TRIBUTE

OH-MUGHT ANGHT

(LATE JANUARY 1963)

BY JAY JAY FRENCH

first heard "that voice" while scrolling through the AM dial on my mother's big tabletop radio during the last week of January in 1963. I was sick, stayed home from school and was bored out of my mind with watching TV.

That evening, I asked my mom what station was good to listen to, but she had no suggestions. It was then that I heard the song and voice that changed the course of my life forever. The song was "Hey Paula" by Paul & Paula and the voice was Scott Muni telling me that it was the new No. 1 on 77 WABC.

What did that mean? Who selected it? What other numbers were there? I just had to know. I spent every waking hour for the next week listening to WABC. Every night "Scottso" told me that the new survey was coming the following Tuesday.

That Tuesday, I took the cardboard backing from my dad's laundered shirt, and copied every song from No. 2C down to No.

Scott Muni, right, is shown at the Radio Air Awards in 2002, where he was presented with the Lifetime Achievement Award. To his left are industry veteran Steve Leeds, who introduced a video retrospective on Muni; and Louise Hamson, the sister of George Hamson. The ceremony tock place at B.B. King Blues Club & Grill in New York, and was one of the radio legend's last public appearances

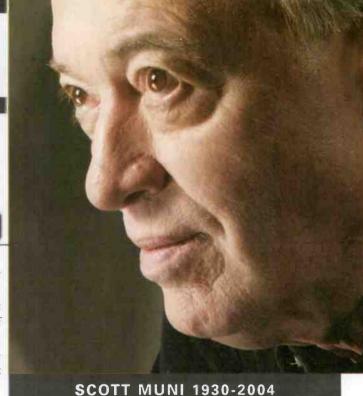

2. His voice boomed out that the No. 1 song was again "Hey Paula." I suspected that this was a world vote but I wasn't sure. In those days the top 40 was really the top 20, and it seemed that any song in the top 20 was played twice an hour, so every one of those songs is forever etched in my memory.

This scenario was played out by me every week for six successive Tuesdays. Every week I waited to hear that voice tell me that the world proclaimed "Hey Paula" as its No. 1 song.

And then, on my seventh Tuesday, something changed. "Hey Paula" wasn't No. 1 anymore. It had been replaced by "He's So Fine" by the Chiffons and my theory of a permanent "world No. 1 song" was destroyed (the first of many theories that fell by the wayside as I climbed the music industry mountain).

I was devastated. How could you do this to me, Scottso? I told my mom that I had to get the song back to No. 1. She suggested that we go to a record store. The closest one was on 107th Street and Broadway. I walked in and asked the little old lady behind the counter if I could buy the record "Hey Paula." She said yes. Then I asked her, "If I buy the record, will it go back to No. 1?" I realize now that she didn't have the heart to tell me about the real world—after all, I was only 9 years old. She gave me a look of hope and said, "Maybe, son."

That was enough for me—I was hooked or radio and rock 'n'roll.

Listening to Scottso do the countdown was a ritual for the next nine months.

And then the mother of all sociological phenomena occurred: the Beatles

I knew about rival stations WMCA and WINS—which had Murray the K, the fifth Beatle—but I didn't care. I stayed true to WABC and got all my Beatles news from Scottso.

I smuggled a transistor radio into Boy Scout camp in the summer of 1964 so I could hear the Beatles, Beach Boys and all the new Motown music and listen to "that voice" tell me the survey every week.

This went on until that night in 1966 when it was announced that Scottso was leaving. Before I had time to grieve, I heard that he was going to a new station on the FM dial that would play freeform radio. That was my time to leave AM top 40 as well. I went over to WOR-FM and shortly thereafter switched again to the new WNEW.

I can't begin to imagine how much Scott Muni influenced my record purchases. His afternoon show was a ritual all through my high school years, and his background stories that went with the exposure to new music were always fascinating.

In fact, out of all the records he played, the one that I didn't buy will be forever connected to him. It was his sign-off song, "Elusive Butterfly" by Bob Lind. Whenever I heard that song, at five minutes to 6 p.m. every day, I knew that the "party time" of my day was over and it was time to do my homework.

Over the years I have been asked, "What was it in your career that gave you the feeling that you had made it?" The answer is simple. Twenty-one years after I first heard "that voice" talk to me on that late-January night in 1963, I heard it talk about me.

He announced, "Here's something new from Twisted Sister. It's called "We're Not Gonna Take It."

AC/DC said it best: "It's a Long Way to the Top (If You Wanna to Rock'n'Roll)." Scott Muni started my journey.

Thanks, Scottso.

Jay Jay French is the founding guitarist of the band Twisted Sister. dult top 40, which has traditionally maintained a sturdy stable of core artists whose age range is roughly the same as its listeners, has spent much of the year indulging in an edgy breed of artists half the age of its norm.

In the past, the genre has courted such talents as Sarah McLachlan, Alanis Morissette and Matchbox Twenty for hits. But recent smashes have sprouted from such youthful artists as Ashlee Simpson, Avril Lavigne, Kelly Clarkson and Ryan Cabrera.

Even JoJo, who at 13 is the youngest artist to ever score a No. 1 at mainstream top 40, is gaining a presence at adult top 40 good lyric and a singer with a good voice. While media hype and marketing do affect things, adults are much less inclined to be sucked in by a flavor-of-the-month artist."

COULD I SEE SOME ID, PLEASE?

While numerous youthful artists from previous decades were also able to find a home at adult top 40 radio, the new breed of youth-driven hits is offering fewer ballads and more rock. For the format's audience, the acts may come across as more grown up than they actually are.

Programmers say that with little association to bubble-gum pop, the new young acts blend seamlessly with hits by such

For the most part, programmers insist that a hit is a hit, no matter who sings it or how old they are. And many believe that the age gap is bringing mothers and daughters together at a destination on the dial besides Radio Disney or mainstream top 40, which has increasingly alienated the upper end of its demo.

"I think the new crop of young artists has given us better music, increased the overall tempo of the station and frankly, with Ashlee and Kelly, increased our star appeal, since they were known to a TV audience before they came to radio," offers Patti Marshall, PD of WKRQ (Q102) Cincinnati.

The trend is also helping to beef up the lower tip of the station's female demographic, and shows no signs of turning off the upper end.

"We've seen an increase in our female 35-44 numbers in the last two books," Marshall says. "During that time we've played Jessica Simpson, Ashlee, JoJo and Avril in heavy rotation."

Rob Lucas, MD of adult top 40 WTSS (Star 102.7) Buffalo, N.Y., says, "It's talent. Adult listeners recognize a good song, a groups as 3 Doors Down, Evanescence and Hoobastank, which also cross to and from mainstream top 40 without a kiddie stigma.

Gary Trust, MD at adult top 40 WSNE Providence, R.I., suggests that the trend established itself several years ago, when Michelle Branch and Vanessa Carlton ignited the gritty pop/rock-chick sound that was embraced by the format with little regard for a singer's age.

"So while somewhat younger-sounding, Ashlee Simpson's 'Pieces of Me' and Ryan Cabrera's 'On the Way Down' seem to fit our sound, and we feel it's safe to play them," Trust says.

"We're certainly not playing every younger artist," he adds. "We toyed with JoJo, but that sounds a bit too young for us, and we haven't yet seen research to support playing it. I do think there's a danger in sounding too young and too top 40. If listeners wanted so much of that sound, they would probably listen to top 40. Variety seems to be a key to our success."

James Baker, assistant PD/MD of KIOI (Star 103) San Francisco, notes, "In past cycles, mainstream and adult top 40 have shared artists," he says. He points out precedents such as

New Edition, Madonna and Whitney Houston in 1985; in 1988-89, there were Debbie Gibson, Tiffany, New Kids on the Block and Paula Abdul. Mariah Carey and Boyz II Men broke through in 1990. And in 1999, it was 'N Sync, Backstreet Boys, Britney Spears and Christina Aguilera.

So, Baker says, "the young artists we are seeing now are just the latest crop of crossover pop to be successful at mainstream and adult top 40."

On the other hand, with mainstream top 40's ongoing allegiance to hip-hop, Marshall believes adult top 40 is the only remaining outlet for quality pop music without the rap—for an audience that is hipper than it was a decade or so ago.

"It seems that today's 40-year-old is yesterday's 30-year-old," she says. "They are still having babies, careers and are interested in new music for a longer period of time. We may love the '80s, but we live in 2004.

"I also think adult women are turned off by a lot of mainstream top 40 stations; so much of their playlists are R&B/hiphop with lyrics that can be negative, sexist and too sexual, espe10TOGRAPHS COURTESY OF GETTY IMAGES. FROM LEF COTT GRIES (2); EVAN AGOSTINI (2); FRANK MICELOTTA.

INCLUDES A ROSTER OF HIT ARTISTS HALFTHE AGE OF ITS LISTENERS BY CHUCK TAYLOR

cially with this group, which has kids in the car," Marshall says.

Baker believes the particular mix that adult top 40 provides--including the new sweep of younger artists—now defines

"Soccer moms between 30 and 40 are a lot different than those of 10 or 15 years ago, when there was an influx of these kinds of younger artists," he says. "Moms want upbeat music rather than being lulled to sleep by stations that skew much older, playing the Four Tops and the Supremes.

"They'll listen to those stations if they don't have a choice, but they prefer the upbeat route," Baker adds. "The key to winning with this audience is to be mother and daughter's favorite radio station. This used to be the claim to fame for mainstream top 40 stations 10 or 15 years ago, but not anymore."

THEY LISTEN, THEY KNOW

The consensus is divided on whether those moms are inherently aware that some of the acts they're learning to love are their daughters' age.

"Moms and kids do listen to Radio Disney-hey, that's the unavoidable evil we face, and they do get exposure to these artists the PDs and MDs-to make sure we play the right songs for our markets. Winning stations are not always the safest, but they combine research and gut to make the correct decision on fringe or edgy records."

Marshall adds, "Most of the younger artists we're talking about don't sing about bubble gum and hanging out at the mall. The lyrics don't suggest that these are songs for teens."

Baker adds that in today's techno-manic world, the information is there for the taking, if listeners seek it.

"We do live in an information age with the Internet and infotainment readily available," he says. "I would guess that most parents know about Ashlee, Avril, Kelly, Michelle Branch, etc., thanks to their kids."

As for the acts' appeal to parents, "I don't consider their age," Baker says. "It's more about the sound, the appeal and the lyrics-and if adults can relate to them."

CORE ARTISTS NEED TO STEP UP

While it may be easy enough to determine that adult top 40's new age is coming at the cost of older core artists, most believe that those who once held court-Jewel, McLachlan and DeGraw and 3 Doors Down

"So where are we supposed to find mass-appeal, officefriendly pop music? One of the few choices at the moment seems to be the vounger artists," he says.

Trust adds that even if there is a growing number of young acts on the format, "playing plenty of gold keeps our sound consistent. Plus, with separation, I try to make sure that any sound doesn't come up back-to-back or in clusters."

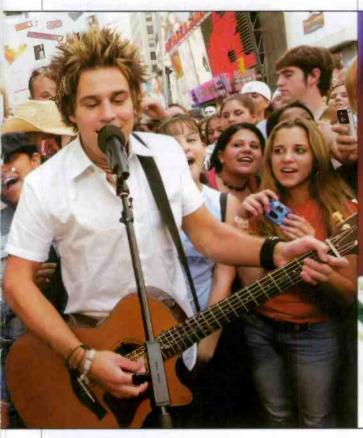

Thomas hopes the competition for airtime will push those older core artists to work their way back to the format.

"Maybe it will challenge some of the more traditional artists to step up, reinvent and give us more hits," he says.

YOUNG, MATURE AND ALL IN BETWEEN

Of course, an interesting side note is that mixed in with the youth artists is a healthy sprinkling of retro acts—those that the core audience grew up with-who have returned with new vitality: Duran Duran, Richard Marx and Counting Crows. And Bowling that way. But adult females are just not as hip to who is who as we would like them to be," Thomas says. "But as long as these artists are bringing hits to the format, it's a win-win."

Lucas, however, thinks female listeners are aware of who they're listening to—if the station is doing its job.

"Adult listeners are very aware that some of their favorite songs come from kids, and they are very impressed that most of these kids write their own songs and play their own instruments," he says. "That is very often the difference between a John Mayer and a one-hit wonder. It's part of the air personalities' job to tell listeners about the artists when playing the song.

"How does it all affect radio?" he asks. "That's why they pay

Morissette-simply haven't provided strong product to keep

"Have Sarah and Alanis had big hits lately?" asks Lisa Thomas, assistant PD/MD at KDMX (Mix 102.9) Dallas. "We must ask ourselves this. They are still core, but the new stuff isn't sticking around."

Trust adds, "For a long time, we've had a steady string of hits from slightly more mature acts-Matchbox Twenty, Sheryl Crow, Sugar Ray, Smash Mouth—and solo artists who, while relatively young—Alanis and Jewel—certainly sounded adult. But at the moment, these artists are not supplying the hits or as much product. At the same time, rock-leaning records have taken a bigger hold on the format, with Switchfoot, Gavin for Soup has scored its breakthrough hit with "1985," a trip down memory lane for adult top 40 listeners.

Trust concludes that if pressed on the matter, perhaps adult women would be averse to listening to a robust stable of teenage artists on their preferred station.

"Maybe adult female listeners relate more to lyrics in a Sheryl Crow song or the artist herself—but again, hopefully they will tell us what they like," he says.

"Is it good or bad for us and/or the format? I guess we'll find out. But, as always, you do research and hope your listeners tell you what you should be playing. You always want to make sure you're playing the best music out there. It's all about balance."

SHOOTING ASK BOB NEIL A QUESTION and, more often than

ASK BOB NEIL A QUESTION and, more often than not, you'll get a straight answer. Unvarnished. To the point. No sugarcoating. For the president and CEO of radio's third-largest company, Neil is disarmingly candid, a straight shooter who doesn't dodge questions or tap dance around the issues.

Ask him about Arbitron's Portable People Meter, for example, and he'll peg it as 1980s technology with "some fatal basic flaws." Read him a quote from a recent Barron's article that makes radio look about as attractive as Dick Cheney in drag, and he'll call it "a bunch of baloney." Take his pulse on the prevailing sentiment that radio should transition advertisers from 60-second spots to 30-second ones, and he'll tell you "the jury's still out on that."

Unlike most group heads, Neil's journey to the corner suite began in programming. Before joining Cox in 1986, he programmed stations in Syracuse, N.Y., and Gainesville, Fla. It's still in his blood, and that has helped him keep a watchful eye on Cox programming. "We've tended to be a bit ahead of the curve watching our commercials loads, for example," he says. "We never let them get out of control at any point."

Spotloads aren't the only thing Cox has kept in check. While other operators scrambled to enact zero-tolerance indecency mandates this year, Cox has had an indecency policy since 1989. Neil believes most of his talent "is pretty clear on what needs to be done," and he doesn't think the Federal Communications Commission's indecency crackdown has had a chilling effect.

"Any edgy air talent has had to take a second look at what they're doing, given the recent fines and supposed crackdown on indecency," he says. "Good air talent is able to adjust their humor accordingly because, at the end of the day, what they're trying to do is be funny and there are a lot of different ways to be funny. Perhaps some talent got into a crutch by saying the most crude thing they could think of and getting away with it. If anything, it's going to force them to be a little more creative."

That said, Neil isn't a fan of the FCC's indecency policy. "The difficult thing is that the bar continues to move with the FCC," he says. "At one point, it's here, [then later], it's totally someplace else." And if you think there isn't some politics at play in all of this, you're deluding yourself, he adds.

Cox is also known for its stringent research practices. "We're real faithful in our research cycles," Neil says. "We have not cut research budgets the way a lot of other companies have."

SMART PROGRAMMING REQUIRED

Neil believes the media and analysts have overplayed radio's current financial funk. True, the economy has been slower than in the go-go late '90s, he admits. But "even in the face of the recession, in the face of the 9-11 attacks, in the face of two wars, virtually all of the public radio companies since 2000 have continued to produce increasing amounts of free cash flow," he says. "Sometimes that's ignored . . . As an investor, what you want to see is a healthy company that's producing larger amounts of free cash flow, and radio has continued to do that despite all of these obstacles."

Which brings up "Losing the Signal," the infamous article in the Aug. 30 issue of Barron's. After a quote from Sandra Ward's article is read to him, Neil calls it baloney. "It sounds like a quote from around 1952, when television was the new technology du jour—and that certainly didn't kill off the radio business," he says. "We have to be smart as programmers and understand what choices the audience has, but the reality is that radio continues to have the largest reach of any media."

TV viewing has declined at a greater rate than radio listening, Neil points out, yet "television is still a very attractive business with plenty of cash flow. Compared to any other mass medium that you would care to look at, we're in great shape."

One of the biggest criticisms of radio is that consolidation has produced a risk-averse culture that has dumbed down programming to the point where it is vapid and vacuous. But people forget, Neil says, that before most radio companies went public, there were plenty of stations that "were risky, they were creative and they were also complete economic disasters. The fact that you have to be a little more risk averse isn't necessarily a bad thing from a business standpoint."

CONCERNS ABOUT THE PPM

Following extended negotiations, Cox renewed its ratings deal with Arbitron in April for five years. Neil says his concerns about Arbitron revolve around "the fact that they're a monopoly and that makes it a little more difficult sometimes for them to hear their customers."

Cox is one of only two Houston radio station owners that has refused to participate in next year's crucial PPM tests in that market. (Radio One is the other. Arbitron maintains there's still time to get both companies to encode their Houston signals before it begins producing actual test ratings.)

Neil doesn't dispute the notion that Arbitron needs to update or even replace the antiquated diary; he's just not convinced the PPM is the answer. "There are a whole lot of ways that you can electronically measure listening," he notes. "We feel that the PPM has some fatal basic flaws to it that would result in it not measuring all of the listening that would occur . . . A lot of things have changed since they developed the PPM and tried to tell us that this is the right form of electronic measurement. We're not sure that that's the case."

The first fatal flaw, Neil says, is that consumers do not tend to carry multiple electronic devices around with them anymore. When Arbitron first trotted out the PPM, one of its selling points was that it was no more obtrusive than carrying around a pager. But pagers are going the way of the eight-track tape. Flaw No. 2, Neil says, is people's tendency to divest themselves of their keys, cell phone, etc. when they return home.

"That kind of stuff doesn't follow me around all over the house," he says. "For example, if I happen to be downstairs and leave my keys and cell phone and perhaps this pager device downstairs, when my alarm clock goes off the next morning and I'm getting ready for work, that listening isn't going to be captured at all."

Cox has committed to converting 80% of its 78 stations in 18 mostly Sunbelt markets to digital broadcasting within four years. And more so than any other company, it is bullish on continuing-education programs for managers, a philosophy that trickles down from parent company Cox Enterprises.

"It's our belief that once someone becomes a manager, they don't suddenly just see the light and not need any additional help or any additional input," Neil says. "If we're going to be good managers, you have to continue to learn, you have to continue to evolve, and thank goodness our company has been ahead of the curve in providing that kind of continuing education to managers."

EMMIS CEO BALANCES COMPANY'S 'MUST TAKE RISKS' MISSION STATEMENT WITH COMPETITIVE BUSINESS REALITIES. BY PAUL HEINE

LOOKING FOR A GOOD EXAMPLE of how intelligent risk-taking can pay off in the increasingly risk-averse radio business? Emmis has two: KPWR Los Angeles and WQHT New York.

Cash cows both, Power 106 and Hot 97 stand tall as the West and East Coast bookends of R&B/hip-hop, radio's second-most-listened-to format. In 1995, they made Emmis the first radio company to own top-rated stations in Los Angeles and New York simultaneously.

But it wasn't always that way. Signing on in 1986, the two upstarts flew in the face of prevailing industry winds, taking a calculated risk on an unproven rhythmic crossover format that challenged and ultimately beat the markets' mainstream top 40 behemoths. By 1993, Power 106 and Hot 97 were banging hiphop, blazing a trail for scores of other stations that would convert to one of radio's fastest-growing formats.

"In order to succeed, a company must take risks," the Emmis mission statement says, but the publicly traded company draws the line on risk-taking when it might jeopardize station licenses. Yes, the Federal Communications Commission's stepped-up indecency enforcement could make it harder for Power 106, Hot 97 and modern rock WKQX (Q101) Chicago morning man "Mancow" Muller to speak the listener's language.

But, no, Emmis wasn't up for a potentially costly, protracted legal showdown with the feds. Essentially wiping its indecency slate clean, the company signed a $300,000 consent decree in August that erased all pending complaints, investigations and fines, including a $42,000 tab that Mancow racked up. The deal came on the heels of a companywide zero-tolerance indecency policy adopted earlier this year.

Why not fight for Mancow's right to play "Smell My Finger"? "We just felt that it was in our best interests to reach a settlement, based on the time and energy it would have cost to fight that," Emmis CEO Jeff Smulyan tells Billboard Radio Monitor.

"It was determined by our people that that was the best course of action . . . We're a smaller public company. We felt we needed to deliver the message to our people [about] what we believe the standards were and go forward with standards and put all the issues of the past behind us."

Yet Smulyan, who holds a law degree from the University of Southern California, sounds somewhat unsettled about the settlement. "It's a challenge," he continues. "As somebody who believes in the First Amendment, part of me believes we probably ought to adjudicate what the standards are. But it's very hard to take that burden and place it on your people and shareholders when you're a smaller company. It's a very interesting First Amendment question that all of us wrestle with. On the other hand, you have an obligation to your employees and shareholders to do what might be the most prudent thing."

Smulyan says the company has worked with Mancow to bring his show into compliance and that the host is now comfortable with his show's revised direction. But the CEO remains unconvinced that David Smith—the seemingly obsessed listener/activist who taped Mancow's show for five years, filed roughly 70 complaints with the FCC and, in September, filed a Petition for Reconsideration of the consent decree—is representative of contemporary community tastes.

"It's not lost on me that if we have 600,000 listeners a week at Q101 and David Smith is the only person in the last five years to file a complaint with that radio station, you wonder when you give too much credence to one individual who addresses the government. But on the other hand, that's the system and those are the rules, and we'll play by them. He's certainly entitled to question anything we do."

RADIO TIED TO THE ECONOMY

Despite three years of less-than-stellar financial results, Smulyan says radio will do just fine over time. "We are tied to the economy, which is softer than people thought it was," he says.

Smulyan also believes radio needs to do a better job of convincing Wall Street that "this medium is vibrant, and there's some new opportunities for us," such as high-definition radio. To that end, Emmis has committed to transitioning 17 of its 27 stations to digital.

In addition to improving the listening experience for the audience, Smulyan sees potential for a new revenue stream from HD radio's datacasting capability.

Smulyan and other radio honchos are crafting a marketing plan designed to polish the medium's tarnished image. Radio will do a better job of marketing itself to consumers, he promises, while staging public awareness campaigns about the positive things it does for the community. "We have not told the story very effectively," he admits. Such studies as the recent Radio Advertising Effectiveness Lab report are critical for proving to advertisers how effective the medium can be when it's used properly, he adds.

But shamelessly piling on too many commercials has reduced radio ad effectiveness. And now Clear Channel has gone on the spotload equivalent of the Atkins diet. "I don't think we had quite the problem that some of the other companies did," Smulyan says. "[Emmis] has done a better job of using less inventory and getting more on a per-spot basis than just about anybody. We're proud of that."

Emmis does just fine with the diary system, owning Los Angeles' highest-rated station and two of New York's top four. But Smulyan says, "We can't turn our back on technology and changing lifestyles. There are many advertisers that believe we need to provide a more technologically sound audience measurement. It's incumbent on us to work toward a solution in that "

Though Power 106 has been No. 1 for four consecutive quarters, Emmis is in some knockdown, drag-out battles in other markets. In New York, Hot 97 is battling a direct attack from Clear Channel's R&B/hip-hop WWPR (Power 105.1).

In Chicago, Q101 is under attack by ABC's active rock WZZN (the Zone), a competitive scenario Smulyan calls "the biggest challenge in the company."

So what does the head of one of radio's most admired groups see as the medium's biggest challenge? "Remaining relevant to our listeners," Smulyan says. "We aren't going to be successful in business if we aren't responsive to what our audiences want."

any programmers talk about "living the lifestyle" of their audience, but what about the reverse? While it's not a brand-new idea, several radio stations have found a way to extend their brands to venues or restaurants, allowing listeners to physically experience the station.

"Everybody that has ever had a drink with their buddies always thinks, 'Wouldn't it be great if we had a bar, and we could suspend adulthood for the rest of our lives?" " says Johnny Dare, morning man at active rock KQRC (the Rock) Kansas City. He has been able to do that with Johnny Dare's, a bar/restaurant that opened

Calling the restaurant a mix of Hard Rock Cafe, strip club and trailer park, Dare says it's a perfect representation of his show and of KQRC. "When you walk into this bar and restaurant, it's everything the radio station and the morning show is," he says. "It's built completely around that persona."

Dare partnered with several businessmen who had been running a bar in the same location for 25 years.

The front of Johnny Dare's is a glass garage door that swings up to make the establishment open-air, and the bar is lined with motorcycle seats attached to bar stools. On the second floor, a 1950s trailer was cut apart and reassembled. The original handwritten lyrics to Puddle of Mudd's "Blurry" is among the memorabilia hanging on the walls.

PHILADELPHIA FREEDOM

Meanwhile in Philadelphia, a more ambitious project has just opened its doors. Noncommercial triple-A WXPN has not only upgraded its studio but also moved into a 40,000-square-foot building with just one other tenant: restaurant and venue World Cafe Live, named after the station's flagship syndicated show.

"WXPN needed a new facility for a long time," GM Roger LaMay says. "For over 10 years, we would been working out of two buildings six or seven blocks apart. The production facilities were in a small, old house on the University of Pennsylvania campus, and all the back-office stuff was in an off-campus [building] six or seven blocks away. We had been in our tiny little antiquated studio on the third floor of this old house. Bands had to schlen their equipment up three flights, and the next band couldn't come in until after the first one left. With the 'World Cafe' on close to 170 stations, it was very limiting, to say the least."

The board members of the college station also decided that given WXPN's reputation and the fact that few stations in Philadelphia are locally owned, it should also have a performance venue.

That, of course, requires cash that most noncommercial stations don't have. Salvation arrived in the form of Hal Real, an entrepreneur and real estate attorney who is a fan of the station. Real raised $12.5 million for the project between a real estate developer and his own Real Entertainment, with listener-supported WXPN contributing another $4 million.

In addition to a state-of-the-art studio for WXPN where visitors can watch broadcasts, World Cafe Live contains a 100-seat restaurant and a venue that can host 700 people. However, Real Entertainment, not WXPN, owns the restaurant and venue. Real Entertainment pays an annual licensing fee to the station for the use of the "World Cafe" name and contributes a set amount of station underwriting.

There are mutual promotional benefits when a venue or restaurant connects with a station. In WXPN's case, "the whole building is wired so that anything that happens in the performance space or the cafe upstairs can be recorded or broadcast by the radio station," LaMay says.

WXPN had been going to a recording studio at least once a month to tape "World Cafe" sessions in front of donors. Now it will literally be able to go across the hall. And since World Cafe Live plans to book live music almost every night and caters to the type of audience that listens to WXPN, it's a given that many 'XPN artists will be appearing at the venue.

MEANWHILE, BACK IN KANSAS CITY

"It's a place we can offer that nobody else could even think about offering." Dare says of the bar and restaurant that bears his name. "Each of the jocks at the starion has a Johnny Dare's credit card that pretty much gives them unlimited access. If they want to bring a buddy and come drink and eat, they can always drink and eat. And in exchange for them having the run of the joint, they come out and do broadcasts: It's pretty much a good way to bring the family of the radio station together."

But Dare says there's cross-promotion on KQRC "only when it makes sense. I'm never going to shill for this joint. The listeners can smell it. For example, we had Victoria Jackson from 'Saturday Night Live' on the show, and we went there afterward and had barbecue. It's easy to mention in passing."

There's one drawback to the station/venue relationship: If a listener has an unpleasant dining or concertgoing experience, it can reflect badly upon the radio station.

WXPN's LaMay says, "One thing Hal and I joke about is that we spend two-thirds of our time talking about the synergy of the two of us being in the same building together, and the other third explaining that we're separate.

"We do have a licensing agreement that has standards in it, ranging from service to music played," he continues. "No matter how many times [we] say we're independent, the fact that they're using our World Cafe brand means that it's going to reflect on us. That's one of the reasons that we went with someone that not only approached us, but somebody that was a huge fan of the station. We also have a strict licensing agreement that gives us protection in terms of what they can and can't do."

Dare agrees. "Priority No. 1 is the protection of this radio station and what we do," he says. He adds that every decision about how Johnny Dare's would be represented was run by PD Bob Edwards and station owner Entercom for approval.

"It's designed on every level to be fun," Dare says. "If you have bouncers that are smiling and having a good time, and the bartenders and waitresses are smiling and having a good time, then people don't come in and act all hard-ass. It's a real simple concept, in that as long as it works for the radio station, myself and the partners, it's going to be doing fine."

ST. LOUIS BLUES

But not all station-themed venues succeed. When KSHE St. Louis PD Rick Balis returned to the station after a hiatus in which he programmed WLUP Chicago, KSHE had opened a restaurant called the Real Rock Cafe that closed not long after his return.

"It became more of a burden than an advantage," Balis says: "It was my understanding that the primary part of the deal for KSHE in lending its name was to promote and broadcast. I think that the restaurateur behind the whole thing was really expecting much more than made sense."

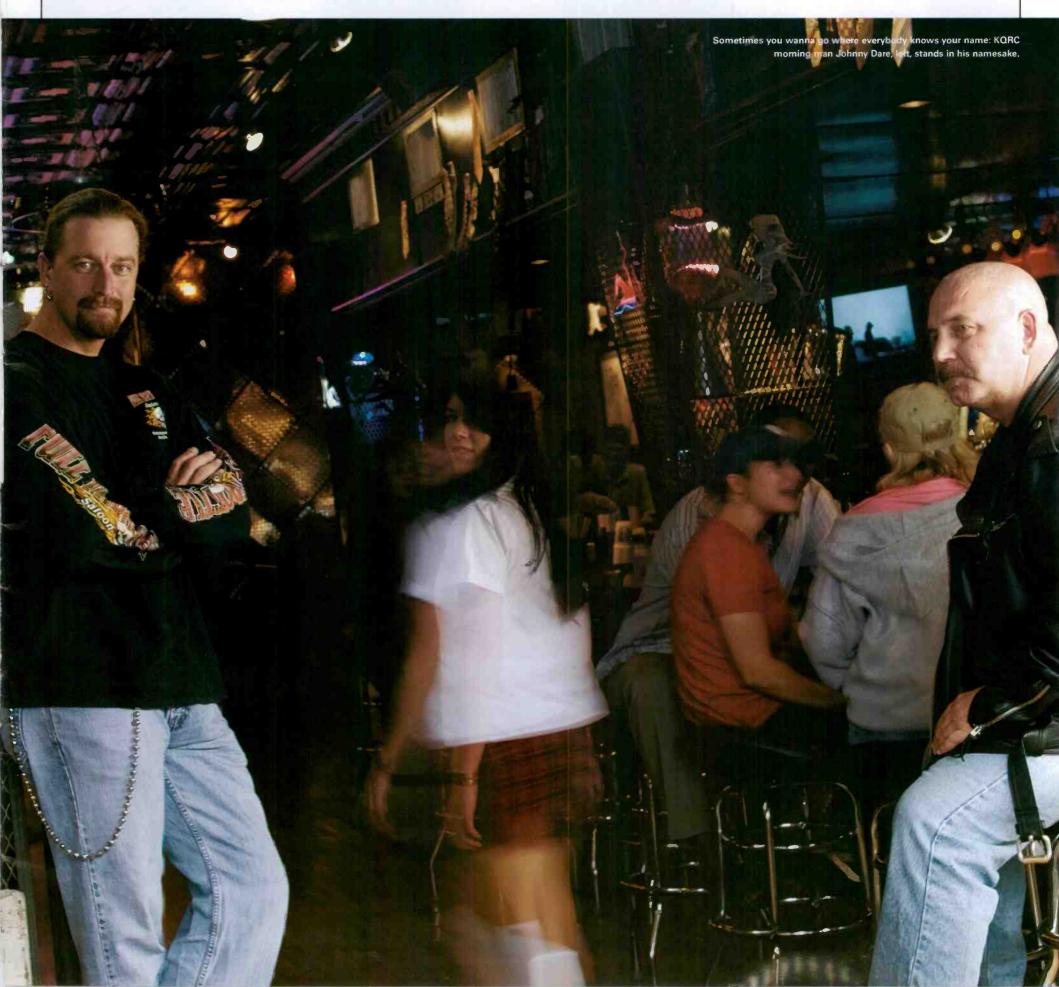

Balis also blames the Real Rock Cafe's location for its demise "It was situated in a death spot. While Union Station continues to draw a lot of people that visit, it's really not the type of place [where] locals are going to go. You have to pay for parking, and the restaurant/club was located at an extreme end of where all the other Union Station attractions were. There was a lot working against it. It was a plan that looked great on paper."

After hosting several other failed clubs and restaurants, the old site of the Real Rock Cafe has a more practical use: the home of Emmis Communications' five-station cluster.

IS RADIO READY FOR DIGITAL DELIVERY?

UMG and Promo Only Intend to Find Out

By Phyllis Stark

he record industry's eventual conversion from shipping physical singles to radio, to providing them digitally, takes a large leap forward this month with the debut of Promo Only MPE. Along with it comes the potential for a whole new set of rules in the sometimes prickly radio/label relationship.

Orlando, Fla.-based Promo Only announced in July that it had signed a deal with Universal Music Group to securely deliver digital singles for all of UMG's imprints to U.S. stations. The planned August launch was delayed two months as the companies ironed out the details and fine-tuned the technology.

The Promo Only MPE system was rolled out during the National Assn. of Broadcasters Radio Show Oct. 6-8 in San Diego. Even before then, the companies had begun a soft launch, shipping singles from such UMG acts as Eminem, Hoobastank, Lionel Richie, Gwen Stefani and U2 to radio stations.

"We clearly see this as the future," says Vinnie Freda, UMG executive VP of digital logistics and business services. "We see this as a paradigm shift in how we deliver music, initially to radio and ultimately to other tastemakers such as publicists, journalists and retailers."

"We know the industry is moving forward to digital delivery," says Dean Ernst, president of Promo Only's Canadian operations and director of the MPE project. "Look at an online store like iTunes. It has been successful because people are able to get the songs they want, when they want them. The same thing applies here."

Since Promo Only announced the UMG deal, Clear Channel Radio has come on board.

"Clear Channel is making the Promo Only MPE software available to all of its [music] stations and will support this endeavor," Ernst says. "They have been working with us and testing this. We've been working with their engineering staff and their music directors."

SOMEBODY'S WATCHING YOU

Among the benefits touted by Promo Only and UMG are reduced costs for labels, quicker distribution to radio, tighter security and the ability to better control leaks and piracy. But there are also some potentially Orwellian applications that UMG executives claim they plan to use sparingly.

"The label has the ability to watch over a single to some degree," Ernst says. "When a station logs in, we know which stations received the song and [which ones] downloaded it. We can

explains, the label can track whether the PD, the MD or an intern accessed the song, because each track is watermarked with the end user's unique identification code.

The advantage there, Ernst says, is that the label can target its promotional activity. It can ask stations that haven't listened to the song to do so and solicit feedback from programmers it knows have already heard it.

The MPE system can also track which users burn a copy of the song or export it into their broadcast computers for possible airplay.

Most importantly, Werner says, this tracking means that if a single ends up on a file-sharing service before its release, the company can easily figure out who put it there.

However, Ernst stresses, "we really respect privacy issues." He notes that it is up to the individual label client to decide which information gets tracked.

While Freda is glad this kind of data is available, he says, "We hope not to abuse that privilege. There is no intention to call someone at radio five minutes after they've opened the file. We're looking at this [information] potentially as an indicator of interest in the song.

"We've actually limited the amount of tracking we can do," Freda adds. "We specifically, in working with Promo Only, did not want to be intrusive to radio." Acknowledging there are options UMG could activate if it wanted to, Freda said UMG is trying to show restraint.

"This is not meant to be a big-brother system," Freda says. "I know there's some sensitivity there, and that is not the purpose of this. I hope this tool is used in such a way that people aren't bothered if they haven't gone in and looked at it yet. [There's] no need to ask a PD or MD if they've opened a song. [We] know."

IS RADIO READY TO GO?

Promo Only is one of several companies developing digital delivery systems for radio, but it has a leg up on the others through its partnership with UMG, the top label group. Sony Music is developing its own system, which will feature many of the same elements as the MPE system.

But the move toward digital delivery has not been without controversy. In July, Sony's Nashville operation made waves at country radio when it announced that by the end of the year it would stop sending singles to radio by mail.

Country programmers immediately raised a host of objections, most centering on concerns about convenience and ease of use (Billboard Radio Monitor, July 2). Sony is working to address these concerns, as are the executives behind the Promo Only/UMG partnership.

"Based on our analysis, radio is ready to go for this," Freda says. "We conducted a number of interviews ... with radio stations throughout the country, and we encountered very little resistance."

Still, Freda says, UMG will continue to mail hard copies of a single for "as long as it takes to gain adoption from radio, although we're confident that this is a superior system for everyone involved.

"Everyone needs to change their business practices, both on the record company side and the radio side, and we need to give both sides a chance to get comfortable with this," he adds.

Freda says labels and radio stand to benefit. "From our end, we're gaining some cost savings by eliminating manufacturing and freight," he points out. "Radio gains greater organization in how they maintain and archive their music.

"But as far as the industry overall, possibly the greatest benefit is security," he continues. "We will no longer be sending out thousands of unprotected CDs. These will have a watermark. And we can structure it so it's released to all stations at the exact same time [so] it prevents leaks from taking place."

Promo Only has already addressed one concern programmers expressed in July. Some had feared that digital singles would not contain all of the information they find useful. However, labels using the Promo Only system have the option of sending such information as songwriter and producer credits, total time, intro time, impact date, lyrics, artist bios and artwork with the track.

Freda says this is information "we often didn't include in the past because we were in such a rush to get the single out."

HOW IT WORKS

MPE stands for "music protected by encryption." Each track is uniquely encrypted so that only stations with the MPE software installed can access it.

Labels upload the song and related data onto a server, and can then control access to the song by sending e-mail notification only to programmers they have authorized. Those programmers must enter a specific ID code to access the song.

Radio users first install the Promo Only MPE player, which Promo Only project manager/executive programmer Jeff Beck describes as "a Web interface multimedia player."

Promo Only is supplying stations with the software, which they can use for releases by labels besides UMG once Promo Only signs additional clients, as it plans to do.

With the player installed, stations can preview the song, download it, burn it to CD and export it to their Scott Studio or other broadcasting system. The songs download in 20-30 seconds with a high-speed connection.

For Ernst, the mantra for the system is "maintain ease of use while maintaining quality." He says the system was in development for two years in conjunction with labels and broadcast groups "to make sure this is a very easy system for people to use, no matter what their level of computer experience."

The system does not support Mac users. Ernst claims that 98% of all U.S. radio stations use PCs for broadcasting and production. While that figure is difficult to substantiate, Ernst expects the software to be Mac-compatible in the next several months.

Promo Only, founded in 1992, is best-known for delivering subscription-based music and music video services, including compilation CDs of new music, to radio. The company's technology partner for the MPE enterprise is Vancouver-based Destiny Media Technologies, which specializes in developing tools for distributing digital media through the Internet.

ON AIR HAS YOUR STAFF BEEN PREPPED?

COMMENTARY BY
DIA STEIN
Director of Programming,
Launch Radio Networks

ome of you reading this might remember a time when there were just three TV channels to watch, you listened to your favorite station on a transistor radio and tickets for a concert didn't cost a month's salary.

It really wasn't so long ago, but for those born in the time of CDs, Walkmans, cable TV and the Internet, you might as well be talking about the Stone Age.

Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to the Information Age. Yet for the lone DJ or talk show host there isn't a magic button that simplifies and sorts the mountain of breaking news, information, facts, stats and polls, let alone manufactures the time to make any sense of it. Turn on your computer—it holds the whole world in one little box. But where to start? Pull back the Wizard's curtain and you might just find a prep service.

While that may cue a memory of paper jamming the fax machine every morning, check again. Today's prep services have grown up.

Years ago, when prep services began, they were just stories clipped from wire services and funny punch lines attached to funny stories. But in the leap to the Information Age, prep services have grown to be an essential tool for every broadcaster, in every market, in every format. In a very real sense, today's prep services have become bona fide news organizations, offering talent in every daypart the essential news and information in their particular format and an overview of all the rest of the day's current events.

In the last 10 years the world has sped up to hyperdrive, yet we march our air talent into the studio with basically the same tools their older brothers and sisters brought to work with them 30 years ago

It seems just a quaint memory recalling how the battle used to be simply beating the pants off the competition across the street. While that's still an ongoing battle, consider the new arsenal of weapons today's air talent is fighting against for listeners—iPods, chat rooms, Web surfing, videogames, Internet radio, satellite radio, file sharing and text messaging, to name a few.

And then, while our air talents were busy battling on those new fronts, the old idea that they are also "public servants" suddenly became very real. The tragedy of Sept. 11, 2001, the ever-present fear of terrorism and the almost incomprehensible state of world affairs has made every broadcaster aware of their obligation to disseminate information on topics other than just who is on top of the charts or in the gossip columns.

Broadcasters are public servants, and more than at any other time in the history of broadcasting, today's air talent needs to be informed on a number of topics. Each air talent could spend an additional 14 hours a day researching the news, cutting sound bites and putting together a background of information for their shows.

But the economics don't make sense. As a programmer, I want my air talent honing their skills and cultivating creative ways to maintain and grow their audience. Let the prep service do the legwork and be a "virtual producer," providing all the essential news, information and audio that would simply be impossible for any mere mortal to compile.

THE INDUSTRY SO YOU WANT TO GO TO A LARGER MARKET.

ot so long ago, almost everyone in radio started in smaller markets and worked their way up to a bigger pond. That was before consolidation, budget cuts, cyberiocking and other factors.

Let's face it, things have changed drastically, and that is the reality that most small-, medium- and even large-market PDs and jocks are faced with these days. Regardless of market size, programmers need talent, both on the air and behind the scenes, and the system of acquiring it from the smaller "farm team" markets has gone by the wayside.

More programmers and air talent now must wear different hats and do a lot of multitasking; all of this for the same money, and in some cases less. Because of this, the talent puddle continues to evaporate, and this problem has no end in sight.

Additionally, voice-tracking, not to mention cyber-jocking, was a foreign concept back in the mid- to late '90s. Who knew that one day—today—just about every single station in America would have at least one daypart voice-tracked on a daily basis?

If you're in Dubuque, Iowa; Midland-Odessa, Texas; or Albany, N.Y., what's your next move? If you want to get out, how do you do it? Can you go to a larger market and hope your situation will improve, or should you stay where you are, knowing you've hit the ceiling? Some of today's top programmers and consultants told us what they feel is needed to get to the next level.

Univision Radio executive VP David Gleason says, "It's simple—find a mentor. If you are in a small market, find someone in a larger market, maybe within your own company, and seek advice. Find someone you can review ideas with or get tips on talent development. This will give you a personal consultant and also identify you as someone who wants to carefully check out ideas. Of course, the mentor must want to help, and it may be that this person is looking also to move up in market size or responsibility and will see in you a replacement or part of their team. In this case, both benefit."

To find that mentor, you have to network and know how to deal with consolidation, international radio consultant Bob Perry says. "Since consolidation began, I've encountered a lot more people on only their first or second radio job in markets as large as Houston and Dallas. Ten years ago, that never happened

"I believe we have to focus on the positive aspects," Perry adds. "How can you make consolidation work for you? First, you only have to make yourself known to a few key group programmers who could open the door to opportunities at many stations in a lot of markets. Who are the few key programmers that you need to market yourself to?

"Second, those of us programming different radio stations understand that one of the keys to our success is to surround ourselves with people who are in the demo that demonstrates strong passion for the formats that we have on our respective stations. If you can show a group programmer that you passionately live the lifestyle of a particular format and you're in touch with the audience, that will help a group programmer understand why it would be beneficial to have you on one of their stations."

Now more than ever, networking is the name of the game, says Guy Zapoleon, president of Zapoleon Media Strategies. "When three major groups control 85% of the airwaves nationwide, you have to have relationships with all the major players," he notes. "Al Ries' book 'Horse Sense' says it perfectly: 'Attach yourself to the right horse, and this can be your ticket to success.' Develop your skills, create a niche for yourself to stand out from the pack and get to know people."

To get the right job, you should stay focused and keep things simple. Randy Lane, president of the Randy Lane Co., says, "For talent looking to move up, there are certainly fewer jobs in the smaller and medium markets, but there has never been more demand in bigger markets for highly talented and unique individuals on the air, and companies are realizing that talent makes the difference and creates the distinction in many cases."

It's not uncommon for air talent in smaller markets to move to top 10 markets. You must be persistent, but don't be a pest. Make an aircheck that highlights your personality, your character. Start with a personal introduction. If you're on a show with an ensemble cast, make it clear who you are and don't have a bunch of laughing and chatting people surrounding you.

Don't make it a long aircheck, and don't send out huge packages with long résumés, pages and pages of ratings results, pictures of appearances, etc. E-mailing MP3 airchecks is more effective than mailing hard copies, and they don't get lost or thrown away.

Having worked her way up through such California markets as Fresno, Sacramento and Riverside, Clear Channel's KHTS/XHTZ San Diego PD Diana Laird says, "It's not like it used to be, where you started in a market like Modesto and could work your way up to Sacramento for weekends and then get the night shift. That being said, I still see a lot of opportunity today for those who really work hard and know how to network and want to move up."

Jerry McKenna, PD of Entercom's WQSX (Star 93.7) Boston, has a similar theory. "It's not so much that the farm teams are gone, but programmers have not been cultivating their own with the changes that radio has gone through recently. Whether you are from Providence, New Bedford or Burlington and you show some initiative and aptitude, I'll get them working on our Audio Vault system. I keep working with someone until I feel it is right and then put them on an airshift "

Rene Roberts, PD of Buckley Broadcasting's KHTN (Hot 105) Merced, Calif., disagrees that PDs or talent would have problems staying in a small market or breaking into a bigger market in today's climate.

"You get what you pay for, and it all depends on the company you work for and what you are willing to do to get into a larger market," Roberts says. "Quite honestly, I don't really think market size is all that important, as long as you are being taken care of and the challenge is still there for you."

Without a doubt, radio is changing rapidly, and if we want to stay in this business we must adapt to these changes and keep an open mind. So, whether you are happy in a small market or want to get to that next level, there is more to think about these days. Other options to move up are available as well; satellite radio and the Internet represent brand-new possibilities

From massive conglomerates to smaller broadcast companies and mom-and-pop stations, programmers and consultants agree that there are still many exciting things about radio and you still have the ability to move in the direction you want to, as long as your goals are focused and realistic.

Harold Austin and Jack Cyphers are Los Angeles-based consultants. Austin has many years of experience in the radio industry, and Cyphers has long experience in the record business.

TALK RADIO

BY KATY BACHMAN OF MEDIAWEEK

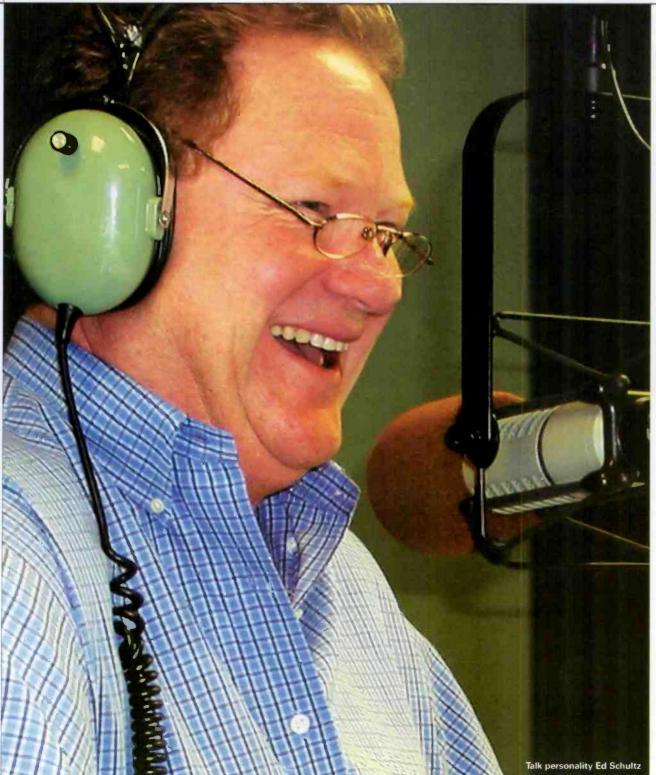

he progressive talk format reached another milestone recently when KABL, which had been Clear Channel's nostalgia station in San Francisco, changed its call letters to KQKE and flipped to progressive talk as "the Quake." The station, which features such emerging left-of-center talk personalities as Ed Schultz—syndicated by Jones Radio Networks—and the Air America lineup, is the nation's third progressive talk station among the top 10 markets. The others are WLIB New York and WHAT Philadelphia, both owned by Inner City Broadcasting.

With San Francisco, Air America will clear 32 stations, one-third of which are owned by CC, syndicators of leading conservative talk personalities Rush Limbaugh and Glenn Beck.

CC flipped classic country KRKT Albany, Ore., to progressive talk Oct. 5, and was expected to add simulcast WXKS/WKOX Boston before week's end. Like the other eight CC progressive talk stations, they are building programming around a live broadcast of

THE TALK (PROGRESSIVE TALK, THAT IS)

IS IT THE SMELL OF A LOOMING ELECTION, OR ARE THESE GUYS BECOMING POPULAR?

Schultz's show. In Boston, CC will also pick up the newest liberal talk personality, Stephanie Miller, who is also syndicated by JRN.

"Clearly there was a void," says Amy Bolton, VP/general manager of news/talk at JRN. "We're going to end up with a progressive talk station in every radio market in America. It's inevitable, no matter who wins the election."

San Francisco marks the 55th affiliate for Schultz, who is emerging as the format's surprise breakout star. He is just two affiliates shy of the 57 Limbaugh had in his first year. Considered more left-of-center than left wing, Schultz proved progressive talk could be a ratings performer on KPOJ, CC's talk station in Portland, Ore. In the most recent Arbitron survey, he ranked first in his time period among adults 25-54, and the station jumped from 26th place to third. In Miami, where Schultz has been on the air since July, he doubled the audience in one month.

"Schultz is the 800-pound gorilla of this format," says Gabe Hobbs, VP of news/talk/sports programming at CC. "Al Franken is a cume magnet and big star, [but] he's still learning how to do talk radio."

While CC is giving progressive talk a fighting chance, Hobbs warns that the format is still very much in its infancy.

"Early indications are that progressive talk is a real format, but there will have to be more product. There will have to be more local shows. My guess is there is some legitimate talent out there. It's a matter of identifying them and getting them on their feet," he says.

CC's might aside, no talk format becomes a success overnight—even in San Francisco, one of the most liberal markets in the country. The Quake will be up against some seismic competition, not only from KGO—which is considered left-of-center and has been top-ranked for 104 consecutive surveys—but also from KQED, the National Public Radio outlet—which is the second-highest-rated news/talk station, with a 4.7 overall share. There are also half a dozen other commercial and noncommercial news/talk stations, including CC's KNEW, a conservative station launched last year.

"They're multiplying like rabbits," says Jack Swanson, OM for KGO and talk sister KSFO. "It's a very crowded market, maybe the most crowded in America."

Still, KQKE co-market manager/GM Steve Watkins is optimistic. "We think we can put a dent in KGO's armor," he says. "Maybe not unseat them, but certainly do some damage."

Sally Thompson, San Francisco-based partner and local radio supervisor for marketing firm Mediaedge:cia, thinks KQKE has its work cut out for it. "KGO is not as strong as it was, but I don't think [the Quake] will chip much away," she says. "More talk and lots of hot air. The jury is still out."

SECOND IN A SERIES EXAMINING EUROPEAN RADIO AND MUSIC

EMMANUEL LEGRAND LONDON BUREAU CHIEF

Two years ago, the passing of a new Communication Bill radically transformed the British radio landscape. The law introduced a new regulator, Ofcom, and lifted all previous ownership caps, opening the door to a potential massive consolida-

Nineteen months into the new regulations, the impact of the new bill became obvious when, two weeks ago, the United Kingdom's two largest radio groups, Capital Radio and GWR, announced their merger, creating a new powerhouse in the market.

Billboard Radio Monitor asked Clive Dickens, PD of Absolute Radio International, a consultancy and independent radio operator, to discuss the significance of these changes

HOW DOES THE BRITISH RADIO MARKET DIFFER FROM THOSE OF OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES?

You have to look at Europe as a set of countries with different regulations and different practices. You may find similarities between the French and the Italian system or throughout Scandinavia, but we have very different markets altogether. What all these countries have in common is the importance of state broadcasters, which helps keep commercial radio

In the U.K., we have a very powerful BBC, which sets the standards for consumers and for competitors. The result is that in any given city, you will have at least six or seven advertising-free stations covering a wide spectrum of formats— [top 40 BBC1], AC [BBC2], classical [BBC3], news and arts [BBC4], sports [BBC5] and a local station. Each of these stations have the strongest transmitters. Imagine if that was the case in any given U.S. city, how different would American radio be!

The impact of these stations is huge. If you are a consumer, you already have this kind of choice, with ad-free stations, so commercial broadcasters have to measure that in order to offer consumers an alternative and search for gaps in the market.

BUT COMMERCIAL BROADCASTERS, EXCEPT FOR A VERY FEW, CANNOT COMPETE DIRECTLY WITH THE BBC BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT NATIONAL.

This is changing. For a start, digital radio [via satellite or terrestrial means] allows [sta-

WHAT ARE THE DOMINANT FORMATS?

Undoubtedly adult top 40, even if a lot of operators call them top 40s. It all comes down to demographics. Stations go for the 15-49 group, and then it all depends on which side of 25 you are. It just so happens that the 25-49 group is where the revenue [is], so operators go where the money is.

HOWEVER, THERE ARE MANY NICHE STATIONS

In London certainly, since you have 27 different stations reaching a potential faudiencel of 10 million people. But this is not the case elsewhere in the country, although it is slowly fulfilling the familiar with the word "digital." However, we should not overestimate the penetration of digital radio. What we are talking about is 1 million digital sets. I have no doubt digital radio will be a big part of the future of radio, but I do not see AM and FM disappearing overnight. I think all the different forms of broadcasting will co-exist.

COMPARED WITH OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES, TRACKS TEND TO ENTER PLAYLISTS RAPIDLY AND DISAPPEAR ALMOST AS QUICKLY. HOW DO YOU EXPLAIN THAT?

It is probably part of our culture. Music plays a big role in Britain. People like music, follow the charts and probably also have a short attention span and want quick changes. There's something in the nature of our culture that sees us always looking for the next big thing.

HOW DO "HERITAGE" STATIONS LIKE CAPITAL RADIO IN LONDON FARE?

The dominance of "heritage" stations is coming to an end. In all the main markets we've seen these stations lose ground in the past six years.

It is not that they have done something wrong, it is simply that there is an increasing fragmentation of media. Consumers have more choice, more TV channels, more radio stations, access to DVDs, videogames and so on. Capital's audience has halved in four years in London. Stations like Heart or Kiss or Virgin have all taken a slice of its audience. These stations will not die; they have to adapt to the new situation.

Overall, I see it as a sign that the market is getting more competitive, and that's healthy. If a station created in 1973 was still dominant after 30 years, it would mean that there would be a serious problem [regarding competition] in this country.

WHAT WILL BE THE IMPACT OF THE CAPITAL/GWR MERGER?

It will create what is probably the biggest radio group outside the U.S. On an ownership level, it mostly combines many local stations.

It will take time to see how it will impact the market. What is great is that it gets a lot of media coverage and helps get radio in people's minds.

WILL OTHER GROUPS FOLLOW?

You could certainly see Emap buying into Scottish Radio, in which they already have a share. That would be a good fit. But you have to bear in mind that it took 19 months since the new legislation was in place to see a merger happening. These deals take time to shape up. I'm sure a lot of operators will wait to see how Ofcom and the competition authorities will look at the Capital/GWR merger before making any move.

Well, we have two key opportunities. One is to apply for as many of the 35 new local licenses [as we can], and we think there's an opportunity for us to look at companies that might not see radio as their core business and therefore would be sellers. As a private, well-funded group, we will look at all companies interested in disposing of their radio assets.

WOULD YOU SAY THAT THE BRITISH RADIO MARKET IS HEALTHY?

We are in a unique situation: We have now a major radio group with Capital/ GWR, in a market that has been constantly growing in the past years. We'll probably see more consolidation, and regulators continue to license new stations to local operators. We have the development of digital radio, and we have the BBC doing what they do best and keeping all of us on our feet. Even if there are probably 100 stations in the U.K. that are loss-making, I would say that's a pretty healthy situation.

tions] to reach listeners on a national level. There is also now a softer regulation, which sees us migrating slowly to a French model. We see more local stations combined, becoming regional services, and regional services aspiring to be national networks. France, with its centralized system, has the most developed business model

What U.K. radio craves is the same kind of simplicity. where operators can link different stations and create national services. Meanwhile, in all the local markets, there are pockets of localism to exploit, and that is an opportunity for companies like ours to grow niche markets. Ofcom will license 35 new local stations in markets such as Manchester [and] Liverpool [England] and many others. Those licenses will go to niche propositions. At the end of the next three years, we can expect most cities to have a rock station, a dance station or even a jazz station. But the real niche market is digital-this is where you have a real diversity in formats and where you can cater

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections except for Latin and Christian charts which are based on audience impressions, computed by cross-referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data.

Songs showing an increase in detections (audience for Latin and Christian) over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its percentage loss in detections (audience for Latin and Christian) does not exceed the percentage of monitored station downtime, for the format. Exempting the Country chart, a song that has been on the chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections (audience for Latin and Christian).

AIRPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 20 on, both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian charts.

GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (laudience for Latin and Christian).

MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering six or more detections at the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with a gain in detections, (audience for Latin and Christian) over the previous week is placed first if tied with a song with a decline over the same period. When tied songs are each gaining detections audience for Latin and Christian) or each losing detections (audience for Latin and Christian), the song being played on more stations is placed first.

RECURRENT RULE:

Songs below the top 20 (top 15 for adult top 40, AC, modern AC, adult R&B, heritage rock and dance) become recurrents and are removed from the chart after 26 weeks. Country titles move to recurrent after 20 weeks if they rarik below No. 15 and are Josino detections.

Nielsen BDS certification for airplay of 100,000 detections on all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks, across the U.S. and Canada. Numeral following symbol indicates multiple level of 100,000 detections.

Indicates title earned Hit-Predictor status in research data provided by Promosquad.

Playlists are listed in order of TSA weekly cume, beginning with the highest-cuming station, Cumes are updated fwice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys:

Avril Ties No.1 Mark at Mainstream, Eminem Gains With 'Lose'

BY ANTHONY COLOMBO, WADE JESSEN, PATRICK MCGOWAN AND MINAL PATEL

Avril Lavigne scores her fourth No. 1 on the mainstream top 40 chart as "My Happy Ending" (RMG) rises 2-1. Lavigne is now in a five-way tie for the most No. 1s at the format among all artists, sharing the honors with Alanis Morissette, Mariah Carey, Jennifer Lopez and Christina Aguilera.

A bit farther down the chart, Eminem's "Just Lose It" (Interscope) earns Airpower and Greatest Gainer honors at top 40 and rhythmic top 40 and lands in the top 10 on both charts in only his second week on each list. With a 33-10 move at mainstream, Eminem takes the largest jump into the top 10 in the history of the chart.

At rhythmic, "Just Lose It" earns the largest one-week gain ever on the chart with a 1,639-detection jump, the biggest one-week gain since his "Without Me" improved by 1,165 spins in May 2002. The last song to move into the top 10 of the rhythmic chart in only two weeks was "Jenny From the Block" by Lopez in October 2002.

"Just Lose It" earns the seconc-largest gain ever at mainstream with a 2,740-spin leap, just short of the 2,784-detection increase 'N Sync posted with "Pop" in May 2001. Incidentally, "Pop" was the last record to hit the top 10 of the mainstream chart in just two weeks.

On the rap list, "Just Lose It" moves up 20 notches to No. 12 and sets a chart record with a gain of 2,236 spins.

'VERTIGO' KEEPSUP DIZZYING PACE

U2's "Vertigo" (Interscope) becomes the second song to register consecutive gains of 1,000 or more spins at modern rock as the track rises 18-4. "Vertigo" debuted with 1,084 detections last week and adds another 1,119 to its tally this week. Only Nirvana's "You Know You're Right," which turned the trick two years ago this week, has ever accomplished the feat at modern.

"Vertigo" earns Greatest Gainer and Most Airplay Adds honors for a second straight week at active, heritage and modern and vaults 8-1 at heritage and triple-A The seven-position jump to No. 1 is the longest at heritage since Def Leppard's "Promises" moved 9-1 in June 1999. At triple-A the last title to climb seven spots to No. 1 was Dave Matthews Band's "I Did It," which jumped 9-1 in January 2001.

Elsewhere on the active chart, Velvet Revolver's "Fall to Pieces" (RMG) claims the No. 1 spot, becoming only the second act to score multiple chart-toppers at the format in 2004. "Slither" spent six weeks at No. 1 in June and July. Linkin Park has had three songs top the list during the calendar year.

'BUCKET' A KICK FOR EVANS

Sara Evans takes her third No. 1 on the country chart with "Suds in the Bucket," the first chart-topper in two years for RCA and the fourth by a solo female so far this year.

This chart hasn't seen this many songs by solo females at No. 1 since 2001, when five of that year's top tracks were from such artists, including "Born to Fly," Evans' second No. 1. No solo females dominated in 2003, and only one did so in 2002.

RCA last saw top ink when Tracy Byrd's "Ten Rounds With Jose Cuervo" spent one week at No. 1 in the Sept. 28, 2002, issue.

Cross-Pollination

Tim McGraw makes an unlikely appearance at mainstream top 40 and rhythmic top 40, as he is featured on Nelly's "Over and Over" (UMRG), which debuts at No. 35 and No. 25 on the respective charts. McGraw becomes the first country artist to score a mainstream top 40 hit since LeAnn Rimes in 2002, and the first artist from that format to appear on the rhythmic list since Shania Twain in 1998.

Another country star grabs his first AC top 10 as Keith Urban takes "You Think of Me" to No. 10 in his 20th week on the chart.

Reversing the field, former pop and rock star Bret Michaels of Poison fame moves up 57-56 on the country chart with "All I Ever Need" (Poor Boy). Jessica Andrews joins Michaels on the track.

I'm rich Biaaaaaaaaaaaaatch!!

I would like to thank everyone at AIR!! I've been playing in this competition since I was an MD a WERQ back in B-More. Never in a rand stay abreast of new music and of course win much needed MULA$$$. Thanks to Baby Sam for the weekly phone calls and a music biz from WERQ to MTV. Those who gave me my start in programming (Camille Cashwell, Tom Calococci, Russ Allen, Kathy Br show, Egypt, Breeze, Reggie Reg, Mike Crosby, Mike Nyce and all the mixers, etc. Thanks to all the people of Baltimore who support hold a place in my heart. Thank you to my entire new family at MTV Networks which I have grown to know and love over the last three me to grow even more musically as well as personally. Congrats to fellow AIR winners Tuma Basa and Justin Tyme Prager. Even the supporters, my mother Susanna Brin and big up my Big Bro (Raw) and my sister Simone and my nephew Jahlan...

And one more thing...

MTV JAMS WILL BE THE NEXT HOT SHIT!! SO LOOK OUT!!!

nillion years did I ever imagine that I would win...1000 years to AIR!!! Thanks for giving programmers an opportunity to flex our ears great info. Thanks for being a great friend. (Glad you are in NY). Thanks to everyone who has helped me out in my journey in the own as well as the folks I worked with at 92QJAMS Konan, Coka, Neke Howse, Dion Summers, Marc Clark and the Big Phat Morning ed me on the Rap Attack show for eight years and a special shout to my ace JB the Baldheaded Wonder (RIP). Baltimore will always e years. Special thanks to the Music and Talent Dept of MTV for welcoming a dude named Buttahman with open arms and helping ough y'all bring down the property value, it's great to have you as neighbors in the office hood. And of course I must thank my

My love affair with AIR started long before I placed. Alright, maybe coming second place helped a little. 've enjoyed the phone calls from the lovely Baby Sam and wanna say thank you to her for her patience every week. Thank you AIR for the opportunity to be a part of your competition and I look forward to continuing our relationship.

Cedric Hollywood WEDR, Miami, FL

AIR is the very best at keeping me up to date on the hot songs, and i use it faithfully every week! Their information is invaluable. This is the first time I've placed this high in the competition and all i can say is daaammmnrnn! This is great! Lets keep it go ng, the car is only a couple of slots away from being parked on south beach!

ABOUT TWO years ago, Promosquad HitPredictor started testing songs before airplay. At first we didn't believe it ourselves, but now, after testing almost every release from the past couple of years, HitPredictor has shown to be more than 75% accurate. Promosquad HitPredictor's methodology consists of hundreds of thousands of carefully screened and profiled listeners across the country, listening online to the latest singles before they are released and offering their opinions prior to airplay. Whether you are a label executive or a programmer, it's not hard to find its value as a sensible piece of the puzzle... a helpful guide on the road to finding and breaking new hits.

Understanding HitPredictor

Accuracy Level Proves Value Of This Service

It's also addictive. Keep an eye on these songs, and watch their paths. Given a shot, most of the singles that appear weekly on this page will eventually find their way to the top regions of their respective format charts. At HitPredictor we have experienced that what the listeners say about the potential of a song prior to airplay usually rings true in the Most important, though, we also realize that it's not just about research—that there are many known (and unknown) factors that go into the making of a hit song. Therefore, starting next week, we will begin to regularly dive into specific singles, detailed predictions, industry feedback and some of the more interesting stories behind the songs appearing on the HitPredictor charts.

BillboardRadioMonitor.com will provide continuous, as-it-happens, on-location reporting from the NAB Radio Show in San Diego, from our team of seasoned radio journalists.
