SATELLITE RADIO'S

A BILLBOARD RADIO MONITOR ANALYSIS BY TONY SANDERS

SATELLITE RADIO IS GOING THROUGH the second part of a three-phase development, similar to what TV experienced in its early years, between 1947 and 1956. To paraphrase Jack Gould, the New York Times critic covering early TV years, the second phase of TV's development was the period when talent migration from radio to the new medium was essentially complete.

TV's "third era," Gould wrote in 1956, began when the novelty had worn off and when viewers, now accustomed to the personalities and programming TV offered, became much more "choosy" about what they liked. TV, he wrote, "now can be judged fairly on its performance rather than its promise."

Satellite radio is still a long way from completing this type of transition. Now, in 2004, satellite radio is still a medium full of promise. No one knows when satellite radio's own "third era" will begin, but industry experts and financial analysts point to the year 2010.

According to some experts, talent migration to satellite radio will continue for years to come. Consultant Guy Zapoleon, who heads Zapoleon Media Strategies, told Billboard Radio Monitor that there is "no doubt more strong radio personalities will be heading to satellite radio. This is the beginning of the listening explosion we will see during the next five years. Satellite radio will see how well [Howard] Stern and Opie & Anthony boost listening—and future sales—for the medium." Eventually, however, satellite radio will be in search of more listeners and sales, Zapoleon says. And that will require more talent to be added to the satellite radio roster.

"The racier personalities will want to be on satellite radio due to the restrictions they face at terrestrial radio, but there are a lot of conservative men who own satellite radio, too. So you'll begin to see the Rush [Limbaughs] and Sean [Hannitys], or their conservative cousins, heading to satellite as well."

VIDEO DIDN'T KILL THE RADIO STAR . . .

History shows that the migration of radio talent to TV didn't kill radio's future, as much as it transformed the medium and postponed its sustained ad revenue growth. Radio's ad revenue fell during 1954-56, according to records kept by Universal McCann VP/economist Bob Coen. But that decline was reversed by 1957, when radio's revenue growth began again and kept, essentially, climbing higher over the decades.

"You can't view media competition, or the introduction of a new medium into the mix, as a zero-sum game," Wachovia Securities analyst Bishop Cheen says. "The pie always expands."

Stuart Kagel, a research analyst with SunTrust Robinson Humphrey, thinks terrestrial radio will be fine without Howard Stern: "I don't think Stern's leaving is the death knell for terrestrial radio. I think it makes for great headlines, but it doesn't mean you can't replace Howard."

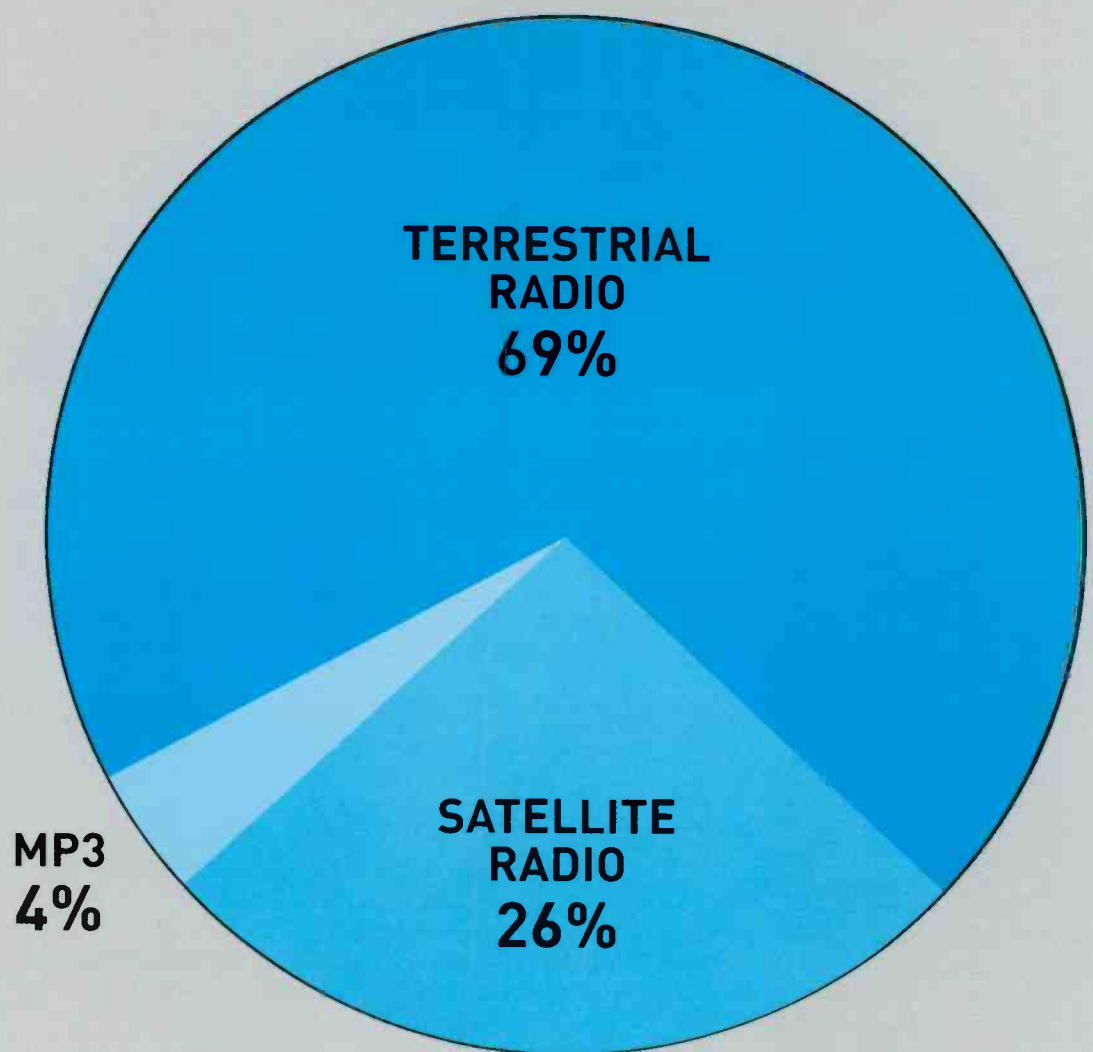

. . . BUT WILL PORTABLE MUSIC PLAYERS DO IT?

James Marsh, senior broadcasting/publishing analyst for SG Cowen, is a bit more sanguine as to terrestrial radio's prospects. For Marsh, Stern's move to satellite is a second wake-up call for the industry. The other call is the rising sales of portable music players.

Howard Stern is the biggest radio personality to align himself with satellite radio. He has signed a five-year deal with satcaster Sirius.

ROAD TO 2010: FROM PROMISE TO PERFORMANCE?

THE PATH TO 2010: SATCASTER SUBS TO NEAR 23 MILLION BY 2008

XM SUBS BASED ON BARRINGTON RESEARCH ANALYSIS; SIRIUS SUBS BASED ON WACHOVIA SECURITIES ANALYSIS.

“Two million iPods were sold in the last quarter,” Marsh says. “That means music formats will become a commodity in five years. If I have an iPod with 2,000 songs on it, no matter where those songs came from, legally or illegally, it simply means that listeners of terrestrial radio won’t want to pay for radio by listening to 14 minutes of advertising.”

Satellite radio and portable music players have changed the music entertainment proposition for consumers, Marsh maintains. “When consumers looked at music, they used to focus on one AC station vs. another AC. Now it’s a question of satellite radio vs. an iPod player.”

To Marsh, this means broadcasters must seriously consider reducing their spotloads dramatically—perhaps by as much as 50%, to an average of six or seven minutes per hour.

SATELLITE RADIO IN 2010

The two most aggressive projections for satellite radio’s subscribership in 2010 are 25 million and 33.5 million.

Jeff Wlodarczak of Wachovia Securities is the most bullish on satellite radio’s long-term prospects. Earlier this month, he projected total industry subscribership to reach more than 33.5 million by 2010—21 million for XM and 12.5 million for Sirius. “The bottom line is that, [after] the Stern announcement, we are more comfortable with our seemingly aggressive [forecast].”

Wlodarczak also sees “material ramifications” for traditional radio coming from Stern’s move: The high price paid to Stern is likely to raise the price for proven national talent. In fact, Wlodarczak suggests that Stern’s move “could represent the beginning of a migration of essentially all the national radio personalities . . . to the satellite radio services. Also, the move to satellite will bring consumers with more desirable demographics and income levels.”

Early this year, Stifel Nicolaus analyst Kit Spring took part in a round-table discussion of the broadcasting industry, sponsored and reported by The Wall Street Transcript. Spring said he felt satellite radio “is going to be huge,” and he expected “25 million satellite radio subscribers by the end of the decade.” Spring said one reason for his bullishness was that there are 108 million commuters with an average commute time of 24 minutes. “If you’re commuting half an hour or more each way, spending an hour a day in your car, this is a must-have product.”

Spring also said he felt traditional radio companies “can weather this, mainly because I don’t think satellite radio is going to be an advertising-based model.” Any advertising that satellite radio might take away from terrestrial, Spring said, would be “mainly national.” He also said the audience erosion “may be a little worse on radio than on broadcast television [from cable].” His reason: “People who subscribe to satellite radio listen to traditional radio only about 20% of the time or less.”

REACHING CRITICAL MASS

To help put these aggressive forecasts into perspective, one must consider what Cheen calls “the critical mass” for selling national advertising. “It seems to be that 25 million to 30 million homes or subscribers to a service is the real critical mass for selling advertising on a national scale.” He dubbed this level of subscribership “effective and efficient” for XM and Sirius.

Sirius has said it needs 1 million new subscribers in order for the Stern deal to be profitable. Wachovia’s Wlodarczak thinks the figure is closer to 1.5 million. Also, the analyst believes Stern will generate 4 million new subscribers for Sirius “over the life of the agreement”—2 million in 2006 and then 500,000 a year in the four years after that.”

James Goss of Barrington Research hasn’t yet projected satellite subscribership levels for the entire industry. So far, his published projections cover only XM and look forward to 2008. By that year, Goss expects XM to claim 14.3 million listeners overall.

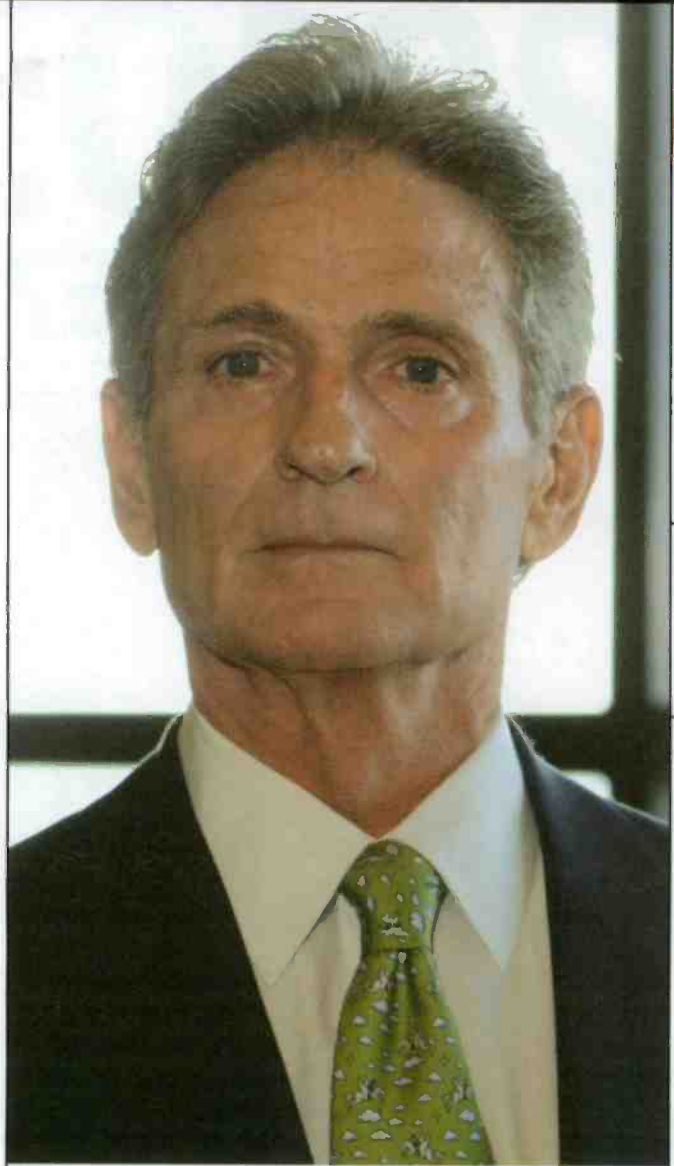

As for pinning down a figure for Stern’s audience in 2006, Goss says, “We can argue all day about how many subscribers Howard will bring. The truth is we’ll know the answer in a year or two.”

BROWN ISSUES RADIO

CALL TO ARMS

IT MAY BE TIME TO TAKE THE 'HUMBLE' OUT OF HUMBLE PIE AND SCREAM RADIO'S SUCCESSES FROM THE ROOFTOPS
BY BRAM TEITELMAN PHOTOGRAPH BY STEVEN BARSTON

It's not often in the world of radio that someone stays with a company for five years, let alone 10. But Jefferson-Pilot Communications radio division president Clarke Brown has been with the company since he started selling ads for WQXI-AM Atlanta while going to law school in 1967.

He never made it to practicing law, moving to WQXI-FM (now top 40WSTR) several years later, and serving as the inspiration for the character of radio salesman Herb Tarlek on the 1978-82 TV sitcom "WKRP in Cincinnati."

He has been the president of Jefferson-Pilot's radio division since 1991. But he hasn't risen to the top without changing, and he thinks radio needs to do the same.

One key point Brown made while receiving the National Assn. of Broadcasters' National Radio Award at this year's Radio Show was that the radio industry should collectively challenge its negative perception, from emerging technologies and articles proclaiming the death of radio.

"Radio is finally entering into an era of industry cooperation and mutual support, which has been previously lacking," Brown says. "We've been challenged by new and evolving technologies that we haven't had to deal with in the past but have been the catalyst for becoming more supportive of our industry. If it's good for radio, it's going to trickle down and be good for you as an operator."

Entercom has gone on the offensive, running ads attacking satellite radio. "[President/CEO] David Field is demonstrative and exemplary of the new attitude of radio fighting back, rather than laying idly while people make unjustifiable claims against the radio industry," Brown says. "He is genuinely one of the really altruistic guys in radio that cares about the industry. David did exactly the right thing, and as the industry moves towards that, we will be a part of it."

Brown believes the medium needs to market itself more aggressively. "Radio has never been good at self-promotion because we haven't needed to be," he says. "That's changing, and I think we're going to get out in front of that issue. We've been far too humble about promoting our industry. Humility may be a virtue, but it's not much of a marketing tool. When is the last time iPod or XM or Sirius did a St. Jude telethon, or a fund-raiser for needy children? As an industry, we donate millions of dollars in value to worthy causes. It's not to generate ratings, it's just because we're a good and caring industry. We need to unify, and we're in the process of doing it. We need to talk about what's good about radio, and market what we're good at."

CHANGE IS INEVITABLE

Brown is enthusiastic about the new technology becoming available, and says that radio must embrace change. "When television became prominent in the late '40s, radio was selling quarter-hour segments of 'Arthur Godfrey,' 'The Life of Riley,' 'Fibber McGee & Molly' and 'The Shadow,'" Brown says. "Then television came along, and radio had to reinvent itself. People realized that music would be an area where radio could have its own position, so radio morphed."

"I'll never forget when the 8-track was introduced in the early '70s, and as a salesman, I'd gotten a contract from an 8-track store called Mad Man Monk's," Brown continues. "My then-GM looked at the contract and said, 'I'm not accepting this, these are the people that are going to put radio out of business.' We've dealt with 8-track, we've dealt with cassette, we've dealt with CD and we'll deal with satellite radio."

Brown says high-definition radio will help radio stay competitive. "I think it's important, and a signal that we're ready, willing and able to change and adopt new technology in our favor," he says. "The support for this has been really overwhelming, in my view." Brown says that Jefferson-Pilot's first two stations will be converted to HD next year.

Brown also welcomes Arbitron's Personal People Meter, despite some misgivings from others.

"Any new technology will have bumps in the road along the way," he says. "We've been operating with the same diary methodology that has been in place for a long time.

Ultimately, [the PPM is] going to be very good for radio, because it's going to demonstrate how ubiquitous radio actually is, and how much it's actually used."

Jefferson-Pilot owns stations in only five markets, but they're all major markets. "Because of our size, we're very product-oriented," Brown says. "We feel we can compete with much larger clusters and larger companies provided we have the ratings to allow us to compete on that level, which we do. Our strategy is to identify good markets with growth potential, stake out a good position for our properties in those markets and attract really good people to run them."

While Jefferson-Pilot would consider expanding into additional markets, Brown says its owners are tough critics. "We're owned by an insurance company, and any acquisition we make has to pass muster by their criteria, which isn't quite the same as a broadcasting company's criteria," he says. "The good news is, if we're able to do that, we have no trouble raising the money for that acquisition. The bad news is that if they don't feel as good about it as we would like them to, the game is over."

While Clear Channel has promised to reduce its spotloads, Brown doesn't see Jefferson-Pilot following suit, or placing additional values on commercials. "I don't plan on lowering my spotload for the simple reason that we've never exceeded what we consider to be the appropriate number of commercials on any of our stations," he says. "And I believe that if your content is right, you're not abusing the number of commercials and you're not taking advantage of the situation, every unit in every stopset is worth whatever it's being priced at. I do not anticipate getting into a first-in-position or last-in-position premium for our company."

Brown says that radio's economic doldrums are nothing more than general malaise in the overall economy. "The reality is that radio will probably be slightly up this year, and more next year," he says. "We're in a post-bubble environment. The growth rate was so explosive [in the 1990s] that compounding that year after year is far more difficult. If you're compounding at a rate of double digits, and it has slowed down to 5% or 6%, most industries would be enormously grateful with that."

Brown maintains that radio has an edge over the other new-media choices because of the emotional connection it has with its listeners. "When people wake up with their favorite morning show, it's business as usual, the start of another day and they realize the world is still spinning," he says. "Radio will be just fine regardless of the technological threats as long as we're mindful of the content we provide, and maintain that bond with the listener that's non-duplicatable elsewhere."

In today's Hip Hop dominated world, there's one album that has defied all type casting or straight jacketing. Its singles have been at the top of the urban charts, the crossover charts, the rhythm charts and the pop charts.
It is approaching four times Platinum certification

SATELLITE RADIO SPLITTING THE DIFFERENCE: SATELLITE VS. TERRESTRIAL

COMMENTARY BY KID KELLY
of Sirius Satellite Radio

I had to think long and hard before coming to satellite radio. After all, I also host a syndicated show called "Backtrax USA" that is on more than 400 terrestrial stations. You would have to question supporting a new technology that could put your show out of business.

Weighing the factors, it appears that satellite radio and traditional radio will not only survive together, they'll thrive together. Intentionally or not, each platform will make the other platform better. In the almost two years I've been at Sirius as senior director of music programming, I'm seeing this happen.

Just as FM did not put AM radio out of business, and cable did not eliminate basic TV, satellite radio won't impair terrestrial radio. It will instead challenge terrestrial radio to evolve for the better.

The early indications of this are recent terrestrial initatives to cut back spotloads, implement and expand non-traditional revenue streams, create "reality-based" programs, offer commercial-free hours/dayparts and transmit RDS readouts and high-definition radio.

There has even been exploration of how to deliver individually targeted advertisements to specific demographics.

So, what are the major differences between satellite radio and terrestrial radio?

At satellite, most formats are unique. Satellite radio is the place to find formats that don't exist on terrestrial radio, like an all-Elvis station; "The Wiseguy Show," starring Vincent "Big Pussy" Pastore; or OutQ, the first station devoted solely to the GLBTG (gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender) community.

When I gave my in-laws a satellite radio for the holidays, I put on the Standard Time channel. They were so excited to hear music that they remembered from their childhoods that they actually stood up and danced. They are older than 54 and out of terrestrial radio's spending demographic, so there is no station that regularly plays the music that they want to hear.

One of the other major differences for programmers is that satellite radio does not live in an Arbitron-related world, nor do we receive qualitative sales information from outside companies like Media Audit. Therefore, we do not have to program to diary-keepers based on a system that was created long ago.

Satellite is an environment where you don't have to worry about the usual ratings, TSL or share-compression issues. Not so far.

Since satellite does not air commercials (at least not in its music programming), there is no commercial sales department.

If you've ever been in a situation where an account executive wanted to run a two-minute vaginal contraceptive ad in AM drive (I have), you'll understand. And, of course, by not playing commercials, satellite also avoids the clutter that comes with them, such as the sponsorship of benchmarks and added value/bonus spots.

There are other differences between satellite and terrestrial radio, but listeners don't have to choose one to the exclusion of the other.

The lack of commercials, depth of music programming, edgier content, artist and title display and sound quality are a few reasons why satellite draws customers.

Yet most of these customers are early adopters who need to figure their way through the various types of equipment. And they need to be willing to pay monthly subscription fees for something they can get "for free."

With no commercials, satellite has approximately 25% more time to fill with music. As a programmer, you'll need to adjust traditional thinking about the number of powers on a clock, or how much new music/recurrents to play.

As an air talent, you'll need to do more show prep. But there is never a worry about coming out of a stopset or checking on what a competitor is doing.

Satellite has some channels that are background. Yet a large portion are foreground, and they focus entirely on their specific demographics by featuring deeper musical selections and targeted entertainment and information.

Although satellite never has to "sell" anything like a sales remote or a daypart, it will never be local and cannot serve markets the way terrestrial radio can.

Satellite is also challenged by different time zones: Most of morning drive on the East Coast is still overnight on the West Coast.

Satellite radio benefits by targeting active subscribers to research national music trends rather than surveying random potential listeners in a local market.

Being a huge fan of radio (no matter how it's modulated) I believe the satellite and terrestrial platforms have bright futures. Satellite will complement, rather than compete.

No one can do with an iPod or great CD collection what satellite and FM can do—that is, create engaging theater of the mind and compelling and dynamic entertainment. I look forward to the continuing evolution of terrestrial radio and satellite radio. ●●●

'LOVE THE LAYOUT'

Just wanted to tell you that I love the new magazine layout. You and your staff have added what has been missing in our industry: a real information-based magazine. Thanks.

—John Dimick
Jefferson-Pilot Communications director of programming and operations

'REFRESHING'

Great revamp! The charts are nice, but your editorial is refreshing and the content one step ahead of the curve.

My best to you and the Monitor staff for many future editions!

—David Isreal
Cox Radio/Miami director of operations

'FREAKIN' LOVE IT'

Wow! I freakin' love it! Normally, I take Monitor home with me on Friday night and I get to it over Sunday-morning breakfast. Last week, I took it home and read it cover to cover Friday night. What a turnaround. I really, really love the change!

DANCE MUSIC BROADCASTERS FIND THEIR RHYTHM BY CHUCK TAYLOR

IT MIGHT WELL BE EASIER to break the speed of light on a tricycle than it is to break a dance record in America.

Songs like "Mai Ai Hee" from O-Zone, "Move Your Feet" by Junior Senior and Anastacia's "Left Outside Alone" rise to No. 1 airplay glory in dozens of countries, only to hit a brick wall in the United States, generating a mere smattering of on-air exposure and failing to gain the critical mass to score.

But a powerful community of broadcasters is banding together for the common cause of dance music, demonstrating that commercial and noncommercial stations, cable carriers, online outlets and satellite radio aren't always fierce opponents.

In this instance, they may represent a modest band of brothers, but the players are uniquely focused on building the brand together, and using the strength of that alliance to help dance music once again have its day in the United States.

Amid most mainstream formats that boast nationwide outlets into the hundreds—top 40, R&B, country and rock—dance radio represents a minuscule force. The Billboard Radio Monitor dance panel comprises only five commercial radio stations: WKTU New York, WPYM (Power 93.1) Miami, WQSX (Star 93.7) Boston, KKDL Dallas and KNRJ Phoenix.

They are joined by noncommercial KNHC (C89.5) Seattle and nontraditional broadcasters Music Choice, XM and Sirius.

And earlier this month, the radio world was stunned by the surprise sale and flip of San Francisco hip-hop outlet KPTI (Power 92.7) to dance-formatted Energy 92.7.

"We're all on the same side here," says Skyy Walker, MD for WKTU. "Smaller stations can build artists and start a buzz, which we can then take to the next level. And satellite radio and new technologies are opening up dance music to the masses again. We just have to utilize one another to make it more commercial. I think a lot of great things are happening."

At a panel at the recent Billboard Dance Music Summit, Skyy drew snickers when he admitted that he had recently subscribed to XM, and utilized it regularly to check out new dance music—and as a tool to help him program WKTU.

"I might feel a little guilty listening to it," he admitted, "but this is another opportunity for all of us who are passionate about dance music to learn about what's new out there. I give a lot of love to the satellite players."

PUTTING ON A FACE

Dance music has suffered for decades as an often-faceless genre that is not taken as seriously as other genres, especially by mainstream radio programmers.

Dance artist Amber, who has scored eight No. 1 hits on the Billboard Hot Dance/Club Play chart, says, "Dance music is generally identified with shallow lyrics, simple, computer-generated beats and—let's face it—not too many great vocalists.

"Many of the artists do not even come out with a full-length album, but only appear on compilations, so the artist development factor is not a given—which automatically generates less respect at radio," Amber says.

Within the community, she adds, "there is too much cat-fighting going on. We need to find support among each other."

Perhaps the timing is right, then, for dance music's proponents to fortify their strengths and search out greater acceptance from all sides.

But as much as they may present a unified front, each of the players also has the opportunity to exploit its individual, inherent advantages in serving dance music to the masses.

For FM stations, "free radio is free radio—and that will keep terrestrial radio as a major player," says Mike Oaks, PD of KNRJ.

Oaks launched an online dance station a year ago, which so impressed execs at KNRJ that he was hired to bring the sound to the FM airwaves.

"It's not easy, but if we can stick with it, more people will hear the music, buy the music and dance music can grow," he says.

Music Choice's audio service is available at no additional cost to some 35 million subscribers of cable TV and Direct Choice, and offers commercial-free dance and electronica stations. Both include mix-show programming and "Studio Sessions" with top artists in the genre.

Senior manager Seth Neiman, who has programmed the stations since 1995, says the company's audience growth has been exponential through the years, and is set to grow further with an upcoming broadband initiative.

An advantage he sees over competitors is the ability to go with his gut, to avoid corporate politics and program the music that he feels will have the most impact.

"I think we can judge a song on its own merit, without any pressure from an artist or label. If I'm sitting there with my assistant and we think a record is hot, boom, it's on."

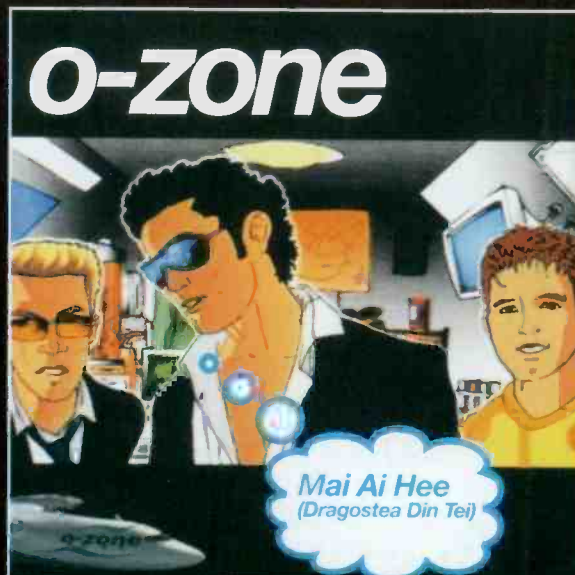

XM offers subscribers three current dance stations: the Move (club/rave), the System (electronica) and BPM (mainstream dance). It also delivers a full-time disco format.

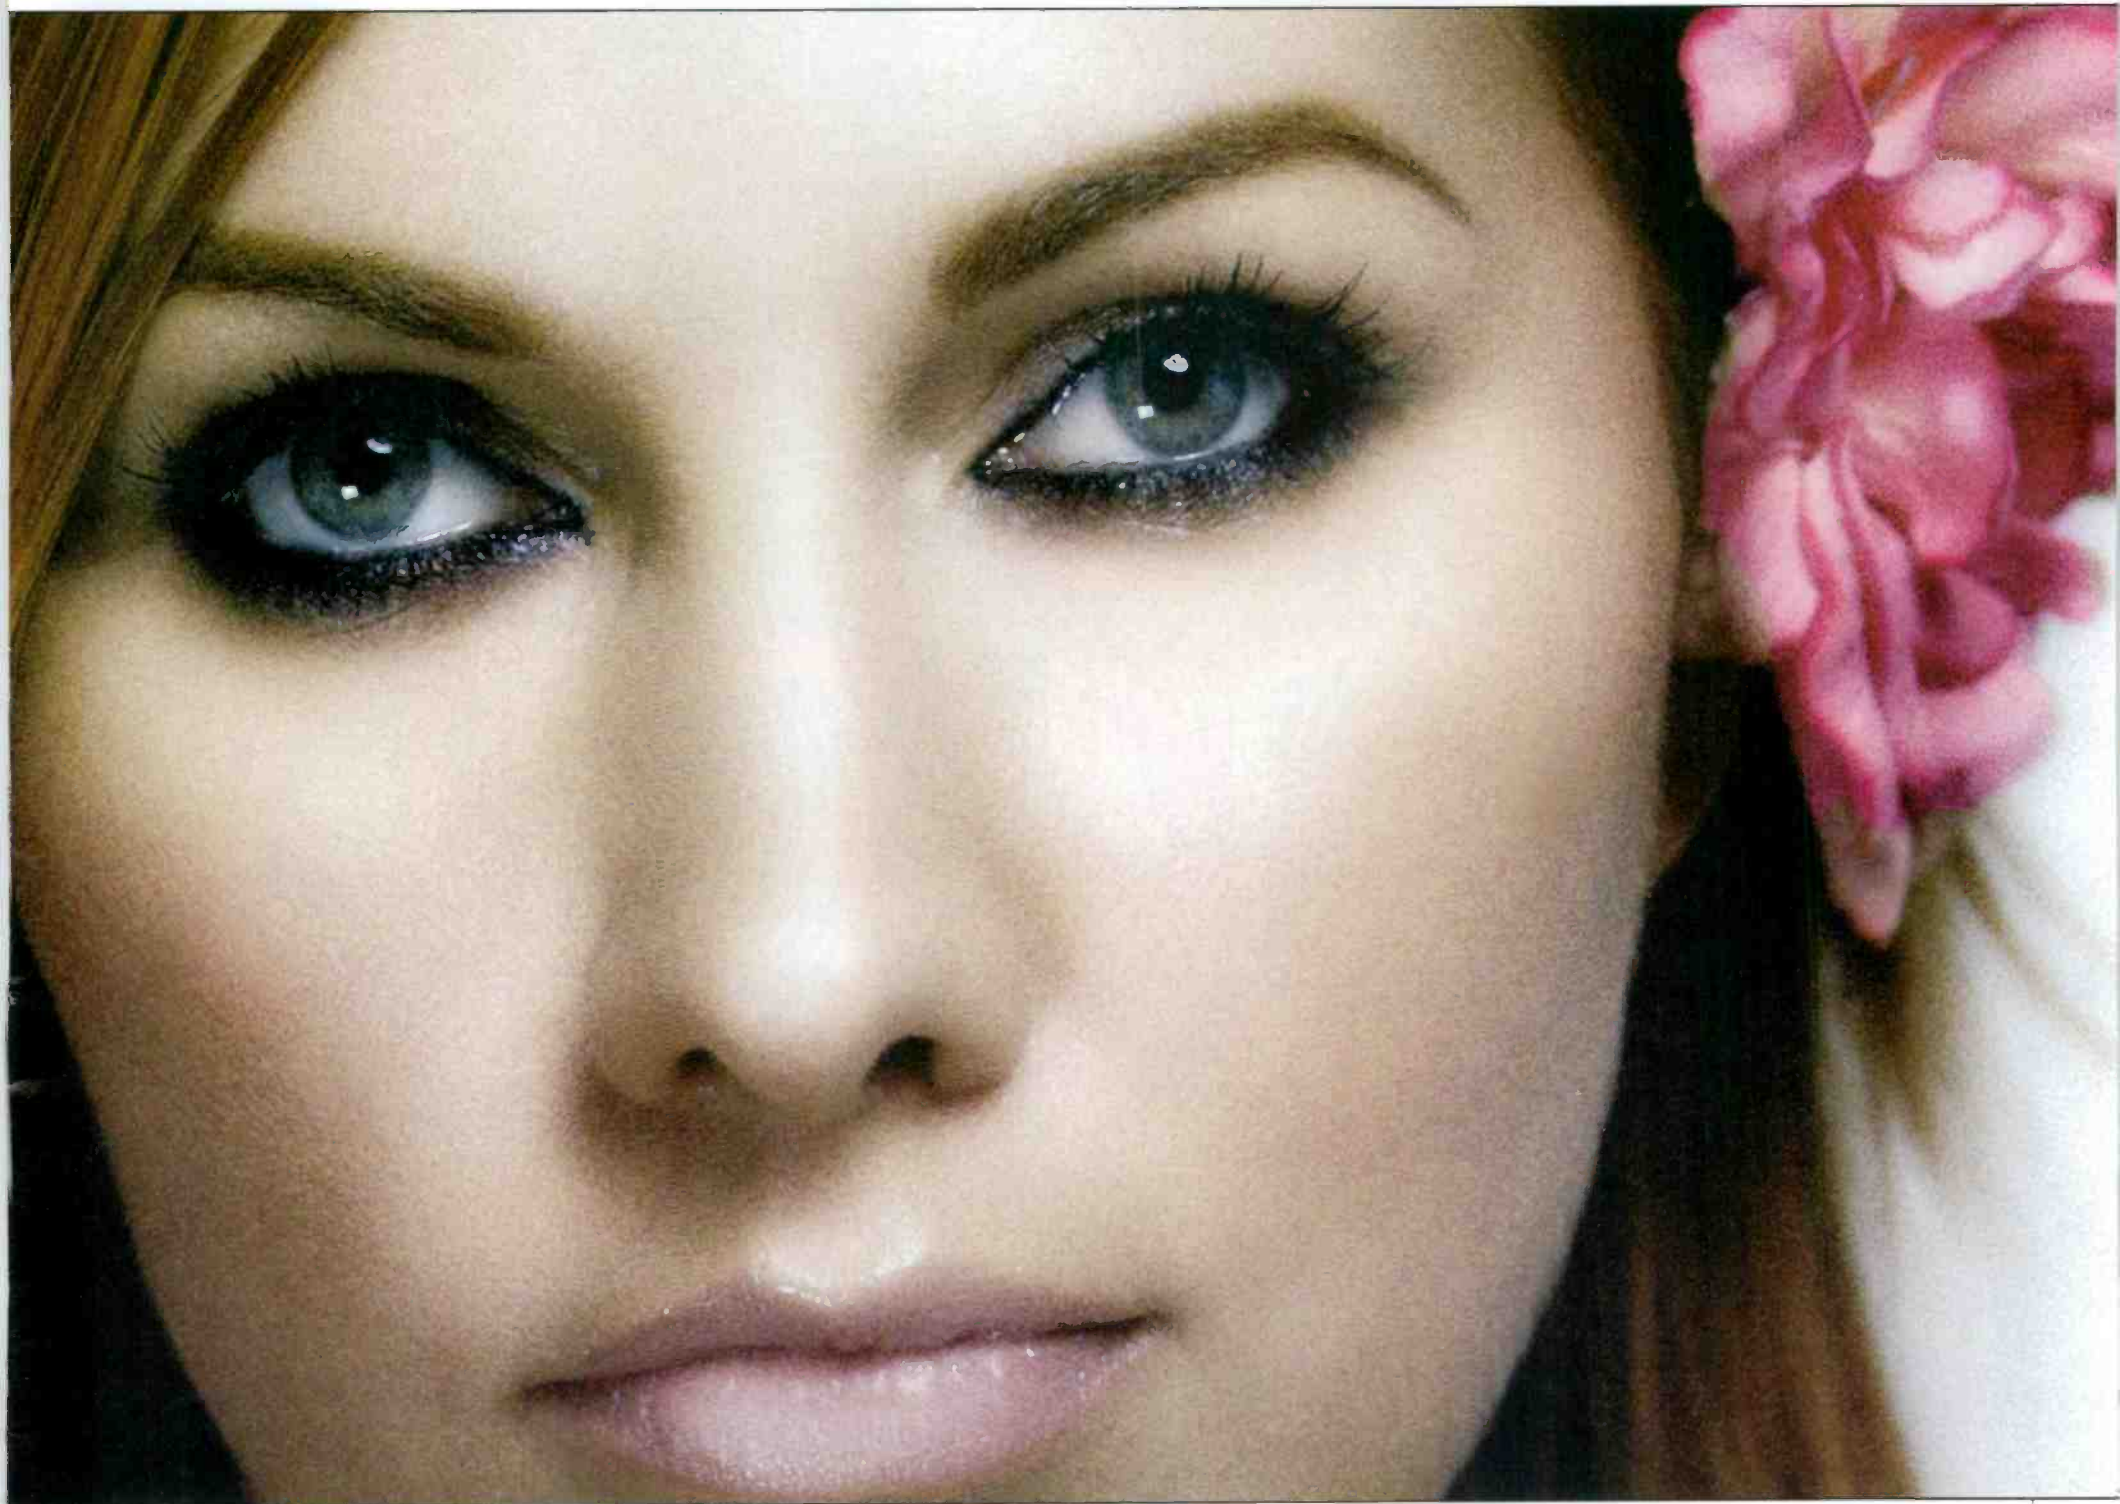

Alan Freed, XM's dance programmer, notes that despite a $10 monthly subscription fee, the service has made traditional FM radio take notice—particularly with Clear Channel's recent initiative to cut spotloads.

"That marks a very important reaction," he says, "and I think it's a direct result of the competition from satellite radio and Internet streaming."

MISSING IN ACTION

Sirius' dance channels include Dance Hits, Nonstop Club Mix, Trance & Progressive House, the downtempo Smooth Electronic and the retro Boombox Breakbeats/Old Skool, as well as a disco channel.

Howard Marcus, who programs the Sirius dance channels says record labels have eagerly taken note of the potential exposure the channels provide.

"You can't imagine how much music I get sent to me daily," he says. "There are stacks and stacks and boxes of music."

The company is making its service increasingly portable, allowing dance fans to pretty much have their music with them wherever they go. In addition to car receivers, Sirius now offers a plug-and-play home unit and boomboxes, with a portable player in the works.

"One of the advantages we have is that we can focus on the music and the artists," Marcus says. "The DJs don't have to tell you where the station van is or how to get tickets to the station concert."

That helps the overall community, he says, "because so many of these artists don't have a face. The audience needs to know that there are people behind the songs. It's not just a single."

Jeannie Hopper, who hosts the weekly "Liquid Sound Lounge" at New York Pacifica outlet WBAL, and is station manager of online arts station wpsl.org, is a strong proponent of technology to bring the factions together for the common cause of dance music.

"There's so much potential for dance music with new technologies," she says, including high-definition radio, which would allow a radio station to broadcast multiple audio streams. She also heralds wireless audio delivery.

"There will be units that allow streaming with presets in your apartment," Hopper says. "That's amazing; dance music is screaming for this type of technology."

But, she cautions, the overall community needs to keep an eye on professional presentation. As convenient an outlet as online broadcasting may be, it needs to stand up to traditional over-the-air programming: "People have to do their homework and learn how to co a radio show, even if it's an Internet station. You have to learn the craft of real radio."

Dance siren Amber still can't get arrested at mainstream top 40.

A number of the dance music proponents, in fact, have a healthy dose of advice for labels and artists.

"I can't think it's that difficult to find a dance hit," Skyy says. "What's tough is to find a project or the artist behind it. What makes Britney Spears such a success isn't her voice, it's not necessarily her music. It's her image. Dance music needs to find its own Britneys."

Promo Only's Cary Vance, who is a veteran champion of dance artists from his days at Virgin Records, agrees, adding that the genre requires face value to succeed.

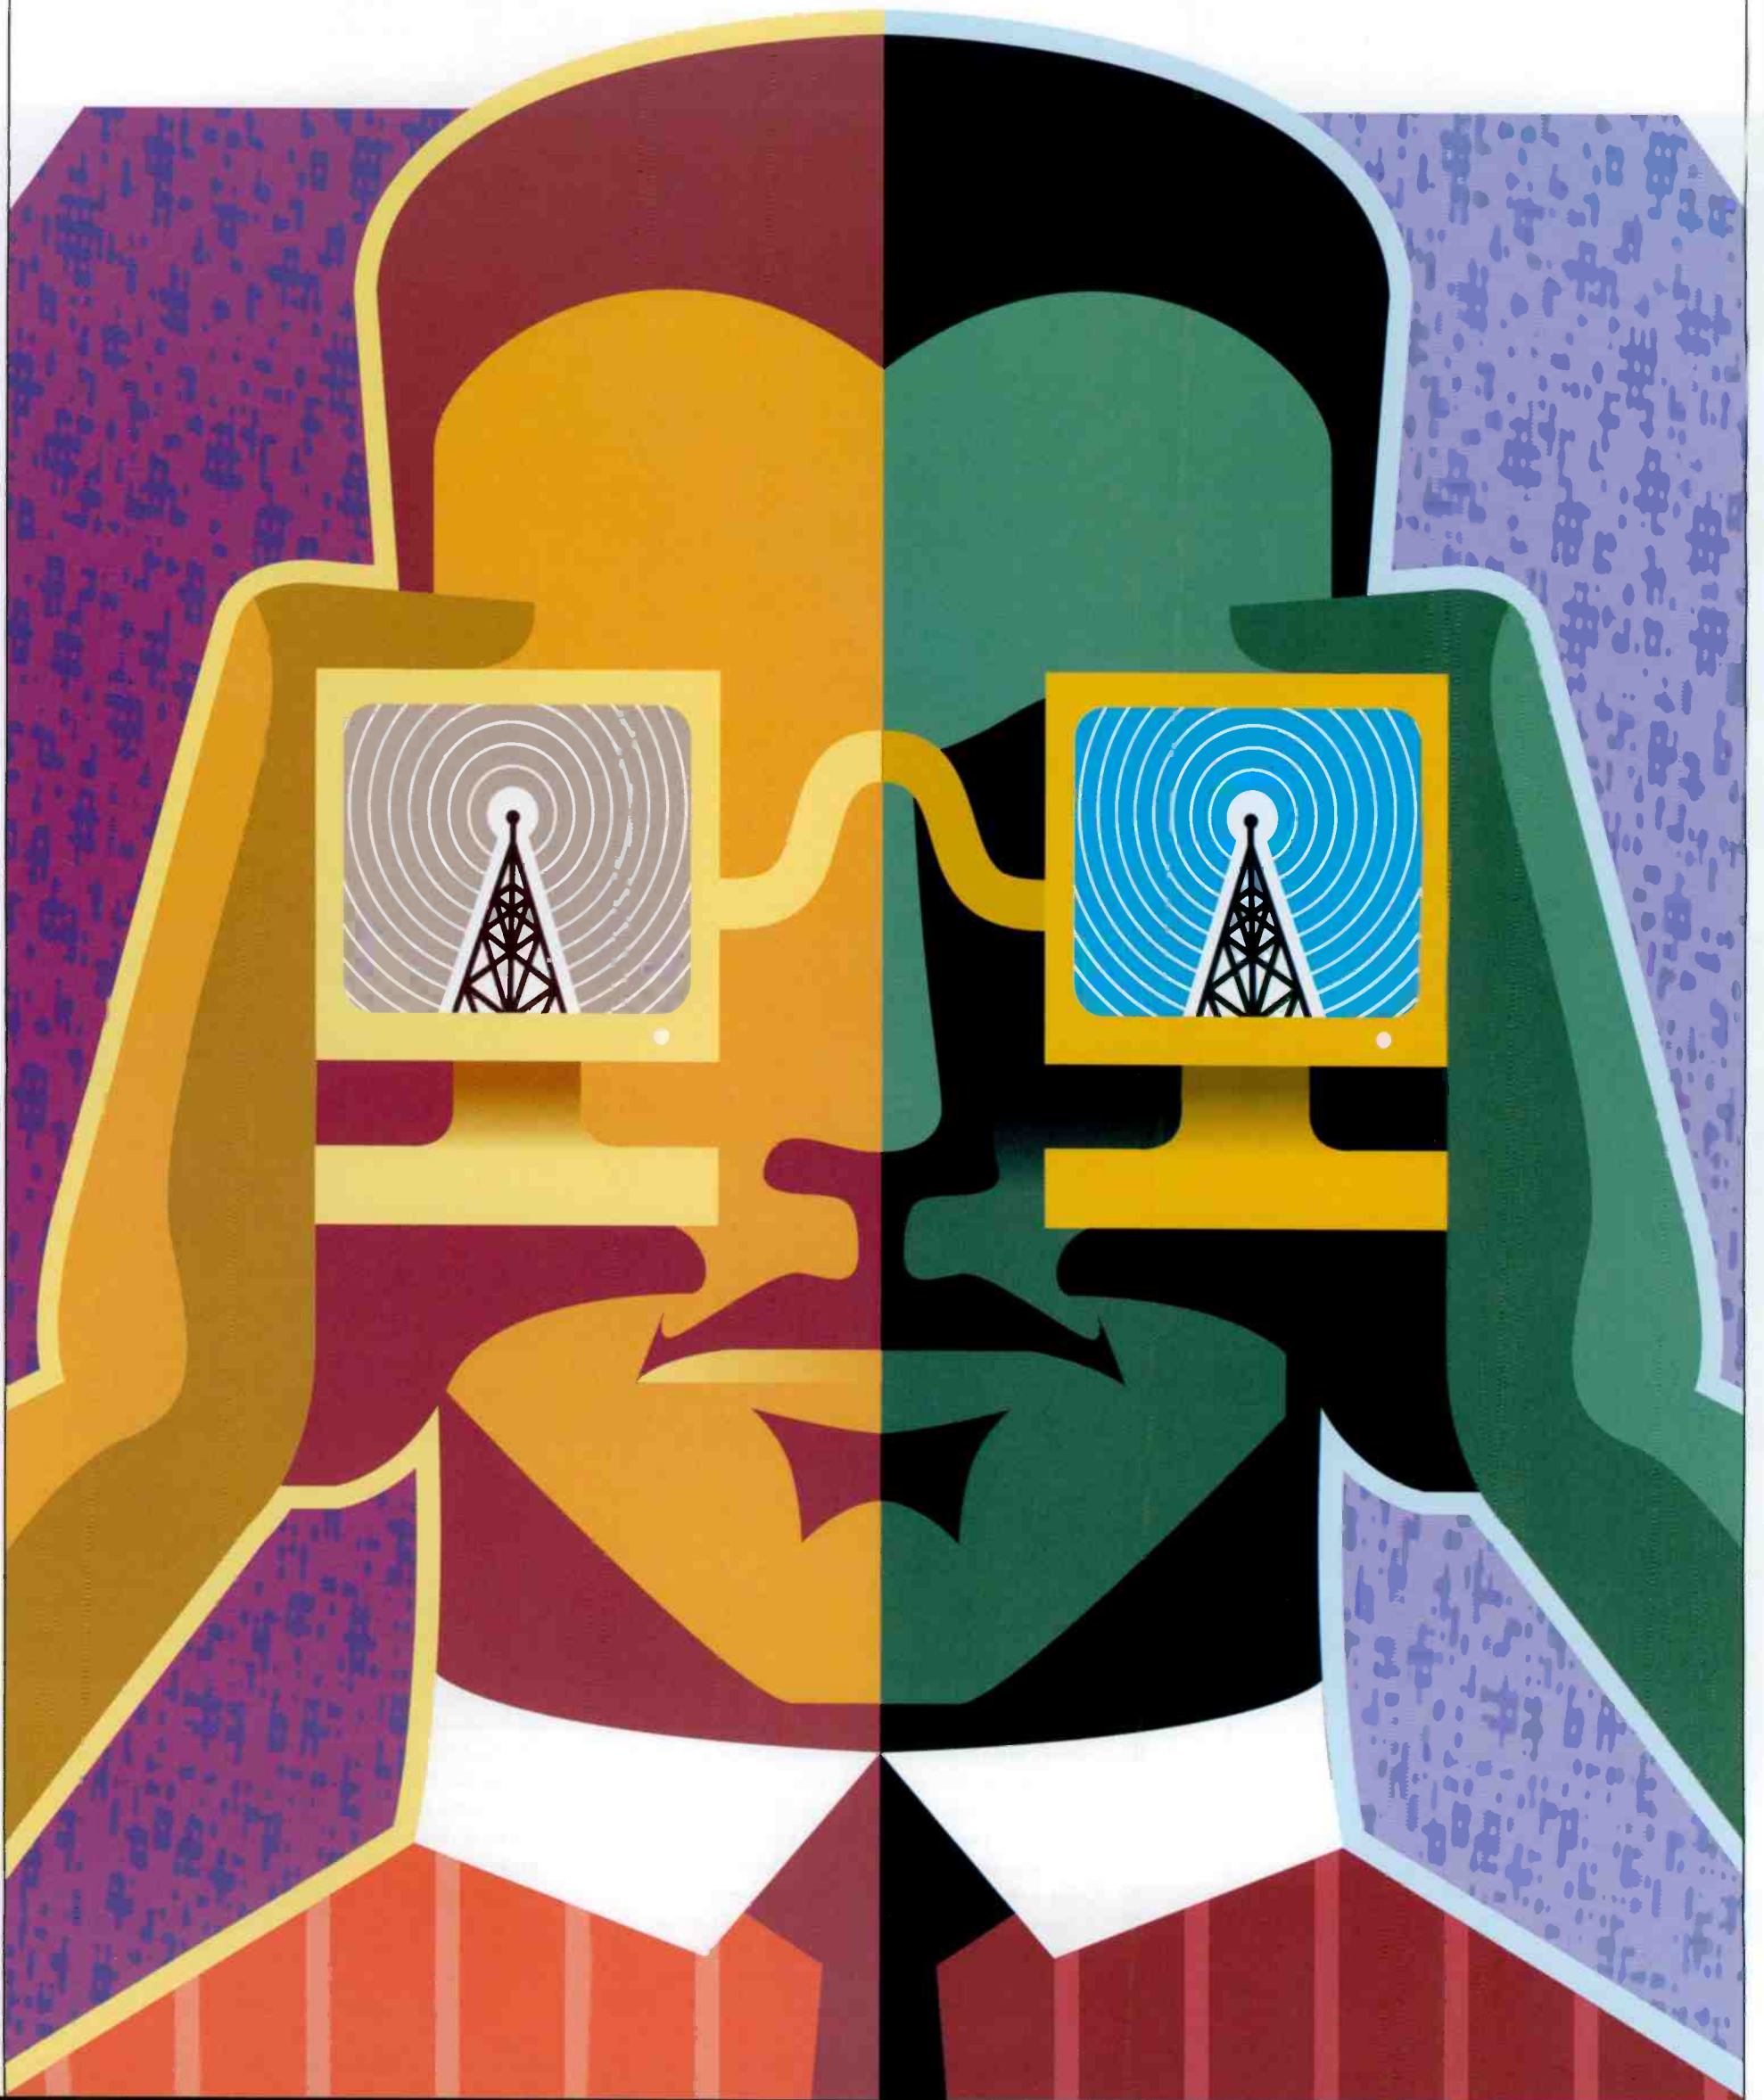

"A lot of dance music is producer-driven and it's hard to put a producer out on the road," he says. "You've got to have an artist; people need to see it."

Vance predicts that dance music is due for its day again at radio and believes that like many music industry trends, success will breed success.

"Dance music is cyclical," he says. "It's just going to take one big record. Once that big one comes along again, people are going to do anything for another one."

COMING TO A STATION NEAR YOU: YOUR FAVORITE STATION (SORT OF)

IS INTERNET IMITATION THE GREATEST FORM OF FLATTERY?

BY PHYLLIS STARK ILLUSTRATION BY DAVE EMBER

Microsoft recently unveiled its new MSN Music Service to much fanfare. But at radio stations across the country, one element of the new service was met with a mixture of amusement and hostility.

MSN Radio, operating within the Microsoft Windows Media Player 10, offers more than 1,000 Internet stations patterned after real terrestrial stations. Additional stations are being added quickly.

MSN is using the call letters and often even the slogans of broadcast stations to describe its Web offerings, all of which are offered for free. (A premium version can be purchased for $4.95 per month.)

Web browsers, for example, can choose stations that are described as being "just like" WLTW New York or KROQ Los Angeles. Using monitored airplay data licensed from Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems, the Web stations play virtually the same songs as the stations they're modeled after, minus the commercials and talk.

In press materials, the Web stations are being touted as being like the local stations they emulate, "but with fewer ads, no DJ chatter and less repetition."

Of course, the stations aren't identical to their broadcast counterparts. In addition to the jocks and spots, they're missing production elements, contests and services such as news, weather and traffic offered by local stations. And the MSN playlist is altered to comply with different laws governing Web radio, or sometimes to remove a song Microsoft does not have the rights to distribute.

But some programmers still think Microsoft is pilfering their brand and their intellectual property.

"MSN Radio is Bill Gates' attempt to cash in on the brand equity broadcasters have built into their stations over the years," says Frank Bell, VP of programming for Keymarket Communications. "Given the problems they've had establishing compelling media content, it's one more sign that Microsoft is creatively bankrupt. . . . Next thing you know, they'll be on the street corner trying to sell fake Rolexes."

Jay McCarthy, PD of country KMLE Phoenix, says MSN Radio's use of call letters and similar playlists is "completely unacceptable, and borders on unethical. At the very least, it's lazy. What's wrong? Can't MSN afford to hire skilled programmers to create their own playlists?"

"Our playlist is our intellectual property," McCarthy adds. "I'd like to think that I don't have to register it as such to protect it."

Charlie Morgan, VP/market manager for Susquehanna/Indianapolis, compares MSN's stations to generic versions of over-the-counter remedies. "It is not dissimilar to when you go to the grocery store or the drugstore and right next to the branded item is the store generic brand item on the shelf that says 'just like Excedrin' or whatever. There is certainly a precedent for that, [but] I don't particularly like being on the receiving end of it.

"When I go to the drugstore and buy the generic I don't feel all that bad," Morgan adds. "When I'm being attacked by the generic, I have a different sensitivity to it now."

'A RADIO WANNABE'

Despite his concerns, however, Keymarket's Bell doesn't believe MSN Radio poses a serious threat to broadcasters.

"If your radio station is nothing more than the music you play, MSN Radio, just like a cable music service or commercial-free satellite radio, could be a problem," he says. "As we all learned many years ago, though, it is what programmers put between the records that make a difference."

Many broadcasters share Bell's view that as long as broadcast radio continues to serve its communities, MSN Radio may not pose a threat.

"It's not radio, it's just a radio wannabe," says Clarke Brown, president of the radio division of Jefferson-Pilot Communications. "Why would I want to listen to a radio wannabe when I have the real thing?"

"In a way, somebody cloning us and calling it 'just like' KZLA is flattering," country KZLA Los Angeles OM R.J. Curtis says. "But without elements beyond the music, it's really not 'just like' KZLA."

Steve Goldstein, executive VP/group PD for Saga Communications, says, "Anything that is out there that competes with radio concerns me." But he notes that the Internet stations "are not like KIIS in Los Angeles or WPLJ in New York. They are [only] musically like those radio stations."

"While the base of those stations is the music, hopefully there are other components that draw people to the station," Goldstein adds. "If we're doing it right, that's our hedge against technological competition in the future."

Morgan agrees. "I don't think it's going to be a large threat," he says. "You can copy a playlist, but that's not the essence of the brands we create. They're going to miss that magical element and try to just copy the playlist. So, at the end of the day, I'm not all that threatened by it. Annoyed, but not threatened."

Clear Channel Radio CEO John Hogan seems more amused than annoyed by MSN Radio. "I am impressed that a company like Microsoft thinks enough of the radio industry and of us to kind of imitate what we're trying to do," he says. "They say that's the greatest form of flattery."

"I find it interesting that they're touting that they're playing the same music without all the things between the records," Hogan continues. "To me, great radio is the stuff between the records. Great radio is that personality. Great radio is that local connection. Great radio is the local news, weather, traffic, sports scores and what's going on in your [area]. And that is something that radio . . . continues to do extraordinarily well."

"It is not very hard to mimic a playlist," Hogan says. "That's a huge reach to say that mimicking a playlist makes a product 'just like WLTW.' There is example after example of great on-air talent, great promotions [and] great information services that we provide that really make radio what it is.

"Radio has been and continues to be a great business," Hogan adds. "Microsoft recognizes that but they don't understand what it takes to be successful at it."

DISCOVERY IS KEY

MSN product manager Kevin Horn says the point of MSN Radio is to help its users discover new and different music by giving them plenty of choices. If someone recently traveled to a city and enjoyed a station there, for example, that person could find something similar on the Web.

Horn says the MSN versions aren't an exact match of broadcast stations either. "It isn't like [we said], 'At 8:45 this song was played and we're going to match this,'" he says, noting that the idea is to more closely emulate styles of music than to precisely duplicate playlists.

In addition to the sound-alike stations, MSN has partnered with a few stations to stream their audio broadcasts. "We've always had strong relationships with stations," he says, while asserting that "their call letters and frequencies are in the public domain." He also points out that attorneys in Microsoft's legal department "do not see an issue with it."

While acknowledging receipt of some complaints from radio, Horn insists "we've been able to work through those situations," with the complainant.

Nielsen's Rob Sisco says Microsoft is just one of many companies that licenses Nielsen BDS data, which is already widely available to subscribers at radio, record labels and retail, as well as readers of Billboard Radio Monitor (which has the same parent company as Nielsen BDS).

"There is no restriction on how people use our data to formulate their [programming]," says Sisco, who is president of Nielsen Music and COO for Nielsen Entertainment's East Coast operations.

Sisco likens MSN Radio to the time-honored industry practice of putting on a competing station across town and trying to emulate the incumbent station's music.

"I started as a radio station PD 30 years ago and I don't think much has changed between then and now," Sisco says. "Clever PDs are always looking at what similar and even competitively formatted stations are doing to determine the makeup of their own programming."

To access MSN Radio, go to music.msn.com, click on the radio box in the top right corner, then choose the city from which you want to select a sound-alike station. ●●●●

WHAT IF THEY THREW A FORMAT WAR AND NO ONE CAME?

With Sony finally giving up the ghost and announcing support for MP3 in its new line of digital music players, the company's long, steadfast adherence to the "superior products" strategy appears to have officially collapsed under the weight of consumers' will. And, believe me, most of us in technology and the press thought it might never happen.

It is truly amazing that the company that lost one of the most pivotal product battles in consumer history with its Betamax video format managed this time to pull its stubborn head out of its superbly engineered sand castle.

Sony has long been a target really means is that an Atrac file will retain more of the original audio than an MP3 file of similar size. An Atrac file encoded at 128KBps (kilobytes per second) may sound as good as an MP3 file encoded at 160KBps, but so what? All that means is that the Atrac file is slightly smaller than its equally great-sounding MP3 counterpart.

OK, I know we're getting dorky here, but stay with me for a second. Bottom line is this: All compression is considered "lossy." In other words, to compress music into a nice little package that can fit on your iPod, some of the frequencies in the music have to be removed. That's right: Whether it's MP3 or Windows Media or Atrac, MP3s—always has. All the MP3 players linked to the current MSN Music Store play MP3s—always have. The new Sony portables will play MP3s as well. But not one of these stores sells MP3s. If you buy songs from iTunes but don't use an iPod, guess what? They won't work. Likewise, if you buy songs from MSN or Wal-Mart or Napster or Sony Connect and you do use an iPod, you're screwed. They will not play.

The majority of music on an iPod is in the MP3 format, as a result of users ripping their own CDs (legal), receiving songs from friends via e-mail or instant messaging (illegal) and downloading songs from peer-to-peer services like which is intended to govern how consumers can enjoy the music they have just legally purchased—something consumers don't encounter when downloading MP3s, legally or illegally.

Michael at slashdot.com posted: "Bad news for Apple fanatics but good news for all the crazy slashdotters who want an iPod but feel dirty using Apple's DRM: The labels are getting together and insisting that online stores standardize their DRM methods. Being the providers of the music, the labels clearly wield a lot of power, but so does Apple: Without iTunes, the online music business is next to nothing. Will Apple give in? Not if they can help it—they're on top consumer to introduce a file into the free universe.

Then there's the awful truth about the analog hole (merely recording the digital file the old-fashioned way) through which no DRM can pass. In fact, nearly all of the technologists I've ever heard speak on the subject (except the ones drawing major-label paychecks) have long held that DRM is simply window dressing; a placebo that makes content owners feel better because they don't understand the reality of the proposition. And not being fully in touch with reality has brought us to the place we are now.

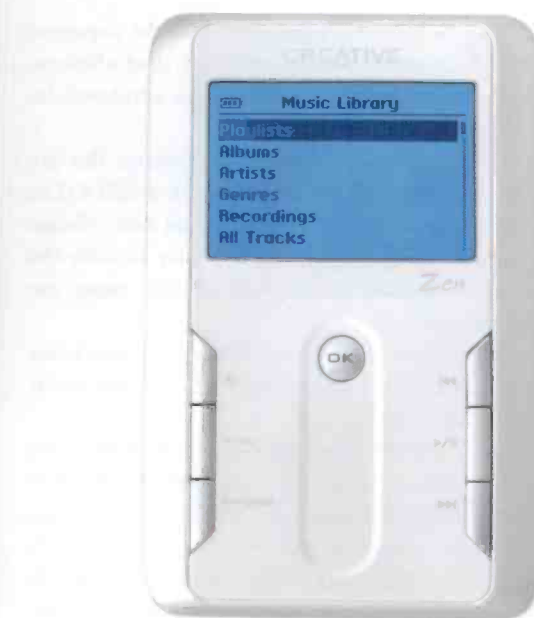

Music consumers are faced with a choice: Either download MP3s without any DRM con-can't sell the format that will work for their customers anytime, anywhere—MP3.

Especially when easily accessible P2P networks mean those customers are—and always will be—just a click away from getting the song the way they want it. The 99 cent download store will never have significant adoption unless it becomes consumers' overwhelmingly preferred experience of P2P.

Remember the data from my previous column [Oct. 1]: Apple sells 70 million songs per year; P2P does 1 billion per month. The numbers don't lie.

It's also good to remember that although the iPod is the music business' new best friend of the moment, the Recording Industry Assn. of of derision for Silicon Valley types and Web kids everywhere because of its audacious plan to replace the industry standard MP3 with its own codec (short for "compression/decompression") known as Atrac. One Web site even constructed a searing parody of the punitive consumer restrictions in Sony's digital music players, renaming them "Sony Tethermans" and adding the tag line "Making it Easier to Steal Music Than Buy It."

Though Atrac sounds like a fancy new men's razor, it's really just the same scheme as MP3 but with superior efficiency. Sony will argue that Atrac sounds much better than MP3, but what that efficiency some of the original audio file is lost. So, a somewhat larger MP3 file is virtually indistinguishable from its more efficient cousins. In fact, no recording engineer, let alone average consumer, I've ever met could realistically be expected to tell the difference.

And before we all get high and mighty about the importance of audio fidelity, let's remember that record companies once marketed the cassettes as a viable format—just like a full-length cassette tape but a little crappier.

So, what's the big deal? The big deal is what happens to a market when you don't give consumers the format they clearly prefer. The iPod plays Kazaa (we're all clear on how cool the record biz thinks that is). Could any consumer reasonably be expected to fill his 40GB iPod by purchasing songs for 99 cents each when the total price tag would be around $10,000? When was the last time you paid $10,000 for something that didn't come with cruise control and comfortable seating for four?

Why would the industry pursue such a hopelessly confused and difficult consumer strategy when it is constantly crying about having to "compete with free"?

One reason seems to be that each proprietary codec comes with its own DRM (digital rights management), of the world. Before anyone messes it up, [Apple's] AAC is an open format, while the [company's] FairPlay DRM standard is not."

These DRM conditions include limiting the number of times a customer can burn a song to CD, limiting the number of devices to which the song can be transferred and even limiting the amount of time a customer can listen to the song at all should their music-rental subscription fees lapse. That is, of course, if the customer doesn't use any of the myriad simple methods of circumventing the DRM and turning the file into an MP3, which can then be shared freely. And it just takes one ditions that will play on every device imaginable from a "catalog" that encompasses the entire history of recorded music; or download a song in a format that comes with a host of shifting, confusing DRM conditions and that may not even play on the device they own. The latter choice is their reward for being law-abiding consumers. It's like asking a prospective car buyer to buy a car that only turns left, can't go more than 10 mph and will strand them instantly should they miss a payment.

The "legitimate alternatives," iTunes Music Store, MSN Music Store, Napster, Wal-Mart, etc., cannot be expected to compete if they America once tried to wipe out the very technology on which the iPod is based. In 1999, the RIAA slapped Diamond—creator of the groundbreaking Rio MP3 player—with the first of many lawsuits against technology companies. The industry lost and came around to embracing portable digital players. Let's get started on embracing MP3. It's long overdue, and the customer demands it. Would you buy a Sony CD player if it only played Sony CDs? Neither would anyone else. ●●●

MEET THE COMMISSIONER

JONATHAN ADELSTEIN OPPOSES MORE CONSOLIDATION AND STANDS UP FOR ARTIST RIGHTS BY PAUL HEINE PHOTOGRAPHS BY STEVEN BARSTON

“FAST AND FURIOUS” aren’t words normally used to describe the pace at the Federal Communications Commission. But 2004 has been anything but normal for radio and the government agency that regulates it.

The year began with the Super Bowl halftime fiasco and is winding down with indecency public enemy No. 1, Howard Stern, flipping his detractors the bird, taunting the FCC with a just-try-and-get-me-now move to satellite radio.

In between those two seismic events, the commission wrote a record number of indecency fines, responding to election-year political pressure and an avalanche of complaints carefully orchestrated by conservative zealots.

But that was only part of the fun. After attempting to enact the most sweeping media-ownership-rule changes in U.S. history, the FCC saw its rule-making rejected by the courts and Congress.

The five commissioners also find themselves intermediaries between the radio and recording industries over copyright protection for labels and artists on high-definition radio. They’re also in the middle of a battle between the National Assn. of Broadcasters and satellite radio over local traffic and weather services.

Calmly reflecting on these complex issues from a meeting room in San Diego during the NAB Radio Show, commissioner Jonathan Adelstein is thoughtful and soft-spoken. On four different occasions during his interview with Billboard Radio Monitor he confers with his legal adviser on the appropriate response. Yet he appears to have a firm grasp of the issues and the ability to see them from both sides of the table.

Take the commission’s proposed rule to require stations to record and retain for up to 90 days tapes of everything they broadcast. Adelstein says the FCC is “open-minded about whether to do this in the first place, and if so, how we go about doing it in a way that is not intrusive or unduly burdensome. The idea is to help broadcasters, as well as us, to enforce the rules.”

Having a tape, he says, would help the commissioners quickly dismiss frivolous indecency complaints. “Otherwise, we may have to rely on something that isn’t substantiated and have a back-and-forth between a complainant and a broadcaster, Adelstein says the FCC’s upcoming decisions will show that it is ‘very careful and discriminating’ about what it finds indecent.

'It's difficult for us to argue that we would have the authority to go after subscription services [on indecency]. I know that this might not seem fair from the perspective of over-the-air broadcasters or from the perspective of people who don't necessarily distinguish between the two.'

instead of having the actual facts to deal with."

One of two Democrats on the five-member commission, Adelstein understands the proposal's First Amendment implications and says it is not intended to turn the FCC into Big Brother. He also is mindful of the "more privileged First Amendment status" enjoyed by consumers of pay services, such as satellite radio and cable TV.

"It's difficult for us to argue that we would have the authority to go after subscription services [on indecency]," he says. "I know that this might not seem fair from the perspective of over-the-air broadcasters or from the perspective of people who do not necessarily distinguish between the two. But we have to be careful not to overstep the bounds of our authority or we risk having what limited authority we have slapped down by the courts and forever limiting our ability to enforce the law."

Adelstein is not in favor of fining talent or artists—it would have a chilling effect on free expression, he argues. Besides, conforming to the indecency statute is the licensee's responsibility. He insists the commission was not trying to drive Stern off the air—though Stern and others disagree—it was just enforcing the indecency law as Congress spelled it out.

"I don't think it's a necessary outcome that good content is driven away from radio," he says. "It's possible to be provocative and interesting and not cross the bounds of indecency."

Proposed forfeitures against Fox Television ($1.18 million) and KRXQ Sacramento, Calif., ($55,000) are the latest in a new series of pending indecency decisions due from the commission. Of the roughly 20 imminent decisions, some will be dismissals that Adelstein says will "make it clear that we're being very careful and discriminating in what we find indecent."

PAYOLA CONCERNS

So-called legal payola and sponsorship identification worry Adelstein, and he's glad the two issues are being addressed in the FCC's "Notice of Inquiry" on localism.

"It's going to be difficult for new artists and local artists to get heard on the airwaves if, for some reason, there's a need for some kind of payment to get on the air through any means," he says. "Independent promoters may have a role that is completely legal, but we need to explore very carefully whether or not anything that they're engaged in is stretching the bounds of the law in terms of disclosure."

While broadcasters are excited about making the long-overdue transition to digital, artists and labels worry that HD radio could usher in a new round of piracy. On this matter, Adelstein waves the artists' rights flag as well.

"We have to protect the rights of artists and copyright holders to be compensated for the use of the product of their talents," he contends. "This is the only way we're going to continue to sustain the creativity and the ability of these artists to survive and continue to provide wonderful content." The radio, recording and equipment manufacturing industries need to hammer out a solution, Adelstein says, similar to the way the TV industry addressed copyright concerns by creating a "broadcast flag" for HD TV.

The issue that Adelstein's most passionate about? Ownership rules. He called the June 2003 FCC rulemaking "the most destructive rollback of media ownership protection in the history of American broadcasting." When the courts and Congress repudiated the rules, guess who stood up and clapped?

"We ought to take a step back and say, 'What are we doing here?'" Adelstein says. "We've outraged the public, we've outraged Congress and we've been reprimanded by the courts. Clearly we're doing something wrong."

"We need to go back and start from scratch and get it right this time, and be very careful about any relaxation of the rules. And any relaxation of the rules in allowance for additional mergers has to have a clear justification in terms of how it actually helps the public to get better news information, more diversity or more competition or localism."

"And that's a tall order. But that is what should be required of an area so sensitive to our democracy." ●●●

In September, the FCC fined 20 CBS TV stations $27,500 apiece for airing the Super Bowl halftime show—the incident that ignited this year's indecency firestorm. Viacom maintains the broadcast was not indecent.

A SWEDISH MARKET

INTERNATIONAL

FOURTH IN A SERIES EXAMINING EUROPEAN RADIO AND MUSIC

INTERVIEW BY
EMMANUEL LEGRAND,
LONDON BUREAU CHIEF

The deregulation of the Swedish market took place only 10 years ago, but the country boasts one of the most competitive and creative radio industries in Europe. Peter Waak, co-founder and president of Stockholm-based research company Radio Intelligence, reviews the state of the market.

HOW DOES THE SWEDISH RADIO MARKET COMPARE WITH THE OTHER EUROPEAN TERRITORIES?

Well, it is certainly one of the most liberal in Europe. There are no format restrictions, no content restrictions, no quotas and no obligations in terms of content. It is very much an open market. Operators and programmers can do as they want.

HOW DO YOU EXPLAIN THAT?

In 1994, Sweden had a liberal government, and the minister of communications who pushed for [deregulation] was very liberal himself. The core of the new system was that licenses would be auctioned and no restrictions would apply. Another aspect was that there would be no restrictions in ownership. Anyone could apply for licenses, including non-European Union companies. The changes were widely accepted, except [by] the left wing of the political spectrum, [which] would have probably preferred a beauty contest [regulators choosing operators based on their project, a practice dominant in Europe].

LICENSES IN SWEDEN ARE AWARDED FOR LOCAL STATIONS, BUT WE HAVE ALSO SEEN THE CREATION OF NATIONAL NETWORKS.

That is not incompatible. The same group could apply for several local licenses in many different parts of the country and set up a network. However, there is always a certain level of local [flavor] in the programming.

For a country of 9 million inhabitants, there are 86 stations. In addition, you have public broadcasters. In every city, you will find at least three or four of the national public stations [SR P1 (talk), SR P2 (classical), SR P4 (top 40), SR P5 (full service)] and one local public station. From a consumer's perspective, that's a lot of choice.

DO YOU HAVE A WIDE DIVERSITY OF FORMATS?

In a city like Stockholm, certainly. There's a huge variety of formats, [from] top 40 to hip-hop, adult top 40 to Jammin' Oldies. The market

And there's also Rix FM [adult top 40], Mix Megapol [adult top 40], Rockklassiker [classic rock], Vinyl 107 [oldies], Metro FM [country], the Voice [R&B/hip-hop] and E-FM [Jammin' Oldies]. Lugna reaches some 160,000 daily listeners. The first four are operated by Swedish group MTG.

Stockholm is a very competitive market. Just in the last year, three stations [have] either relaunched or switched formats.

HOW DO PROGRAMMERS COPE WITH SUCH A HIGH LEVEL OF COMPETITION?

You need to completely understand your audience's needs and have the scientific tools to do [that]. Your product must be right on target; it must be tions in Stockholm. I can tell you that it is extremely competitive. It really keeps you on your toes, and at the same time, it is very exciting.

DO PROGRAMMERS SUPPORT LOCAL TALENT?

Even if they don't have obligations, programmers tend to be very receptive to local music. A network like Rix FM plays up to 50% local content, and it works for them.

It also happens that we have a pretty good music scene right now, and that listeners like it. It has not always been like that. The main danger would be [if] record companies [stop investing] in local repertoire.

IS THE SWEDISH MARKET ALSO PRONE TO CONSOLIDATION?

Like anywhere else, there has been a merger mania here. In the recent year, we've seen [mergers create] two major groups dominating the market. First SBS merged with [Swedish media group] Bonnier's radio division. Then we had MTG striking a deal with French group NRJ [that] saw NRJ's stations being operated by MTG. Altogether, MTG has 20 stations across the country—five of which are in the capital—with two national networks, including the market leader, Rix. SBS operates national network Mix Megapol and many stations around the country. They are now by far the largest operator. Basically, the market is down to two players, even if there's a small regional radio group.

DOES THAT LEAVE ROOM FOR NEW ENTRANTS?

There's not much space left, but one can always wait for new licenses to be awarded. There will also be new digital licenses. And there are probably still some stations to acquire. When NRJ decided to withdraw, it provided an opportunity for MTG.

WHAT'S THE STATE OF DIGITAL RADIO?

Every station is broadcasting online and with a model that makes it profitable. You have a lot of listeners in the smaller cities who tune in to the Internet broadcast of Peter Waak, co-founder and president of Radio Intelligence.

Stockholm stations simply because they don't have access to them in their town. Research company Nordic Radio has found ways to identify those listeners, and advertisers can pay a premium if they want to reach them. We are talking about 7% to 10% of the total audience.

AND TERRESTRIAL DIGITAL RADIO?

Not much is going on. There are no receivers available and, unlike the U.K. market, there are no incentives from the government to broadcast digitally. The risk is that, like in other countries, we are going to see public broadcasters take over the digital spectrum and offer a wide variety of niche programs that normally would have been owned by commercial operators. This will be a problem for the future.

IS RADIO A PROFITABLE BUSINESS IN SWEDEN?

It certainly is for the top stations, but [license fees] have seriously eroded the margins and in some cases made profitability almost impossible. The government has made tons of money from the system, but it also works for operators, and advertisers have learned to use the medium.

THIS WEEK IN DATA, For complete charts, there's always more at www.BillboardRadioMonitor.com

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections except for Latin and Christian charts which are based on audience impressions, computed by cross-referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data.

● Songs showing an increase in detections (audience for Latin and Christian) over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its percentage loss in detections (audience for Latin and Christian) does not exceed the percentage of monitored station downtime for the format. Exempting the Country chart, a song that has been on the chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections (audience for Latin and Christian).

◎ AIRPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 20 on both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian charts.

↑ GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (audience for Latin and Christian).

+ MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering six or more detections at the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with a gain in detections (audience for Latin and Christian) over the previous week is placed first if tied with a song with a decline over the same period. When tied songs are each gaining detections (audience for Latin and Christian) or each losing detections (audience for Latin and Christian), the song being played on more stations is placed first.

RECURRENT RULE: Songs below the top 20 (top 15 for adult top 40, AC, modern AC, adult R&B, heritage rock and dance) become recurrents and are removed from the chart after 26 weeks. Country titles move to recurrent after 20 weeks if they rank below No. 15 and are losing detections.

Ⓝ Nielsen BDS certification for airplay of 100,000 detections on all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks, across the U.S. and Canada. Numerical following symbol indicates multiple level of 100,000 detections.

★ Indicates title earned Hit Predictor status in research data provided by Promocision.

Playlists are listed in order of TSA weekly cume, beginning with the highest-cuming station. Cumes are updated twice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys.

A+ AIRPLAY ADDS denotes songs with 6 or more detections at station for first time this week.

IMPACT! Songs at Airpower level and below with a gain in detections or with a percentage loss in detections equal to or better than the monitored downtime in the format.

★ INITIAL IMPACT: Indicates song's first appearance on the Impact! page.

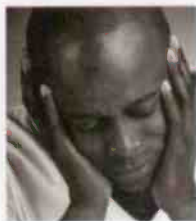

BY ANTHONY COLOMBO, WADE JESSEN, PATRICK MCGOWAN AND MINAL PATEL

Long Distance 'Calls'

With his first outing "Love Calls," Kem has managed to accumulate more chart weeks at adult R&B than most artists have in their career.

Now at 92 weeks on the list, the track debuted in the Feb. 1, 2003, issue and took 33 weeks to reach No. 1, in September 2003. At the time, that set the mark for the longest run to No. 1 in the chart's history, which was then broken weeks later by R. Kelly's "Step in the Name of Love" and its 34-week trek to the top.

Kem's 92-week run surpasses the record for most weeks on the chart set by Maxwell's "Lifetime," which spent its 91st week on the chart in the April 11, 2003, issue. During this elongated chart run, Kem entered and exited with his follow-up track, "Matter of Time," which peaked at No. 24 and spent 25 weeks on the chart.

'MURDER' RATE HITS NEW HIGH

Papa Roach's "Getting Away With Murder" (Geffen) earns the year's highest one-week spin count at active rock as it holds at No. 1 for a third week. The track's 1,888 detections are the most since Staind's "So Far Away" totaled 1,940 spins in the Oct. 10, 2003, issue. The previous single-week high for 2004 was the 1,857 detections Crossfade's "Cold" accumulated in the July 30 issue.

At modern rock, Green Day's "American Idiot" (Reprise) holds at No. 1 for a sixth straight week, marking the trio's longest stay at the top since "When I Come Around" held pole position for seven weeks in 1995.

'OVER' STATES CASE

With help from Tim McGraw, Nelly's "Over and Over" (UMRG) becomes his fastest-climbing track to date at mainstream top 40, reaching the top 10 in just three weeks with a 20-7 move. "Over" also jumps into the top 10 (11-6) at rhythmic top 40 in its third chart week, matching Nelly's quickest ascent at the format that he established with "Hot in Herre" and "Dilemma." Both songs eventually reached No. 1 at rhythmic and mainstream.

Elsewhere on the rhythmic top 40 list, R. Kelly adds yet another title to his format-leading chart count as "Don't Let Me Die" (Zomba) featuring Jay-Z bows at No. 36. The duo's "Big Chips" debuted last week and this issue climbs 35-25. Kelly now has 34 chart hits to his credit, four of which debuted this year. His most successful year was 2003, when Kelly debuted with seven tracks.

Christina Milan's "Dip It Low" (IDJMG) becomes the third single so far in 2004 to pass the 30-week mark at rhythmic as it dips 12-15. Earlier this year Usher spent 35 weeks on the chart with "Yeah!" while Petey Pablo kept "Freek-a-Leek" on the list for 40 weeks. The last time three or more tracks reached 30 weeks on the chart in the same year was in 1999. Meanwhile, Milan's follow-up, "Whatever U Want," bows on the list at No. 40.

Debuts Are Old Hat For Dion And Stewart At AC

Two veteran artists each debut with their 33rd chart hits at AC: Celine Dion with "Beautiful Boy" at No. 31 and Rod Stewart with "What a Wonderful World" at No. 33. Stewart's track features Stevie Wonder, who is making his first appearance since "For Your Love" peaked at No. 30 in 1995.

Dion is poised to once again become the AC artist of the decade, as she was for the '90s. "Beautiful Boy" marks her 11th charted single so far this decade, well ahead of Jim Brickman, who has eight.

BY THE TREE LEAVES MARK AT CHRISTIAN

Rock/pop fusion act By the Tree collects its first chart-topper on Christian AC and the multiformat Christian Singles & Tracks with "Beautiful One" (Fervent).

"Beautiful One" leaps 4-1 on the Christian AC chart, where it collects 3.7 million of its 4.1 million audience total, and rises 3-1 on Christian Singles & Tracks.

Concurrently, Casting Crowns arrives inside the top 20 on both Christian lists with "Voice of Truth" (Reunion), which bows at No. 18 on the adult chart and No. 19 on the overall list.

New Beat Of The Island

Originating in Puerto Rico and making its way to the States via Miami, reggaeton is a relatively new but burgeoning genre that combines elements of reggae with a Latin rap twist.

The sound makes its first foray on the R&B/hip-hop chart with "Oye Mi Canto," the latest single from N.O.R.E. The track, which features reggaeton artist Daddy Yankee along with Nina Sky, Gem Star and Big Mato, bows at No. 38. The track also holds at No. 9 in its third week in the top 10 of the rhythmic top 40 chart.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS SEPTEMBER 2004

The following are singles recently recognized by Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen BDS' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals below cover the period from a title's release through September 30, 2004.

BIGGER IS BETTER

A bigger audience - group presidents, program directors, syndicators, station managers, sales managers and more.

Big reasons why the new, re-branded and expanded Billboard Radio Monitor is the ultimate tool for radio.

It's finally here!

Songs are blind tested online by PromoSquad using multiple listens and a nationwide sample of carefully profiled music consumers. Songs are rated on a 1-5 scale; final results are based on weighted positives. Songs with a score of 65 or more are judged to have Hit Potential, although that benchmark number can fluctuate per format based on the strength of available music. HitPredictor column on the HitPredictor mainstream top 40 chart. The song is getting early spins at WXKS (Kiss 108) Boston.

RYAN CABRERA is establishing a track record. His second single, "True," debuts this issue

Kanye West is the hottest producer in hip-hop. He has also proved to be one of the format's biggest artists. His latest single, "New Workout Plan," is new this issue on the HitPredictor R&B/hip-hop chart. WAMO (106 Jamz) Pittsburgh is already giving the song 30-plus spins per week.

Crossfade's "Cold" has continued its steady climb up the Billboard Radio Monitor modern rock chart after reaching No. 1 at active rock. The early HitPredictor add is now a hit predicted track, having broken the top 10 barrier of the modern rock chart.

Cabrera Again At Bat

Singer's Second Single Cracks HitPredictor Mainstream Top 40 Chart

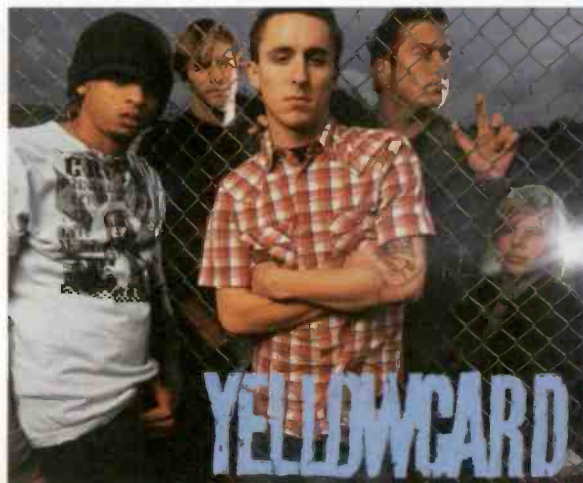

The song is also picking up steam at mainstream top 40 with early spins at WNKS (Kiss 95.1) Charlotte, N.C., and KLAL (Alice 107.7) Little Rock, Ark.

Green Day has a follow-up to its No. 1 modern rock hit "American Idiot." The band's new "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" is getting heavy airplay at stations like WAVF (96 Wave) Charleston, S.C., and WMAD (Mad Radio 96.3) Madison, Wis.

Gretchen Wilson's "When I Think About Cheatin'" is destined to become yet another hit from her top 10 CD "Here for the Party." Early believers include KEYE (K102) Minneapolis.

Lenny Kravitz continues to build on the momentum "Lady" picked up from its use in a Gap TV commercial. The song has cracked the top 20 at adult top 40 and is picking up spins at mainstream top 40, thanks to stations like WSTR (Star 94) Atlanta.
