Beginning the Seventies as the world's largest advertising medium for the seventeenth straight year.

You See LOGOS Everywhere, And You Don't Even Know It.

If you're involved in communications (and who isn't?) we're not easy to miss. Almost every time you turn on your TV set, or see a government briefing, network sports show, or business film, you're likely to be seeing us. Our business is total communications. If you have communications problems, it's about time you knew who we were!

LOGOS is one of the largest production centers on the East Coast. We're located in Washington because there's no other city, in our opinion, where communications are so important. Our goal is to give government, education and industry in Washington, and all over the country, the best in Televisionology—optimal communications through a scientific blending of hardware and creative talent.

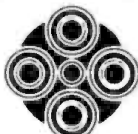

We use our unique facilities anywhere you need the best in TV. Our three fully equipped mobile trucks have followed the President, watched space shots from Cape Kennedy, seen Palmer drop that all-important putt. We're everywhere the action is.

The expert LOGOS staff of technicians, directors, producers, and multimedia specialists both here and in New York, can create anything from two-hour musical specials to government briefings, training films, instructional TV presentations or multi-visual packages. Our sound stage, third largest in the East, is equipped with the manpower and machinery to handle your communications problem—no matter how large or complex.

And our post-production facilities are unsurpassed for quality and economy. We dub, edit and transfer 1" or 2" tape (kinescope) to everything from 35 millimeter down to Super 8.

In order to serve you better, Logos has established two new divisions: LOGOS Video Consultants and LOGOS Educational Products. They're ready to help you solve your communication difficulties.

Now that you know why you've been seeing us all over town, isn't it about time you saw us in your office? Call Bill Gladmon, President of LOGOS, and ask to see our demonstration reel. It will show you how TV and LOGOS can make people know all about you.

LOGOS TELEPRODUCTION CENTER

3620 S. 27th Street, Arlington, Virginia 22206. (703) 671-1300

Here are some people who know about LOGOS. They appreciate our expertise. So will you! . . . ABC, CBS, Public Broadcast Laboratory, NASA, COMSAT, Japan Broadcasting Company, "Firing Line", HEW, Tele Tape Productions, Democratic National Committee, Lawrence Dobrow & Associates, J. Walter Thompson, Ted Bates and Company, USIA, Ketchum MacLeod & Grove, Republican National Committee, Gargill Wilson & Acree, U. S. Army, NBC, NET and U. S. Air Force.

Broadcasting 1970 Yearbook

Quick guide to sections

Information in this YEARBOOK is divided into homogeneous sections as described in the boxes at right. Here's how to locate a section rapidly:

Hold the YEARBOOK in your left hand. With your right hand bend the book back so that the black markings on the right edges of the pages appear. If you wish to find a page in the A section, for example, place your right thumb over the black bar to the right of the letter A at upper right on this page and riffle through all pages containing a similar black bar in the same position; at the end of that sequence of markings will appear the first page of the A section. The same procedure can be used to find the beginning of any other section, starting with your thumb on the black bar on this page to the right of the letter of the section you wish to locate.

VIDEO DELAY LINES

Wide band fixed delay lines replace bulky cables and passive equalizers. Any increment of delay from a few to hundred of feet is available. Continuously variable delay lines allow you to easily handle problem areas of changing source delay. A single unit replaces cable, equalizer and amplifier—up to 275 feet of cable delay.

ZERO STUDIO DELAY

Route a single source (Camera, VTR, Film Chain) into more than one studio easily. This unique system eliminates switcher delay and allows you to dissolve one switcher into another

DMA-THE PROBLEM SOLVER

Allocating advertising dollars to specific marketing areas. Matching time and space buys with client sales areas. Evaluating overall marketing plans. These are only a few of the difficult and time-consuming tasks that can be simplified through the use of Nielsen's DMA concept.

DMA (Designated Market Area) is a carefully studied way of dividing the country into some 200 non-overlapping county groupings. The groupings are, in general, created by assigning each county exclusively to the one market whose TV stations dominate viewing within the area. Sales quotas, product distribution, marketing plans, advertising weight and expenditures and consumer sales, all can be evaluated within one common area.

Three years ago NSI started reporting TV audience and TV ownership estimates by DMAs to meet this need. Today others see the need too. For example, newspapers and magazines now relate their circulation to DMAs.

What about you? Is DMA part of your program? If you're selling TV time, it should be. National advertisers and agencies have proven DMA's value as an efficient means to plan, buy and evaluate spot TV advertising.

If it's really "special" it's on NBC!

That's what we said before the 1968-'69 season. Then we proved the point by presenting 14 of the 20 top-rated Specials over the course of the season.

And this season's offerings have been even brighter, with "star specials" featuring—among many others—Herb Alpert, Julie Andrews, Jack Benny, Johnny Carson, Bill Cosby, Tony Curtis, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Mitzi Gaynor, Bob Hope, Lena Horne, Debbie Reynolds, Roy Rogers, Diana Ross, Peggy Fleming and Flip Wilson.

Other specials have reflected today's complex world in myriad ways—from a program on the life and art of famed pianist Arthur Rubinstein to "From Here to the Seventies," an NBC News projection of developments during the next decade... and from meaningful contemporary drama on the Hallmark Hall of Fame and Prudential's On Stage to youthful fantasies like "Babar Comes to America."

In short, there are specials and there are Specials. But if it's really Special, you'll find it on NBC.

1969—a year of trial and triumph

Popularity of moonshot spectaculars offset by threats of censorship, complaints and criticism from the Hill

A time of trials—that's what 1969 held for broadcasters.

Cigarette advertising, a smoldering issue in 1968, flared into a full-scale campaign waged by Congress and regulatory agencies to get the offensive commercials off the air. Violence in televised programming bore the brunt of blistering criticism as the specter of a code czar hung over the networks.

Major-market broadcasters found their licenses targeted by local citizens' groups—inspired, in part, by a new breed of broadcast reformer determined to shake and move the industry. And Spiro T. Agnew, at last, became a household word, but it spelled censorship of news and commentary deemed unpalatable to the current administration.

Troubles from many quarters came at a time when television and radio were bringing, literally, to the world the most spectacular remote of men walking on the moon.

Business remained good throughout 1969, although the threat of lost cigarette billings cast a pall on prospects of keeping up the heady pace. Third-quarter spot-TV spending—always an index of television-station prosperity—was put by the Television Bureau of Advertising at $256,516,700, an estimated 13% increase in national and regional spot over 1968. Network-TV sales through November were pegged at 10.1% ahead of the same 1968 period for an 11-month total of $1,526,360,700.

Estimates for radio business were more cautious. Spot radio increased by 6.5% in the first six months of 1969 over the comparable 1968 period to a total of $167.6 million, according to the Radio Advertising Bureau. But it was noted that tobacco companies were spending less in broadcast, probably experimenting with other media forms in anticipation of a 1971 ban on cigarette advertising in TV-radio.

A BROADCASTING canvass of station reps and network radio authorities showed that despite softness in spot, radio could be expected to exceed by 1% or 2% its first billion-dollar year in 1968. The top-50 TV-radio agencies billed an estimated $288.6 million more in 1969 than 1968. For the 12th straight year, J. Walter Thompson was the biggest broadcast agency with $284.9 million in total broadcast billings, $261.6 million of it in TV.

Television-set sales continued their upward trend in 1969. Electronic Industries Association reported that the six-months of the year saw foreign-label TV product virtually tripled in U.S. sales over a comparable 1968 period; foreign-label imports of home radios were up 50%. Color-set sales for the 1969 six-month period were 2,948,785 of 6,251,150 total TV-set sales.

One hundred twenty-five million TV viewers were probably glued to their TV sets on the night of July 20-21 when Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. treated them to a two-and-a-quarter hour lunar spectacle as they collected rocks, bounced weightlessly across the moon's surface and talked by radio telephone to President Richard M. Nixon. In all the black-and-white lunar origination lasted five hours and six minutes, but the networks provided the longest show by airing about 30 hours of continuous coverage of the feat.

The lunar spectacular cost the networks an estimated minimum $11 million loss in expenditures and revenue and involved an estimated 1,000 personnel. The lunar walk travelled to countless hundreds of millions of persons around the world via an intricate hookup of ground stations with satellites. The Communications Satellite Corp. reported that approximately 230 hours of satellite time involving a network of 20 ground stations were used for the worldwide distribution of that single event.

The sophistication of satellite hardware and the uses to which they could be put also increased in 1969. The Intelsat III satellites, launched in 1968-69, provided 1,200 voice circuits, had 300 channels reserved for TV use and had a life expectancy of five years, compared with the first Early Bird series, which had a single one-way TV channel available. It was also cheaper for the U.S. TV networks to use the satellites: Comsat, the manager of the international satellite consortium (Intelsat), effected a 40% reduction in rates this year. Communications analysts were predicting that the need for ground stations to relay programs from satellites could be alleviated by direct broadcasting from satellites to TV stations. A more direct form of satellite transmission of TV programs—to specially modified home receivers—was also thought feasible, and at this time, uneconomical.

The satellites were to have aided in a color-TV show from the moon, the chief attraction of the Apollo 12 launch, but that failed when a Westinghouse-CBS Laboratories field-sequential-system camera functioned barely 40 minutes on the lunar surface before being exposed to—and burned out by—direct sunlight. Blasé viewer reaction keyed what proved to be primarily an aural space mission: The ratings sagged as the networks scaled down the coverage and improvised with simulations of the moon walk. The poor audience caused one producer to comment: "Who can remember the name of the second man to fly across the Atlantic?"

Congress, however, had a longer memory over old scores left unsettled from 1968. And it was principally here and at the FCC that broadcasters faced their greatest and most serious challenges.

Broadcasters awoke in 1969 with a $236-million headache. Those are the stakes involved in the broadcast cigarette advertising battle, which held more cliffhangers than Pauline had perils as each week brought a new and ominous threat to them.

The FCC fired the opening salvo by proposing to ban all such advertising on radio and television unless blocked by Congress—or unless broadcasters themselves voluntarily gave up those revenues. That pronouncement inspired a mild House bill that was almost a simple extension of previous legislation, except it sought to hamstring regulatory prohibitions for at least six years. Meanwhile, the FTC moved to require health warnings in all cigarette advertising but also deferred action until Congress had its say in the matter.

Broadcasters and tobacco manufacturers appealed to the Supreme Court for relief from an FCC ruling requiring broadcasters to carry anticigarette announcements. The rule was sustained by an appellate court; the broadcasters claimed it was unconstitutional. Apparently the high court disagreed, by refusing to review the lower court order.

The anticigarette movement found support in the Senate where Frank E. Moss (D-Utah) vowed that Congress would pass tougher legislation. With the handwriting on the wall, some broadcasters began to voluntarily withdraw their cigarette schedules.

The National Association of Broadcasters offered to gradually phase-out broadcast cigarette ads by 1973. But its former allies, the tobacco industry, trumped that move by offering to withdraw from the medium by September 1970 and as early as Jan. 1, 1970, if Congress gave it antitrust immunity.

The Senate eschewed using antitrust law to effect social purposes by passing a statutory ban on broadcast cigarette advertising by Jan. 1, 1971 and requiring stiffer health warnings in all such ads. The bill is now before Senate-House conferees, but broadcasters are already looking ahead to the dent that will be felt in their over-all billings. By one BROADCASTING count, 3,820 minutes will be up for grabs on the three TV networks; television will be hardest hit by the pull-out, radio less so; agencies with major revenues tied up in cigarette billings are less sure of their fate.

Another move against broadcast billings came from Congress, which was increasingly concerned about the high cost of politicking on the broadcast medium. In bills that received widespread congressional support, broadcasters would be required to give each House candidate 60 minutes of prime-TV time and each Senate candidate 120 minutes during the last five weeks before elections at 30% of their regular commercial rates. Some broadcasters responded by offering to cut their rates for political campaigns.

Much of 1969 was spent by broadcasters in trying to mollify congressional concern over TV-radio programing. Television violence—a residual controversy created in the turmoil of events in 1968—occupied Congress most of the spring. Senator John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) launched a formal campaign to investigate the whole area of taste in television programs. The initial concern was whether violence on television provoked violent, antisocial behavior in its viewers. To discover the possible causal link, Senator Pastore urged a full-scale probe by the U.S. surgeon general, which was eventually funded for $1 million and scheduled to be completed by this year.

A national commission on violence, spawn from the 1968 assassinations, drew an early bead on TV program fare by indicting the networks for contributing to violence in America. The commission called on the networks to reduce violence in children's cartoons, a measure which the networks had already taken in preparation for the 1969-70 TV season. Many of the fall programs reflected a nonviolent trend as Marshal Matt Dillon kept his revolver holstered more often and lawyers, doctors, widows and cute moppets ruled the airwaves.

More ominous threats against the broadcaster's news function prevailed throughout 1969. A November 1967 special on a marijuana party, aired by CBS-owned WBBM-TV Chicago, earned a scathing report from the House Special Investigations Subcommittee and the FCC chief hearing examiner. Both found the event was "prearranged for the benefit of CBS"; the subcommittee recommended stiff legislation for curbs on the news judgments and practices of broadcast licensees.

The FCC, however, merely scolded CBS for airing the program which, it said, involved the "inducement of the commission of [a] crime." And on two other occasions it refused to read in the "sensitive" area of news judgments. Congressional complaints about two CBS news programs charged that the network had deliberately staged and distorted the controversial issues covered. The commission found that no further hearings were warranted in either case. And in a welcomed policy statement it said it would "eschew" the censor's role" and would act with restraint in investigating other similar complaints. In no case would license renewals be brought into jeopardy because of controversial-issues coverage, except where there is intrinsic evidence that the licensee or top management is involved, the commission said.

But the commission was given a virtual go-ahead to exercise tougher regulations on programing by a landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision that stunned the broadcasting industry in June. The court, by a 7-to-0 vote, held that the FCC's fairness doctrine and the so-called "personal attack" rules that the commission adopted to implement it "enhance rather than abridge the freedoms of speech and press protected by the First Amendment." Thus, one of the principal arguments broadcasters had made against government regulation of their handling of controversial issues of public importance was rejected.

It was agreed among network officials that the impact of the court's action could only be measured by the use the commission makes of it. But a changing of the guard there in 1969 made for some assurances regarding the issue.

Dean Burch, former campaign manager for Republican presidential hopeful Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), picked up the FCC chairman's reins dropped by Rosel H. Hyde, who retired after 45 years of government service. At the outset Chairman Burch declared his opposition to the notion that programing quality can be upgraded by prescription from Washington. Joining Chairman Burch on the commission was Robert Wells, a former broadcaster, who took the seat vacated by James J. Wadsworth.

The year also produced unprecedented attacks from government officials. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew delivered two November blasts at the Eastern establishment-based and "biased" news media that unleashed a storm of protest from viewers across the nation directed towards broadcasters. What provoked the assaults was news commentary by the networks following a presidential address on Vietnam. Asserting that the American people would not tolerate in government the kind of concentration of power he said the networks enjoy, the Vice President asked:

"Is it not fair and relevant to question its concentration in the hands of a tiny and closed fraternity of privileged men, elected by no one, and enjoying a monopoly sanctioned and licensed by government? As with other American institutions, perhaps it is time that the networks were made more responsive to the views of the nation and more responsible to the people they serve."

The specter of government censorship created by these remarks, predictably, raised the hackles of broadcast officials; Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, saw in them the most serious threat to journalism since the Alien and Sedition Acts.

Looming at year end was another issue in programing: obscenity. An allegedly obscene poem broadcast on a Pacifica Foundation station sparked from FCC Commissioner Robert E. Lee an angry dissent that had repercussions on Capitol Hill. Chairman Burch promised he would ride herd on the issue by attempting to draw up guidelines; the Department of Justice agreed to prosecute certain test cases brought by the commission; Senator Pastore proved eager to prod the commission along should its interest in the matter falter.

But Senator Pastore was not always the broadcaster's nemesis this year. He came to the aid and comfort of the industry when the commission stunned it by stripping Boston Herald Traveler-owned WHDH-TV Boston of its 12-year-old license and awarded it to a competing applicant, Boston Broadcasting Inc. The FCC said the change would promote greater diversification of control of mass media and integration of management and ownership.

Although the commission later took pains to point out that the WHDH-TV case was unique and did not constitute a precedent, broadcasters were paying more heed to Commissioner Nicholas Johnson's view: "The door is thus opened for local citizens to challenge media giants in their local community at renewal time with some hope for success. . . ."

The WHDH-TV decision created a new breed of broadcast reformer determined to challenge established licensees. One estimate put a $3-billion price tag on those facilities threatened by the commission's decision. More than 15 major-market outlets were targeted by citizens and minority groups, who submitted competing applications promising more local ownership and more locally attuned programing. Accordingly, broadcasters sought refuge in a bill sponsored by Senator Pastore, which would require the FCC to deny the present holder a license before accepting competing applications for the facility.

At year end Chairman Burch was attempting to take the sting out of WHDH-TV. The chairman suggested a policy whereby an applicant for renewal would get the grant following comparative hearing if he makes an adequate showing that his program service was substantially attuned to the needs and interests of his area. A return to weighing program performance over media concentration issues—a controlling procedure for judging license renewals since 1951—may prove to be the brightest hope in an otherwise dismal year for broadcasters.

Busy year ends on up-note for CATV

FCC order to originate programs and permitting sale of advertising buoys hopes of system owners

CATV operators who have had a sort of roller coaster existence during the last five years—from booming times to slow down to speeding up, all as a result of FCC actions—may be excused if they show evidence of a manic-depressive psychosis.

Only six months ago, at the annual convention of the National Cable TV Association in San Francisco in June, cable TV operators were depressed. The industry was still smarting at the restrictions proposed by the FCC in December 1968 and which the commission staff was invoking in CATV matters even though the proposals had not been adopted formally by the commission.

Yet, as 1969 drew to a close, cable TV entrepreneurs had their hopes and their goals set higher than ever before.

What buoyed them to these heights was a series of events that opened up vistas most cable enterprisers had only dreamed about.

Among these were the FCC's order telling them they must originate programs and allowing the sale of advertising; a Senate subcommittee's recommendations on copyright, the U.S. Supreme Court action upholding the FCC's authority to require telephone companies to get commission approval before building and leasing CATV circuits; the upbeat advocacy of the whole concept of broadband communications into the home had reached its acme in the filing before the FCC by the Electronic Industries Association and the commission's action last November approving the use of microwave frequencies for short hops, presaging a type of wireless CATV that never occurred to the progenitors of the industry.

Perhaps the best news cable-TV operators received this first year of the Nixon administration was the statement to the FCC by the Department of Justice, reiterating its view that it looked with favor on CATV as providing a new and competitive communications service for the American public.

Cable-TV operators breathed more easily when that filing took place; they had feared that the new administration might reverse what had been for some years the pro-CATV outlook by the federal government's antitrust lawyers.

The Department of Justice's filing, in the FCC's cable-TV proceedings, held out, as it had in previous declarations, for less restrictions on CATV in order to assure its emergence as a fully competitive communications medium.

What gave cable-TV operators a boost was that the Justice Department's view, although not new, was repeated by the new Nixon administration. It meant, some industry sources indicated, that the national administration was on their side—or, at least, not opposed to them.

In its filing, the Department of Justice's antitrust division held that the draft agreement last summer between the National Association of Broadcasters and the NCTA was "overly protectionist." The public, the department said, "has vital interests which are not necessarily co-extensive with those of the broadcasters or the CATV operators."

Holding that the public interest requires competition that results from a diversity of information and entertainment, as well as lower advertising rates, the Department of Justice termed the proposed concord a design to minimize competition and protect existing market power.

The agreement to which the Department of Justice addressed itself had been worked out during the summer of 1969 between the staffs of both organizations. The agreement provided that CATV would: (1) become liable for copyright payments, (2) respect the exclusivity provisions in contracts between TV stations and program suppliers, (3) agree not to interconnect cable systems, (4) carry all local TV stations, meaning those stations that put a Grade B signal over the cable TV's community, (5) be permitted to import distant TV signals to enable a cable system to provide its subscribers with three network and three independent TV stations, (6) be permitted to originate one channel of entertainment and one channel carrying advertising.

Although the NCTA board of directors overwhelmingly endorsed the agreement, the NAB board on the other hand turned it down flat. NAB did, however, appoint a negotiating committee, staffed mostly with broadcasters who for one reason or another were considered anti-CATV by that industry. After a few preliminary meetings, the NAB group, which was headed by William Grant of KOAA-TV Colorado Springs, Colo., submitted fresh ideas for discussion. The NCTA group at this point walked out. The cable negotiators charged that NAB was attempting to reopen the entire question—whereas they had understood that the negotiations would be confined to clarifying and amplifying the terms of the staff proposals.

Last November the NAB unit was ordered by the association's board to make another attempt to get together with their cable TV opposite numbers. Approval for its committee to accept this invitation was given to the CATV committee in mid-November; and as of this writing plans were being made for the two groups to meet again.

What indeed sent the CATV industry's morale to new heights in 1969 was the FCC's action in October when it adopted rules that would require cable systems with 3,500 or more subscribers to originate programs, to go into effect by Jan. 1, 1971. The commission also specified that cable operators would also be permitted to sell advertising, to be used at "natural breaks" in the programs. Two FCC spokesmen, Sol Schildhaus, who is chief of the FCC's CATV task force, and Mrs. Ruth Reel, who is with the general counsel's office, defined natural breaks as the beginning and end of programs, as well as intermissions.

The commission, which placed no restrictions on the type of programs to be originated by cable systems, noted, however, that various FCC provisions would be made applicable—equal time, sponsorship-identification, and the fairness doctrine.

The FCC's move, when effective, will lift various restrictions on local programming imposed on cable TV systems by franchising authorities. In New York, for example, CATV originations are limited to public service and documentary programs.

At the end of 1969, only about 10% of the 2,000-odd CATV systems were engaged in local origination of programs. Many more than that, however, do provide passive originations, like weather, time, news, etc.

The commission did not rule, however, on various other pending proposals that would among other things require cable operators to lease unused channels to others on a common carrier basis. It did say, nonetheless, that systems should be encouraged to lease channels, and perhaps ultimately to be required to do so to provide diversity in programs, as well perhaps in the control of media of communications.

These, as well as the origination issue, were all elements of the FCC proceeding initiated in December 1968 that called for such other regulations as limiting origination to a single channel, banning CATV and television station cross-ownership in the same market, requiring that permission must be secured from originating TV stations for programs imported by CATV system within 35 miles of major-city TV stations.

The commission noted, also, that it was offering a period of experimentation before deciding whether to impose more specific regulations on CATV originations, such as hours, categories, type of equipment and technical standards.

Noted with high interest by cable TV operators—and by broadcasters—was the point made by Mrs. Reel, that nothing in the regulations prohibit CATV systems from making an extra charge for an original programming channel, or even a per-program fee. This, of course, raised the specter of pay TV.

As to interconnection, the commission said it would oppose any prohibition on regional or national interconnection for any purpose including the distribution of entertainment programming.

Answering broadcasters' fears, the commission said it saw no harm coming to broadcast television from CATV originations or interconnections. But, it added, it was prepared to act to preserve free-broadcast service to the public should adverse effects on regular broadcasting develop.

The sale of advertising, the commission said, should have no impact on TV stations; it may on radio stations, the FCC noted. In that case, the commission said, it would take whatever action is necessary to succor radio.

Within a week after the commission took its action on the CATV-origination issue, it authorized cable TV to use 12.7 to 12.95 gc for local distribution of CATV programming in lieu of the most costly cable trunklines to subscribers.

It also approved the use of the same frequencies, called the Cable Antenna Relay Service (CARS), for the transmission of CATV-originated programming. Previously CARS had been restricted to the relay of broadcast-only signals.

The new service, named Local Distribution Service, grew out of the proposal advanced by Teleprompter Corp. to use microwave frequencies for the distribution of CATV service to apartment houses, particularly in cities where the telephone service was underground and where experience had shown that cable TV companies were going to have to pay substantially for permission to use telephone company ducts. Teleprompter, a multiple CATV owner that is 16% owned by Hughes Aircraft Co., is merging with H&B American Corp., another multiple-CATV group owner. The amalgamation, if approved by the FCC, will result in Teleprompter owning 88 CATV systems serving more than 350,000 subscribers, by far the largest entity in CATV.

The new over-the-air CATV service (which seems to be a contradiction in terms), provides for the distribution of TV signals coming from a transmitter to one or more receiving sites from where it will go to subscribers' homes by cable.

The cable TV industry's relations with the telephone companies—whose poles are used to string cables—is longstanding and sensitive. So touchy is this relationship that whenever something comes along that bears hope that the telephone company can be circumvented, cable TV operators become excited by the possibilities.

One such potential is the use of satellites to provide relay facilities for interconnection of systems without having to rent circuits from the telephone company or having to put up their own microwave relay towers.

As in the use of the 12-mc band for short hops, again it was Teleprompter that leaped at the potential. Irving B. Kahn, Teleprompter's chairman-president, joined in the call for a domestic system early in October shortly after Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, regvanized the dormant idea of a domestic system by calling for a broadcaster-owned facility. Dr. Stanton's call came shortly after the hike in AT&T rates for network connections to affiliates—amounting to an extra $15 million a year—went into effect.

As the Communications Satellite Corp. met with networks and others to discuss the possibilities, Mr. Kahn issued his call for a CATV-owned-and-operated domestic satellite system. He disclosed in a speech he made in Hollywood that he had asked Hughes Aircraft to study the feasibility of such a system. Hughes Aircraft, besides being a substantial owner of Teleprompter, also is the firm that built the first synchronous satellites for Comsat.

CATV, Mr. Kahn stressed, did not want to be placed in "bondage" to the networks or to Comsat in the use of a domestic satellite system.

He foresaw the need for one ground station to serve each of 88 cable TV systems in 27 states. This number, interestingly enough, is the total number of systems Teleprompter would own following its merger with H&B American Corp.

Mr. Kahn's activities in the use of the radio spectrum to overcome CATV's dependence on telephone companies is symptomatic of the cable industry's long-standing struggle to overcome telephone company power over CATV systems. Particularly, for a long time, cable operators were fearful of the practice by Bell system and independent telephone companies of constructing CATV lines and then leasing them to cable TV operators. The CATV industry's campaign bore fruit when the FCC issued an order telling the telephone companies that they would first have to get permission before they could build CATV systems for lease. This decision, issued in June of 1968, was appealed to the federal appeals court in Washington, and when that court upheld the commission's action, the General Telephone Co. and the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review. Both claimed that cable TV was intrastate in nature and therefore not subject to federal regulation.

In October the Supreme Court declined to review the case, leaving the lower court decision in force.

Almost immediately, AT&T issued an announcement that it was relaxing its CATV policies to make pole-line attachment rights available to all legally qualified franchise holders at "appropriate" charges, to make underground conduits accessible under proper procedures, and to modify its tariffs for CATV channel service as well as pole attachment agreements to delete any prohibitions as to the type of programs that might be carried.

Originally, the Bell companies had forbidden more than one CATV system to attach its lines on poles; in a number of situations this complicated the establishment of cable service in communities where more than one CATV franchise was granted. Also there were included in such agreements, as well as in leases for circuits, a provision banning CATV systems from carrying anything but off-air TV signals or automated time-weather-news programs. The AT&T statement was followed soon by a similar announcement from General Telephone & Electronics Corp.

But what brightened the eyes of the entire cable industry was the Electronic Industries Association filing with the FCC last fall. This predicted unequivocally that the future domestic telecommunications added up to a wired nation, serving homes and offices with all sorts of services from TV to shopping.

Implicit in the EIA document is the demise of broadcasting over the air as it is known today. This was acknowledged by both John P. Thompson, senior research associate of Arthur D. Little Inc., who was chairman of the blue-ribbon EIA committee that drafted the document, as well as by Richard P. Gifford, general manager of GE's communications systems division, who was a member of the committee. Mr. Thompson said he doesn't see the disappearance of TV and radio before the turn of the century; Mr. Gifford said he felt that there would always be a need for AM and FM to reach people in moving vehicles.

But both agreed there would be no need for today's "massive" over-the-air broadcasting system after the broadband communications system envisioned by EIA was in existence.

Broadcasters were aghast at the EIA position, although it was quickly noted that the electronics group filing the papers, the Industrial Electronics Division, represented a large segment of the land-mobile forces which, for the last number of years, has been seeking portions of the TV spectrum.

One TV network official, when he heard of the EIA filing, commented: "I think they're nuts." CATV operators, on the other hand, were delighted.

In substance, EIA asked the FCC to provide the regulatory climate to permit two wired telecommunications systems to grow. One is a 1-mc, switching network combining today's telephone, picturephone and facsimile services, with limited access to computer keyboards; the second, called Broadband

Communications Network (BCN) would be a 300-mc wide distribution service to homes, offices, government, etc., for such services as broadcast TV, first class mail, transportation information, educational material, locally originated entertainment and information programs, library books, business and personal transactions, merchandise displays, news services, publication material and computer data exchange services—all on a discrete-address, point-to-point basis, plus third-class mail, selected visual data of limited public interest, classroom instructional material, news releases, all on a multiple address, point-to-point basis. Both of the BCN services, EIA noted, should have "limited" capability for returning information to a central sources.

On a cost basis, EIA calculated that the switched, two-way, telephone-video system would run from $6,000 to $10,000 per station; the BCN installations, on the other hand, would run about $240 per home or office. In estimating that the investment would amount to nearly $25 billion, EIA assumed that there would be one telephone-video facility for each 100 office telephones today, equal to an expenditure of $13 billion, and that 50% of the nation's homes would be wired for BCN, adding up to an $11 billion investment.

The EIA document was premised on the committee's concept of U.S. lifestyles in the 1980's, and the committee figured that the introduction of the systems it suggested would result in a saving of $50 billion yearly through a reduction in air travel, auto travel, for mail service and for recreation; it also counted in this saving better police and fire protection through the improved communications facilities.

Heartening also to the CATV industry was the conclusions of the President's Task Force on Communications Policy, named by President Johnson in 1968, that found that CATV promises diversity in TV programing. The task force report, submitted to President Nixon early in 1969, was officially made public late in March at the request of Representative Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.), whose communications subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee held hearings on prospective regulations on CATV.

The task force termed the FCC's regulations and proposed rules on CATV "unduly restrictive." This point of view was repeated during the committee hearings by Eugene V. Rostow, former undersecretary of state who had been chairman of the Task Force.

The Macdonald hearings were one side of the CATV coin; the other is copyright. CATV from its inception pays no license fees to copyright holders; in fact it won a U.S. Supreme Court victory holding that cable TV systems were not liable for infringement suits. But, for the last several years the Congress has been working on a revision of the 1909 copyright law, and in fact the House already had passed such a revamped law, but with no mention of CATV.

The Senate's consideration of this bill has awaited some accommodation among broadcasters, copyright owners and CATV operators. When the NAB-NCTA staff agreement seemed to evaporate, Senator John McClellan (D-Ark.), who is chairman of the Copyright Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, instructed his staff to work up a CATV proposal.

The CATV provisions in the new copyright bill recommended in mid-December by the Senate Subcommittee on Patents, Copyrights and Trade Marks, provides among other Christmas goodies a compulsory license for CATV and a scale of payments that most cable TV spokesmen said they could live with.

The bill (S-543), which will be considered by the parent Senate Judiciary Committee this year, imposes copyright liability on all CATV systems. It also establishes two categories of carriage of TV stations—in the top 50 markets, CATV systems are permitted to carry seven TV station signals, three network, three independent and one non-commercial; in the remainder of the markets, however, CATV's will be permitted to carry only three network, two independent and one non-commercial.

It also sets fees to be paid into a central fund that range from 1% of the first $40,000 gross annual revenues to 5% on revenues over $160,000.

As much as the proposal delighted CATV operators, it depressed broadcasters and copyright representatives. NAB's Vincent T. Wasilewski vowed to fight it. The Association of Maximum Service Telecasters called it "unacceptable." And copyright owners were known to be aghast.

Extent of Broadcast Editorializing

A nationwide survey for the BROADCASTING Yearbook indicates that nearly 50% of AM and TV stations are now editorializing at least occasionally, but that only about 37% of FM's are doing so. The editorializing survey data was obtained from the Yearbook questionnaire sent to all radio and TV stations. Here are the results:

	AM	FM	TV
Stations editorializing	1,681	725	219
Stations answering editorializing question	3,465	1,986	449
Percent editorializing	48.5%	36.5%	48.8%
Percent editorializing daily	7.1%	3.4%	11.6%
Percent editorializing weekly	4.8%	4.1%	9.6%
Percent editorializing occasionally	36.6%	29.0%	27.2%

Source: Radio Advertising Bureau from Radio Expenditure Reports. All figures shown are gross before deduction of any discounts or agency commission. * The estimated expenditures by Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co. in this report are based on a special survey by Radio Expenditure Reports during 1968. Heretofore Radio Expenditure Reports had not specified Sears, Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and other major retail chains that operate nationally or regionally in their expenditure questionnaires. This has been corrected and future reports will enable RAB to provide estimates of total expenditures by advertisers in this category.

The 'Broadcasting' Guide to Spot Planning

The spot-planning process consists of four steps: (1) determining the advertiser value of local markets; (2) calculating the delivery of national media in those markets; (3) identifying the markets where national advertising weight is insufficient; (4) estimating the volume and cost of the spot placements that are called for. The following data is all the spot planner needs. As indicated in the separate tables, the sources are the American Research Bureau, Beltsville, Md., and The Katz Agency, New York, station representative. In sequence, here are the sections of this guide:

1. The Television Markets. These are markets as defined by ARB's Area of Dominant Influence, listed in alphabetical order and containing individual county figures for television homes, demographics for the market and capsule listings of the stations serving each market. See also Map of The Television Markets on pages 56-57.

2. The Markets Ranked by Size. These show the distribution of U.S. population by television area.

3. The TV Markets Matched with Sales Areas. For each market are shown the proportions of its television homes falling within counties of A,B,C or D size.

4. Product Usage in TV Markets. These figures isolate for individual markets the amount of consumption of 13 major product categories.

5. How Network Delivery Varies by Market. This table shows how each TV network scores in individual markets in the critical day parts. It can be used in calculating where more spot weight is needed.

6. TV Market Costs Per Gross Rating Point. This is a planner's short cut for computing the cost of television schedules.

7. Radio Market Budget Estimator. This is a planner's short cut for computing the cost of radio schedules.

The Television Markets

Here, in alphabetical order, are the 205 markets defined by ARB as Areas of Dominant Influence. According to ARB's formula, each county in the U.S. is exclusively assigned to a single market, based upon dominant coverage of the county by the stations originating in the market. In each market are shown the stations, their cities of license, their channel numbers and network affiliation. (Networks in parentheses indicate secondary affiliations.) Also shown are the counties composing the market and the number of television households. Demographic totals are for the market as a whole.

California Television Areas

The American Research Bureau has defined ten distinct "Areas of Dominant Television Influence" in California. These areas consist of all counties in which the home market stations receive a larger combined share-of-audience than the combined share of adjacent market stations. For example the Sacramento / Stockton TV stations are the stations most watched in 19 counties.

When you plan your next budget . . . budget right for California's 3rd largest TV Market!

"I don't see any GUNSMOKE in my room," complained the gentleman in room 206 at the Downtown Motor Inn, Marshall, Minn. 🌿 That's because you keep aiming your tv dial at the Minneapolis channels, which don't get into these parts, explained the helpful desk clerk. You're in KELO-LAND now. From here on, keep your dial aimed at KELO-LAND TV. 🌿 From here on? asked the gentleman in room 206. 🌿 Well, for the next 74,000 square miles anyhow, replied the helpful night clerk. 🌿 Thanks, pardner, said the gentleman in room 206, aiming his tv dial at channel 11, Sioux Falls.

The SIOUX FALLS/KELO-LAND market is a 92-county trading area, of well over a million population, radiating from Sioux Falls, S.D. It lies between the Minneapolis market and the Omaha market, neither of whose tv signals penetrate it. Its one total-coverage facility is KELO-LAND TV. Your tv ad on KELO-TV 11 gives you the full market sweep.

Tv Markets Matched with Sales Areas

Advertiser sales data is reported by sales district, region and county size. Media planning uses the TV market as its basic unit. Often these different pieces do not fit together well. The table below deals with the problem of reconciling county-size reporting with television-market definitions.

Counties are placed in different categories according to complicated formulas that take into account population, contiguity, density of population and other factors. The "A" counties are the 26 major metropolitan areas; "B" counties contain the next largest group of cities; "C" counties contain the smaller towns; "D" counties are largely rural.

County-size sales data shows where a brand has its greatest strength, whether it is a big-city, urban or rural brand. Since geographic flexibility is one of the strengths of spot broadcasting, county-size statistics are important inputs for spot planning. For example, if Brand X has an above-average A-market sales potential and national media typically underdeliver in these bigger markets, major-market spot might be recommended to supplement the national effort. Here is where the problem of "fit" occurs.

Market definitions are television markets (ADI's), and each market comprises counties that fall into different county-size groupings. A case in point: The top 20 ADI's are all A-county markets, yet more than 20% of their populations live in non-A counties. So the media planner using spot to increase A-county impression-weight cannot assume that the spot dollars spent in A markets are all contributing to this goal.

The following tabulations from American Research Bureau show the distribution of ADI television households by county size for each ADI market and in incremental groups of 10 markets.

The Television Markets

This map shows the 205 television markets as defined by the American Research Bureau's Areas of Dominant Influence and the 22 other markets where stations are in operation but where home counties are assigned to the ADI of another market.

In the ADI concept each county in the U.S. is assigned exclusively to a television market on the basis of the highest total share of viewing hours in the county to all stations of a market. Exceptions are as follows:

1. A metro county (or the home county of a market with no metro rating area) is not assigned to another market's ADI unless the average station share obtained by stations in the other market is a least 10% greater than the combined share of viewing hours to the home station or stations.
2. In markets where a metro county is split into two sampling units, any portion of the county, even though it is part of the market's metro area, which properly falls within the ADI of an adjacent TV market based upon a dominant share of total viewing hours is allocated to that adjacent ADI, provided that none of the home-market stations is physically located in the county.

Key to symbols: A double-headed arrow indicates a county that is non-contiguous to the market ADI of which it is a part. A broken line around all or a portion of a county identifies the 22 additional market areas that consist of station home counties assigned to another market ADI.

Product Usage in TV Markets

Spot planning takes into account the varying demand for various products in different markets. The table below presents local-market product usage rates as a ratio to the national average of that product's usage. The resulting number pinpoints the markets that offer the greatest per-household opportunity for sale of specific products.

For example, the New York index is 110 for dishwashing soaps and detergents. That indicates that the average New York household uses 10% more of those products than the national average.

These indices provide a means of weighting individual markets when allocating spot dollars. If on a straight population basis New York would receive 10% of a detergent's total advertising weight, the index of 110 would boost New York's share to 11% (110% of 10 is 11).

The following table provides product-usage indices for 13 categories of products and 150 television markets ranked in descending order of size. Because of sample-size requirements the usage data is available only for markets with a reported metro area. But the data relates specifically to American Research Bureau Areas of Dominant Influence and was tabulated from the February-March 1969 sweep.

How Network Delivery Varies by Market

Which markets need spot support, and how much money should be spent, by market, are questions of vital concern to both the national advertiser and the local station. This table provides the audience data critical to these decisions—the local-market performance of network TV average programs.

National advertisers use spot television to increase network advertising weight in specific markets to achieve a predetermined level. These market goals are derived from the advertising budget and the market's share of the brand's projected sales. Thus, a spot schedule is usually indicated where a market has an unusually high brand-sales potential, or where the network weight delivered for the brand is below the national average used in planning, or both.

The first factor, market brand potential, varies by product and cannot be generalized. The second factor, local-market network audiences, must be generalized because planning is based upon next season's anticipated network performance. The prevalence of network "package" buys, which tend to deliver average audience levels, supports average data.

The following tabulation shows the American Research Bureau's Areas of Dominant Influence (ADI) in terms of percent of the total number of U.S. TV households. Also given, in like percentage terms, are the network audiences in each ADI market during daytime and prime-time hours. It is this market audience figure, when compared to the market's share of population, that indicates whether the network commitment will perform above or below the national plan average in that market. For example, the New York market contains 9.88% of total U.S. TV households. The New York audience attracted by the average ABC daytime program is 8.87% of the total national audience the average ABC daytime program attracts. This is the starting point for creating the spot-market list and allocating spot dollars.

A few technical notes: Market definitions are the current ARB ADI. Audience data is from the ARB November 1968 sweep. ADI percents will not exactly total 100% because of rounding.

TV Market Costs Per Gross Rating Point

For advertisers that use gross rating points as the measurement of spot-TV media weight, a useful estimating short cut is the cost-per-rating-point guide. These figures permit the rapid calculation of the budget required to buy any number of gross rating points in market lists of varying depth.

For example, one prime-time gross rating point (of 20-second announcement length) in the top-10 markets costs $750. A 100-GRP schedule would cost $85,000 ($850 X 100).

The costs reported below are planning averages and tend to be high. They should provide adequate margin for actual estimating in 1970.

These figures are from The Katz Agency's Spot Television Cost Summary No. 43. Rates are based on five per week, generally fixed positions for the second most expensive station in each market. This guide is based on American Research Bureau metro ratings. Beginning in 1970 Katz Television will use ARB ratings for TV Areas of Dominant Influence as the base.

Radio Market Budget Estimator

The following tables, provided by The Katz Agency, New York station representative, are designed for estimating spot-radio costs. Katz emphasizes they are not intended to take the place of individual station rate cards.

All costs shown are based on rate cards published in the December 1968 issue of Standard Rate and Data Service's Spot Radio Rates and Data. Costs were computed to the nearest cent, but final figures were rounded to the nearest dollar.

In AM-FM combinations, AM-only rates were used when available. AM plus FM rates were used in those instances where no AM-only rates were published. In interpreting rate cards, the lowest applicable costs were used, including all "special" plans and discounts, but only when clearly applicable to the day part involved. The following day-part definitions apply: traffic time (6-10 a.m. and 3-7 p.m.), daytime (10 a.m.-3 p.m.), and evening (7 p.m.-midnight). Where more than one rate level was available within any day part, the rate applicable to the most time within the day part was used. Where different rates were quoted for morning and afternoon traffic times, the rates were averaged.

Minute Announcements (100% × 12 per week for 13 weeks)

	12 Per Week	18 Per Week	24 Per Week

13 Weeks	100	94	89
26 Weeks	97	91	86
52 Weeks	92	87	82

Estimating Formula

By equating to 100% the cost per announcement of 12 one-minute announcements per week for 13 weeks, the following formula permits estimating the costs of schedules involving different combinations of: length of unit; (Minute announcements, 20/30-Second announcements, 10-second announcements, five-minute program units); times per week (12, 18, 24), and weeks per year (one, 12, 26, 52). This formula is applicable to all three major time buying day parts (traffic time, daytime, evening) and is based on a sampling of 75 markets.

Other Units (20/30-second announcements: 75/80% of minute rates; 10-second announcements: 50% of minute rates; five minute program units: 150% of minute rates).
Caution: This formula is an estimating device only. Discounts, particularly those based on weeks per year, vary a great degree from station to station. About 25% of the stations in this sample offered no weeks per year discount.

TV Programing: Live, Film, Video Tape

The tables below afford comparisons of time devoted to various media of programing in typical weeks of 1969, the previous year, five years earlier and 10 years earlier. The information is obtained from questionnaires returned by television stations and networks.

One-of-a-kind antenna system takes unique skills

You couldn't ask for a more complex TV antenna system than this one-of-a-kind installation—with six RCA antennas on-air from twin masts on John Hancock Center in Chicago. Only the Empire State antenna system by RCA paralleled it in technological involvement.

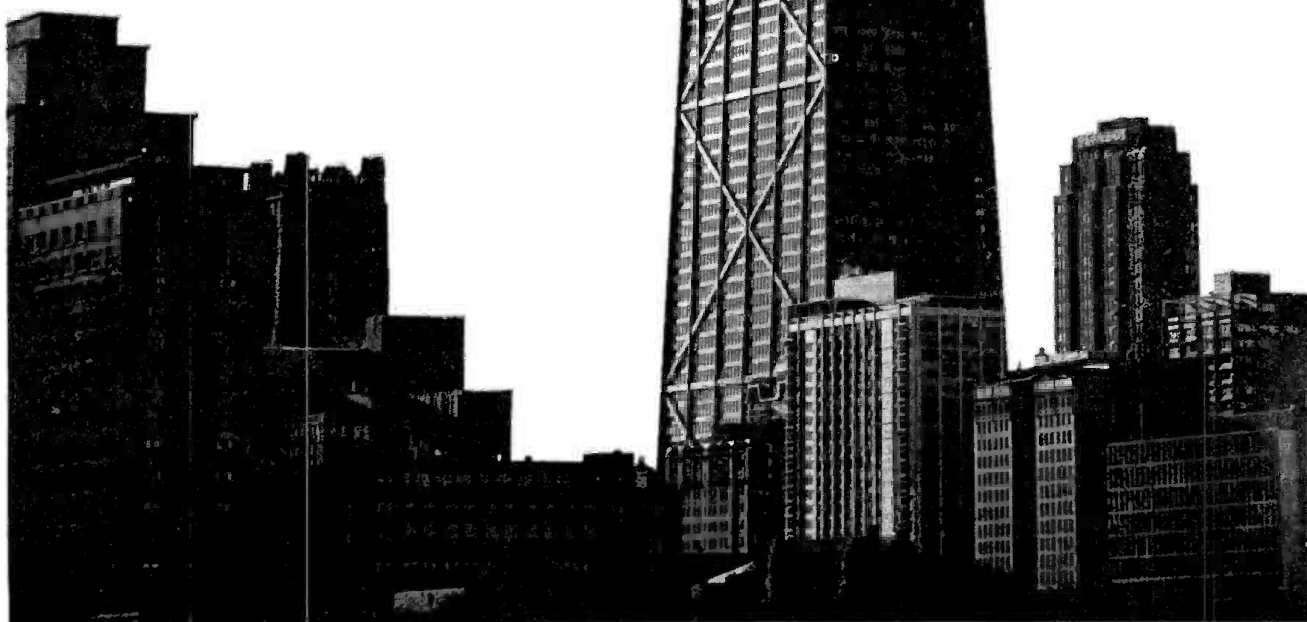

The John Hancock Center has: Two UHF Polygons. A UHF VEE-ZEE. A VHF Zee Panel. A VHF Superturnstile. A VHF Butterfly. Each one is designed to handle maximum authorized ERP. All six can radiate maximum power with minimum inter-reaction. And that's not all: There are provisions in the system for future expansion to a total of 10 antennas!

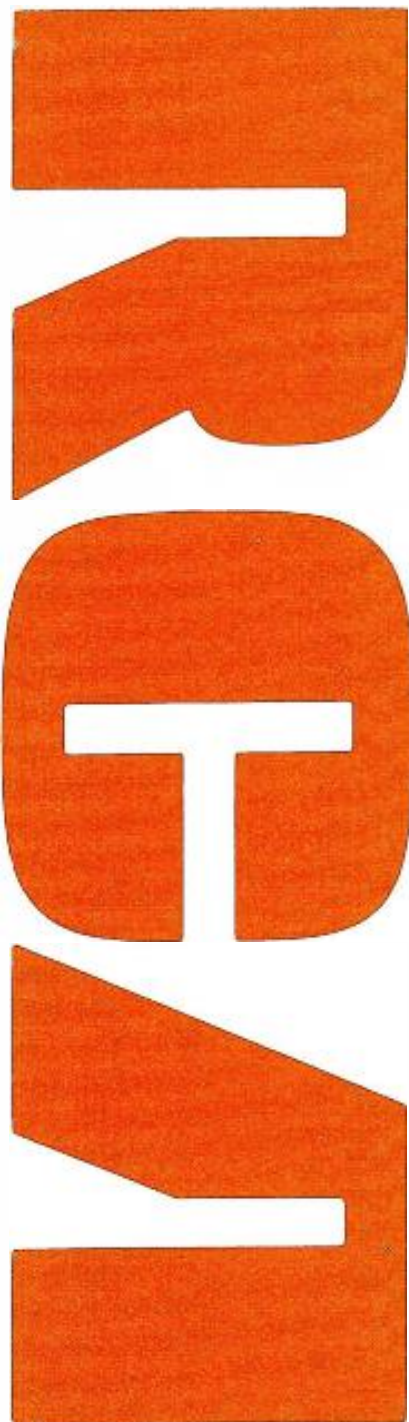

Did you know that almost all multiple antenna installations in the business were RCA-engineered—planned—tested—built—and installed? And that the basic principles of multiple array antenna operation were first evolved at RCA's Gibbsboro Center—world's best equipped and most advanced Antenna Engineering facility. Or that Gibbsboro maintains the industry's largest and most complete computerized store of reference data. RCA's experience and intelligence are readily adaptable to solutions of every kind of antenna problem.

Your antenna is your bridge to business. Call your RCA Broadcast Representative when you begin to think about that installation. Or write RCA Broadcast and Television Equipment, Building 15-5, Camden, N.J. 08102.

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company is owner-developer of John Hancock Center.

The John Hancock Center. Soaring 1,000 feet above the city. Tall testimony to Chicago's restless, daring drive to innovate. Elevate. Get things done in a big way. This, in all ways, is the credo of WGN Television. No wonder, then, that our transmitting antenna will top the Hancock Building. No wonder we continuously search for new ways to serve our city even better. So in the future, as in the proud past, we can say with pride . . .

Sample all America for the price of a metro market!

You can count on Indianapolis for meaningful test market information because its people are a cross section condensation of all the rest of the people in America. What they will buy . . . or not . . . is typical of results you can count on everywhere else. The market is 14th in ADI market sales, and 17th in total sales, according to Sales Management estimates. So, the sample base is a good broad one, too! This, combined with a representative population plus a balanced economy, provides you with a perfect test situation. And there is little or no interference from outside media.

Then, to further polish your purchase, choose The WFBM Stations for resultful coverage! The WFBM Stations are heavy favorites in the Indianapolis market. For proof, check your rating books and contact our KATZ representative.

Pie in the Louisiana sky!

There's no way to show the effective buying income of a Baton Rouge family on a pie chart. But the bar graphs show an average Baton Rouge family has $1,633 more to spend than a New Orleans family. Baton Rouge is first in Louisiana in EBI. Beats out New Orleans, Shreveport (by $1,457), Jackson, Mississippi (by $1,183) and a dozen other cities that you can look up in your Funk and Wagnalls... Spend your advertising money where there's money to be spent... Get your slice of pie from WBRZ-TV!

THE DETROIT WAY

Distributor ignition points, as small as they are, make the vital difference between an automobile running smoothly or not running at all. The small points work like light switches—opening and closing with precise timing. They control the amount and intensity of electric current delivered to the spark plugs. At 65 mph the average set of distributor points flicks on and off 16,000 times per minute.

Detroit found out a long time ago that little things like distributor points make a world of difference in the operation of a car.

The WWJ Stations found out a long time ago that vitality in broadcasting makes the same kind of difference. With it, there's extra spark...there's imagination, innovation, community involvement, pride in accomplishment.

Listeners and viewers know it. So do advertisers. They know that vitality works...to intrigue audiences—and to sell products. And they know that making vitality work is the WWJ/Detroit way of doing things.

Both sides of KOIN come on top in Portland

Choosing the channel that more people watch doesn't have to be a toss-up. Not in the Portland market area. Not when KOIN-TV is the favorite news and entertainment station.

KOIN-TV reaches 26,300 more TV homes than Portland's number two station. KOIN-TV's net weekly circulation is 512,400—55,400 more than the second best circulation. And KOIN-TV also is out in front by 54,400 (or 18%) in average daily circulation.

Pick a category—TV households, adults, young housewives, children, new car buyers, ratings, etc. Then pick KOIN-TV. Cash in.

With a $50,000.00 budget your Aunt Martha could come up with a good 60 second commercial!

But most advertisers, especially the local and regional types who buy KPRC-TV, don't have that kind of money to play with! So, we've built Houston's only complete commercial production facility to provide them with an economical way to properly use television. We have the studios, the color cameras for film and tape sequences, the animation equipment, the laboratories to give them next morning rushes, the electronic ability to fuse film and tape into one, and the imaginative, capable, efficient personnel to do whatever the job is. We've already produced and provided top-flight commercials for Humble Oil & Refining Company, The Duncan Foods Division of Coca-Cola, The Savings and Loan Foundation, Sears, Gordon's Jewelers, Jackson Brewing Company and others. We can deliver on either tape or film but most important, we deliver! We have the concept, the creativity, and the facilities to provide economical, effective television commercials for local and regional advertisers At KPRC-TV Aunt Martha might make it on a lot less than $5000.00!

TV Allocations, State, City

Note: UHF and VHF TV allocations have been made by the FCC to the following cities. A plus or minus after a channel indicates that a station occupying the channel must operate with its carrier frequencies offset 10 kilocycles above or below, respectively, the normal carrier frequencies. The offset indicators are not shown for UHF assignments, which were the subject of a rulemaking adopted June 4, 1965. The designators were to be added in a later order, but had not been published by time the Yearbook went to press. Meanwhile, the appropriate designators are shown on construction permits and licenses issued for UHF stations.

Asterisks (*) indicate channels reserved for noncommercial use.

INTERNATIONAL

The country-by-country information presented below is compiled from various authoritative sources, both official and unofficial. Every effort was made to provide information as up-to-date as possible, but information derived from official government reports, in particular, sometimes tends to be delayed. For the most part, however, the information below is based on reports of the situation as it existed in the first half of 1969.

Aden

One TV station, government-controlled and commercial, services 16,000 TV sets. South Arabian Television Service, Box 1264, Aden.

Argentina

About 32 TV stations are operating. Government, which operates one of four stations in Buenos Aires, licenses channels on one-to-a-customer basis and does not permit simultaneous networking, although stations outside Buenos Aires may buy and present recordings of programs after their Buenos Aires presentation.

Australia

Broadcasting is under dual system, with government operating noncommercial stations and other entities commercial. Commercial radio stations reported at about 110, noncommercial radio at 69. In TV, 43 were operating commercially, while government (Australian Broadcasting Commission) had 39 noncommercial stations in operation. Receiver licenses, required by government, as of June 1969 numbered 2,700,000 for radio-TV combinations. Governing body is Australian Broadcasting Control Board (373 Elizabeth St., Melbourne, C.I. Victoria), headed by Miles Wright, chairman.

TV service includes one government, non-commercial station and one to three commercial stations in 33 areas. Commercial stations follow general U.S. format, selling up to six minutes each hour plus station-break time. Spot messages range from 15 to one-minute; and sponsored programs range from five-minute news to 15, 30 and 60 minute shows. Co-sponsorship permitted in series or as half-sponsorship with spots

Number of stations: 1922-1969

The Radio and Television Audiences

Radio and television were in more U.S. homes than ever before as 1970 approached.

■ Television—A total of 58.5 million homes, or 95.3% of all U.S. homes (excluding Alaska and Hawaii), were TV-equipped as of September 1969, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co. The American Research Bureau estimated the total would be 59,388,600 homes (excluding Alaska) as of January 1970.

■ Color TV.—Homes equipped with color TV sets totaled 22.2 million, or 37.5% of all TV homes, as of Oct. 1, 1969, according to estimates by NBC.

■ Radio.—The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated that

60.6 million U.S. homes, or about 98.6%, were radio-equipped in 1969.

■ Radio Sets.—The number of working-order radio sets in the U.S. totaled 303.4 million in 1969, according to industry estimates. The estimates anticipated this distribution: 218.5 million in homes, 74.9 million in automobiles, 10 million in public places. The new total would represent a gain of 36.4 million, or 13.6%, over the 267 million estimated for 1968.

■ Viewing and Listening.—The extent to which radio and television sets were used is indicated in numerous ways in the tables that follow. The television figures were furnished by the Nielsen company and its Nielsen Television Index (NTI). The radio data came from RAB, NBC and other sources as noted.

Cumulative Audiences: Radio and TV

Cumulative reach of radio is compared with that of television in the following figures from NBC Radio's 1965 Cumulative Radio Audience Method (CRAM) study, made public in 1966. Although the study was conducted primarily to test new research methodology, NBC said it considered these estimates "approximate" but "conservative" benchmarks.

Number (and %) of Different U.S. Adults Reached (18 Years of Age and Over)

	In One Day	In Seven Days
Radio.....	92,100,000 (75.1%)	111,000,000 (90.5%)
Television*.....	80,900,000 (65.9%)	106,500,000 (86.8%)

* TV percentages based on a special Nielsen Television Index tabulation covering in-home viewing only, adjusted to reflect (1) all U.S. individuals 18 years of age and over from both TV and non-TV households, and (2) April TV set usage patterns. NBC's CRAM report said this radio-TV comparison "does not imply that television and radio are equal in impact or effectiveness" but "does suggest that radio's broad reach makes the medium an ideal choice for backing up television advertising."

Minutes of TV Viewing and Radio Listening by TV Viewers

Amount of time that adult viewers (over 18 years of age) spend daily with the broadcast media, by day part and for the day as a whole, is shown in the following tables. In each case the viewers are classified in five groups according to how much time they spend with TV, from the 20% who watch most (at top) in descending order to the 20% who watch least (bottom). TV dominates 6 p.m. to midnight period, but radio has an edge in all other day parts, with the biggest advantage among lighter viewing groups. Data, the most recent available in this form, was prepared for Radio Advertising Bureau by R. H. Bruskin Associates, independent research firm, based on nationwide inter-viewing conducted in July 1964.

HOUR-BY-HOUR variations in television and radio audience sizes are shown in these tables. The TV figures, from Nielsen's NTI data for March-April 1969, show the television audience in terms of percentage of homes tuned in per average minute of each hour, Monday through Sunday. The radio figures, compiled for RAB by Sindlinger & Co. in a 1964 study, represent the percentage of all adults who listen to radio, also hour by hour.

Beeline® Radio really covers the field

All four Beeline stations have broadcast the 49ers' home and away games to the California Inland Valleys and Western Nevada for 12 consecutive years. And the Giants' home and away games for 11 years. Other sports features carried by one or more of the Beeline stations include the World Series, the Indianapolis 500, the Rose Bowl, the Cotton Bowl, the Sugar Bowl, and the East-West All Star games. It is the same way with news coverage . . . Beeline stations have always emphasized news. It is no wonder that listeners who want sports and/or news in the California Inland Valleys and Western Nevada depend on Beeline Radio. This same top quality programming will keep your message before the 2.9 million consumers in this $8.2 billion market.

STOP SWEAR POLLUTION

WGN Trafficopter Reports help keep Chicago's air clean. By spotting jam-ups before people get in them up to their bumpers. By suggesting alternate routes. By giving everyone on wheels an up-to-the-minute picture of the traffic situation—all during the morning and evening rush hours.

The WGN Trafficopter Reports help keep Chicagoans cool under the collar. One more reason why WGN is Chicago.
