A Judge's Tribute to Music and Musicians

ON the occasion of a symphony concert given under the direction of Walter Henningsen in Seattle, and under the auspices of our local union in that city for the purpose of soliciting the support of music lovers in behalf of living music, Judge Charles E. Claypool of Seattle made the following comments:

"The masterly musicians who sponsor this performance are not seeking sympathy or appealing for assistance. They have accepted without complaint the long and laborious voyage which leads from aspiration to achievement. This is not the display of one conspicuous and brilliant sun surrounded by satellites, but a constellation of many stars with each and every one contributing to the brilliance of the firmament. To shine in this display has involved 'long days of labor and nights devoid of ease.' The minimum of time required to qualify an individual performer is made up of approximately eight years, one-half of intensive study and practice and one-half of practical experience and routine. A doctor's degree in almost any other profession may be obtained in less time. While the emphasis tonight is on concerted effort, the players of separate instruments nevertheless honor their associates who have risen to solo rank. These eminent ones, by their marvelous execution and interpretation, not only add to the dignity of the profession, but carry it higher toward the climax of adequate melodic expression. However, they do stress the democracy

Seattle Jurist Asks Music Lovers to Insist That the "Matchless Message of Melody Be Brought Fresh From the Minds and Hearts of Fellow Men" of the calling in that it demands of each performer equally as to tune and tempo.

"Pluck one thread, and the web ye mar!
Break but one of a thousand strings
And the painful jar through all will run!"
—Tennyson

"One may read the history of his country, and thus gain some knowledge. He cannot experience this history without having had personal participation. Sunshine and the light of the moon may join other glories of nature—the hills, the valleys, the flowers, the tranquil plain and the raging sea and be marvelously counterfeited on canvas. But the painter after all presents a lifeless counterfeit. He cannot produce the thrilling reaction following sight of the reality. The human figure may be miraculously reproduced in beautiful marble. But it lacks the appeal of human flesh and blood and is cold and dead. The works of the immortal bard may be read by all men in many languages, but they take on full meaning only when uttered by a living being in fitting environment. The art of the printer, 'preserver of all arts,' may perpetuate the words of the orator—but they cannot preserve the orator. A Roosevelt speech may be an inspiration on perusal, but it lacks the squinting eye, the clenched fist and the gleaming teeth. The old, yet ever new words, 'I Love You!' may be sung and printed in all the glorious melody of the greatest composer or master book-maker, but they only have fulness of meaning when vibrantly uttered by the passionate lover to the darling of his heart. The love of Almighty God for his creatures is only really assured to the suffering and the sorrowful by personal contact.

"That this age is known as a machine age must certainly be admitted by all, certainly by musicians. That the advances of science have lightened the labors of men in many directions without improving social conditions may also be conceded. In all respects where it tends to improve the human condition, material improvement by way of mechanics commands approval. However, it is very, very human to overwork a novelty. We all sing a popular song one week and then no one sings it. We swear by the latest book one month and on the first of the next month throw it away. We applaud a moving picture actor one day, and the next day cast him into outer darkness. We elect a popular hero and then kick him out of office. We are 'fixed as waves, as breezes steady,' and like wind and wave toss and blow, ebb and flow and subside.

"Music is the great world-wide language. It speaks to heart and mind something that cannot be uttered or printed. In the name of the good, the true and the beautiful, we plead with all people who will listen not to allow this great outlet and interpreter of human emotion to be beaten to death by the jangle of mere machinery. Without artists there will be no art. All lost arts represent really lost artists. The great symphonies, the songs of praise by worshipful congregations, the wonderful operas, the stirring strains of courage and heroism, the soulful longing of the broken-hearted, the songs of shouting victorious, the crooning of a mother to her baby—none of these may be sealed in a can to be opened at will. In behalf of men and women who have loved music well enough to give their lives to it, and who out of this love protest against its degradation by cheap and raucous mechanism, we ask real music lovers to demand real music. Insist that the matchless message of melody be brought to you fresh from the minds and hearts of your fellow men!"

Much has been said against the attempted mechanizing of music, but the dangers to the art through mechanization have never been more graphically elucidated, nor has the nature of music itself ever been more brilliantly and convincingly explained, as has been done by Judge Claypool. His statements carry a conviction impossible to contradict.

Movie Moguls Beginning to Realize Their Mistakes

AS remarked in previous issues, the talking-picture industry is staggering a bit, as it tenderly clasps its midriff and shouts "Depression!" at the referee. Even if the depression were something of a foul, it's not only the depression blow that has the talkies staggering. The stagger comes from the industry's own lack of foresight. This displayed itself mainly in an unconscious but almost morbidly suicidal whetting of the public appetite for "flesh." The imperialistic policy of the big picture and platitude men saw only one side of the question, their establishment as leader and dictator of the amusement world. The other side, the side of public reaction to the Czaristic policy, remained unnoticed.

For one thing, there was the wildly claimed introduction of the talkies. It had to come, it is to be supposed; but that it had to be a pity from the viewpoint of the picture people. Before talkies the movies were just about developing into a separate, distinct and self-reliant art. Pictures like "The Last Laugh" were being made, pictures that made full use of the possibilities of the camera, pictures that had to rely on practically none of the material that the movies borrowed from legitimate. It may be true that the movies were going down, but at least they were not going down at a more sedate pace than at present. And they weren't throwing themselves into the hands of their worst enemy.

When the talkies came, all of the movies' hard-won individuality went by the boards. Talkies drew them many steps closer to the stage in every possible way, making them, really, just echoes of legitimate drama. As far as independence went, talkies put them back a good decade or two. And, worse still, talkies were close enough to the stage to remind their audiences, after the first novelty had worn off, that said audiences hadn't seen legitimate in a long while. Silent pictures kept the customers at least partially satisfied in a different medium. Talkies, in the long run, made them realize that flesh-and-blood actors could do the same things a great deal better.

And another power-blind move was the monopolizing of theatres for the cinema. By depriving audiences of the stage, the moguls merely made them want it all the more. With a little legitimate thrown as a sop to the die-hards, the movies could have fought the growing flesh-consciousness of the country a great deal better than they've been able to.

The moguls are just about beginning to realize this. Recently Fox West Coast opened a nine-week route for legitimate through one-night stands, and is trying to book legitimate attractions into it with fair frequency. But it should have happened a great deal sooner. The movies have given the countryside time to get at least partially organized in its appeal for the return of "flesh," and that fact isn't going to do the movies any good. The more concessions they make right now, the more they'll benefit from them later.

A GOOD MECHANIC and even the poorest mechanic can understand in two minutes why our patent process (No. 1,452,953) is the best process for the refacing of mouthpieces.

• But clarinetists and saxophonists do not care so much for the statements of mechanics or manufacturers of mouthpieces.

- To induce them to try and be convinced, facts are better.
- Here is one that we never mentioned till now:
- Nine years ago when our patent was pending, the best saxophone player in the world, known all over the world and responsible for more sales of saxophones than any other four men combined, signed a contract with the Woodwind Company for twenty-five saxophone mouthpieces per week.
- We have this signed contract in our files and our books show that he paid for every one of the mouthpieces delivered.
- This world renowned saxophonist could have had the best hand faced mouthpieces free of charge—he could even have had saxophones without paying for them—
- But he paid for the mouthpieces he had ordered with our patent facing No. 1,452,953.

THEY SAY...

Five-Day Week—Immediate inauguration of the five-day week offers the only lasting relief for unemployment. This change permanently established will return the necessary balance between production and consumption to place the economic situation upon an even keel.—Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union.

Unemployment—The cost of maintaining the unemployed is a national charge. It should be borne out of national taxation in the form of a special unemployment levy on all incomes whether earned or derived from interest and profit.—Arthur Hayday, chairman of the British Trades-Union Congress General Council.

Wages—The way to economic betterment is through improved wage standards and shorter work-days and work-weeks. We need distribution of created wealth to free the wheels of industry, and distribution for the masses can only come through wages.—Bricklayer, Mason and Plasterer, official journal of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America.

Unemployment—There is only one real cure for unemployment, and that is reduced hours of employment. We must cut the big work-day into shorter pieces, cut it up into more pieces.—D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

WHY ENVY A HOT PLAYER? BE ONE

You can easily learn to play "hot" with "HOT MELODY SECRETS." New 2nd edition just published, enlarged to 15 professional secrets (formerly "HOT MELODY SECRETS") at no increase in price. Shortest and most practical improvising book on the market today. Successfully taught for ten years. All instruments except piano.

Teaches how to: Improvise on sight; improvise in any key; and play hot on melody without use of harmony. Continuous hot style throughout the chorus. All tricks printed with notes.

$3—SPECIALLY PRICED—$3

What users say: J. A. Bickert, Chicago, Ill.—"If you can't play hot after learning these secrets you never will." Play hot after learning these secrets you never will.

We do hottest arranging of all kinds at lowest prices. Write for prices.

And This—While Industrial Leaders Gamble With Fate

BEHIND very important doors the menace of communism is discussed these days. Behind other very important doors great industrialists and bankers are reaching for all the soviet gold they can get, giving fine, modern machinery in return.

Behind many factory doors American workmen are discovering that American machinery in Russia, with communist conscript labor, is making products that can be sold in our Atlantic seaboard States for less than they can be made for in our own factories.

Behind many Southern farmhouse doors big cotton growers and miserable share-croppers are waking up to the fact that the red soviets are on the verge of taking over the world cotton market, to the desolation of our Southern workers and producers.

Behind other Southern farmhouse doors the cruelly exploited growers of tobacco are being stricken with the same fear, with pellagra stalking through farms and market places.

Behind other farm doors in the great wheat belt of the Middle West the growers of wheat are being made sick at heart by the knowledge that the hammer and cycle have replaced the Stars and Stripes over the grain cargoes that fix the world price of wheat.

Behind certain great bank doors it is perfectly well known that American machinery, financed by American dollars, has made possible this red invasion of world markets with crops and products that can be sold at any price because the soviets run a vast monopoly for political purposes—and those political purposes sum up to one awful thing: world revolution against democracy.

Ford and General Electric and others can survey their shipments to the soviets with the certain knowledge that in furnishing machinery they furnished munitions of war for the soviets, for the soviets wage war with the machinery of production, until they get ready for the other kind of war.

Meanwhile the strengthened soviet machinery in Russia strengthens the communist machine in the United States and we hear of red riots and fresh red onslaughts against bona fide organizations of labor. The soviets pour back into the United States for destruction a part of the strength gained by the use of American-made mass production machinery.

And there is another side to the picture. Wage-earners in the United States, to a total of more than six million, are out of work. Those that have work are menaced with reduction of wages and thousands have already been forced to accept reduced wages—the most disgraceful blot on our industrial history.

Great banks, including some that have profited from trade with the red tyrants of Moscow, demand that American workers, already underpaid, accept still lower wages. This makes for the kind of desperation that resists red propaganda with decreasing vigor and all too often falls victim to its hideous spell.

With these plain facts before them, what are American industrial leaders thinking of today, that they gamble so lightly with fate?

Unionism as a Social Force

THE value of the trade union movement can not be measured by wage increases, unless these increases are associated with higher living standards, more diffused education and a more enlightened citizenship.

Unionism is a social force because its heart is morally and ethically sound. It is never found pleading for special privilege. Wage rates it asks for are met by the non-union employer. Its pleas for the abolishment of child labor include children of workers who take no part in the fight for better conditions. Its demands that life and limb be protected in shop and mine include all workers. Its creed is all-embracing—regardless of sex, religious belief, politics, nationality or color—it invites all wage earners to join with it in the effort for a higher type of manhood and womanhood.

The time has passed when the trade union movement must apologize for its existence or defend its purposes. Its position is invulnerable because it is supported by grim necessity and by the highest ideals that have actuated man—a larger degree of liberty. A movement founded on these two elements can withstand any shock, as has been proven times without number by the trade unions.

Democracy in Industry

TWO codes of rules and regulations affect the workers; the law upon the statute books, and the rules within industry.

The first determines their relationship as citizens to all other citizens and to property.

The second largely determines the relationship of employer and employe, the terms of employment, the conditions of labor, and the rules and regulations affecting the workers as employes.

The first is secured through the application of the methods of democracy in the enactment of legislation, and is based upon the principle that the laws which govern a free people should exist only with their consent.

The second, except where effective trade unionism exists, is established by the arbitrary or autocratic whim, desire or opinion of the employer and is based upon the principle that industry and commerce cannot be successfully conducted unless the employer exercises the unquestioned right to establish such rules, regulations and provisions affecting the employes of self-interest prompts.

Both forms of law vitally affect the workers' opportunities in life and determine their standard of living. The rules, regulations and conditions within industry in many instances affect them more than legislative enactments. It is, therefore, essential that the workers should have a voice in determining the laws within industry and commerce which affect them, equivalent to the voice which they have as citizens in determining the legislative enactments which shall govern them.

It is as inconceivable that the workers as free citizens should remain under autocratically made law within industry and commerce as it is that the nation could remain a democracy while certain individuals or groups exercise autocratic powers.

It is, therefore, essential that the workers everywhere should insist upon their right to organize into trade unions, and that effective legislation should be enacted which would make it a criminal offense for any employer to interfere with or hamper the exercise of this right or to interfere with the legitimate activities of trade unions.—Excerpt from A. F. of L. Reconstruction Program.

Labor Queries - - - -

Questions and Answers on Labor: What It Has Done; Where It Stands on Problems of the Day; Its Aim and Program; Who's Who in the Ranks of the Organized Toilers, etc., etc.

Q.—Are the workers on the government-owned Alaskan Railroad organized?

A.—Yes. The train service workers are members of the railroad brotherhoods and the rest of the workers are organized in Federal Employees' Union No. 344.

Q.—Is the United Mine Workers of America an industrial organization?

A.—Yes. It includes in its membership all workers employed "in and around coal mines, coal washers and coke ovens on the American continent."

Q.—Who was called "the father of the Canadian labor movement?"

A.—D. J. O'Donoghue, Typographical Union, Ottawa, first vice-president of the Canadian Labor Union, organized in 1873. This was a federation of Canadian unions which had a short life. The work it started was resumed by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Q.—What proportion of the railroads have adopted a union-management co-operative agreement with their shop workers?

A.—A study made by Prof. Louis A. Wood of the University of Oregon shows that four major railroad systems in the United States and Canada, having together about one-sixth of the total combined railroad mileage of the two countries, have adopted the co-operative plan. The railroads are the Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Chicago & North Western and Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific.

Out Beyond the Surf--

Where thought, unhampered by necessity or trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

There is a city in the United States, which shall be nameless, in which the reds have captured, to all intents and purposes, the trade union movement.

In this industrial city a handful of Communists have made the movement respond to its dictates; they have whipped it around their fingers. The story may some day be told and it is a remarkable story.

In another city a handful of reds ran union organizers out of town.

In another city a handful of reds led thousands into a parade, and in still another they picketed a place of employment in which the bona fide union had signed a splendid working agreement with the employers.

These things do not mean that the reds are going to "capture the country," but they do mean that workers made desperate by unemployment, or swayed momentarily by specious arguments, may be so thrown off their mental balance as to become the blind pawns of clever, plotting individuals.

Communism is enough of an issue to demand attention. The reds, like Cataline of old Rome, are perfectly willing to devastate the whole social structure for their own fiendish gratification. And, like Cataline, they will find dupes to play their game, some out of blind hate for something, some out of misunderstanding of the red program, some out of a desire to take part in any adventure, some out of plain, downright ignorance.

Trade union members today simply cannot afford to be uninformed. Trade union members today need to know about things.

It is the fellow who doesn't know who gets swept along.

It is an absolute probability that the reds today have a definite alliance with criminal groups. There is, from their point of view, no reason for failing to use anything that can help destroy the present economic order.

The American Federation of Labor understands the Communist program and the Communist menace.

But there are local groups, here and there, that do not. Else we should not have had the three spectacles already described.

It was the American Federation of Labor that rescued the Fur Workers' International Union. There were plenty of fur workers willing enough to follow the red flag.

Again we recall the following of the evil Cataline. Many of his dupes did not understand that his program meant for them the destruction of their own homes, the slaughter of their own families. When they found that out they deserted Cataline.

It takes some people a long time to find out about the full extent of the disaster that Communism would mean—that it has meant in Russia.

American wage earners today need more than ever to keep their heads.

There is plenty to make men and women desperate for relief. But relief and cure do not come out of destruction.

We have a repair job on our hands, not a wrecking job.

In this hour there is more pressing necessity than ever for the most vigorous measures to keep Communism out of trade unions. There has yet to be brought to us a better philosophy than the philosophy of the American Federation of Labor. What we need is enough energy to apply that philosophy. If we can do that we shall need nothing else. If we have not that much energy nothing else could do us any good anyway. Let us keep our heads!—C. M. W.

Union Wage Is Prevailing Wage

WHEN the Playground Department in Los Angeles stood out like a maverick against all other city departments and determined it would pay wages ranging from $1 to $3 below the union rate, the Los Angeles Central Labor Council decided it was time to fight. The money had been voted by the citizens to provide work for unemployed and that didn't mean destroying standards.

Applying for a mandate to compel payment of the union rate, the unions won a sweeping victory for their contention from Judge Walter Guerin, who decided that the prevailing wage was as contended by the applicants.

Judge Guerin went further and declared that the State's legislative bodies and the people of the city had, by actual decision, taken a stand against wage cuts and for the maintenance of standards.

This decision should be of tremendous importance. The union rate is the prevailing rate. THERE IS AND CAN BE NO OTHER PREVAILING RATE.

OVER FEDERATION FIELD

(By Chauncey A. Weaver)

The Overture, official organ of Local No. 47, Los Angeles, sounds an exultant refrain, in its July issue, over the election of Brother C. L. Bagley to the Vice-Presidency of the American Federation of Musicians. Says the Overture:

Brother Bagley, when he left Los Angeles, had not the slightest intention of becoming a candidate for the office and it was not until insistent demands of scores of delegates were made upon him that he reluctantly consented to enter the race.

Local 47 is extremely proud that one of its best-known and staunchest members was so highly honored and, while we know that Brother Bagley was not at all ambitious to become Vice-President of the Federation, still we believe he must feel a certain degree of pride in being thus rewarded for his many, many years of indefatigable work in the interests of anything and everything which would raise the musician's standard of living.

Then follows a resume of activities beginning with his charter membership in the local organization dated October, 1894. It is a story of untiring effort to promote the best interests of the Federation. Even in face of the professional demands made upon a practicing lawyer, he has answered every call to service, and in a fashion so satisfactory as to reap an ever-increasing manifestation of confidence. That he will be faithful and efficient in his latest summons to responsibility goes without saying for all who know him.

We would gladly share our wonderful corn weather with some of the other States less favored.

The depression is said to be ended, but it will require some time yet to restore all the victims to full consciousness.

Those members of the American Federation of Musicians who are really interested in what its officers and servants are trying to do in promotion of their interests can extract much information by including in their general reading the official report of Brother A. C. Hayden of Washington. Brother Hayden acts not only as national executive officer, but serves the organization as legislative agent at the seat of Federal government. His annual report occupies eight double column pages in the Official Proceedings of the Thirty-sixth Annual (Chattanooga) Convention. Among the topics discussed by him are Unemployment, Army Bandmasters' Bill, Half Holiday for Federal Employees, National Soldiers Home Bands, Competition by Bands of Army and Naval Service, Service Bands on Tour, Radio Programs, Immigration, Copyright Legislation, and Sunday Closing Bills. Brother Hayden treats these various subjects from the angle of the Unionist, the inter-relationship of all trades-union movements, and our individual relationship to the common cause. The Federation members who appreciate the opinion of one who has made a life-long study of industrial problems and their relationship to professional life will find profit in reading the Hayden report.

A Scottish paper declares that bagpipes can be played under water. Under fire-water they ought to sound immense.

Radio performers are the only ones who seem willing to work for the love of mike.—Louisville Times.

We sometimes wish the depression might overtake them, also.

We read almost daily of tragedies caused by irrational efforts of automobile drivers to beat railway trains to a crossing. We get hardened to this class of narrative and forget as soon as read.

The impression is different when something like personal contact is experienced. Upon our round-about return from the Chattanooga Convention we were aboard a Big Four Limited train between Cincinnati and Cleveland when the train struck an automobile carrying a father and mother and two little children just upon entering the city of Gallion. The train stopped and the crew helped pick up the injured. It was said the back of a two-year-old child was broken. The other members of the party were unconscious. There was not a piece left of the automobile worth carrying from the scene. We never heard the final story of the wreck. We call the present the most enlightened age the world has ever seen and yet there are multitudes ready to dispute the right of way with a railway train traveling fifty and sixty miles an hour. Perhaps our high school curriculum should be expanded somewhat.

By this time next year our land of the free and home of the brave will be in the early stages of another red-hot Presidential campaign. Once we looked forward to these quadrennial episodes with eager anticipation. Times have changed, and tastes with them. Then we believed all our own party claimed and disbelieved all the opposite party put forth. Men of all parties are composed of about the same brand of clay. Political hooey now flows at flood-tide. The politicians will promise everything before election. After the votes are counted how little they have to deliver! However, if the people do not rule—whose fault is it?

The Philadelphia Musician is welcome to our exchange-table. In moments of discord, when the times seem out of joint, and the jangling voices of modern days appear hurrying us toward distraction, we shall seize the latest issue, hold it to our ear, and in fancy catch notes of harmonic rapture emanating from "The City of Brotherly Love."

It is always interesting to hear a good orchestra while "getting tuned up." The various instruments sound a beautiful and prophetic note of what is coming. Mr. J. Leo Sullivan of De Paul University faculty has actually found himself so inspired by such a listening that he has reduced his pleasurable impressions to poetic phrase in the following:

Fascinating medley of discords,
Ascending
And Descending
Into the harmony of scale.

Flutes warbling without a message.

Strings drawn true
With a sad utterance
That describes no pain.

The martial tone of brass
While no legion passes.

But O,
The epic they shall tell
In some inspired overture,
When this rude prelude—
This orchestral mustering—
Is done!

The lines are worthy of many a pasting upon orchestral music stands.

Chattanooga now takes her place in the realm of pleasing Federation retrospection, while Los Angeles appears upon the horizon rim of Federation anticipation. How wonderful the mutations of time.

The Cleveland Musician (Local No. 4) reports the most successful benefit concert and entertainment in the history of the local organization. Five thousand people crowded the concert hall. The program review discloses the strength of Cleveland musicianship numerically and emphasizes ample resources of talent in a professional way.

Vancouver, British Columbia, has a fine symphony orchestra. The conductor is Allard De Ridder. A concert was recently given which netted the benevolent fund of Local No. 145 the sum of $1,400. The program included Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," the overture to "Rienzi," and Saint-Saens' "La Carnaval des Animeaux."

RIVALS

THE hurdy-gurdy man meets a baffling problem. Why should his rival, the Robot of Canned Music, perform for money in a theatre, while he and his monkey receive only adulations to move out of the block? Truly, a strange enigma!

Millions have found canned music unsatisfying and have joined the Music Defense League in protest against its substitution for Living Music in the theatre.

If you love good music and value its cultural influence on our national life, it is your privilege to do likewise. Just sign and mail this coupon.

THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS

(Comprising 140,000 professional musicians in the United States and Canada)
JOSEPH N. WEBER, President, 1440 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Other numbers sustained the high grade of general musical offering. It is pleasing to reflect that there are musicians, far as well as near, who are constantly endeavoring to maintain the loftier standards of composition which have enriched the world.

It was General Sherman who said, "War Is Hell!"—Exchange.

It seems a pity sometimes the general could not return and use his fervid rhetoric in framing a comprehensive definition of what is often called Peace.

We have travelled these United States from one end to the other during the past twenty years and observed some mighty fine hotels; but the new Amsterdam Hotel at Cincinnati comes about as near to an architectural dream in the hotel line as we believe could be found anywhere on American soil.

The month of August will usher in the Harvest moon, which will be something of a relief from some of the Radio moonshine which so often taints the mid-summer nocturnal atmosphere.

We read a Chicago paper every day when at home, but we confess the following item escaped our notice and we reproduce the same as a clipping from San Francisco Musical News—official organ of Local No. 6:

Police yesterday were seeking two bandits who held up James C. Petrillo, president of the Musicians' Union, and his wife early yesterday morning in front of their home at 1039 North Austin Boulevard and robbed them of $700 in cash, and jewelry valued at $1,200. The chauffeur, Henry Schiffzich, and the Petrillo nine-year-old son, Le Roy, also were in the car at the time.

With his wife and son, Petrillo had spent the evening at a loop motion picture house. As their machine drew up to the curb another car pulled alongside and two men alighted. One stuck a gun into the chauffeur's ribs while the other covered Petrillo. Then the jewels and money were taken.—A Chicago paper.

From the general reputation of Chicago bandits we think President Petrillo and his party had a lucky escape and we tender all of them hearty congratulations.

The Yankee horse-traders had nothing on the Hollywood crowd.

In our recent swing around the circle a visit to Jamestown, N. Y., home of Local No. 134, was made possible. This thriving city at the foot of beautiful Chautauqua Lake did not seem to exhale very much of an atmosphere of depression. We talked with President G. R. Broadberry by telephone—he having the good sense to spend a hot Saturday afternoon under his own cozy vine and figtree in a suburban part of the city. Secretary James H. Howard gave us an interesting narration of how the Local membership is meeting the trying times through which musicians are now passing. By the way, a band of union musicians from Jamestown came to South Dayton, where we were stopping, and gave a fine Saturday evening concert, which was eminently worth hearing and which attracted the countryside people from far and wide. Incidentally, while skirting the shore at Chautauqua Lake, we recalled playing with a band which sailed her placid bosom more than forty years ago on a Sunday school picnic excursion. "Backward, Turn Backward, O Time In Your Flight!"

The propinquity of Atlanta to Chattanooga made it possible for Brother Karl Karston of Local 148 to spend a couple of days at the thirty-sixth annual convention and greet old friends.

Another A. F. of M. member of international fame as a band leader and composer, Frank H. Losey, of Erie, Pa., has passed away at the age of fifty-eight years. After only a few hours of heart trouble the end came. Brother Losey had composed more than four hundred numbers for band and orchestra. During two intervals for a period of nine years he served as personal musical adviser to Thomas A. Edison in his laboratories at West Orange and was later invited by Henry Ford to assist in arranging a number of selections for the "old-time fiddler" exploitation of earlier American music. Where is the bandman who has not played "Gloria," "Waldameer" and "Call of the Wild?" Brother Losey was a member of Local No. 17 and held in high esteem not only by musicians, but by Erie citizenship generally.

Speaking of the unsung hero—what is the matter with the union musician who keeps his dues promptly paid—even though he has not played a job in over a year?

All political parties will promise to restore prosperity if elected next year.

We hope to report cooler weather in our next.

IS THE RED CROSS DOING ITS DUTY?

John Barton Payne, president of the National Red Cross, told Governor Gifford Pinchot that hungry unemployed Pennsylvania miners could be given no relief because the Red Cross can only function in disasters that are "acts of God." Meanwhile the Red Cross functions under a fat endowment that carries its normal running operations, while its big annual drives are fed by the dimes of the wage earners. To get into the Red Cross situation, this newspaper and International Labor News Service asked a staff representative to look into the charter of the Red Cross and to study the situation. This article is the result.

Is war an "Act of God"? Is a great fire an "Act of God"? If so, according to John Barton Payne, the National Red Cross, its state and local chapters, are at liberty to "furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded in time of war" and to "continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace."

Nowhere in the charter of the National Red Cross, as granted by Congress and approved on January 5, 1905, is the famous phrase used by John Barton Payne to be found. Gifford Pinchot, then of Washington, D. C., was one of the persons named in the original grant of charter. The name of John Barton Payne does not appear in the list of names recited in the charter. He happened later.

What Charter Provides

The charter contains several paragraphs devoted to reciting the purposes and powers of the National Red Cross. These are: "First. To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war, in accordance with the spirit and conditions of the conference of Geneva of October, 1863, and also of the treaty of the Red Cross . . . of August 22, 1864, to which the United States gave its adhesion on March 1, 1882. (The United States was not represented at either time.)

"Second. And for said purpose to perform all the duties devolved upon a national society. . . .

"Third. To succeed to all the rights and property which have been hitherto held and to all the duties which have heretofore been performed by the American Red Cross. . . .

"Fourth. To act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the naval and military authorities as a medium of communication between the people of the United States of America and their Army and Navy, and to act in such matters between similar societies of other governments through the International Red Cross and the government and the people and the Army and Navy of the United States of America.

"Fifth. And to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other national calamities, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."

That last line looks like a pretty large contract. Perhaps the Red Cross is bound by its charter to enter into the matter of Mississippi flood prevention, to say nothing of taking the lead in the prevention of fire disasters.

Just how the theology of John Barton Payne will bring the natural conditions established in great drainage basins by glacial movements, erosions and floods, outside of his "Act of God" definition, is probably too involved even for him to elucidate.

definition of its purposes, wherein they are stated as above quoted.

The last annual report of the National Red Cross, on page 199, shows that it rendered aid in 108 "disasters," of which three were caused by explosions; 24 by fires, seven by forest fires; four by mine explosions, and one shipwreck. And on the same page is the record of relief of Russian refugees in Manchuria, and relief of Russian refugees in Germany, each of which was accomplished by a national appropriation to the amount of $5,000. Then there was a smallpox epidemic in Costa Rica, which received a national appropriation amounting to $7,540.

If the reader is not able to deduce from this data the picture which is in the mind of John Barton Payne when he speaks of an "Act of God," it can only be said that his mental picture does not include anything like the wholesale starvation of women and children in a coal mine district as coming under the definition of a "disaster" in the sense that it is an "Act of God" similar to an explosion of fireworks.

There was such an explosion of fireworks on April 3, 1930, in Devon, Chester County, Pa., in which 144 buildings were damaged or destroyed, 10 persons killed and 47 injured; and in this connection the National Red Cross "assisted" 416 persons.

There was a mine explosion at Kettle Island, Bell County, Ky., on March 29, 1930, in which 16 persons were killed; and here the Red Cross "assisted" 330 persons.

Payne Definition Shaky

Just where the "Act of God" came into these incidents—or for that matter what it had to do with the smallpox epidemic at Costa Rica, is something in which the fire insurance companies and the Army surgeons would be greatly interested. It might affect the rates of insurance premiums, and prophylactic procedures in tropical islands.

Mr. Payne's idea would seem to indicate that the "medicine men" to be called in are those of the voodoo order, in the case of such a disaster as the typhoid epidemic in Hanover County, in Virginia. Against an "Act of God"—what can mortal man do but perform propitiatory acts?

Unemployment—that is not to be attributed to divine or any other kind of providence. That much becomes clear from the enlightening lucubrations of John Barton Payne.

And if, during the coming winter, there should happen to be riots, mobs, hunger marches, and perhaps civil war, on account of persistent unemployment conditions—there is no provision in the categories of Mr. Payne's Red Cross vocabulary which can bring any of this kind of human need within the scope of its benevolent ministrations—unless they go to Costa Rica and get smitten with smallpox.

"Just a Human Heart"

By R. L. REDCLIFFE

Vice-President, Cement Workers Local Union No. 76, Chicago

'Mid all the jumbled up confusion that keeps every day existence of the average American citizen in a state of boiling frenzy, we have failed to seriously consider the possibilities of good or evil that are pent up in the human heart.

Big business, little business, statesmen, clergy, professor, actor, clown or common thief are all (in their separate environment) evidently actuated by a wrong and mistaken psychology.

None of the controlling elements within the nation have up to now approached the causes, or considered a possible remedy for our economic difficulties, giving full consideration for the sentiments that are similar in every heart.

Statesmen and political aspirants face the problem of our country's solvency with discussion of taxes, tariffs and possible bond issues. They fail to deliberate as to whether or not such plans are in conformity with the desires and the ability of the people (generally) to contribute to such a program.

In these days of scientific and mechanical genius men in high places have advanced their own interests, and have catered too freely to their own selfish desires, to such limits that humanity stands back ashamed at the hypocritical duplicity that shrouds itself under the cloak of business or patriotism.

There is no need to elucidate. Every man knows himself. In the heart of each of us there is the conscious feeling of guilt or innocence, that needs neither judge nor jury to expose.

Accusations and controversies between political and business groups; factional strifes and hatreds; contentions, bickerings and vain investigation—all these agencies are doing nothing more nor less than to keep the mind of the people in a state of confusion and uncertainty.

None of these activities is competent to advance the prosperity that is due to the people, collectively.

Conservative government would do well to take proper caution lest history repeat itself by the rising of a people who, having reached the border of reason and self-control, pay no heed to discretion, as in the torture of their outraged sentiments they loosen the passions within the human heart.

Industry, commerce and government must awake to the fact that starving men, women and children are a problem that will not wait patiently for legislation that is necessarily slow.

WHAT THE PEOPLE NEED AND WHAT THE PEOPLE DEMAND AT THIS TIME IS IMMEDIATE RELIEF.

Work must come and wages must be paid before bonds can be bought. Wages must come before manufactured products can be evenly distributed.

When wages are not forthcoming democracy steps aside to make room for slavery, and the fundamental ideals of our Republic are outraged. Popular government is threatened with a breakdown.

The human heart is a machine of far greater power than any machine that is mechanically built, and it is potentially dangerous to rouse the pent up energies of this machine.

We are confronted with an emergency that calls for the attention of the cleverest brains and the most loyal heart in the country if we would keep possible terrors from bringing actual destruction to our Republic.

It is time that we get into a huddle to offer a program and a platform of immediate action that can be safely accepted by our government, by business, and by the people as a whole.

In order to insure success such a conference must convince all factions (within the Nation) that American ideals, principles and institutions must remain un-sullied.

We cannot and must not permit American ideals to become spotted, even though certain elements among us make sacrifices and offer some concessions that hurt their ego or ruffle their pride.

THE URGE OF THE MOMENT IS SERIOUS.

We must not forget that 120,000,000 are more to be feared than the accumulation of billions of dollars in gold that may be hidden behind walls of stone and steel.

In order to give adequate protection to our accumulated wealth, and to the ethical standards that so far have permitted of our industrial and commercial expansion, we must pay attention to the cry from the human heart.

Social justice and moral as well as physical liberty are rights that belong to all of the people—the right to live without fear of slavery or persecution is included in our franchise.

Business and labor executives should meet with statesmen, prepared to weigh the sentiments of the human heart, and to deal fairly with all human aspirations.

The conference should go into session with a tremble of august fear, and in full realization of the irrefutable truth that, while labor is constructive under right treatment, it can become destructive under the torture of conditions that strain human tolerance and endurance.

CONFIDENCE MUST BE RETURNED TO THE BODY OF THE PEOPLE. Work must open up, wage standards must be held at a level that allows laboring people to retain their self-respect.

We have it in our power to avoid a debacle if we will but bend our ear to the whisperings that come from the great heart of humanity, and if we are ready to give a pound for a pound.

Let us hope that in all wisdom leaders will realize in time that, as a nation of people, we are a family with JUST A HUMAN HEART.

OPEN-AIR CONCERTS

The crowds that gather these summer evenings to listen to the band concerts are mute testimony to the cheering power of good music. To see real musicians playing real instruments in a real band stand takes one back to the days when no summer evening was considered complete without an open-air concert by the municipal band, with plenty of request numbers and other evidences of sympathy between band and audience.

Kansas City is singularly dependent upon its band concerts for summer evening entertainment in the open, because of a general lack of water sports, summer opera and other attractions that help to make summer a pleasurable season in other large cities. St. Louis has its municipal opera which has become an enormous civic advertisement. The large coast cities, both east and west, are indulging at this time of year in exciting water sports. Even such inland cities as St. Paul and Minneapolis long ago annexed nearby lakes for water tournaments.

While the Ten-Year Plan committee prepares for a stadium and outdoor theatre that will afford entertainment for future generations in Kansas City, we find in the excellent band concerts in the parks much to compensate us for any lack of other summer merrymaking.

The band concert season should be stretched to cover as many weeks of summer as possible, so that the end of music in the parks need not be announced until cooler evenings arrive and there is other diversion for the crowds who now gather nightly to listen to the harmonies that revive old memories and inspire new dreams.—Kansas City Star.

UNEMPLOYMENT ON INCREASE

President Green Says Situation is Growing Steadily More Critical.

William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, has issued the following statement on unemployment based on reports received during the month of July:

"Unemployment in industry increased again in July, according to reports from trade unions. Our weighted figures show a rise from 17.1 per cent out of work in May to 18.2 per cent in June and 18.9 per cent in July. Efforts to keep men at work at least part time are evidently not sufficient. There has been no increase in part-time work this month; 19 per cent of the membership are still on short schedule. In some industries part-time work has actually decreased while unemployment rose.

"The July unemployment increase is not quite so large as in June, but it brings industrial unemployment almost to the February level. We estimate that about 175,000 have lost their jobs since June.

"Fortunately the harvesting season on farms is calling for more labor, and some 275,000 farm laborers have been taken on in the last month, we estimate. Although those who were laid off in industry last month probably are not the ones who found work on farms, the farm employment does reduce the total number out of work by about 100,000. We estimate that in July about 5,200,000 persons were unemployed. This is small gain since the January peak, when 6,300,000 were out.

"The unemployment situation is growing steadily more critical. Farm employment will only last for the summer season and into October. This year, with the small spring wheat crop, there will probably not be many more farm jobs than those already filled. The 800,000 who have found work on farms since January, will be out of work again next winter. We cannot expect permanent improvement in the employment situation before winter, though the fall busy season will give temporary work for a few months. If industrial unemployment should increase as much from July to next January as it does in normal prosperous years, we shall have 7,000,000 out of work next winter.

"We must look forward to a worse unemployment problem next winter than last. The National Association of Community Chests, after a survey of 134 American cities, expects that relief needs will probably be twice as great. Here is a problem which requires immediate action; much of the suffering can be avoided if preventive measures are started now.

"First is the crucial need of shortening work hours. This is the only permanent solution to the unemployment problem; other measures are mere palliatives. When we consider that with modern machines in our factories, work which took the average man 52 hours in 1919 he can now do in 34 hours, and that average work hours have only been reduced from 52 to 50 a week, we understand why spare time has become unemployment instead of leisure. Hundreds of thousands have permanently lost their jobs. Shortening work hours this winter for all workers in the plant would distribute available work so that none now at work need be laid off, it would also make a necessary permanent readjustment so that as industry recovers from depression, those now unemployed might find work.

"Second—employment guarantees. Practically every employer can assure employment to the minimum force he will need from November through April. If the 20,000,000 wage earners, who will probably have fairly regular work through the winter, knew now that they were to keep their jobs their mental attitude would be reversed. Instead of hoarding every possible cent and living in constant fear of unemployment, anxiety would cease and they would release millions of dollars to buy goods. All industry would benefit.

"The third and fourth points in a program for next winter are emergency measures: 3. Create work. Public work in parks and on public buildings and roads where possible; private work in homes; work for welfare organizations. 4. Secure funds for relief, both municipal and private.

"Trade union figures by trades are as follows:

	1931	1930
	July*	June July
Building	49	48 39
Printing	13	12 7
Metal Trades	33	31 21
Textile and Clothing	38	29 46
All trades
(weighted)	18.9	18.2 15.7."

SHORT STORIES ON WEALTH

By IRVING FISHER

Professor of Economics, Yale University

STABILIZING THE DOLLAR

In the last short story I tried to show how the index number of the cost of living can be used to mend the unstable dollar by, so to speak, putting a patch on it from the outside. It has never been, and probably never will be, applied to the great bulk of contracts, both because it is too much trouble and because the Money Illusion prevents most people from seeing the need of it.

But instead of thus using index numbers for mending the dollar from the outside to counteract its fluctuations, they may be used for mending it from the inside so as to prevent those fluctuations.

To stabilize the buying power of monetary units has long been a dream of economists. And after the World War, with its new lessons in monetary instability, this dream has, to some extent, approached realization.

Some economists, bankers, and statesmen have come to recognize that nearly all inflation and deflation are man-made, and have asked why we should not have a man-made stabilization.

Progress toward stable money is now easier than ever before because of the advent of index numbers. Only in the last generation has the index been available as a tell-tale of the fateful fluctuations in money units. Just as we could not get a stable unit of weight until the instrument of measure, the weighing scale or balance was developed, and just as we could not get stable units of electricity until suitable electric instruments were developed, so we could not get a stable dollar until the instrument called an index number was developed. Prior to that advent of the index number as an instrument for measuring, even the concept of a stable buying power of money was too vague to form the basis of reform.

The problem underlying the stabilizing of the dollar is to get a better correspondence between the two great streams, the circulation of money and the circulation of goods. This correspondence will not fully take care of itself. The money stream is under the control of the issuers of money. The great issuers of money today are the central banks. They are properly expected to provide money and credit to expand or shrink with the expansion or shrinkage of the business to be done by it. The main trouble with business and employment today is that credit has shrunk too much relatively to business.

Credit currency has grown to be a larger part of our money than the gold stock into which it is redeemable. In England and America, the proportion of credit currency to gold is about seven to one; the tail now wags the dog. Today, then, instead of saying that the paper dollar or the credit dollar derives its value from the gold dollar into which it is convertible, it would be truer to say that the gold dollar derives its value from the credit dollar into which it is convertible. And since the volume of circulating credit is controllable and controlled, we have already a managed currency in spite of ourselves. If we insure good management we shall thereby attain stabilization.

At several international conferences following the World War the question of stabilizing the buying power of money was discussed. Finally, at the Economic Conference at Genoa in 1922, an epoch was marked by the unanimous adoption, by the representatives of more than 30 nations, of resolutions favoring such stabilization and indicating some of the methods to be employed. These included co-operative action among the great central banks of the world concerning the use to be made of gold reserves and as to the discount policy to be pursued.

These economic experts, at the Genoa Conference, recommended:

"The essential requisite for the economic reconstruction of Europe is the achievement, by each country, of stability in the value of its currency."

They then proceeded to outline the specific steps which should immediately be taken.

Still more epoch-making was the inauguration of actual efforts in this direction by the Federal Reserve System in 1922. Officials of the Federal Reserve Board and banks realized that, in America, with huge gold reserves threatening inflation, all possible steps should be taken to prevent it. Then was born into the world a new policy, almost unnoticed and scarcely self-conscious, yet destined, I believe, to replace the traditional policy of drifting helplessly and hopelessly on the supposedly inevitable tides of money.

The dollar, in short, has been partially safeguarded against wide fluctuations ever since the Federal Reserve System finally set up the Open Market Committee in 1922 to buy and sell securities, especially government bonds, for the purpose of influencing the credit situation. This committee was reorganized in 1923 "with primary regard to the accommodation of commerce and business, and to the effect of such purchases or sales on the general credit situation." The Federal Reserve System thereby tacitly recognized its duty to control or influence credit, and seemed astonished, even a bit frightened, to discover that it possessed the tremendous power over credit which it has. This power, rightly used, makes the Federal Reserve System the greatest public service institution in the world.

As the Worker Sees His World

Summary and Digest of Important Events Here and Abroad.

President Rubio of Mexico has ordered a cut in the wages of Federal employes, saying that it is necessary because of the decrease in national income.

The Canadian House of Commons on July 20 passed a bill providing for payment by the government of 75 per cent of the cost of old-age pensions, 50 per cent of which are now paid by the government.

France has reduced her armed forces to an irreducible minimum under present conditions in Europe, she notified the League of Nations on July 21, in reply to the League's request for information and suggestions to facilitate the 1932 disarmament conference.

To suggest that maintenance of way workers on the railroads, already underpaid, be asked to take wage cuts is inhuman and cannot be considered, President F. H. Fljozdal of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes recently declared.

Albert L. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, convicted for accepting a bribe for transferring government oil lands to private interests, entered the New Mexico state penitentiary at Santa Fe on July 21 to begin serving a sentence of a year and a day.

Need for unemployment and other relief during the coming winter will be more acute than last winter, even if business improves, and relief funds must be largely supplied by municipal and county appropriations, the President's Emergency Committee for Employment has been informed by the National Association of Community Chests and Councils.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly

Bernarr MacFadden, the new owner of Liberty Magazine, announces to the world that in the three months since he bought that weekly publication he has made $200,000 in profit, thus reversing the long story antedating his purchase.

MacFadden says he made this showing by the simple expedient of eliminating administrative charges that became unnecessary when the weekly was brought into a combination, a little expansion of already existing organization serving to handle the added unit.

This is the old, old story of combination.

Administrative costs are saved, purchases can be made at lower unit costs, and everybody is happy except those who have to walk the plank because of consolidation.

But the business merger is heartless. It cheapens unit costs, but finds no way, by and large, to do anything to smooth the road for the man who gets fired. He is the goat, though the rest of us may profit here and there.

Mergers don't always bring cheapened costs. Sometimes they serve to afford a basis for new stock and bond issues which demand greater profit margins for interest and dividend purposes.

Sometimes generation after generation goes on paying tribute to the gentlemen whose watered stock must earn its keep, legitimately or otherwise.

There are many classical examples of that.

"Business is business," we have been told, down through the ages. Which merely means that in business you have to put profit above everything and let the human equation shift for itself.

Perhaps that is right enough, at that, for if the human equation will but organize so as to make its power effective it can mighty well shift for itself.

Business organizes for greater power and effectiveness. Working people should do the same. Until they do, "business" will be "business," whether we like it or not.

Mergers, improved machinery, new materials—all the discoveries and developments of a "straight line production" age have served to make it easier to produce what we need and to do it in much less time.

But because "business" is the watchword, humanity gets only a part of the great benefit possible. We know how to turn out goods, but we do not know how to so distribute the goods as to make a healthy, happy nation of men, women and children free from the fear of poverty.

That, gentlemen of finance and manufacture, is the next job.

And it will be done.

It will be done pretty much at the speed with which men and women learn to organize.

One good way to create the spirit for organization and the understanding necessary to good organization is to spread labor papers.

Every union should have a committee constantly on the job getting labor newspapers into the hands of non-union workers.

It is an everlasting disgrace that American labor newspapers do not have double and quadruple their present circulation. Give them that and watch the unions' rosters grow!

Organization, today, to get anywhere, must be based on knowledge, vision, understanding of our surroundings. The ant is the perfect example of organization of one kind. But the work of the ant is today as it was a thousand years ago. Human organization requires more than instinct. HUMAN ORGANIZATIONS TODAY MUST KEEP PACE WITH THE WORLD AROUND THEM.

Organize—AND KNOW WHY. Learn it by reading trade union newspapers.

REMARKABLE THINGS SAID

Gino Olivetti, at International Chamber of Commerce:

The purchasing power of wages has more than quadrupled as compared with the year 1650; it has tripled as compared with the year 1880; and has increased by about 50 per cent as compared with the year 1890.

E. G. Minor, Before International Chamber of Commerce:

Enough American business leaders have realized, however, that business organizations to be successful must have long-time, far-seeing programs. A number of successful concerns could be mentioned which have long, unbroken records of payments to stockholders, and some of these companies are making plans and organizing their production facilities for future anticipated demands from five to twenty-five years in advance.

Edward A. Filene:

Mass production in the modern industrial sense is the focussing of the principals of power, accuracy, economy, speed, continuity and system upon a manufacturing project with the result that a useful commodity of standard design, workmanship and material is manufactured at a minimum cost.

Professor Schroedinger:

* Although I think that life may be the result of an accident, I do not think that of consciousness. Consciousness cannot be accounted for in physical terms.

E. E. Free:

Metallurgical experts have turned up a clue as to why a small addition of copper, for example, makes aluminum stronger. Microscopic grains of copper form tiny "keys" to prevent slipping, just as a carpenter uses dowels to fasten wooden parts together.

Kent Cooper:

Reflect upon what it means to have the millions of the people of the United States framing their thoughts on the facts in the same identical news story at the same time.

Cash and Carry

Customer—I want some powder to kill cockroaches.

Clerk—Will you take it with you?

Customer—No, I'll have the cockroaches call and you can rub it on their little tummies!—Ex.

Not in the Text-Book

Douglas—Mother teaches me astronomy.

Ernest—How is that?

Douglas—Well, when she takes down the razor strap there is sure to be spots on the son.—Ex.

Each Has His Share

If times are hard, and you feel blue,

Think of the others worrying, too;

Just because your trials are many,

Don't think the rest of us haven't any.

Life is made up of smiles and tears,

Joys and sorrows, mixed with fears;

And though to us it seems one-sided,

Trouble is pretty well divided.

If we could look in every heart,

We'd find that each one has its part,

And those who travel Fortune's road

Sometimes carry the biggest load.

"Is your wife having any success in learning to drive the car?"

"Well, the road is beginning to turn when she does."—Toronto Goblín.

"Well," said the visitor to the little son of the famous motorist, "and how are you getting on at school?"

"Fine," said the little chap. "I'm now learning words of five cylinders."—London Chronicle.

The Gossip—"I hear your store was robbed last night. Lose much?"

The Optimist—"Some. But it would have been worse if the yeggs had got in the night before. You see, yesterday I just finished marking down everything 20 per cent."—Detroit News.
