crabbe/Various Artists. Leo the Lion CH-1028 (M)

Filled with suspense, adventure and excitement, this album will be the delight of many a child. An excellent gift for the holidays.

JAZZ SPOTLIGHT

STAN GETZ/LAURINDO ALMEIDA

Verve V-8665 (M); V6-8665 (S)

Another winner for Stan Getz. With Laurindo Almeida (guitar) and a superb group of Latin specialists, the popular saxophonist surges through six swinging Brazilian tracks. Attractively packaged and beautifully produced, this album should do very well in the pop-jazz market.

JAZZ SPOTLIGHT

MISTY

Richard (Groove) Holmes. Prestige PR 7485

Riding in on the crest of two chart singles, "Misty" and "What Now, My Love," the Holmes trio has come up with an album that will move quickly up the album charts. The extended versions of "On the Street Where You Live" and "There Will Never Be Another You" are blockbusters, and the LP should enjoy healthy sales in the jazz, R&B and pop markets.

CLASSICAL MUSIC

New 'Messiah' Versions Highlighting Yule Activity

By FRED KIRBY

NEW YORK—While many special classical packages figure to make ideal holiday gifts, special attention on several labels is being given Handel's "Messiah." Two new complete versions (on Philips and RCA Victor) and three highlight disks (on Columbia, Angel and London Phase 4) are being pushed. In addition, older complete treatments on Columbia, Westminster and Vanguard are perennial sellers.

Both new complete sets spotlight the orchestras, the London Symphony under Colin Davis on Philips and the Robert Shaw Choral and Orchestra on Victor. Leonard Bernstein conducts the New York Philharmonic on the Columbia highlight disk; Otto Klemperer, the Philharmonic Orchestra on Angel with Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, Niccolai Gedda and Jerome Hines on Angel; and Leopold Stokowski, the London Symphony on the Phase 4 disk. Columbia usually does well with a complete "Messiah" featuring the Mormon Tabernacle Choir with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra, while Westminster can always count on seasonal sales from its "Messiah" with the late Hermann Scherchen conducting the Vienna State Opera Orchestra. Scherchen also conducts the Vanguard package.

Considered a hot Christmas gift item is Victor's "Opening Nights at the Met," which contains a swatch from the curtain of the old Metropolitan Opera House. Other new packages considered right for presents are collections of Beethoven's Nine Symphonies by Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia on Columbia and by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony on Command.

Deutsche Grammophon and Angel both have new packages of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis," the former conducted by Herbert von Karajan, while Otto Klemperer leads the other. Angel also has issued the first domestic release of "Hodie," Vaughn Williams' Christmas cantata, while Deutsche Grammophon has "Christmas in Provence," with music by Tomasi and Saboly.

Opera packages figure prominently in record company Christmas plans, including Columbia's re-entry in the complete opera field with Verdi's "Falstaff" starring Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau. Leonard Bernstein conducts the Vienna Philharmonic in the package. Big things also are expected from London's forthcoming release of Rossini's "Semiramide" starring Joan Sutherland and Marilyn Horne, a follow-up to that label's successful pressing of Verdi's "Nabucco" starring Elena Suliotis and Tito Gobbi.

Everest is reissuing 36 complete operas formerly on Cetra, while four historic Mozart operas were re-released last week on Turnabout through a deal between Vox and EMI. Heliodor is re-issuing the MGM package of Moore's "The Ballad of Baby Doe" and Prokofiev's "War and Peace" in time for Christmas sales. Angel has repackaged three collections, "The Genius of Puccini" and "Opera Gala" starring many leading operatic artists, and "The Art of Maria Callas" for the Christmas market.

Other new multiple sets issued in time for the holiday are a five-LP package of Helmut Walcha playing Bach organ works on Archive and the Budapest String Quartet and violist Walter Trampler on Columbia in six Mozart quintets and Bach's "Partitas" by Glen Gould on Columbia. Everest also is presenting its Archives of Piano Music series.

Watts Pours on Power in Extraordinary Performance

NEW YORK—Columbia Records' Andre Watts is a pianist with high-voltage power. Even in his all-too-brief performance with the American Symphony Orchestra at Carnegie Hall last Monday (21), he attacked Edward MacDowell's "Piano Concerto No. 2, Op. 23" with all the fury of an electrical storm, and made the work diminish precisely and effectively.

Previously thought of as a minor if not undistinguished work, the concerto, in Watts' remarkable and swift hands, and conducted with close, unadorned unity by Leopold Stokowski, was transformed into a selection of major importance. It is certainly deserving of a recording—and by these very performers.

From the very opening solo bars of the Larghetto, which almost cries with anguish, Watts builds with feeling, extraordinary vitality and purpose. In the Presto, there was an ever present wit and charge; and the final movement, with its theme repeated again, received that special Watts' interpretation. Here, in addition, he displayed a versatility, as his hands cajoled and teased and were playful.

Stokowski gave too warm a reading in the Brahms "Symphony No. 1 in C Minor." There was little excitement, and even the Adagio-Allegro, which should make for some real fire, hardly smoldered. True, there was an excellent performance by the first violin, in the second movement, which does take hold. But the pacing in the entire piece was too spotty and Stokowski's range too broad.

"Mysterious Mountain," by American composer Alan Hovhaness, served as an excellent opener. And here Stokowski fared much better; fare better he should, for the selection was composed on a commission by Stokowski for his debut as permanent conductor of the Houston Symphony in 1955.

It is a superior work, with both a lyrical and ecclesiastical quality, muted violins, celesta, harp and all, which work beautifully. Stokowski makes it moving and forceful, and molds it slowly through to its strong conclusion. ROBERT SOBEL

DGG Showcasing Bach Set With Special Display Ads

NEW YORK—Deutsche Grammophon is shipping special promotional display pieces to dealers on Christmas gift-giving suggestions for Deutsche Grammophon and Archive product. Included is "The Basic Bach for Organ," which spotlights the specially priced five-LP package of organist Helmut Walcha playing Bach. The set sells for the price of three disks.

Another poster, "Their Finest Hours," features casts and full-color reproductions of the operatic sets of "Daphne," "Wozzek," "Die Frau ohne Schatten," "Die Zauberfloete," "Rigoletto," and the pairing of "Cavallera Rusticana" and "Pagliacci." "The Best of Bach" also is slated with reference of four Archive albums of the composer's works. A display is being prepared on "Contemporary Classics," listing Henze's Five Symphonies, Schoenberg's "Gurre Lieder," and Stockhausen's album of electronic music.

Also planned is a graphic advertising the exclusivity of Herbert von Karajan and the Berlin Philharmonic. Included will be album cover reproductions of their releases, Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis," Bartok's "Concerto for Orchestra," Strauss' "Don Quixote," and the combination of Ravel's "Bolero" and the Mussorgsky-Ravel "Pictures at an Exhibition."

A January promotion paste-up will announce the Bayreuth Festival recording of "Tristan und Isolde," which will contain a slick adhered to a pre-printed cardboard. The promotional pieces will be packed three to a box.

Leinsdorf & Boston in Blew-Par 1st Work

NEW YORK—Whether playing baroque, romantic or contemporary music, the Boston Symphony under Erich Leinsdorf can be counted on to deliver an interesting program as was the case of Philharmonic Hall on Nov. 18. Unfortunately, not everything came off well.

The major disappointment was the newest work, William Sydean's "In Memoriam John F. Kennedy," which received its initial New York performance two days earlier. The piece consists of excerpts from the late President's speeches, a Stephen Spender poem, a selection from Ecclesiastes, and quotations from Kennedy biographies, all read rather theatrically by E. G. Marshall. The music wavered between romantic and modern. The effect was of program music that didn't quite make it. Sometimes the music would obviously try to mirror the text as in the Ecclesiastes reference (a time to laugh, a time to weep, etc.), but at other times it was merely a weak background.

Lili Kraus: Tough Night

NEW YORK—It isn't very often that one attends a concert and witnesses a dress rehearsal instead. Actually, only a small portion seemed that way but it was enough to jolt the audience and make Lili Kraus seem human, based upon her previously rich and flawless piano readings of Mozart. As a matter of fact, the incident endeared her even more to the observers—if that's possible.

She had just completed the "Concerto No. 8" (Lutzow) in her third Town Hall concert (15), in her usually brilliant style, giving the uncomplicated work dash and tenderness. The orchestra played the prelude for the Allegro of Concerto No. 26, then she began a cadenza (all the passages in this work are her own). She suddenly stopped, apologized (which set off rounds of applause), went into the wings and came back with a page turner and sheet music. Conductor Stephen Simon, or-

L.A. SYMPHONY SEASON SAVED

LOS ANGELES—A last-minute settlement last Sunday (20), saved the Los Angeles Symphony season which opened on Wednesday (23). Members of Local 47 of the American Federation of Musicians okayed a three-year contract increasing the minimum weekly salaries from $180 to $200 the first year; $210, the second; and $225, the third. The orchestra's season previously was announced as canceled because of the contract dispute.

Dazzling Recital Is Put on by Gulda

NEW YORK—Eight years is too long for a virtuoso like Frederich Gulda to be absent from the New York recital stage. In his return in a Beethoven sonata program at Philharmonic Hall last Sunday (20), Gulda put on a dazzling display climaxed with the fiendishly difficult "Hammerklavier" sonata. In the hazardous Allegro resolute of the final movement, Gulda's playing was breathtaking.

The first part of the impressive program also sparkled as Gulda played the "Pathetique," (Continued on page 54)

MacNeil Is Outstanding In the Met's 'Rigoletto'

NEW YORK—Cornell MacNeil, cast in the title role of "Rigoletto," definitely is the outstanding singer in this season's performances of the Verdi warhorse at the Metropolitan Opera. MacNeil's rich baritone made up for some spotty singing by other principals last Saturday (19). An exception was Bonaldo Giaiotti's "Sparafucile," which was a tower of strength. Giaiotti clearly is one of the company's most dependable artists.

Roberta Peters, as sweet a Gilda as ever, sang prettily, but sounded thin in spots, especially the "Cara Nome" ending, while John Alexander, the possessor of a rich lyric tenor voice, seemed more interested in demonstrating it than in portraying the Duke. This was really evident at the ending of "La Donne e Mobile," when he lost Lamberto Gardelli, an experienced operatic conductor leading the opera for the first time at the Met this season.

The opera house's wealth of basses again was apparent in the fine job by Raymond Michalski in the small, but important role of Monterone. Nedda Cassei again was a competent Maddalena. The serviceable production seemed at home in the new house, but, MacNeil, in his two arias and in duets, was the afternoon's star. What a voice! FRED KIRBY

'Messiah' LP's Highlight Yule

"The Creation" of Haydn, and a de luxe three-record Golden Jubilee package of Andres Segovia. Heliodor has recently issued a set of "The Creation."

For the holiday season, Nonesuch is featuring Christmas music of Pretorius, a disk of Magnificats by Monteverdi and Schuetz, "Fanfares and Sonatas for Brass," Hindemith's "Das Marienleben," "Music of Shakespeare's Time," and a disk of Russian folk songs.

Other appropriate disks from the budget label are Charpentier's "Oratorio de Noel," and "Renaissance Choral Music for Christmas." Crossroads is presenting a collection of European Christmas carols. Philips is pushing three Bach sets conducted by Loren Maazel, including Bach's "Mass in B Minor." The same work also is in the latest Everyman release.

Among other Columbia specially priced sets ideal for gifts are Rudolph Serkin's "Five Piano Concertos" of Beethoven, "Favorite Romantic Symphonies" conducted by Bernstein, romantic concertos played by Serkin, and the older Mozart symphonies conducted by Bruno Walter, Ormandy conducting ballets, Philippe Entremont playing "Great Romantic Concertos," Isaac Stern playing four violin concertos, Ormandy conducting Tchaikovsky, and Gould playing Bach's "The Well-Tempered Clavier."

Other recent Victor packages considered right for gifts are "The Art of Koussevitzky," "Lohengrin" and "Leontyne Price—Prima Donna." Victor also has an older "Messiah" recording conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham as well as carol albums by Marian Anderson, Mario Lanza and the Robert Shaw Chorale. Rounding out the Victor list are such gift possibilities as "Pops Christmas Party" with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra, "Jubilate Deo" with the Regensburg Boys Choir, "Christmas Music of the Baroque" with Carl Weinrich, the "Nutmacker Suite" with Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony, "Presenting Montserrat Caballe," "The Art of the Cantor," "The Student Prince" with Mario Lanza, "Hallelujah" with the Robert Shaw Chorale, Bach arias by Marian Anderson, and several opera sets.

New releases from Vanguard include the Deller Consort in Christmas carols and motets of medieval Europe on Bach Guild, German carols by Erich Kunz, and Czech and Polish carols with the Prague Children's Chorus. Earlier carol sets are by the Welch Chorale, Deller Consort and Alfred Deller. Other Christmas items in Vanguard's catalog include Bach Christmas cantatas, Bach's "St. Matthew Passion," and "18th Century Christmas" with I Solisti di Zagreb.

Angel expects holiday sales from such recent issues as Orff's "Carmina Burana" conducted by Rafael Frubeck de Burgos, "La Vida Breve" starring Victoria de los Angeles, "Baba the Elephant" with Peter Ustinov, Strauss' "Four Last Songs," with Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, and an earlier pressing of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel."

London Records, which expects Christmas sales from its current Georg Solti promotion, including new packages of Wagner's "Die Walkure" with Birgit Nilsson, Regine Crespin and James King, and Bruckner's "Symphony No. 7," also expects top sales from a Joan Sutherland-Noel Coward album, a Phase 4 release of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess Symphonic Suite," and recital albums by Geraint Evans, Gwenth Jones, Pilar Lorengar and Elizabeth Sowerstroen.

Epic is conducting an extensive Christmas-gift merchandising campaign including its new Crossroads line. Recent packages well-suited to as gifts are Sibelius' seven symphonies with Akeo Watanabe conducting the Japan Philharmonic, and Alicia de Larrocha playing the "Iberia" and "Navarra" of Albeniz. Deutsche Grammophon is rushing its Henze symphonies conducted by the composer.

Turnabout sets include Caldera's "Christmas Cantata," "Christmas Story" by Schuetz, Magnificats by Schuetz and Monteverdi, and organist Walter Kraft playing Bach's "Choral Preludes for Christmas." Counterpoint has the New York Pro Musica in English medieval Christmas carols, and "Christmas on the Sienna Pianoforte."

A steady Christmas seller for Command is a Christmas album by Virgil Fox. Other good Command suggestions are Brahms four symphonies by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony, Beethoven's "Symphonies Nos. 9 and 8" with Steinberg and the Pittsburgh, and the soundtrack of "Bolshoi Ballet '67."

MGM Records is a division of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc.

While dealers report that it is early for Christmas product, certain LP's and singles seem to be jumping out in front of others. It appears that Christmas LP's do not require the radio exposure as do the singles, and LP sales seem to be slightly ahead of singles sales to date. Below is a list of the best selling LP's and singles to date. As the sales of Christmas product increase, so too will the number of best selling Christmas LP's and singles reported in these special charts—in accordance with sound research practices in terms of sufficient retailers reporting significant sales on specific records. These special charts will run for the next five issues as a special buying and stocking guide. NOTE: It is possible that many new Christmas releases have not yet had the full opportunity to be reflected here.

ports Nesuhi Ertegun, Atlantic's executive vice-president who commands its jazz operation. "The main reason is that rhythm and blues disk jockeys in the last few years have taken an increasing interest in jazz." Artists, like organist Jimmy Smith, have helped bridge the two idioms and have brought an awareness of jazz to the r&b disk jockeys.

Ertegun feels this new interest by DJ's is "remarkable" in light of their seldom having played the material. In fact, the executive says they may even have hid their enthusiasm in the past. This exposure on AM radio has done so much good that Ertegun has been signing new artists.

Recent additions to Atlantic's roster include Jack McDuff, a funky organist, whose single of "A Change Is Gonna Come" sold 15,000 copies in Chicago; drummer Shelly Manne, a West Coast staple of the recording industry; saxophonist Eddie Harris, pianist Junior Mance, multihorn man Charles Lloyd and Hubert Laws.

R&b DJ's who previously couldn't go out of their format are now including jazz tracks in their shows, Ertegun says. "They're not scared to play something outside their format if it's good enough. But it can't be too far out." The jazz which does get played on r&b stations is strongly tied to a blues sound. Jazz drummers have been using more and more rock 'n' roll patterns which give the arrangements a contemporary base which is acceptable to the r&b people.

Charles Lloyd is an important musician, Ertegun feels, because of his inventiveness and his non-compromising attitude. "The musicians in Europe are all talking about him. You can always tell from that whether a musician has potential.

"I feel jazz has a marvelous future; I didn't always feel that way," Ertegun said. There is more stress on quality, packaging and repertoire because of the potential for exposure before a broader based audience. "I send the musicians new tunes all the time. Some are interested, some aren't. There is more of an awareness for the pop composer, Ertegun says, and the "jazz artist who lives in an ivory tower has practically ceased to exist.

Players are more aware of cutting one track for airplay. "They used to say 'no,'" according to Ertegun. "Now they come to me and say, 'Hey, let's have two short tracks.' It's a minor revolution. Almost every jazz musician plays Beatles tunes. Five years ago they wouldn't play tunes by pop groups. The Beatles made them aware of top 40 and the charts."

The success which Lou Rawls has recently found within the pop market will have its affect on the industry. Says the Atlantic v.p.: "Now we'll all try to find our own Lou Rawls."

Rawls is now identified with the pop, r&b and jazz markets. For Atlantic, covering these three bases has made its just-completed 18th year the best. The Modern Jazz Quartet has been with the label 11 years and is the company's oldest tenant on the roster. Atlantic's strong r&b roster has played a major role in the record sales this year. "What's good," the world-traveling Ertegun exclaimed, "is that not only are we getting tremendous play in the U. S., but also action in Europe. It's marvelous to hear 10 of your records played in a European discotheque."

chestra, and soloist started over again.

Following the music, she played the concerto with a determination that brought cheers. After intermission she returned with the score and played the "Concerto No. 15" well, although somewhat sporadically. She gave an encore of the Allegro which was better than her first attempt.

But, unrehearsed or not, prepared or not, Mme. Kraus is still the Mozart champion. So come back to the stage Dec. 6, Mme. Kraus. All is forgiven.

Buck-ersfield: Owens Country

By HERB WOOD

BAKERSFIELD, Calif.— Buck Owens will present his second annual "Toys for Tots" show at the Bakersfield Auditorium Dec. 16. Admission to the all-star, country music concert is a toy, with the proceeds being distributed to needy children by U. S. Marines.

Last year the pre-Christmas show drew 9,000 fans to the auditorium, with 2,000 more turned away from the gates, resulting in 19 truckloads of toys for the Christmas distribution by Marines.

The show will star Owens and the Buckaroos, and will feature Merle Haggard, Bonnie Owens, Dick Curless, Kay Adams, Freddie Hart, Bob Morrison and Red Simpson.

'Gra$$' Greener

NASHVILLE — Curley Putman, Tree Music writer, has had remarkable success with his "Green, Green Grass of Home" penning. The tune has been cut 16 times and has been a hit for Johnny Darrell, Porter Wagoner and Jerry Lee Lewis.

The latest waxing, by England's popular Tom Jones on the Decca label there, has been out three weeks and is already in the top 10 on the U. K. charts. Parrot Records, subsidiary of London Records, will release the disk here this week.

Film Completed

HOLLYWOOD — The first major Hollywood-Nashville motion picture that mixes the two music cities in personalities and theme has recently been completed. "What Am I Bid?," directed by Gene Nash, stars LeRoy Van Dyke, with Tex Ritter, Al Hirt, Faron Young, Bill Craig, Kristin Nelson, Stephanie Hill and others. Now being edited and scored, the film is up for distribution, with several studios bidding for the rights.

New C&W Label

NASHVILLE — Release Records, a new country music label in St. Louis and a division of American Service Industries, will soon be recording in Nashville, according to the firm's A&R director, Bob Bax. Bax is also in the market for new material and can be reached at P. O. Box 234, St. Louis, Mo.

Ken Rogers and His Northern Gents release, "Crazy Memories," on Solar, is getting chart action. DJ's, write to Brite Star, Newbury, Ohio, for copies. ings within the growing Owens empire, the Capitol Records star's manager, Jack McFadden, states that Buck and the Buckaroos will tour Japan doing civilian concerts and will appear on the Japanese TV network in February. The group will be accompanied by McFadden and Owens' publicity director Eddie Briggs.

Merle Haggard, one of the top stars in the Owens-Omac stable, is currently appearing in Florida, but is slated to star in an up-coming motion picture titled "Hillbillies in a Haunted House." In spite of the title, the film has an excellent cast including Basil Rathbone, Ferlin Husky, Jayne Mansfield, Lon Chaney Jr., John Carradine and Sonny James. The pic is being produced by Barney Wollner for Producers Studio in Hollywood and shooting will take place Dec. 13-16. Haggard has a new single out on Capitol,

"The Fugitive" b/w "Someone Told My Story." The top side is a unique ballad sound for the vocalist, while the flip is in the same groove as his past "drinking" hits.

Owens is also touting another of his proteges, Dick Curless. Speaking of the Tower Records artist's just-cut single, Buck said, "If this isn't a hit, I don't know what is," and Owens, with a solid streak of hits, should know. Curless and his distaff duet partner, Kay Adams, both appear with the Buck Owens Show.

Owens, who could be called the Baron of "Buckersfield," will appear on Dick Clark's "Swinin' Country" TV'er Dec. 22 and 27. On the first show, Buck will debut his newest single and on the 27th will perform cuts from his Christmas LP. The Christmas album, cut last year, is enjoying healthy sales at the dealer level.

GOSPEL MUSIC

Spurrllows Spur Safety With Musical Message

By HERB WOOD

NASHVILLE — One of the busiest gospel groups in the country is the Spurrllows, who perform a dual function with their outstanding show, "Music For Modern Americans." During the day, the group sings and plays for students at high school assemblies to emphasize driving safety and the school's Driver Education Program. At night, the group performs in area churches with its "Splendor of Sacred Song" program.

Founded in 1959 by Thurlow Spurr, the youth-conscious gospel singers travel thousands of miles a year, bringing their music to literally millions of teenagers. Sponsored by Chrysler Motors, and local Chrysler dealers where they appear, the Spurrllows offer a varied musical program including the current hits. Many of the students are

Zondervan Inks McDuff Boys

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—The McDuff Brothers, Roger, John and Colman, and pianist Lorne Matthews, have signed a contract with Singcord Corp. to release records on the Zondervan label. The first two gospel disks have been cut and are scheduled for an early release.

The brothers have sung with some of the top quartets in the gospel fields. They organized their own group in January and are now boking themselves in concerts, church rallies and revivals.

Lorne Matthews, the group's accompanist, is a native of Canada. He has just completed a solo LP of his distinctive piano stylings. Colman McDuff is also scheduled to release a solo LP in the near future.

The McDuffs were signed to Zondervan by Maury Lehmann, manager of the firm's record division.

Prophets Cheer Viet Vets

FORT CAMPBELL, KY.—The Prophets, talented gospel music quintet, entertained battle-weary troops just returned from the Vietnam front at the base hospital here Tuesday (15). The group established a first for gospel music, being the first such group to perform at an Army base in the U. S.

The group visited the critical wards of the hospital, entertaining the wounded soldiers that could not be transported to the auditorium where the group had performed for the base personnel.

The Celestials, an all-girl group from Lexington, Ky., were also on the show, providing the female charm. A pretty and talented trio, the Celestials were given a rousing reception by the troops.

Commenting on the event, Army Chaplains Gosser and Bowers agreed that, "the day's visit by the Prophets and the Celestials has been one of the best morale boosters on the base in a long time." As a result, the Prophets have been booked for several appearances at the base next year.

so impressed with the quality of the group's performance at the assembly program, they return for the evening of gospel music at the local churches.

Recording for Word Records, the group has a growing catalog of gospel LP's, including "High Time You Heard the Spurrlows," "Listen . . . Hear!" and "Christmas, Time For Song," as well as Thurlow Spurr's solo album, "Yours . . . And His."

Unlike the usual gospel group, the Spurrlows consist of 30 musicians, vocal and instrumental, whose average age is just over 20 years old. "All are dedicated Christians," states leader Spurr, "who want to reach young people."

The Spurrlows travel from September to June, the school months, and are off during the summer. This year's tour began in Seattle, Sept. 12, and will end up in Detroit in June, after performing in over 100 cities. The tour seems doubly strenuous considering the two-shows-a-day schedule that the Spurrlows follow, aiming at churches and schools.

To transport the large group and the complete lighting, sound and stage equipment they employ in their performances, the Spurrlows travel by convoy, with a specially-designed, diesel tractor-trailer truck supplied by Chrysler. This year marks the third time the group has travelled the U. S. under the aegis of Chrysler.

As to the success of the group's ministry of music, founder Spurr says, "The Splendor of Sacred Song has become just that through the dedication of the individual Spurrlows, and

Speers Add New Singer

NASHVILLE — The Speer Family has added a new member to its well-known group, in the person of Harold Lane. Brock Speer, manager of the Skylite recording group, termed Lane "one of the most versatile men active in gospel music today."

Speer said that in addition to being a singer, instrumentalist and composer, Lane is an arranger "second to none."

Lane moved from Huntington, W. Va., to Nashville, in order to join the Speers. In Huntington, Lane was an outstanding promoter of gospel music, managing the Gospel Harmony Boys for 14 years.

Lane's music background includes A. B. and M. A. degrees in music from Marshall University and 16 months of study in Munich, Germany. He taught vocal and instrumental music in public schools for 12 years.

His commercial experience includes arranging for the Statesmen, Jake Hess, Gospel Harmony Boys and many others. According to Speer, "the Speer Family's repertoire is accepted by his ideas." The group plans to utilize Lane's arranging abilities to an even greater extent in the future.

Dilemma on Production of Compatible Albums Hits Pye

In an effort to rationalize production, Pye did some test marketing of a compatible album. It feels it was not a success.

To meet the conflicting demands of home and export sales Pye now finds itself with the problem of having to produce, in some cases, three different versions of the same album—mono, stereo and compatible.

"Obviously we look forward to the day when we can just press and sell on record," said Pye managing director Louis Benjamin. "But it has got to be suitable compatible standard agreed by the whole U.K. industry. The Continental market is far ahead of Britain's in this respect.

"This could be a great advantage, not only for Pye, but the whole British industry if we could get a suitable and acceptable compatible album."

Noting that Pye has in recent weeks not maintained the high pop singles chart success it had earlier in the year, Benjamin added; "Some weeks we have five singles in the first 11 and we will do it again, perhaps before the end of this year."

In its last financial quarter from July, the turnover was an all-time high. Benjamin estimates that last month's results will be at least 20 per cent higher than in previous November.

"This is due to the acceptance of our albums in all price ranges. The marble Arch Budget line has done particularly well. It seems to have reflected the public's current spending power," he said.

To strengthen further his overseas development, Benjamin is enlarging his foreign department. He is introducing personnel to work with British agents on bookings for Continental artists visiting the U.K. At the same time, the export division will also be offering Continental affiliates increased promotion and press services on British artists.

U.K. Record Sales Battle Flaring Anew With Entry of Granada TV

By GRAEME ANDREWS

LONDON—The battle for record sales in the British market has been further intensified by the entry into the record business of Granada TV of Manchester, one of Britain's Big Four commercial television program companies.

Granada launches its own label here this week and will put its product initially through its chain of 234 TV rental shops. Granada is the second TV company to enter the business, the major ATV company owning the entire stock of Pye Records.

Granada's arrival means a fresh spurt of competition for Pye, Philips, EMI and Decca who dominated the market until the debut in the last year of CBS and a host of independent labels such as Immediate, Page One, President and Go.

First Release

First Granada release is a $1 single with two festive sing-along sides playing for a total of 11 minutes by the cast of the company's top-rating TV show, "Coronation Street." Next year, when the label becomes fully operational, it plans to put its product through conventional record stores as well as its own TV shops.

Granada, which has a fully equipped recording studio at its Manchester TV center, plans to record pop singles, EP's and LP's by new artists and established acts as well as records from its TV shows, and their casts.

Unique Spot

In Manchester, it will be in a unique position to acquire and record Merseyside talent. For although the Mersey beat boom is past its peak, a steady proportion of British talent still comes from the north of England.

Granada's first record has been pressed and packaged in a color sleeve by Associated Recordings, parent company of quality-budget label Saga. Granada is still discussing final pressing arrangements when it goes into full-time record production, and it has still to fix distribution before it can move into the whole of Britain's record stores.

Paris Festival Fizzler; Sign of Bad Jazz Times in France Is Blamed

PARIS — The Third Paris Jazz Festival, a two-day, five-concert event held at the Salle Pleyel, was something of a disappointment both artistically and commercially.

Despite a wide variety of music and some big names, attendances at the concerts were well below expectations. The presentation unhappily coincided with a period of slump on the French jazz scene. With jazz clubs doing a poor business, with fewer and fewer jazz albums being released, and with jazz programs on radio and TV pruned almost out of existence, the jazz climate in Paris was not particularly propitious.

And if there is declining enthusiasm for American jazz, there is almost complete apathy as far as French jazz is concerned. For the first time one of the concerts was devoted entirely to French groups—and it drew a mere 200.

The remaining concerts featured the George Wein package which had been touring Europe for two weeks—a tour Wein described as "the most difficult yet." Sheer fatigue undoubtedly prevented some of musicians from giving their best, but the fact remains that a package featuring such big names as Getz, Brubeck, Rollins, Jacquet, Roach, Eldridge and Willy (The Lion) Smith, would have drawn much bigger crowds three years ago.

Jullien Impresses

The Festival was opened by the Ivan Jullien Paris All Stars, a big band which impressed with its biting brass. The trio of tenorist-flutist Michel Roques followed and they really swung on a very fast version of "Parker 51." The French concert was rounded off by the trio of brilliant pianist Martial Solal, featuring a program consisting chiefly of originals by the leader. Solal, a brilliant technician, and his well drilled bass and drum team, played really well and deserved a bigger audience.

The second concert was devoted entirely to the Dave Brubeck quartet which sailed through a characteristic program from "Take Five" to "Take the 'A' Train" (which had a fine Desmond solo) and at least looked as if they were enjoying themselves. Because of a dispute between Stan Getz and Astrud Gilberto, the third concert was divided into two. Miss Gilberto appeared first with her own rhythm section and instantly won over the audience with her appealing manner, her coy, little girl voice and bossa nova beat.

Bonn Puts O. K. on Country as Yule Gift

By OMER ANDERSON

BONN—West Germany postal authorities announced that country records may be sent to private addresses in West Germany as Yule gifts.

"This should please Charlie Louvin," a Bonn postal official remarked. Louvin complained last spring that U. S. gold-flow regulations were depriving "the people in Germany from buying country product."

The procedure is that the records be shipped to the private German address with the stipulation the package is a Christmas gift. Postal authorities said each package would be judged on its merits for exemption from customs.

This means, it was explained, that due weight will be given the argument country product is lacking in Germany, and, in

Louvin's words, "People there are hungry for country records."

The Christmas gift relaxation on customs duties also will apply to shipments to military APO's for distribution to Germans and Americans in Germany not entitled to U. S. military exemption from German customs.

The military APO recipient will be permitted by German authorities to pass the records on to a "non-authorized" recipient as a Yule gift.

There are no specific limits on the number or value of disks sent as gifts, postal authorities here explained. "We just want to be convinced the records really are intended as a gift and not for resale through commercial channels. We like country music and we try to enter into the spirit of Christmas about these things."

Teldec Five-Star Program Sparkling on Sales Results

HAMBURG—Teldec is posting some of its best sales results ever with its new "Five-Star Program" of promoting picked records in five groups—operetta, stars and hits, instrumental, entertainment, and folk music.

Teldec is testing the theory that a balanced sales effort will yield more mileage at less risk than crash merchandising concentrating on a particular product line or star group. Moreover, Teldec's Five-Star approach mixes foreign and German artists and foreign and domestic labels (Telefunken, RCA Victor, Decca, London, Warner Bros., Reprise and Coral).

Operetta offerings are Karl Milloecker's "Der Bettelstudent" (The Student Begger); "The Gypsy Baron" and "Ritter vom hohen C, with Reinhold Bartel, tenor.

Stars and hits feature Caterina Valente (Portrait in Music), Peggy March in German ("Lass mir meine Traeume" or "Leave Me With My Dreams"); Nancy Sinatra ("How Does That Grab

You?"), and Hazy Osterwald's Sextet (Musik macht Munter).

The instrumental section has Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass in "What Now My Love"; the RCA Victor recording of "Zacharias in "Pop Goes

Electrola Putting Classical Accent Into Pop Promotion

COLOGNE — Electrola is embarked on an experiment to upgrade pop music through the classical music format of luxury albums at subscription prices.

The introduction of new pop releases is to be made an "event" on a par with the release of expensive new classical subscription albums.

Timed for Christmas, first such offering is "Das Goldene Tanz - Album" (The Golden Dance Album) consisting of four LP's priced by subscription until February 28 at $14.90 (instead of $18).

The album was recorded by Hgu Strasser's Dance Orchestra. The albums begin with dance music of the 1920's and progress through the best rhythms and hully gully of the modern era. Disk titles are

"Valencia," "Warum muewsen Jahre vergehn, "In the Mood," "Yesterday."

The album includes the best-known dances of the last 50 years. It has elegant plastic leather binding and is designed for carrying away from home for dancing parties.

In addition to the album, Electrola has released Strasser's "Die Tanzplatte des Jahres," an LP with the most popular dances of 1966-1967. This disk is priced at $4.50.

Electrola's merchandising men said the production of luxury pop albums for subscription sale is a logical extension of the upgrading which began with the shifting of marketing effort from the single to the LP, which now dominates the pop market.

From The Music Capitals of the World

AMSTERDAM

The pirate interest in Holland increases. Following Radio England's launching of a Dutch-language program, Radio London now intends a similar service. A spokesman for the station said that the listener intensity for Holland was about 22 per cent which makes a Dutch service feasible. Radio London's ship anchored off Harwich, England, is crewed by Dutch seamen.

Iramac Recordings has introduced the Dover label to the Dutch market. Iramac will represent this budget LP series in West Germany and France as well.

Bovema hosted a reception for its stars to meet the critics at the Koopermolen Case in Amsterdam's Old Quarter. British duo Peter & Gordon attended, in connection with their "Lady Godiva" hit, and guested in a KRO-TV show on the same day.

A concert marking UNESCO's 20th anniversary will be held in the Amsterdam Concert Hall on Dec. 3. Guest soloist will be violinist Emmy Verhey, accompanied by the North Holland Philharmonic Orchestra under Nico Van der Linden. CNR Records has finally started distributing Russian repertoire on the Meloida label after delay caused by inferior tapes sent initially.

Danny Kaye played a UNICEF concert in Amsterdam on Nov. 23 as part of his UNICEF international tour to mark the organization's 20th anniversary. Dutch Capitol released his "Mommy Gimme a Drinka Water" album to coincide with his visit.

Discatron, 'All-Position' Portable Phono Player, Heading for Mexico

MEXICO CITY—Discatron, the new English portable 45 player that works in any position, upside down, is coming to Mexico. Ken Ward, managing director of Discatron, Ltd., initiated Discatron de Mexico, S. A., during his recent four-week, eight-country tour.

Discatron, Ltd., which debuted its player in March, is a principal stockholder in Pathe-

Marconi (EMI) which is associated with French Thompson in Paris. Through these contacts, distribution in the Common Market is assured, though negotiations are still in progress. Ward, former managing director of Birmingham Sound Reproduction, set up Discatron's entry in New Zealand and Australia, on his trip. Principal investors in Discatron de Mexico, S. A. include Discatron, Ltd., Majestic Electrons and an undisclosed third investor described as a major manufacturer in Electronics here. Discatron de Mexico holds the franchise for exploitation throughout Latin America. It will not manufacture but will job production through factories belonging to associates in the holding company.

The marketing target date through Majestic's distribution net, both in Mexico and throughout Latin America, is March 1967. Manufacturers in Latin-American countries will be licensed to produce locally. Mexico's Discatron will sell for approximately $45.

WHAT IS DISCATRON? Discatron is a revolutionary new portable record player with mechanical linear tracking. Pop in a disk, press a button and it plays in any position. It plays up to 1,000 sides before changing batteries. The product was introduced in England in March. A spokesman for Discatron claims it has already captured 30 per cent of the portable record player market in England, selling for about $45 retail, 33 1/3 per cent less wholesale. Although the payer only receives 45's at present, the principle is capable of adaption to 33's.

After intermission Getz presented 10 numbers in a fairly glib and offhand way—though there was much more enthusiasm and attack from drummer Roy Haynes and the brilliant young Gary Burton on vibraharp. The fourth concert was opened by the inimitable Willie the Lion, who can sing "Ain't Misbehaving" with a cigar in his mouth better than anyone. The Uptown Swing All Stars brought Illinois Jacquet back to a French stage after many years' absence, accompanied by Roy Eldridge, Milt Buckner, Jimmy Woode and Jo Jones. This was good uncompromising swinging jazz interlaced by two excellently interpreted ballads "I Can't Get Started," by El- dridge and "I Don't Stand a Ghost of a Chance," by Jacquet Jones.

Jones Scores

The Jo Jones extended solo on "Caravan" was a masterpiece of controlled power. The All Stars were then joined by the fantastic Harlem Dancers whose tape routines were acclaimed by the audience. The Max Roach Quintet, featuring Freddie Hubbard and James Spaulding played Jymie Merritt's "Nommo" for 40 minutes, then Sonny Rollins joined Roach and bass player Merritt to play "Will You Still Be Mine" for 30 minutes. The controversial Albert Ayler Quintet brought proceedings to a close in an uproar of cheers and boos. This fourth concert was repeated at greater length later in the evening, but by 3:10 a.m., when it ended, most of the audience had gone home.

Jazz audiences remain uncommonly fickle and it is significant that despite the star jazz names, the most applause was reserved for the pop-oriented music of Brubeck and Gilberto.

It remains to be seen how Paris audiences will respond to the Norman Granz JATP package due here on Dec. 5.

INTERNATIONAL SPOTLIGHT

THE CRAZY HORSE SALOON OF PARIS

Albert Van Dam, UA International UN 14503 (M); UNS 15503 (S)

A lively, highly entertaining album designed to recreate the mood of the famous Parisian club. With this package, the new United Artist label should find a wide range of buyers including American pop fans as well as international music lovers.

COMEDY SPOTLIGHT

MY PLUMBER DOESN'T MAKE HOUSE CALLS

Kalil & Taylor, Capitol DT 2619 (M); ST 2619 (S)

The nudging of a few funnybones could explode this sleeper into a comedy smash. Frank Kalil interviews nine people (Jay Taylor) who have strange occupations such as a Japanese suicide photographer, a railroad public relations man who hates people and a 20th Century medicine man. First band, "My Plumber Doesn't Make House Calls," is wild, but take your pick, all nine interviews are hilarious.

SPECIAL MERIT PICKS

Special Merit Picks are new releases of outstanding merit which deserve exposure and which could have commercial success within their respective categories of music.

POP SPECIAL MERIT

HERE'S TO MY LADY

Matt Monro, Capitol T 2608 (M); ST 2608 (S)

Monro gives a solid performance on these tunes ranging from old standards to newer pop numbers. He turns out swingers like "You've Got Possibilities" and "Sweet Talkin' Hannah" with real zing. "Laura" and "People" are right in the ballad groove.

POP SPECIAL MERIT

Sue Raney, Imperial LP-9323 (M); LP-12323 (S)

Well programmed, well performed and by far the most commercial Sue Raney package to date. In material, she runs the gamut from old favorites to current pop. She excels with her new single, "Any Old Time of Day." Her treatments of "Walk on By" and "Always Something There to Remind Me" are also standouts.

LOW PRICE POP SPECIAL

Earl Grant, Vocalion VL 3793 (M); VL 7393 (S)

Earl Grant's relaxed vocal and organ style shows to good advantage with standards such as "C'est Si Bon," "Beyond the Sea" and "Two Loves Have I." All 10 cuts are standards, and they're all performed with grace.

POP SPECIAL MERIT

CHANGES:

Jackie & Roy, Verve V-8668 (M); V-8668 (S)

In their debut disk for Verve, Jackie and Roy put their jazz background to good use. Whether employing their usual blended-voice style as in "Dedicated to Love" and "The Word," vocales as in "Norwegian Wood," or in a fine Jackie solo of "Yesterday," the couple produces good sound. If quality still counts, this disk could do something.

POP SPECIAL MERIT

Frank Hubbell & The Stompers, Atco 33-196 (M); 33-196 SD (S)

With the sound of the Village Stompers, Frank Hubbell and the Stompers update Dixieland. Hubbell takes many pop tunes such as "Bilboa Song," "Mame" and "Yesterday" and flavors them with that old-time style. Hats off to banjo player Al Chernet for his one-string picking. Stand-out number is "Penny Candy."

CLASSICAL SPECIAL MERIT

Various Artists / Consortium Musicum (Goennenwein), Angel 36354 (M); S 36354 (S)

Good for holiday fare and all-year-round is this very well done disk. The four soloists, Edith Mathis, Sybil Michelow, Theo Altmeyer and Franz Crass all excel. Wolfgang Goennenwein, the choir, the Consortium Musicum and solo instrumentalists contribute heavily.

CLASSICAL SPECIAL MERIT

A TCHAIKOVSKY TRIPLE-DECKER

Bavarian Radio Symphony (L. Ludwig), Capitol SP 8644 (S); 8644 (M)

The Bavarian Radio Symphony gives a competent performance of three of Tchaikovsky's best-known works. While this isn't a collector's piece for classical buffs, it should find a fairly large market among pop music buyers with an interest in the familiar classics.

LOW PRICE CLASSICAL

SPECIAL MERIT

HANDEL ARIAS

Richard Lewis/London Symphony (Sargent), Seraphim 60028 (M); S 60028 (S)

An impeccable performance by the fine English tenor. Lewis sings with clarity and style in nine Handel selections. Outstanding cuts are two difficult "Judas Maccabeus" arias, and a sensitive recitative and stunning aria "Waft Her, Angels," from "Jephtha." Sargent, as usual, is the expert conductor.

LOW PRICE CLASSICAL

SPECIAL MERIT

BEETHOVEN: CONCERTO NO. 3 IN C MINOR, OP. 37

Solomon/Philharmonia Orchestra (Menges), Seraphim 60019 (M); S 60019 (S)

Another fine Beethoven disk by Solomon on Seraphim. Once again Herbert Menges conducts, as the celebrated British pianist supplies a stylistic, controlled reading. The moving second movement is a beauty.

SPOKEN WORD SPECIAL

MERIT

YEATS: FIVE ONE-ACT PLAYS (3 LP's)

Various Artists, Caedmon TRS 315 (M); TRS 315-S (S)

A brilliant group if Irish actors breathe life into Yeats' shorter plays. "The Words Upon the Window Pane," the longest of the five, provides a tour-de-force for Siobhan McKenna. Cyril Cusik's versatility is evident in three other plays. Add such actors as Patrick Magee, Brian O'Higgins, Marie Kean (unfortunately, only in one play), Joyce Redmon and others and you have an engrossing set.

FOUR-STAR ALBUMS

The four-star rating is awarded new albums with sufficient commercial potential in their respective categories to merit being stocked by most dealers, one-stops and rack jobbers handling that category.

NAMM Sets Show Meet for Dealers

Tape and Accessory committee for Sunday of convention week, during which meeting dealers will be invited to discuss individual problems.

• Withdrew its request for a ruling by the Internal Revenue Service with respect to the deductibility of unrefunded excise taxes. On Sept. 21, the IRS declined the request for ruling on behalf of the association but advised it would rule on a case involving an individual dealer. To qualify, however, a dealer must know the amount of unrefunded excise taxes owed him. (The NAMM executive committee expressed the opinion that dealers might better take a markdown on inventory by the amount of the excise taxes which were applied for but not received.)

• Reappointed S. H. Galperin Jr. as director-chairman of the Phonograph Record/Tape and Accessory Committee and assigned directors James K. Hamilton and L. A. McKinney to serve on the committee.

• Expressed appreciation to Billboard for its industry coverage and leadership on behalf of record dealers.

Two Meetings

The actions taken by the association executive committee were the direct result of two previous meetings of record retailers with NAMM officials. During the 1966 Music Show here in June about 20 dealers met with Galperin and expressed strong interest in affiliating with NAMM (Record retailers have been without an association for several years).

Several dealers present at that meeting expressed the opinion that an influx of record retailers into NAMM might renew the interest of record companies in the giant Chicago Show. Record company interest in the show has flagged in recent years, particularly since the advent of rack record retailing.

The initial show discussion was followed by a more formal meeting on Aug. 24, at which both Galperin and NAMM executive vice-president William R. Gard were present. Record dealers invited to the meeting were V. H. Andersen, Chicago; Martin Dolgin, Niles, Ill.; Henry Elsnic, Chicago; M. E. Hollander, Chicago; Edward Nelson, Chicago; A. J. Schaps, Mt. Prospect, Ill.; G. W. Seiffert, Iowa City, Iowa; Bernie Strickler, Chicago, and Daniel Winograd, Chicago.

Prospect List

All the basic recommendations made at that August meeting were approved for implementation by the NAMM executive committee at its meeting.

The decision to actively solicit record companies is already being implemented. According to Gard, all record companies have been placed on a special exhibitors prospect list "for continuing contact."

The special convention business session devoted to phonograph records was an innovation strongly advocated by dealers at the two preliminary meetings. The meeting, tentatively scheduled for Monday of convention week, will begin with a continental breakfast and will feature manufacturers and other phonograph record industry representatives serving on panels with assigned subjects for discussion.

NAMM SERVICES

Wage-Hour Handbook

At the request of record retailers, we continue a series of articles describing National Association of Music Merchants member services.

CHICAGO — The National Association of Music Merchants, Inc., has just launched a major service program for dealers who come under the Fair Labor Standards Act for the first time Feb. 1, 1967.

Coverage is extended on that date for the first time to stores with total annual gross retail sales of over $500,000. Those with $250,000 annual gross sales are covered by the Act for the first time beginning Feb. 1, 1969.

Last week NAMM issued the first Special Bulletin as part of the new service. The bulletin is titled, "How New Federal Wage and Hour Rules Affect Covered Music Stores."

January

Now in preparation by NAMM is a Retail Wage-Hour Handbook. To be released early in January, the handbook combines in loose-leaf form material common to all retail music store jobs plus special information related to specific classes of employees, such as office and administrative, sales, warehouse and delivery personnel.

A set of official regulations is included, as well.

NAMM is cautioning its members not to assume that smaller stores will not be checked. Wage-hour enforcement officials, NAMM reported, are inspecting records of all retail stores, particularly smaller stores.

"The Federal Wage and Hour Law and Regulations are long and complicated," an association statement reads. "It will be necessary for covered music merchants to consult their accountants and attorneys every step of the way. The NAMM Wage-Hour Handbook, and the supplements that will be issued will save NAMM members hundreds of dollars of payroll costs.

For more information about NAMM services, contact National Association of Music Merchants, Inc., 22 West Adams Street, Chicago, Ill. 60606.

9th Washington Show Feb. 10-12

WASHINGTON — Washington's ninth stereo hifi show will be held at the Sheraton Park Hotel here Feb. 10 to 12, 1967. Teresa S. Rogers, show director, says wings on two floors of the city's largest hotel have been reserved for what is expected to be the biggest in the successful series.

Mrs. Rogers says the 1965 Washington show drew over 17,000 fans, and the same number attended the February 1966 show in Philadelphia. Per capita, Washington is said to be the world's leading high fidelity market, according to the Institute of High Fidelity.

NEW GE TAPE UNIT STORES 27 FULL HRS.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — General Electric has introduced a home stereo system that can store 27 hours of taped material for push-button playback. Called the G. E. Stereo Library, the unit has 81 tape channels and 162 tracks for recording and playback. Each of the channels plays for 22 minutes. The unit could conceivably store all the symphonies of Beethoven, Brahms, Tchaikovsky and Mozart; or about 540 pop tunes. The user can switch from channel to channel using a selector dial. There is no need to rewind. When a channel has completed its program, the tape is rewound automatically as the next channel begins playing. The unit also contains a record turntable, FM/AM/FM stereo tuner and two microphones for stereo tape recording. Retail price is $1,300.

BULK VENDING news

Ops and Distribs Speak on 10-Cent Vending

By HANK FOX

NEW YORK—Ten-cent vending has hit a lull here and operators feel conditions will continue until some manufacturer produces a hot item.

"We haven't had a good item in quite some time," said Arthur Bianco, owner of A. B. Vending in the Bronx and secretary of the New York Bulk Vendors Assn. "The recent fad items are just not hitting."

Said Michael Goldberg, president of A & G Vending on Long Island, "There is an ample supply of 10-cent items out but none of it has spurred any excitement. Manufacturers are sticking to rings and television specialties. Because Batman did very well, they believe this is the way to go."

According to Lou Ellis, owner of Ellis Vending and treasurer of NYBVA, manufacturers don't lose on 10-cent vending. "Because we don't know what

ST. LOUIS—The problem of 10-cent vending is not one of quantity (most distributors speak of more than a plentiful supply on the market), but one of a scarcity of quality charms being manufactured, according to a local distributor.

Earl Veatch of Central Distributors, who handles many lines of gum, charms and capsule merchandise, said, "There is a serious lack of good quality 10-cent items. And when I say good quality," Veatch emphasized, "I mean items with a dime's worth of quality built into them."

"We find any number of items," young Veatch went on, "That were initially put on the market to sell at 10 cents but which did not prove popular. They're to distributors as close-outs and we pass them along here. Often," he continued,

LOS ANGELES—Dime vending has lost none of its friends in the bulk industry in this area but operators wish there were more hot items and that they would stay that way longer.

Bulk operators feel generally they are at a loss to merchandise the 10-cent items mainly because they are few and far between. If they came every 90 days, four times a year, both the items and the operators would be in.

This year has been good to the operators in the 10-cent field, Ken Ferrier, head of Consolidated Vendors in San Pedro and president of the Western Vending Machine Operators Assn., said. So far, there have been four items well adopted to the dime market. They were Batman, Go-Go Rings, Surfers' cross, rings and charms and Superballs. The last-named is holding the sales at this time.

Al Crutch, partner in West Coast Enterprises with Leo Weiner in North Hollywood, said that dime vending for his operation—one of the largest CHARLOTTE, N. C. — The potential for 10-cent vending is excellent, but it is not being reached. This — the sentiment expressed by Carolina and Tennessee vendors sampled by Billboard.

"What we need is more of a variety of merchandise to put in the machines," said L. M. Johnson of JayGee Vending Co., which has 200 10-cent machines on location in the Carolinas and the southern strip of Virginia.

"Ten-cent vending doesn't seem to be growing any, but I think it is holding its own. We need more imagination put into the make up of the display cards. The card is the first thing the kid sees and it determines whether or not he puts his dime in the machine," Mr. Johnson said.

Jack Thompson, a partner in Smith-Regal of the Carolinas which operates 1,200 10-cent machines in the Carolinas, Tennessee and Georgia, said, "At the present the 10-cent market seems to be relying on fad items. They don't seem to be pushing for new items. It is VANCOUVER, B. C.—John Land and Fred Baldwin of Dale Distributing, Ltd., are applauding bulk manufacturers for finally recognizing the need to supply items in plentiful varieties.

"We're finally making our routes pay and the same is true for our operator customers," said Land. "It's meaning that we can go into 10-cent merchandise which has not been true in the past," he added.

Land and Baldwin, who make no bones about their own route operations despite being distributors, said that operating machines keeps them aware of the problems faced by their operator customers.

10c and the Future

Remember the days of the 5-cent candy bar, the 2-cent licorice stick? They're rapidly fading into the past. The reason is simple: costs are spiraling. Taxes are rising and new ones are appearing where there were none before. While the manufacturer can raise his prices (and increase the distributors' share at the same time), what can the bulk vendor do to stay above the rising tide of inflation? Since the operator is not going to increase his prices, he has to find alternative measures.

The most obvious is giving less value for the same price. With penny vending accounting for as much as 60 per cent of some operator's incomes, a quick solution would be to change to a higher count, possibly 140 instead of 100. One operator told Billboard that if the vendors stick to penny products, they'll soon have to have no outside competition because other 1-cent items are disappearing.

Other operators see the solution lying in higher priced merchandise (5, 10 and 25-cent vending). Whereas 10-cent vending is considered the cream (as compared with the bread and butter penny product), the cream means profit.

Since its beginnings, 10-cent vending has dealt with fads. Said one operator, "It's either feast or famine." His contention is that 1 and 5-cent vending are relatively stable because mothers don't put much value in the penny or nickel and will consequently insert the coin to appease the child. The 10 to 15-year-old child who has the dime is apt to be particular on how he spends it.

There is much validity in this view. However, if 10-cent vending is to lead the way, it cannot fluctuate radically depending on whether or not there is a hot item around. Manufacturers in other industries have spent millions on motivational research with much success. Perhaps a little something extra is needed; to move 10-cent items continually. Maybe a totally different display front is needed; or a new machine or consumer advertising campaign. There are many possible remedies, but only a concerted effort by operators, distributors and manufacturers will provide the answers.

charm might take off," said Ellis, "we are forced to try any 10-cent charm which comes along." With dime machines being prevalent throughout the nation, Ellis contends that manufacturers must meet with at least limited success on any item. "I'm not saying that manufacturers are putting out mediocre merchandise because they'll be making money anyway," Ellis continued. "But they're not using all their creative know-how."

It's not quality, they're complaining about, said Ellis. It's the scarcity of hot items. "It doesn't matter if the operator doesn't think the charm has 10-cent value," he said. "Value is in the eyes of the beholder. If it's a hot item, it becomes valuable. The cost of the item to the manufacturer is immaterial."

However, operators here do believe manufacturers must show responsibility in pricing if the operator is to continue to buy from them. "The cost of merchandise should never be more than one-third of the sale price," Ellis said. "Manufacturers frequently forget to consider the losses facing operators from vandalism and slugs. And he is also forgetting that the 10-cent items eventually go into 5-cent mixes." Ellis said that only 25 per cent of new 10-cent charms have even limited success in his machines.

Formed Company

George Herman is one operator who did something about the lack of good 10-cent product. "We couldn't find quality merchandise on the market so we formed our own manufacturing company (Wee Original Products Co.). At first we made products for ourselves. It wasn't until some six months later that we thought of selling to other vendors. We've done very well with our products."

Even with their complaints about dime products, vendors point out that the manufacturer is faced with his own problems. "They're reluctant to develop new products because of the widespread copying that is prevalent in bulk vending," said Arthur Bianco. Michael Goldberg attributes the higher cost of some 10-cent items to the royalty fees added to television, movie and comic strip character merchandise.

Operators interviewed said they expect the peak and dove-tailing nature of 10-cent vending to continue. Local distributor Irwin Nable said that although dime vending fluctuates more than the lower priced forms, if the item gives value it should sell well. Said Roger Folz, co-owner of Folz Vending, "We have to fight to get the dime. Better merchandising is needed. We have to use more attractive displays."

"Operators can't afford to be discouraged," Ellis said. "The 10-cent machines do a limited amount of business anyway and no one can predict the success of a dime charm."

Some operators, however, have become discouraged. Arthur Bianco said that occasionally he is forced to replace a dime machine with a nickel unit. Other vendors have reported the same. While many vendors are unhappy with the present state, few were willing to prescribe cures for 10-cent vending. "We don't want to tell the manufacturer what to produce," said one operator, "but personally believe the successful item has to be modeled after good selling more expensive merchandise like the Go-Go rings and Trolls."

these prove to some of our best nickel and penny items.

"Try some dime items in your 5-cent machines some time," Veatch challenged, "and see how fast they move out. The point is," claims Veatch, "quality is something customers instantly recognize. It just isn't in so much of our dime merchandise today."

"We are constantly in touch with manufacturers and suppliers," he commented, "and we try to perform a function here as a distributor. We've actually had to shop for merchandise such as bracelets, military medals, rank emblems and various items we feel could go into dime vending dispensers."

Veatch, in addition to being a bulk distributor, also operates a few routes. "On our routes we're tired of having to explain or defend the quality of different types of merchandise to store owners and even to the kids who come up to us when we're filling machines," he said.

Veatch feels that there are essentially two types of bulk vending merchandise. "I think there's the toy market and the other one is the fad market," he said. He further indicated that it is the younger members of the Veatch family who are often helpful in providing him with an insight into the toy market items. Veatch has a daughter, Mary Christine, six, and a younger son, Brad, four.

As an example of a toy item Veatch thought had the necessary quality to sustain as a dime item he cited the cloth emblems. "These sticker items had actual intrinsic value," he said, "and this is something children convey to their mothers. This is why certain items catch on," he said.

"We've recently received some of these hand puppets," he related, "and this is another item that could have real potential if the quality is maintained."

Veatch centers his case on the question of going for price at the expense of quality in both toy and fad items. He directed his comment to Go Go Rings, which he said was one of the hottest fad type items Central dealt in this summer.

"Originally these were a real 10-cent value," he emphasized, "but soon we saw cheaper varieties on the market as the fight for price started. It was much the same with the flicker rings which quickly came to be a nickel and penny type of item."

"We need a $38 or even a $40 bag of 10-cent mix," Veatch complained, "not a $32 dollar mix. We need to go up to quality because this is what's wrong with our business now."

"How many distributors are loaded with trolls and Batman merchandise?" he asked. "They overestimated the market potential, yes, but the quality in the area—had fallen off because the items were tapering off in popularity. No new items are sufficiently strong to boost sales significantly. Now that the swimming season is slackening, the surfers items, too are losing sales. Go-Go rings, he added, are over the hump. Although the Batman may have turned attention to items of its kind,

Green Hornet failed to score in West Coast's machines.

Joe Arguelles of Joe's Vending in the Seal Beach area is hopefully looking forward to the arrival of colored Superballs at the supply outlets here. He has done well with the black ones, but finds they are nipping and tucking for top sales. He uses at least one dime machine in a location, particu-

"In singling out other current possibilities in the 10-cent category, Veatch mentioned another teen fad type of item — Mod Rings.

"Here is one item that captures a current teen-age flavor and really hits the fad market dead center," he said. But how soon will they start kicking these rings around? And the same with the Hornet emblems," he added, in commenting on the items capitalizing on the Green Hornet television series.

"A few weeks ago there was an article in Billboard," Veatch said, "bemoaning the question of American manufacturers as against importers. We've tried to be fair and to emphasize American manufacturers which is why I am putting so much stress on maintaining quality in vending merchandise and not

MOV Hears MOA Plans; SCCOA Backs School

MOV Re-Elects Dick Lumpkin

By EARL PAIGE

RICHMOND — The Music Operators of Virginia met here (18-19) in their 8th annual convention and trade show and were addressed by Music Operators of America president James Tolisano, executive secretary Fred Granger and MOA legal counsel Nicholas Allen.

In its business meeting the association elected four new directors and an entire slate of officers, retaining current president, Dick Lumpkin of Ashland, for a second term.

As is the practice in MOV, all four of the line officers were reinstated for a second term. In addition to Lumpkin they are M. L. Holland, Roanoke, first vice-president, Claude Smith, Roanoke, second vice-president; K. A. O'Connor, Richmond, secretary-treasurer, and Jack Bess, Roanoke, executive director.

The following directors were re-elected: Gilbert Bailey, Gloucester; Mrs. Harry Lubman, Petersburg; W. M. Showalter, Harrisonburg; Thel Shields, Waynesboro; Hy Lesnick, Rich-

SCCOA Backs School Plan

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The South Carolina Coin Operators Association, Inc., here in its fourth annual convention and trade show voted unanimously to endorse Jack Moran's plan to open a service training school in Atlanta and promised Moran over 100 students.

Moran flew in here on Saturday (19) before leaving for a special meeting with the Florida association in Daytona Beach the next day and was assured by SCCOA president H. C. Keels Jr., that each of the South Carolina association members would supply one man for training in Atlanta.

The two-day affair here was then climaxed by the visit of both the governor and lieutenant governor on Sunday with neither of the high officials realizing they were both to appear at SCCOA.

Lieut. Gov. John Carl West and Mrs. West were first to arrive at the Wade Hampton convention site. Moments later, just prior to luncheon and business meeting, Gov. Robert McNair and his wife arrived. Both officials had independently canceled other trips to accept SCCOA president H. C. Keels Jr. invitation.

Also addressing the membership were SCCOA attorney Peter D. Hyman, State tax commissioner Jim McGrath and industry figure Bill Gersh. Dozens

Latest Capitol 7-In. LP Release Boasts Sinatra, Wilson, Owens

Included in the release is product by Frank Sinatra, Nancy Wilson, Buck Owens, Nat King Cole and Lou Rawls.

Capitol commenced release of Little LP's on its own just a year ago after discovering considerable operator demand at the 1965 Music Operators of America convention in Chicago.

The latest Capitol release is the fourth by the company under its current program. Included in the group are "Songs For Swingin' Lovers," Frank Sinatra (DU 653); "The Great Years," Frank Sinatra (SU 1762); "Mickie Finns," Mickie Finn (SU 2210);

"Lonesome Is Me," Charlie Louvin (SU 2482); "This Is the Life!" Matt Monro (SU 2540); "Many Happy Hangovers," Jean Shepard (SU 2547); "I Could Sing All Night," Ferlin Husky (SU 2548).

MOA to Launch Regional Assn. Push

RICHMOND, Va.—Members of the Music Operators of Virginia were told that Music Operators of America will launch this year its most ambitious effort to establish State organizations. The announcement was part of an address by Fred Granger, MOA executive vice-president.

"We have already made definite plans to be in Birmingham later this year, both President James Tolisano and myself," Granger said, "and we have plans for starting or reviving organizations in several States." Granger mentioned Minnesota, Tennessee, Louisiana and Kentucky as specifically on the MOA hopeful list. "Of course, our membership drive is continuing," Granger added, "and so is our efforts to get more one-stops into the association."

Granger, in relating MOA's position regarding one-stops, made it clear that the national organization had always held the door open to one-stop participation. "We are going to continue to do everything possible to get a closer relationship between one-stops and MOA and this will be a major point of our discussions in Washington in February," he said, adding that MOA was intending to study ways to increase services to one-stop members.

One-Stops

In detailing MOA's past efforts to enlist one-stop memberships, Granger said, "We've sent mailings inviting all one-stops to become members. We've invited them to participate in panel discussions at conventions and we've offered individual one-stops booth space at conventions at reduced prices," he said.

Granger further revealed that MOA had in the past approached ROSA, the Record One-Stop Association, in regard to complementary booth space as an association at the national show. "One-stops say they want to join MOA. They are welcome," Granger stated. "We are waiting to see how many join."

Other plans high on the priority list of MOA Granger mentioned were the continuing efforts with the MOA insurance and retirement benefit plan, the continued endorsement of service training schools and an enlargement of MOA's public relations program which was the dominant part of Granger's address at the opening session of MOV here.

Industry Image

Granger, who said he had thought of several topics as he and his wife journeyed to Virginia, related that he had decided on public relations only upon arrival at Richmond. "Actually," he said, "I don't like

Tolisano MOV Talk Reveals New Ideas

RICHMOND—James Tolisano, new Music Operators of America president, told the Music Operators of Virginia here they "must look at their industry in a different light and plan accordingly." He went on record as advocating the family recreation center concept as one answer to utilizing present equipment to its greatest advantage.

Here to address the eighth annual MOV convention, Tolisano aired many fresh ideas.

"I am a strong believer in our own business being on a par with the entire entertainment industry," he told MOV's members. "This would encompass movies, radio, sports and all entertainment. We in our part of this industry have a tremendous lot to offer and at a bargain price," said Tolisano, "but we have to also face some sober facts."

Steady Decline

"We all know there's a steady decline of locations. Urban development has claimed a lot of locations that have not, and will not, be replaced. The drive-in restaurant is being replaced by hamburger outlets that offer no chance to sit new equipment," he continued.

"On top of this, people are changing their whole way of life where recreation and entertain-

NAMA CONVENTION

Security: Topic in Business Meetings, Exhibits

By EARL PAIGE

CHICAGO — "Managing for Change" was the theme at this year's National Automatic Merchandising Association convention, and although the word "c-h-a-n-g-e" was used in the evolutionary sense, one could not help but think of the word's other meaning, too—cash, coins and currency.

There was much emphasis on money, both at the convention's business seminars and on the exhibit floor, and how to collect it, count it and above all, keep it.

In one of the most interesting of NAMA's business sessions,

W. W. Reamy, security specialist, Macke Co.; T. R. Glenn, chief special agent, Illinois Bell Telephone and William Murphy, commander Chicago Police Department, spoke on "Plugging the Security Drain on Profits."

Exhibits

In one way or another various exhibitors displayed equipment designed to also help coin machine operators plug up the drains. Delta-Soar International Corp. exhibited its "Transist-Alarm" burglar alarm system; Inter-County Industries, Inc., showed its "Security Coin Boxes"; Johnson Fare Box Co.

displayed its "Audio-on-Location" equipment.

The whole approach to problems of money once it's in the coin box had significance at the Music Operators of America show too. Each of the four major phonograph manufacturers this year include some type of coin-counting systems in their product. One game manufacturer introduced dual coin box with separate compartments for the operator and location. And the introduction of dollar bill acceptors on coin equipment at both the MOA and NAMA introduces other problems.

Money handling has spawned another whole segment of the coin machine business. Companies such as Brandt Automatic Cashier Co., Hamilton Scale Corp., Standard Change Makers, Inc., and other firms are manufacturing a wide array of equipment, much of it displayed at the recent conventions here.

The Macke Co.

The CMMA—A 35th Anniversary Salute!

How the Oakland Eight Became Eight Hundred

AN ERA ENDS IN CALIFORNIA. George A. Miller, founding president of the CMMA, is presented a retirement remembrance by new association president Henry Leyser as 600 persons at a Los Angeles banquet rise to accord Miller a standing ovation.

THOUGH better known as chaotic incubator of offbeat cults, sects, recording acts and political candidates, California has bred more coin machine associations in the past four decades than any dozen other States.

Best estimates run the total of California associations into the hundreds. The 1930's and 1940's, in particular, present the coin machine historian with a colorful, albeit confusing, patchwork of California operator groups. Here's a paragraph full of examples: The Protective Association of Coin Machine Operators of Los Angeles County, with Joe Orcutt as a prime mover; Long Beach Amusement Games Association; California Amusement Machine Operators Association at Los Angeles (each monthly meeting featured a floorshow); Associated Operators of Los Angeles County, bringing a fellow named Curley Robinson into the news; Automatic Music Merchandisers' Assn. of San Francisco; Associated Operators of Los Angeles County; California Amusement Machine Operators Association; California Music Operators Association; Northern California Coin Machine Operators Association; Tri-County Operators' Association at Watsonville; Vending Machine Association of Northern California, and Sid Bloom's Western Vending Machine Operator's Association. Ad infinitum we could go.

All these groups conscientiously and with varying success confronted industry problems. Many came into being to douse brush fires and then disbanded. None claimed statewide representation. Yet the California Music Merchants Association, which meets Dec. 2 in Los Angeles to toast its 35th year, has roots in most of those now-defunct groups.

The search for the headwaters and tributaries of the CMMA takes the curious to San Francisco in the mid-'30's—and then a bit further back and across the Bay. During the 1930's a group called the San Francisco Music Operators Association frequently was invited to dine with the California Music Operators Association, an Oakland organization founded in 1931 with an eight-man nucleus.

It's well known that the Oakland group, undergoing a couple of name changes, was to outlast the many transient trade organizations of the 1930's and 1940's to emerge in the 1950's as the California industry's authoritative voice.

It's also well known that the reason the Oakland group survived and went on to assume the leadership of the California industry was that—among such early Bay Area leaders as H. L. Thompson, H. S. Osbourn, Tony Capers, Fred Newman, Bill Barker and Tony Compagno (among others)—there was George Miller.

MUCH of the history of the CMMA reads like a George Miller biography. (As does the story of the Music Operators of America, of which Miller was founding president.)

Under Miller's leadership as president and managing director, the growing California association took early and aggressive steps to protect the interests of the operator. Usually, as Miller told reporter Paul Zakaras (see story elsewhere, this issue), the association was able to nip potential problems in the bud. Here are some of the challenges faced by the emerging State group in the formative years:

- 1933—Questionable jobber policies.
- 1934—"Hot" machines.
- 1935—National industry awareness.
- 1937—Public relations.
- 1938—Unionization.
- 1939—Location selling.
- 1940—Phonograph classification and commission schedules.
- 1944—Wartime business practices of distributors and jobbers that included operation of routes.
- 1945—Promotion of good will among operators, with full co-operation with respect to location agreements.
- 1946—Unfair trade practices, cut-throat competition and "unfair and confiscatory" taxes at the municipal and State levels.
- 1947—Ten-cent, three-for-a-quarter play.
- 1948—Working for $8 off the top with a 50-50 split of the remainder.
- 1949—Keeping locations and battles between unions for jurisdiction over music machines.

On a June night in 1950 the California Music Guild—as the CMMA was then named—held a

"Taking care of problems before they reach the spectacular stage."

By PAUL ZAKARAS

HAVING lunch with George A. Miller, president emeritus of the California Music Merchants Association, was a prominent law enforcement official of the Bay Area. They were talking about 1940, about the coin industry's attempts to introduce a "video jukebox." The lawman was amazingly well informed.

"No," Miller laughed later, "he isn't a former member of this business. It's rather ironic, in fact, that we first met many years ago when he was working for the FBI and conducting an investigation of me and the CMMA."

George Miller. Tall, dignified, possessor of a lively interest in California politics (numbering among old friends such people as Gov. Pat Brown). He does not look his 70 years, nor does he act like a man who is "semi-retired" from the activities of the powerful association which he founded, to which he has devoted half a lifetime.

"Yes, this is our 35th anniversary," he said, "but do most people know that we started under a different name? The California Music Operators Association, we called it then. It was a small-scale venture at first; there were only eight of us, Oakland operators, back in 1931. We realized that we had mutual interests and we stuck together. Through the years the idea spread until it finally became statewide.

"In the middle '30's we got together and changed our name. California Music Guild was the new title. It seems a bit humorous now to look back on it—our obvious desire to give the association a more dignified sound. But, on the other hand, this was symbolic of one of the central efforts of our association, and the whole industry as well—to present a good image to those outside our industry and to instill pride in those who are part of it.

"Fifteen years ago we changed our name again to the present one. This is a good name, I feel, because it accurately, without pretensions, describes our business group. It shows that we have truly come of age. These days, no one doubts that being a member of the coin machine business in California is something to be proud of.

"I GOT into this industry almost accidentally," Miller recalled. "I had been in the service station tire business. Then my wife's uncle died. I took over the estate to settle it for my wife's aunt. The property included a coin machine route—24 locations in all, some of them on ferry boats. I looked into this route and I thought I saw a future in it, so I bought it for myself.

"We had two types of machines at first," Miller said. "One was a little counter-top type of pin game, the other was some sort of a pianola or nickelodeon. Shortly afterward, however, jukeboxes from Mills and Wurlitzer came out and became the chief items of equipment.

"I remember that business was good, and I was determined to make by part of it grow. I used to collect the nickels from one machine and then run out to buy another one. I gave up the tire business and devoted myself to this new field. I had really no idea what I had got into, but I operated profitably for about three and a half years. Then I sold the route and took over full-time duties as managing director of this association.

"We were all growing then, and the association had much to do. We faced it all with the philosophy that we would best serve our interests by being good businessmen. Therefore, from the earliest days we used to get together to discuss what a good businessman was and to see how we could apply these ideas to the coin field. We decided that four points—service, appearance of place of business, appearance of the operator in the field and proper presentation of our products to location owners—were the most important aspects of this industry.

"And believe me, selling locations in those days was no picnic. People tend to forget the power radio had in the '30's. Every location had a radio and we were actually competing with it. We had good business logic on our side, however, because we would always explain to the location that our photographs were a source of income for him and we were steadily able to expand.

"At the time, believe it or not, with direct profits from the machine being the main incentive to the location owner, we would split like this: one-third to the location and two-thirds to the operator. Actually, the way we explained it to the location—and this was part of CMMA's educational service to its members—was that the location received one-third, the operator one-third while the final third went for parts and repair; it was reinvested into the equipment to keep it in first-rate condition.

Of course, as the years went by, the phonograph manufacturers made machines of higher and higher quality and the service costs did diminish. However, this was not the reason for changing the percentage of the split, for the operator's overall cost of doing business had not decreased at all. The split percentages were changed about 1946, shortly after the war, when many new people entered the coin field and competition for locations became fierce.

"The business itself, despite various problems, has continued to thrive and grow. Membership in our association has risen steadily to the present figure of 800. Eight to 800 in 35 years—it has multiplied a hundredfold. But the main reason for our strength, I would like to stress, does not lie in sheer numbers. It is based primarily on the fact that our people pay dues on a per-machine basis instead of a fixed yearly amount. This system has enabled us to have the operating funds necessary to do the job properly.

"Sometimes these dues run pretty high, but I don't think you'll find one member of the CMMA who doesn't believe that the association is worth every penny of it. Our members realize that an active association, one that is more than just a name, must have financial resources.

"There are no spectacular success we can point to, and this perhaps is the biggest success of all. The fact that CMMA has been able to take care of many problems before they reached the spectacular stage is, I believe, a credit to the foresight and business acumen of the association.

"EVER since we first organized we have been able to maintain a good image here in California. And we have always been able to maintain good relations with State officials. This is something that takes constant work, constant attention. One of our basic philosophies about this has been to keep public officials and legislators informed about our business. We have nothing to hide and we want them to know it. The means we use—the one that has been most effective through the year, is personal contact. As president and managing director of the CMMA it was largely my duty to carry out this part of the association's function. And I must say, I have greatly enjoyed my work. I have met many fine people in all parts of this State. I have got to know them as individuals, and I have been able to make good friends with many of them.

"Such personal contacts and friendships, of course, enabled us to inform these various people about the realities of our business. Because we were able to explain such realities we have usually succeeded, for example, in preventing exorbitant and unreasonable taxes from being levied against California operators. We have also been fortunate enough to be one of the few States in the country where licensing of coin-operated equipment has been left to local governments rather than being assumed by the State.

"Through these personal contacts, through the use for our yearbook, through various banquets that we have sponsored—all of these are activities that have their public relations side—we have been able to acquaint various dignitaries and officials with our industry, and the people in it. Instead of being secretive we have taken pains to keep them informed. The result of this, of course, was visible at lunchtime. That man, as I said, once was investigating us. But now there is no need of this. We are not strangers any more, to be looked upon with suspicion. This, I think, has been our greatest achievement.

"Of course, not everything has gone perfectly for the industry during the past 35 years. We have had our setbacks—like any other business. The greatest setback, I feel, has been the adoption of the practice of lending money to locations. This is now the worst evil in our business and, unfortunately, it continues to grow.

"It started about 1950, no one knows who started it exactly, or why, though it was probably a gimmick to get a location. Since then it has become a widespread practice. It is bad because it puts the operator in an insecure business situation. If he lends money to a bar or tavern, he is betting that the owner is a good businessman, that he will be able to run a profitable bar and that we will be able to avoid violating some law—serving a minor, staying open after hours, allowing gambling on the premises, and not lose his license. This is a bad business practice for the operator—there is absolutely no reason for him to take such risks.

"The CMMA, which secures legal services in both northern and southern California, has drawn up sample contracts the operator can use in his dealings with locations. This is the only way that the money-lending habit can be stopped. An operator who uses a contract has no need for this loan business. And the sooner he starts to get away from it the better.

"I think acceptance of the contract system is on its way to becoming a widespread reality. There is currently more feeling among operators in favor of contracts than at any previous time. The great majority of CMMA members is attempting to make full use of them. In the next few years we might see the industry take this important step.

"Also, looking to the future, I feel there is a good chance that the jukebox will begin to take a more active and important part in record promotion. Record companies, from what I have been hearing lately, realize that only a narrow portion of their products are given proper exposure on the air and are looking to the jukebox as a way of reaching people with new adult product. This is not a new idea—we have been talking about it for years, but maybe the time for it has finally arrived. It would be a realization of many of our fondest hopes if, through the combined ingenuity of phonograph manufacturers and record companies, this idea becomes a reality in some form. From the features on some of the new phonographs it is obvious that people are now seriously thinking along these lines.

"Personally, I have greatly enjoyed my years in this industry. There have been many memorable moments for me. I remember well, for example, the time when the boys from CMMA presented me with the money for my first Cadillac. That was 10 years ago in 1956.

"Perhaps, if I were to single out one thing in my career that has meant most to me, I would recall the time when, after having been named the first president of the Music Operators of America, I returned home to Oakland to find that the CMMA had prepared a testimonial dinner for me. There is no way to describe how deeply honored I was by this gesture," he said. "I am still wearing the ring which was presented to me that evening."

'Fair or Exorbitant'

Public Relations Work of the CMMA

OAKLAND—"We have good laws or bad, fair or exorbitant taxes and license fees in relationship to the amount of attention we pay to public relations," Gordon H. Garland, public relations counselor for the California Music Merchants Association, recently stated.

CMMA, and earlier its embryonic forerunner around the State, has always carried on an impressive public relations program. Early in the '30's the California Amusement Machine Operators' Association headquarters in the Subway Terminal building in L. A. launched an outright good-will-building plan centered around a weekly series of cartoon contests in the newspaper offering $5,000 in prizes.

Curley Robinson, secretary of the Associated Operators of Los Angeles County, mailed out reprints of a Billboard editorial dealing with minors to various businesses and newspapers in 1937. In 1939 a major daily newspaper devoted nearly a full page of publicity to CAMOA efforts and programs.

In the early World War II years AOLAC distributed 2,800 pinball games and 240 jukeboxes to Army outposts, boys' clubs and other patriotic and charitable organizations. Additionally, the organization, looking toward postwar problems, protected the locations of 57 members who were serving in the Armed Forces and campaigned a slogan that read, "A Job for That Boy When He Comes Home."

In Oakland, the California Music Operators' Association raised $5,437 by raffling off a diamond ring to raise funds with which they purchased three ambulances for the Red Cross. Largely responsible for this public relations achievement were George Miller, Tom Russ, Mrs. Lew Menkes, Joe Silla, H. V. Munson, C. L. Spear, George Delacruz, Purr Winslow, Frank Morgan, Miles Standish, L. H. Stricker and William A. Malick, members of the fund-raising committee.

In 1948, Coin Machine Industries, Inc., awarded a prize of $1,000 to the California Music Operators' Association president George Miller in recognition of his outstanding efforts in creating good will for music operators.

In January, 1950, Miller announced one of the most ambitious public relations programs ever conceived by California coinmen. Immediately, the name of the Oakland-based association

35 Years of Impatience With 'Discriminatory Foolishness'

CMMA Legislative Efforts

Legislative problems, the driving force behind most organizations of coin machine operators, welded together various diverse trade elements in California during the 1930's. A total of five bills aroused intense response. "Discriminatory foolishness" was the way most California coinmen described the measures.

One all-encompassing proposal dealt with "any contrivance, machine, appliance or mechanical device in which a marble or marbles and/or pins are used, and upon which any prize or reward is to be paid or offered to be paid to the user thereof is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punishable. . . ."

A second bill affected all types of vending machines. It was worded in part, ". . . any so-called vending machine or mechanical device for the sale of goods, wares or merchandise, which mechanical device shall deliver one article or quantity of merchandise at one operation of said machine, and other articles or quantities of merchandise at another operation. . . ."

Still a third law would have made it unlawful to own or operate any automatic machine set in motion by depositing a coin or slug. The fourth bill dealt more specifically with slugs and a fifth bill, more general in nature, sought to prohibit pool selling, bookmaking, etc., on pin or marbles machines.

Bob Gans and Morris Burke of the L. A. Gans Co. were in Sacramento lobbying against the above in behalf of coinmen. By the end of 1933 another legislative problem, in the form of a $5 per machine license enacted by the L. A. city counsel, further unified Southern California operators.

Here, both the peanut and gum vendors under the banner of the Western Vending Machine Operators Association and officers of the California Amusement Machine Operators Association united.

By 1936 more than 25 separate trade organizations across the State had been formed and California operators had their first test case victory in Tulare with Arthur Renaud found not guilty by jury on a city ordinance violation concerning marble games.

Los Angeles operators met in June 1937 and reported that thanks to organizational efforts no detrimental legislation had been passed in all the wrangling in Sacramento.

In the late 1930's, an organization was founded called the

George A. Miller, founder and long-time president of the CMMA and first president of the MOA, has officially retired from his various activities within both associations. He now resides in Sacramento, but frequently stops by the CMMA headquarters in Oakland and makes occasional appearances on behalf of the CMMA and the MOA. Miller also remains active in a number of civic and charity endeavors. He first became involved in public affairs during World War I as State civilian co-ordinator of the motor vehicle department of the California Highway Patrol, then combined under the direction of Gordon Garland. Miller has served on the Oakland City Planning Commission and has been a member of the Small Business Administrative Committee for Alameda (Oakland) and Contra Costa (San Francisco) counties. He has been a deputy sheriff of Alameda County for a number of years; is currently active in the Baptist Church; is a member of all bodies of the Masonic Fraternity; is the director of Oakland's Boys Clubs and the director of the city's Cerebral Palsy Foundation. He is also a member of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and currently heads its Trade Club. Miller is married and has three children, all of whom have families.

“Just why do we have trade associations? What are they set up to do? To me the whole idea, the philosophy of a trade association, can be summed up in these three meaningful words: People working together.

“I would no more want to be in a community without a trade association than in a community without churches. Just as churches set the moral environment in which to live and raise a family, so do trade associations set the ethical and economic environment in which to run a business.”

banquet in Oakland to honor Miller. He had just been elected MOA president. Eight hundred person attended. In a tribute speech, CMG Vice-President Lee Spear praised President-Treasurer Miller for his dedication to the cause of combating problems such as those listed above. And Spear reported that the organization boasted 500 members from the Oregon line south to the Kern County line. A division existed in Fresno.

Los Angeles was then outside the direct influence of the CMG, and the issue of where L.A. operators would find trade association happiness wasn't to be settled until 1954. In the meantime the industry in the State was to be shaken almost as violently by play-pricing controversies in the early 1950's as Southern California was by a series of earthquakes in August of 1952. (Which nearly put operator Oscar Holzhausen out of business.) In the play-price crisis, it was Miller and the California Music Guild to the rescue.

THE major developments in the play-price incident:

May 1951—Ninety per cent of the operators in a special meeting at Los Angeles indicated they favored switching from nickel play to either dime, three-for-a-quarter or four-for-a-quarter play. Some operators began to change over. For example, George Buckman, of San Diego Music, Inc., changed over a third of his route.

June 1951—Play-change reports indicated that, for example, a $25 to $30 weekly location on nickel play went to $43 on 600 plays the first week after changeover and to $53 the second week, $40 of this in quarters.

August 1951—The California Tavern Owners' Association dropped a dime-play bombshell by warning members that the price increase might be in violation of Office of Price Stabilization guidelines. George Miller traveled to Los Angeles to confer with Ray Adams, CTOA president. Miller stated that dime play was imperative to show a profit in operation. Adams said tavern owners were for dime play if it were legal. There were rumors that Miller with his trip wanted to extend the boundaries of the CMG beyond the existing Bakersfield southern limit. Miller said the CMG wasn't interested in Los Angeles.

August 1951—Miller sent CMG counsel Harrison W. Call to Washington to secure OPS approval for increasing the per-play price of music to a dime.

August 1951—OPS and ops clashed. OPS notified the CMG that the increase to dime play violated Ceiling Price Regulation 34 governing services. Prices were to be frozen after Jan. 25, 1965.

August 1952—The CMG sent a lengthy appeal to the OPS asking that jukebox play prices be DEMORE MORE MORE MORE MORE MORE controlled on the grounds they were a non-essential, voluntary type of entertainment. The petition not only asked for national jukebox play price de-control. Said Miller, “The representatives of the California Music Guild are at a loss to know why de-control has not been extended to this industry long before now, when many essentials have skyrocketed in price and no noticeable action has been taken.”

January 1953—The industry was de-controlled. Miller said: “When one stops to realize that phonographs cost four times as much as they did come years ago and that phonograph records, labor and everything else connected with the industry has increased 200 per cent to 300 per cent, it is hard to understand why any group of operators would not take advantage of de-control and immediately put their music business on a paying basis.”

The leadership of the CMG in the dime-play controversy was incisive and effective. It may be theorized that it led to extension of the CMG into Southern California. That move came about in this manner.

D. A. Wallach, late in 1950, had founded the Southern California Music Guild, similar in name to the State group but unaffiliated. The SCMG covered Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego and Ventura counties. Wallach and the SCMG were active in the dime-play crisis and co-operated with the Miller efforts.

After the dime-play tension passed, a group of Southern California operators met in the Skyroom of Lockheed Air Terminal on June 23, 1953, and debated the entry of the CMG into Los Angeles County. Mrs. E. G. Bryant conducted the meeting. Advocating affiliation with the CMG, which they pointed out “was over 20 years old,” were Mrs. Dolores Wykoff, Nick Carter, Walter Hample, and Clayton Ballard. C. C. Wilcox, a member of the Vending Machine Owners' Trade Group, suggested that perhaps Miller was too far away in Oakland to help assist in keeping locations. Carter told the group that Miller would never bring the CMG into the county unless asked to do so.

MILLER was asked to do so. A year after that first discussion meeting most of the existing Los Angeles association had joined the Miller organization, now renamed the California Music Merchants Association. A Los Angeles division of the CMMA was formed, with Ben Chemers as business representative. Walter Hample was elected president of the branch. (A San Diego division of the CMG had been organized in 1952, with Morris Sarver as president, Noble Craver as vice-president, Stan Conant as secretary, and Tom Farrell as treasurer.)

In explaining the name change in March of 1954, Miller said he thought the new name more descriptive of the association's members and activities. “After all, we are merchandising music through the showcase known as the automatic phonograph. The new name better applies to the operators' business.”

Earlier that same month, Miller had been elected to a second three-year term as president and business manager of the Music Operators of America.

In its second election in May of 1955, the Los Angeles division of the CMMA voted in Walter Hample president, Ben Korte vice-president, Irma Bryant secretary, Gabe Orland treasurer and Sam Ricklin sergeant at arms. To the board were elected Pete Pellegrino, Lee Walker, Fred Ross, Henry Bringas, Al Cohn, Tommy Workman and Dean Brown. Don Wikoff, Fred Ferra, E. J. Locke and Glenn Wolcott were named alternates.

In December of 1955 George Miller announced he would vacate his post as president and general business manager of the California Music Merchants Association to devote his full time to his jobs as president and manager of the Music Operators of America. He remained an official and adviser of the CMMA, however. Miller had served in the State posts since 1932. He had been elected MOA president in 1949.

In fact, Miller continued on as CMMA president, and when the association held its gala 25th anniversary banquet in 1956, Miller presided over a gathering of 1,000 operators and friends.

A Rodney Pantages stagershow highlighted the first statewide banquet and ball of the CMMA held in Los Angeles. The date was Feb. 2, 1957. Honored guests were Clifford E. Rishell, mayor of Oakland; Phil and Barbara Davis; Horace Gil-

The Famous CMMA Contract

And Assorted Other Association Services

LOS ANGELES—The idea of services to association members was in the minds of various groups of California operators who began organizing in the early 1930's. Part of the 1933 bylaws of the Protective Association of Coin Machine Operators of Los Angeles, for example, read: “We favor the group plan of insurance, which covers theft, fire and vandalism, and recommend this type of insurance be investigated and, provided the cost of same is not prohibitive, that those members desiring coverage on their machines be provided this insurance at cost.”

Perhaps one of the most outstanding association service achievements was that of the California Music Guild's in designing a location contract. As finally formulated the famous contract was supported in repeated court tests.

The landmark three-year contract contained 10 provisions. The operator agreed to supply records and replace damaged parts; to establish a provision for the division of gross proceeds resulting from weekly collections; set up a stipulation that allowed the operator to give the proprietor five days' written notice should the location prove undesirable from an operational standpoint; gave the operator automatic renewing privileges unless either party rendered written notice of cancellation; gave the operator the right to assign the contract.

The proprietor agreed to the three-year lease and to guarantee electricity and keep machine connected; to give the operator a specified minimum return for any one week during the lease period; that the equipment remained the sole property of the operator; that no other type of musical apparatus by another operator be installed; to liability for loss, injury or damage to equipment; to liability for damages resulting from the loss of use should machines be out of operation; to notify any prospective purchaser of his business that they must assume the contract's obligation.

One after another court victories for operators were reported in the early 1950's as the California Music Guild pushed for widespread use of location contracts. In January of 1954 an Oakland court awarded an operator $1,775 of which $1,700 represented the balance due on the contract and $75 was the amount fixed as damages for the time the phonograph was out of operation.

At the same time, vending operators were also finding the use of contracts invaluable and Arch Riddel, executive director of the Cigarette Vendors' Institute of California, cited cases where the California Music Guild contract had held up in court tests.

In 1956 Jerry Wilson and Henry D. Tomlinson, who headed D. J. Music Co. in Oakland, were awarded $1,500 by an Alameda County Municipal Court in a decision handed down by Judge T. L. Foley against Gilbert W. Cook, an Oakland location owner who violated the D.J. contract by going to another phonograph supplier. Thus, a sixth case had been won in California courts on the basis of the association (known by this time as California Music Merchants' Association) contract.

By this time CMMA had moved into another important association-service field. Through negotiations with the Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Des Moines, what was believed to be the first association-backed health insurance program was started.

In disclosing the plan adopted by CMMA which included hospital, medical, doctor, therapy, polio and surgical care at a cost ranging from $3.75 to $8.50 per month, Miller also brought the program to the attention of the Music Operators of America at its March 1955 convention.

CMMA had investigated 18 other plans, Miller disclosed, before settling on the Bankers Life policy. In setting out the details of the plan, Miller pointed out that operators or their employees were eligible for hospital benefit of $14 (up to 70 days); hospital extras up to $300; surgical expenses up to $300; doctor's hospital calls, $3 (70 days); supplementary accident coverage of $300, and polio coverage of $5,000. Dependents under the wholly optional plan were identically covered.

By 1957 CMMA had added life insurance to its association program through Miller's efforts at obtaining a plan underwritten by Metropolitan Casualty Insurance Co. which again he introduced to MOA at its convention that same year. Under the plan, operators could receive from $2,000 to $5,000 coverage at a slight increase in premium.

Increases in allowances for hospitalization, surgery and life insurance benefits have been added from time to time in keeping with rising costs, according to Mrs. Arlene M. Murphy, insurance administrator for CMMA today. As she recently put it, “Do you think that the four members who each received between $1,300 and $2,150 in benefits during 1965 thought they were going to be faced with such costly illnesses?”

In CMMA's tabulation of premium receipts and paid claims for the period Jan. 15, 1965, to March 15, 1966, premium receipts were $32,696; hospital and surgical paid claims were $25,355, and $6,000 had been paid in life insurance claims.

The countless services of an association 35 years old were lauded by CMMA Vice-President Walter J. Hemple, of San Fernando, recently. Said Hemple, “I remember only too well when we were having tax problems in Los Angeles County that we invited the State presi-lette, of the Los Angeles division of the California Motor Vehicle Department; Earle E. Baker, Ransom M. Callicott and Eugene Wyman of the Los Angeles City Council. Also on hand were L.A. division President Hample; Joe Silla, CMMA Oakland vice-president and CMMA board chairman; William Black, Bakersfield CMMA president, and Larry Marvin, Sacramento CMMA president. The CMMA was robust and fully represented.

ENOUGH so that when in 1957 the Music Operators Association of Massachusetts launched a fight to remove a $150-per-year-per-machine jukebox tax, the CMMA launched a drive among its members for money to support the New England effort. The national consciousness of George Miller was ever apparent in the CMMA.

Joe Silla, Frank Morgan and Sam Tessler formed a quartet with Miller in 1958 that had been with the CMMA since its beginning. All were re-elected that year to association posts—Miller as president, Silla as vice-president, Morgan and Tessler as directors. Others elected that year were Ralph Love, recording secretary, and directors Larry Marvin, Bud Patton, Wes Elster, William Black, Fritz Althaus, Alex Ferrero, Ben Murillo, Henry Leyser and Ben Stetson.

"Dear Fellows," began Miller's letter of resignation as president of MOA in October 1962. "This is probably the most difficult letter I have ever written in my lifetime and I probably will never write another one like it. . . ."

"Music Operators of America has become a part of my life due to the fact that I was one of the founders of the organization and also because I have worked so zealously to elevate the good name of the automatic phonograph industry. . . ."

"I tender my resignation . . . with the knowledge that every organization goes through a period of transition, and I believe that MOA has reached this point."

CMMA was soon to reach a similar point. In April of 1963 George Miller was re-elected to his ninth, three-year term as president of the CMMA. It was to be his last term. He resigned as president and managing director of the association in August of 1965 for "health and personal reasons." In doing so he paid tribute to CMMA

TRAINING TOP
IND. VENDOR

WARSAW, Ind.—Charles T. Bertsch of Bertsch Vending here said he favors the training approach of such companies as Vendo where men are brought in for concentrated training on a specific problem rather than complete technical school systems.

"We don't favor sending a man out to Los Angeles to a vending school because we have no certainty he will come back to us," said Bertsch. "Even if he has a family and home here he might decide to sell it and move away entirely. We'd rather send our men to the kind of school Vendo is conducting in different points of the country," he said.

Even the more concentrated approach of factory type schools can present difficulties, according to William Downhouse, service manager at Bertsch. "I went to the school to learn refinements and small details," he said, "but I had to go through so much I was already familiar with." Downhouse explained that one service problem was to dismantle the water tank on a vending machine. "The new fellows didn't know where to begin but I had it out in seconds because I'm experienced. They should have these schools set up on levels and separate the more advanced from the beginning servicemen," Downhouse said.

Bertsch and several of his employees were interested visitors at the recent National Automatic Merchandising Association convention in Chicago.

Associated Operators of Los Angeles County, Inc. Art Mohr, AOLAC counsel, was in Washington, D. C., on several instances throughout the late 1930's and early World War II years representing the interest of West Coast operators.

Up in San Francisco, the California Music Guild segment found support in a fight against the city's board of supervisors in the person of police chief Michael Riordan. A capable attorney, Riordan interpreted city and State laws as regarded "one-ball" games and amusement devices and attempted to clear up the ambiguity of law that did not spell out the number of balls in pin games.

In Riordan's opinion an amusement device was "any machine or device which, upon insertion of a coin, slug or token in any slot or receptacle attached to said machine, may be operated for use as a game, contest or amusement, and which does not contain a pay-off device for the return of slugs, money, checks, or token."

In 1948 Riordan told San Francisco officials that pin games presented no police problem and District Attorney Edmund G. Brown, who had earlier termed "all pinballs" gaming devices, assailed only the one-balls at a committee hearing.

Three years later counsel for the California Music Guild, Harrison W. Call, declared from Oakland that the organization would "enforce fair trade laws to the letter." Call, in concert with the State Legislature, said the 1913 law had been strengthened to prohibit monopolizing and doing business below cost.

Unified efforts of association members were again successful in the mid 1950's when the newly organized and renamed California Music Merchants Association led by George Miller worked to establish a new license fee ordinance in Bakersfield. Hailed as a model law, the new rate of $24 per machine above 10 units and $2 per machine for operators having less than 10 units, was adopted in three California counties and became known as "C-241."

A year later CMMA efforts were thrown behind an effort in Oakland to establish a fee based on the over-all gross of the operator rather than single $5 per-machine figure which the city sought to increase. Said Miller, "Under current licensing ordinances, other businesses were allowed to gross $30,000 a year and only pay $70 a year license. The jukebox operator must own and operate at least 65 phonographs to gross $30,000, and at a $5 yearly fee must pay $325 in licenses." CMMA, successful in holding the line at $5 per machine in Oakland, continued to press for the gross pre-rated arrangement.

In 1961, a bill that would have imposed a $6.50 per machine annual State tax (Assembly Bill 3068) was tabled, largely through the efforts of CMMA members who made numerous appearances before the State lawmakers in Sacramento.

In the wake of successful campaigns such as this, CMMA was able to tell its members year after year that no adverse legislation had been enacted.

As diversification became a part of coin machine operating business in California, George Miller said, in 1965, "We expect a lot of legislative action on both the State and local levels this year." He said he anticipated legislative problems surrounding the 5-cent cigaret tax

Hence, a co-operative arrangement between vending and music operators—a throwback to 1931—now exists in California to combat adverse cigaret legislation.

was changed to California Music Guild from its former title, California Music Operators' Association, Inc.

Half-page newspaper-advertisements throughout California began promoting CMG and radio and television were employed, too. A weekly half-hour radio program was purchased on Station KROW under a one-year contract. Meanwhile, down in Los Angeles, operators were promoting a songwriting contest to promote themselves and the tune, "Hollywood Polka," with Bill Leuenhagen, well-known L. A. one-stop operator, heading up the program.

In 1953, Miller, then president of the Music Operators of America in addition to CMG, championed a combined charity drive for March of Dimes, Heart Fund and the Red Cross. He also advocated using a record with the title strip, "Play for the March of Dimes," and told MOA how successful CMG had been in locating jukeboxes outside theaters and other public locations in the State association's own charity drives.

Walter Hample, president of the Los Angeles branch of the State group, inaugurated a "Hit of the Month" promotion to help build publicity for the association in Southern California in 1954.

The same year saw the California Music Guild again change its name to the present title of California Music Merchants' Association and the start of even larger public relations efforts as evidenced by Miller's chairmanship of the Cerebral Palsy drive in Northern California that year.

One year later Los Angeles newspapers featured several stories pointing out the donations of phonographs and equipment to teen-age organizations and other groups through a program that was carried on the L. A. branch of CMMA.

MOA's March of Dimes program in 1955 got a boost in California by way of CMMA's Statewide program of placing signs and placards on phonographs explaining that part of the gross from the machines would go to the charity drive. Jukeboxes even appeared in such unlikely spots as banks and hotel lobbies, with papers such as The Oakland Tribune lauding Miller and CMMA.

One of the more famous public relations efforts by CMMA began Feb. 9, 1957, at 7 p.m. when the association launched its "Juke Box Derby" to Los Angeles television audiences and TV viewers as far south as San Diego and to the north in the Fresno area.

The show was subsequently changed to "Juke Box Sweepstakes" over a conflict with Peter Potter who had complained that the show's title conflicted with his own program, "Juke Box Jury." However, it was not long dent and managing director of the California Music Merchants Association to attend a meeting of the operators here in this area. I am proud to say that the very first time we here in Southern California called for assistance from our State association, the representatives of CMMA met the challenge without any hesitancy and performed their job well. This is the reason we pay a county license that was reduced more than 50 per cent."

until all five divisions of CMMA met in a special session at Bakersfield and on subsequent dates in other cities which led to CMMA's joining Potter in even a greater publicity effort for the association.

With CMMA stickers in every corner of the State plugging the tie-in with the popular Potter TV show, the association's name began to show up in other places such as on the entries in Soap Box Derby events. Leroy Lambert, a Stockton operator and active in the American Legion, was largely responsible for CMMA's tie-in here and later the association moved into public relations efforts with the Junior Olympic League in California, too.

Over the years the CMMA has donated over 100 jukeboxes to churches, military posts, recreation centers and other organizations.

CMMA—A 35th Anniversary Salute!

members Joe Silla, Frank Morgan, Sam Tessler, L. B. McCreary and Roy Clemens. "These people have continuously contributed physically and financially to the association since it was first organized."

In semi-retirement, and as CMMA president emeritus, Miller wrote recently:

"It should not be necessary to mention all of the accomplishments of CMMA, as most of them speak for themselves. It might be pertinent and proper, however, to point out a few of the highlights of the organization.

"For instance, as far back as June 1945, CMMA embarked on its public relations program by contributing three pieces of motorized equipment to the American Red Cross. This equipment consisted of two station wagons and a small truck, which were completely paid for by the Association.

"Another accomplishment is the defeat of State legislation proposed to license automatic phonographs by the State of California on numerous occasions.

"In Northern California, especially, some of the city licenses on a per-machine basis have been replaced by a gross income license, which is far less expensive to the operator and more in line with taxation other businesses—another worthy accomplishment.

"Our great accomplishment is our public relations program whereby representatives of the California Music Merchants Association hold office in the Boys' Clubs, Cerebral Palsy Foundation, the Trade Club, and many other fraternal and business organizations such as Chambers of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the Executive Club, 50-50 Club and civic improvement groups, as well as sponsors of Soap Box Derbies. It is through this medium that we have been able to uplift the image of the industry. We have been able to meet, and personally know, city, county and State representatives in many areas through good public relations. I am sure that CMMA will continue along these lines, and I am proud to have had the privilege of being a part of this successful program."

CALIFORNIANS were grateful. The largest crowd ever to turn out in Los Angeles for a coin machine industry function honored George Miller in November of 1965. Presiding over the panygeric was new CMMA President Henry J. Leyser of Oakland. Other members of the CMMA new look were Executive Vice-President Marvin Jones of North Hollywood and Vice-Presidents Walter Hample, Joe Silla Jr., Ben Murillo and Gabe Orland. Elected directors were Fritz Althaus, William Black, Russ Catanho, LeRoy Cooks, Burlia James, Clifford Jones, Clyde Love, Wayne Morgan, W. R. Patton, Frank J. Portale, William T. Worthy, Louis Zeiden, and alternates Herman Bied, Joe Tessler and Herbert Pierce. C. G. Silla, aboard from the start, is board chairman emeritus.

"Thirty-five years ago a man by the name of George A. Miller had the foresight and conviction to gather a small nucleus of operators to form an association which is now known as the California Music Merchants Association," Leyser wrote recently. "There should be no doubt in anyone's mind that he could not have achieved what he did during these 35 years years without the help and support of a group of operators who recognized his leadership and the need to unite their voices so that they could be heard."

"George A. Miller, president emeritus, has done more than his share during his term in office, and even now in retirement, to make the operators aware of their responsibilities to themselves, the industry and the community. Unfortunately too few understand and heed the call.

"However, let us look to the future for even greater accomplishments and successes.

"There are many changes taking place all around us, and if we are able to recognize and take advantage of these changes, we may, as a collective group, wake the 'Sleeping Giant' that lies within our dynamic industry, which is synonymous with entertainment, the purest form of medicine for people of all ages."

MOA Launching Regional Push

the term public relations. I think in terms of industry image, which I think is greatly improved in recent years.

"But what is the definition of public relations?" Granger inquired rhetorically. "Even when you define it public relations doesn't mean a damned thing," he said, "because what you're talking about is people. People like Jack Bess and Dick Lumpkin right here in Virginia who are there every time you telephone them ready to go to work."

People like Mossett Holland, and I insist on using Mossett's first name, Claud Smith and K. A. O'Conner and all the people involved with this fine organization here.

"Of our own people with MOA I have to compliment Nick Allen on the unusual judgment and finesse he has and continually employs in the delicate and important work he does in Washington and I have to mention the sacrifices people like our own President Jimmy Tolisano makes. He wouldn't mention it, but if anyone made a sacrifice in coming here today it is James Tolisano."

Relates Story

Granger, whose background is in public relations, said, "My definition of public relations is helping those who deserve a better reputation or image to gain the image or reputation they deserve." He concluded his emphasis on public relations with a parody of a wealthy man who had never contributed toward public relations and who finally went to heaven. "St. Peter," Granger said, "led the man past all the splendid palaces until finally they came to a little hovel, the most humble and simple house one could imagine."

"This man, while on earth, had never participated in anything of a charitable nature, he didn't know the meaning of public relations or benevolent thought," Granger said. "St. Peter had led him past all the splendid residences and the glistening palaces and after each one the man registered his keen disappointment at not being given a house befitting his own rich life on earth. When they finally stopped at this lowly hovel and St. Peter told the man this was where he would reside, the man turned and said St. Peter had to be kidding."

Granger paused and then related that St. Peter said, "Well, sir, this is where you will live because this is all the material you ever sent us."

SCCOA Backs School Plan

of trade figures were on hand during the affair. Some such as Art Daddis, Sol Lipkin, Gene Daddis, George Hinkler, Bob Bear and Dick O'Connor made either the Virginia showing or other regional business sessions in addition to the successful exhibit here.

Exhibits

Distributors showing equipment were Peach State Trading Co., Columbia (Rowe, Irving Kaye, Bally, Fischer, United Billiards, Chicago Coin, Litton Industries); Wurlitzer Co., Atlanta; American Shuffleboard Co., Union City, N. J.; Bib Distributing Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Southeastern Vending Distributors, Inc. (Seeburg, All-Tech, Williams, United, Gottlieb Clement); LeStourgeon Distributing Co., Charlotte, N. C. (Rock-Ola, U. S. Billiards).

During its business session SCCOA members chose Spartanburg as the site of its annual election meeting the weekend of Jan. 21-22. Current officers of SCCOA in addition to president Keels are Hal J. Shinn, first vice-president; Royce Green Jr., second vice-president; Fred Collins, third vice-president; Erby H. Campbell, secretary-treasurer, and A. L. Witt, board chairman. SCCOA's board consists of 15 members elected to one or two-year terms.

A seven-man nominating committee was named consisting of A. L. Witt, A. W. Bradford, Royce Green Sr., Jerry Palassis, Wade Crow, Horace Andrews and Jim Faulk.

Membership approval was gained on selecting red and black as the color for the 1967 SCCOA decals, which are placed on all members' coin-operated equipment across South Carolina as part of the association's public relations efforts.

Pool Law

SCCOA attorney Peter Hyman reported on the current Supreme Court case in South Carolina, Melody Music Co. vs. Sheriff of Richmond County, wherein the association is hoping for a decision on Section C-6, Title 5 and a reversal of a May 31, 1966 State Court's decision which ruled that "A pool table is a pool table," in Hyman's words.

Hyman told SCCOA members that their efforts to gain a special category for coin-operated pool tables of 3½ feet by 7 feet or less, has every chance of success and that the tax commission office is sympathetic. "This would mean that coin-operated tables would be exempt from the regulations applying to regular billiard parlors," Hyman said, "as they should be. We feel coin-operated pool tables fall in a category with bowling games, shuffle alleys and other coin-operated amusement equipment."

Currently in South Carolina billiard locations must furnish an annual $500 character bond and are subject to other regulations, such as curfews. This has seriously hampered the operation of coin-operated tables and led to the current Supreme Court case. A ruling here in Columbia is expected very soon.

25-Cent Play

Industry figure Bill Gersh addressed SCCOA on the subject of two plays for 25 cents and sparked considerable discussion both on the floor of the meeting and during recess periods afterward. President H. C. Keels Jr., told the membership that he expects to switch to the dual play

Moviematic Industries Corp. of Miami has introduced this new portable, coin-operated photograph booth designed to snap a series of 25 pictures in sequence in 11 seconds which, when vended offer the customer a movie illusion. The unit snaps, develops, cuts, stacks and staples the 25 pictures and delivers them to the customer in three minutes. The 1½ by 2¾-inch photos are taken using strobe lights. Film is in the form of a magazine, each holding 103 flipette booklets. Servicing is simplified by the use of sub assemblies. All wires have disconnect fittings for easy removal of any unit. Unit takes 15 sq. ft. of space. For 50-cent vending, the unit may also be set to snap individual shots. Cabinet is of plywood with formica covering.

Following a decision to expand their directors to 19, MOV members elected four new board members to posts. They are Alton Lewis, Waynesboro; John Cameron, Newport News; Jim Donnelly, Norfolk; Cecil Roberts, Alexandria.

Next's year's annual convention and trade show date was also set at the meeting with the Wade Hampton Hotel here again chosen as the site and the date set for Nov. 30 through Dec. 2.

MOA Officials

In what was James Tolisano's first official address to a state association since his election at the Music Operators of America convention, the new head of the national organization called for a fresh approach to expansion and diversification in existing locations as an answer to rising operator costs during a period when the number of locations continues to decrease (complete report elsewhere).

MOA executive vice-president director Fred Granger, Jr. outlined MOA's renewed public relations drive, its efforts to enlist one-stop membership, explained that the national organization while continuing to drive for new members will be especially promoting new state associations this year and that it will fully endorse the drive spearheaded by Jack Moran to set up service training centers in the U. S.

MOV members were fully informed of the latest developments in Washington as concerns the copyright question in a feature address by MOA counsel Nicholas Allen who flew in (18) to spend a few hours with the Virginia group before rushing to another appointment.

The following firms were on hand to exhibit a full array of products: State Sales and Service Corp., Baltimore (Wurlitzer, Automatic Products, Bally, Ditchburn Vending, Irving Kaye, Midway, Tape-Athon, Universal Vendors, Victor Electronics, Gold Medal Products); Pat's One-Stop, Richmond; General Vending Sales Corp., Baltimore (Rock-Ola, Fischer, Chicago Dynamics, D. Gottlieb); Roanoke Vending Exchange, Inc., Richmond (Rowe, Williams Electronics, Valley, Irving Kaye); Eastern Distributors, Inc., Baltimore (Seeburg); American Shuffleboard, Union City, N. J.; Saxon Distributing, Charlotte (Automatic Products); Southeastern Vending Distributing, Inc., Norfolk (All-Tech); Calvin Sales Co., Baltimore (Oak, Acorn, supplies).

A number of prominent manufacturer figures including Wurlitzer's Bob Bear, American Shuffleboard's Sol Lipkin and Gene Daddis and others were on hand with some journeying on to the South Carolina convention and trade affair in Columbia which opened (19-20).

Allen told the MOV assemblage that the current copyright bill in Washington is 200 pages in length and that the section MOA is concerned with is only one small part of an all-encompassing total revision of the old copyright legislation. At one point MOV president Dick Lumpkin raised the question of Senate stoppage should the bill eventually clear the House subcommittee and the lower chamber.

"Yes, it's theoretically possible for the bill to be stopped in the Senate," Allen responded in the later question and answer session. "But it would be highly unusual," he continued. "You have to realize that this bill encompasses the whole spectrum of copyright legislation dealing with literary rights. CATV legislation and all aspects of copyright. It represents a 50-year cycle of legislative action and we are positive that action will come in the next congress."

"We must develop and expand our present spots," said Tolisano, who has built up a successful operation since coming to Clearwater four years ago from Connecticut. "I don't care what kind they are. We must analyze them, look for different ways to improve our merchandising in them and try entirely new things.

New Locations

"In doing so we can also look for new locations, too, because this is equally important. Let's think about airports, department stores, shopping centers, bowling alleys, resorts, hotels and apartment houses," he said. "I am also very excited about slot car centers as potential locations for a great variety of equipment."

Tolisano, in relating his own experiences, demonstrated that he will be a dynamic MOA leader, one that will enlist response from operators.

"Although I have four employees I still get out on the route myself and look for new things, and this is where I came on the idea of setting equipment in these slot car centers and expanding them into family recreation spots," he said.

25 Pieces

The location he described is in St. Petersburg and is known as "Mini-Car." He originally installed five pieces in the shopping center location. "I put in four pool tables and one shuffle alley," he told MOV operators. "In three months I had 25 pieces in there and had tripled the income with really a modest investment."

Mini-Car now has 11 pool tables, four pin games, four bowlers, three rifles games, one baseball game an auto test machine and, of course, a juke box. From this location he went on to similar expansion in other spots he saw were not being completely merchandised to their greatest potential, he said.

"I had a beer and wine spot with a jukebox, shuffle alley and a pool table. There was plenty of room in the place so I suggested the owner let me try some more things," Tolisano said. "I put in two pin games and a 16-foot bowler. These were mostly pieces I had laying around. The investment was minimum," he related, "and again we doubled the gross."

Makes Addition

Tolisano told of another beer and wine place where he had a bowler and a jukebox and more than doubled the income by adding a shuffle alley, a pool table and a pinball game. "You have a tremendous accomplishment in spots like this," he said, "because you've actually gained a location while you've also been losing some as we all do from time to time."

Still another success story concerned a teen spot where Tolisano encouraged the location owner to add a gameroom. "I'd had the spot for two years and all we had in it was one lonely jukebox. The owner liked the idea of a game room and a dining area and I helped finance it," said the new MOA head.

"A soon as he finished it we installed a new jukebox, two pool tables and two pin games. In two years the addition was paid for in full," said Tolisano. "But these things just don't happen. They're a result of analyzing what locations you have, and then getting the most out of your equipment and the potentials of the particular spot."

Theater Operates Vending Units as Patron Service

LOS ANGELES — Just how widely accepted the vending machine business is here can be seen in an independent theater manager who insists on housing several vending machines in his lobby, despite the presence of his own revenue-producing refreshment bar.

He reasons that the vending machines (soft drink and candy-gum) provide "customer service" to his patrons who are unable to reach the refreshment bar during intermission. "Service to the customer," said Nat Levine, executive manager of the Rolling Hills Theater, Torrance, Calif., is more important than losing a few sales at our refreshment counter."

The "customer service" vending machines, maintained by the ABC Vending Corp., Los Angeles, only "steals" about 2 per cent of the theater's refreshment take. A figure low enough, according to Levine, to be able to afford vending machine service for his patrons.

Customer Relations

Levine also believes more independent theaters, especially neighborhood houses, should consider vending machines as a method of improving customer relations. "It's better to lose about 1 or 2 per cent of your refreshment take," he said, "than lose your theater customer because he is unable to receive proper treatment at the refreshment counter. The lack of time between features (intermissions run about three minutes) prevents our service-counter personnel from handling the refreshment buyer."

Being in competition with himself for the refreshment dollar doesn't bother Levine. Inadequate service does. "Since motion pictures are better than ever," Levine said, "the theater managers should strive to woo patrons away from television with a solid 'public relations' program. The vending industry can provide a big lift to the theater's customer relations-service program."

Levine discounts theaters owning machines because of the mechanical factor. At times, he said, servicing the machines can be better handled by the vending company, thus eliminating the

MONY Retains Key Execs in Annual Vote

NEW YORK—The entire executive board of Music Operators of New York was returned to office at the association's annual meeting Tuesday (22). Also, the more than 40 operators attending elected eight members to the board of directors.

Preceding the elections, MONY attorney Ted Blatt presented a report on current litigation facing the organization and advised members of possible violations of jukebox exemption clause of the performing rights need of mechanical personnel to fix an ailing machine.

The Rolling Hills Theater does operate its own cigaret machine because of its low maintenance problem. In fact, Levine sells cigarets in the machines for 35 cents, a nickel less than cigaret machines throughout Torrance.

Torrance, the third largest city in Los Angeles County in population (135,000) has just added a 2-cent cigaret tax.

"By not charging the extra nickel in our cigaret machine," Levine said, "we provide still another customer service."

pleased he and his partner were with the increased variety of product now being offered, said, "You have to remember that we pay a 45 per cent duty on import merchandise here in Canada and that our dollar is worth only 92 cents in American currency. This makes bulk vending a little different than it is in the U. S.," he said.

Land and Baldwin reported that Batman items had enjoyed much success in their part of Canada and that currently their best item was the Go Go rings. They especially praised Leaf, Karl Guggenheim and Penny King among manufacturers who were now offering interesting varieties of bulk items.

Larger machine capacities is another factor the Dale Distributing, Ltd., owners have welcomed. Distributors for Oak in British Columbia and the surrounding area, they have found that the Vista cabinet with capacity for 40 pounds of wrapped gum has been a boon for operators. Many bulk men have long routes stretching across vast reaches of Canada.

Both men also vend peanuts, cashew nuts, pens and post-cards. "We have found bars and service stations to be good sites for cashew and nut machines," Baldwin said.

hurting the 10-cent business considerably. Our 10-cent vending is off considerably from last year. The market's there, but it's not being exploited to its full potential."

Sam Roberts of Knoxville, Tenn., offers a dissenting view. "I have only been in it three years, but every year my 10-cent business increases." He has about 2,000 10-cent machines on location.

"The merchandising makes the difference. If you get an item that doesn't move, you shift it to another location. It is more or less a fad type of field. I like the fad items myself. Whatever fad comes along will double your sales. Rings and jewelry will always go, but you need the fad to boost sales."

societies copyright law. Blatt told operators that bars and restaurants requiring an admissions fee at the door are subject to the collection of royalty charges by ASCAP, BMI and SESAC.

Blatt advised them that where as "Go-Go cabarets," and jukeboxes serve as the entertainment, the operator should try to convince them to charge a minimum rather than a door fee. "If the patron is not charged for entering and using the jukebox, it is not considered a public performance for profit and no royalty fee can be collected," Blatt said.

In the election, all four incumbents ran uncontested. Retaining their positions are Al Denver, president; George Holtzman, vice-president; Bill Kobler, secretary, and Gil Sonin, treasurer. New to the board of directors are Ben Rubin of Broadway Music and Albert Herman (Herman Automatic Music). Other directors returning to the board for another year are Doc Shapiro, Shapiro Music; Irving Fenichel, Janes Music; David Sachs, Union Vending; Leonard Block, Melody Amusement; Albert Arnold, Empire; and Mervyn Siskind, Master Automatic.

During the meeting Ben Chicofsky, MONY general manager, announced the new Manpower Training jukebox mechanics school will have a revised syllabus. "Last term the class concentrated heavily on electronics," Chicofsky said. "We learned since then that a thorough knowledge of mechanics is more important in jukebox servicing and we've changed the curriculum accordingly. Twelve students are in the second class.

larly variety stores and markets. He had no experience with Green Hornet for he never stocked them. Arguelles, a veteran operator, attributes the drop in dime sales to some extent to the winter months. Right now, he is using some former dime items in mixes or putting them in 5-cent machines.

Bill Coombs, who serves a wide territory from his headquarters in the Simi Valley, emphasized that the spurt in sales of 10-cent items depends entirely upon their popularity. He uses a dime machine in just about every location and the going product now is Superballs. The life of a hot item, according to Coombs, is about six weeks. Of course, there were exceptions, for the Trolls lasted about three months and Batman was alive and kicking for almost the same length of time.

Coombs services on a three-week schedule and he likes to see an item going strong for at least three trips or more.

"We need to get away from the kind of items such as we had this summer where our customers here at Central didn't know whether to make them 10-cent or 5-cent merchandise. The question existed on any number of items," Veatch said, "and there shouldn't be any question if an item has intrinsic value built into it."

Security Hot Topic in Business Meets, Exhibits

We've installed floodlights, posted guards and even employ dogs on our premises," he said. Other security measures at the Macke Co. are inside-outside bells, closed-circuit photo electric cells to trip off alarms, conductive tape on windows and doors, floor mat buttons in case of holdups and an enunciator sound system that silently notifies the local police precinct in a manner inaudible to the intruder.

"In our trucks," Reamy explained, "we have metal grates in back of the driver. Our safes are bolted to the floor. Currency is kept in special magazines which are placed inside the safes on the trucks," he said, "and our trucks are wired with alarms, even to micro-leaf switches on the windows."

Reamy told of one gang that hit the company twice. "Once they cut through the chain-link fence and were scared off when a burglar alarm was tripped on the first floor. They returned," said Reamy, "and cut the telephone line thinking this would foil us. It didn't," Reamy said. He also told of the "Bolt Cutter Bandits" who were snipping off the padlocks on the back of the Macke Co. trucks.

"These guys were nifty," said Reamy. "They knew the alarm would ring but they calculated on the few seconds necessary to get inside and make off with the currency magazines. It forced us to re-evaluate our in-truck storage plan for magazines," Reamy said, indicating he had solved this security problem, too.

"Snatch Lock"

Glenn spoke on internal security at Illinois Bell Telephone where "employee defalcation" is a problem his company strives to solve before it occurs. "We screen all applicants, check their school records and look for abnormal behavior patterns," Glenn told his audience.

Although telephone company collectors do not handle coins directly and collect only the sealed coin box in the lower section of the pay phones, the introduction of security coin boxes by companies such as Inter-County Industries, Inc., and other income totalizing mechanisms now introduced, make much of Glenn's procedures applicable in the coin machine industry.

"Where we suspect defalcation we often put marked coins in given telephones," Glenn said. "We also will follow collectors who might not replace the sealed

Ohio City Laws Being Studied

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio.—An ordinance that would place a $25 license fee on the first jukebox or similar device and a $10 fee on each additional machine is now under study by a city council committee here. The study was proposed by councilman Jack Hunter.

Another proposal by councilman James Pastore, establishing a $250 fee for the first piece of equipment and $5 for each additional unit, is also under study. These moves follow the local court's ruling that an ordinance passed in 1965 for a $1,500 fee schedule for first machine ($3 for each additional machine) was "confiscatory."

Glenn also explained the use of a special "Snatch Lock," developed for Illinois Bell by Western Electric. "This is a 27-A lock we use in place of our 10-G mechanism in the upper housing. If a key is inserted and turned to the 4 o'clock position a spring-loaded lever jams across from the right side, trapping, or snatching the key so it cannot be removed," he said. He went on to explain that a hole had to be drilled in the housing and a wire is snaked in to retrieve the key.

Stolen Trailers

The problems of pilferage, vandalism and route thievery seemed almost pale when Commander William Murphy told the audience about the theft of cargo trailers. "In one year we had between 80 and 100 trailers stolen off company lots," he said. "These were entire trailers, the size of boxcars," he repeated, to emphasize the enormity of the problem.

His explanation of how the problem was solved again had application for vending and music companies. "We encouraged the trucking companies to organize. Immediately when a trailer was reported stolen we called various companies. Each company then called three others. Most of these companies have radios," Murphy said, "and it pyramids until maybe 4,800 drivers know the description of the trailer. In this way we recovered nearly all of them in time to save the merchandise."

R. W. Funk, NAMA legislative counselor, also addressed the gathering and warned the audience that association surveys showed that less than half the member companies have security procedures and internal security checks. "Only 41 per cent employ some form of key and lock security," he said.

Manufacturers

For those who didn't grasp the grim message at the seminar, exhibits at McCormick Place re-emphasized the security problem facing today's coin machine industry.

Wis. Operator Starts Strong

MENOMONEE FALLS, Wis.—An appliance dealer who took to coin machine operating with natural ease aptly characterizes Jerry Engle, who with his wife Joyce, son Craig, and daughter Margie, is making the new Falls Vending Co. operation here a family affair.

Engle, who spent 20 years in the appliance field, recently made an installation at Master Lock Co. in Milwaukee. His experience in realizing the value of neat-appearing merchandise was valuable in selling Master Lock on the series of Rowe Celebrity venders Engle is using in the plant site location. His appreciation of service was equally valuable.

As Engle put it, "Here is a company which wants to be second to none in creating ideal working conditions for employees." Believing he had something in common with Master Lock, Engle further stated, "I want to provide a service second to none."

Rowe regional sales manager Paul Huebsch spoke of vending newcomer Engle in glowing terms when he said, "He's a hard worker, always on the go." Apparently Master Lock Co. was favorably impressed, too, as Engle nailed down the important account.

Inter-County Industries, Inc., displayed its security coin boxes available in king and regular size to fit any coin-operated machines. The boxes employ two locks. One secures the box in the machine and routemen have only the key that removes the box. The other lock secures the box itself, and it can only be opened in the operation collection room. Boxes can be coded as to routes and contents, must match the inventory-cash check accompanying each box removed from its individual machine.

Johnson Fare Box Co. introduced its portable hand-operated on-location coin counter with a register printer. Measuring 11½ inches high, 9½ inches deep, 9 inches wide and weighing less than 19 pounds, the machine delivers a printed record with a receipt for the location owner of the exact collection total.

Rock-Ola's sealed "Automatic Coin Counter," Wurlitzer's "CashRak," Rowe's Model MAB "Money Meter," and Seeburg's "Print-Out Income Totalizer" all represent individual approaches phonograph manufacturers have taken in the cash security direction.

There's no reason why diversification, which usually works in the direction of traditional music-games operators going into vending, can't work the other way and Floyd is discovering this.

"I guess it's a competitive thing," reasoned Floyd, "where a vending concern has a location that wants all its services from one company but it says something for the value of music service, too," Evers pointed out.

Right now Bird Music is having excellent business on the new Rock-Ola models which it introduced during an open house not long ago.

Floyd also says Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ptacek have been on the Rock-Ola tour of the Middle East and that the Bird Bossman is looking forward to MOA and NAMA in Chicago this month.

Over at Sutherland Dist., Jack Sulley also got off on the subject of vending companies into music and reported that he recently sold two Seeburg phonographs to a vending operator out in mid-Missouri.

In this case, Jack indicated that the operator, although primarily engaged in vending, had gotten into background music. This led to servicing locations with phonographs, too.

"We've had some vending companies going into background music," Jack offered, as further evidence of the two-way route in modern coin machine diversification.

Jack saying that the new Seeburg phonograph is getting wonderful acceptance in Sutherland territory after a very successful one-day open house showing here at the Hilton Inn. Showings were also conducted at the Joplin and Wichita branches.

Len Kennard was just in from the Seeburg factory, Jack reports, to assist in the weekly service schools conducted at the branch here. Some 20 operators and route servicemen were in for this particular session dealing with schefor a quarter "Right after the first of the year."

But other members both publicly and privately registered comments that gave the impression such a move to hike play fees was something that would have to be given careful study. "What about a single selection? This would mean our teen spots would have to play two songs since we would no longer have dime coin chutes?" one operator asked.

Still other operators questioned whether the economic conditions in South Carolina could be compared to metropolitan sections such as Miami, where two plays for 25 cents is reportedly successful. Said one member privately, "Take a spot where my pool table is doing all the business in the place and the juke box takes in only 10 or 5 per cent. How can I tell the location owner I'm going to this higher deal?"

Another member questioned the widespread publicity of a hike in play prices prior to a firm agreement concerning the royalty question now pending in congressional hearings.

DENVER

Important news recently was the purchase of the routes formerly operated by Walter Morris in Denver by Bob Rothberg, of Continental Music Co., Denver. Rothberg and his operating partner, Don Akins, report that bulk vending operations have helped substantially to take up the slack which has come from relatively slow phonograph collections. . . . Veteran operator Johnny Knight of Skyline Music Co., Lakewood, has been appointed Scopitone distributor for the Denver area—a real feather in Knight's cap. Charlie Cousins, of Cousins Music Co., in the Denver Five Points area has completed construction of a new, attractive home in the Denver suburb. . . . Chuck Morrison Jr., son of the veteran Leadville, Colo., operator, surprised the local gentry recently when he enrolled in Jack Moran's school for coin-machine mechanics, graduated with honors, and returned to Leadville to give his father a lift on the routes! Moran's Coin Machine Institute, incidentally, is operating with a student body of 18 at present. . . . A third generation member of the coin-machine fraternity in Denver is Jim Bernard, whose grandfather, Tom Bean, was one of the first full-scale phonograph operators in the State's history. The older Bean, retired, still lives in Denver. . . . Recent vacationers were Bob Paulson, and John Schisler, both of Draco Sales staff. Both took Colorado fishing-ground vacations, and reported full creels every day. . . . Happy over a complete remodeling job in offices, shop and showroom are Marshall Pack, Dan Keys, Sam Keys, and Jack Hackett. The long-drawn-out remodeling program followed serious flood damage which occurred in Denver's $50,000,000 drenching last year.

In Denver, celebrating a birthday, and buying a truckload of games and phonographs, was George Abouseiman, of Sun Music Company, in Bernallillo, N. M. Abouseiman reported volume in his New Mexico territory, near Albuquerque, holding up well through 1966. . . . Gus Brown, who has been a salesman with numerous Denver phonograph distributors for many years, has joined the staff of Struve Distributing Company, Seeburg distributors in Denver. His son, Gus Brown Jr., is a full-fledged operator, who began in the field while still a college student, and who gets excellent advice from Gus, Senior. . . . More intelligence from Chuck Morrison Jr. informs that there will be no "aching backs" in his Leadville operations, since Morrison bought a new hydraulic lift which can handle 1000-pound loads with ease. . . . A new operator to enter the ranks recently is Louis H. McClung, who has launched L & D Music Co., in Yuma, Colo. . . . An operator who is making the summer season pay both ways is Bill Burbank, of Montrose Music Company, Montrose, Colo. Burbank owns a popular dude ranch, a few miles from the town, which provides fishing, swimming, camping, horseback riding, and the usual pattern.
