JOBS, STEVE

Executive. b. San Francisco, CA, Feb. 24, 1955. Jobs showed an interest in electronics from an early age and pursued his interest as an employee of Atari, the pioneering arcade game company. While at Atari, he met future partner, Steve Wozniak, a whiz at assembling electronic components. By April 1, 1976. Jobs and Wozniak launched Apple Computer, which revolutionized personal computing. Apple made its first public stock sale in 1980, making Jobs a millionaire before he was 30. Jobs left Apple after losing a bitter battle over control with CEO John Sculley, whom Jobs had recruited to Apple. He then founded NeXT, creating workstations for research and higher education. Jobs pulled the plug in 1993 after poor sales of the high-priced workstations, choosing to focus on software. While NeXT struggled, Jobs had success with Pixar Animation Studios, which he bought in 1986 for $10 million. After signing a deal with Disney to produce three movies, Pixar released the immensely successful Toy Story in Nov. 1995. The film was the first feature-length animated movie produced entirely with computers. Jobs became an instant billionaire when Pixar's stock went public. Pixar has won 20 Academy Awards and its films have grossed more than $3.2 billion at the worldwide box office to date. Jobs returned to Apple and is now CEO of both Apple and Pixar. In late Jan. 2006, Walt Disney announced the acquisition of Pixar Animation Studios for approx. $7.4 billion in stock. The deal put Apple Computer CEO Steve Jobs on Disney's board of directors and makes Jobs Disney's largest shareholder.

KING, GRAHAM

Producer, Executive, b. England, Dec. 19, 1961. Raised in London, King came to the U.S. in 1981 on a student visa to study at the Univ. of California in Los Angeles. A summer job in the international TV distribution wing of Twentieth Century Fox led to promotion in foreign sales of B-pictures during a time when the American film and TV industry was opening up to the foreign market. From 1987-1992, he worked for international sales company Cori Films. King then transferred to the Beverly Hills Producers Group, where he met future business partner Cindy Cowan. The two formed Initial Entertainment Group (IEG) in 1995, and began producing such films as Robert Altman's Dr. T & the Women. King soon purchased Cowan's share of the company and began taking chances on pricier films. King currently is pres. & CEO of IEG. The independent finance, production, and distribution company, with King at the helm, was the force that brought Steven Soderbergh's Academy Award-winning Traffic to the big screen; he bought the foreign film rights to Michael Mann's Ali and underwrote Martin Scorsese's Gangs of New York for $65 million. All were critical and box office successes. His willingness to gamble and ability to deliver at the box office put him among today's most successful producers. At the 2007 Academy Awards, King won a Best Picture Oscar for the ensemble crime thriller The Departed.

KING, ROGER

Executive. The king of TV syndication, Roger King's career included stints as newspaper sales representative, radio station manager, TV series host and TV station sales manager before being named chairman of the board in 1977 of the TV syndication company his father founded: King World. Under Roger King's guidance, King World became the preeminent distributor of first-run, syndicated programming, and has played a leadership role in the overall growth of the TV syndication business. King spearheaded the launch, sales and marketing efforts of such landmark programs as "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy!", the two highest-rated series in syndication, and daytime's #1 and #2 talk series, "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and "Dr. Phil." When King World Productions merged with CBS in Jan. 2000, King became chief executive of the new company. In late Sept. 2006, CBS Corporation formed the CBS Television Distribution Group, an entity that combined CBS Paramount Domestic Television, King World and CBS Paramount International Television. Klein began his TV career in 1980 as a news producer at WLNE in Providence, R.I., and the following year moved to a similar position at WPXI-TV/Independent Network News in New York. In 1982, joined CBS News as writer/news editor on the overnight broadcast, Nightwatch. He subsequently served as broadcast producer on CBS Morning News and then CBS Evening News Weekend Edition, where he won an Emmy Award for live coverage of the 1986 Reagan/Gorbachev summit in Reykjavik, Iceland. In 1988, Klein became field producer on prime-time magazine series 48 Hours, and won an Emmy Award for coverage of Hurricane Hugo and a Peabody Award for an hour he produced on the anti-abortion movement. Klein served as sr. producer for CBS' 1990 late-night series America Tonight with Charles Kuralt and Lesley Stahl as sr. producer for 1991 coverage of Gulf War; and later for the documentary Back to Baghdad. In 1993, Klein launched a prime-time documentary series, Before Your Eyes, with a two-hour movie-of-the-week format that explored social issues such as child abuse, AIDS and juvenile delinquency through the eyes of real people living through dramatic moments with the cameras rolling. The series, which Klein exec. produced and directed, was acclaimed for pioneering new forms of storytelling and received numerous national awards. In 1997, Klein conceived and executive produced the CBS documentary, Inside the Jury Room, in which network TV cameras were permitted for the first time to observe deliberations in a criminal trial. The documentary won a Columbia-DuPont Silver Baton. Klein also wrote the story for the TNT Original film, Buffalo Soldiers, a 1997 historical drama starring Danny Glover. In 1999, Klein became the pres. & CEO of The FeedRoom, a broadband video company he founded. Under his direction, The FeedRoom became one of the leading online broadcasters in the world, delivering more than 1 million video clips each day to customers including CBS, NBC, ESPN, Reuters, Tribune television stations and newspapers, USA Today, Business Week, General Motors, Cisco Systems, Sun Microsystems, General Mills and the U.S. Department of Defense. In Nov. 2004 Klein assumed his current position of pres. CNN/U.S. and is responsible for management oversight of all programming, editorial tone and strategic direction of the network. He reports to Jim Walton, president of CNN Worldwide.

KLIN, JACK M.

Executive. b. West Point, NY, Dec. 11, 1950. e. B.A. degree in psychology, Univ. of Tampa. Kline received engineering training as a Combat Engineer Officer, United States Marine Corps, 1972 - 1976, and was honorably discharged as Captain. Kline joined Christie Digital Systems USA, Inc. in 1979 as a national sales representative. He was promoted to v.p., sales and marketing in 1988. In 1992, Kline helped engineer the merger of Christie with Xenon lamp manufacturer Ushio, Inc., a move that transformed the $4 million organization into a $97 million corporation operating on an international scale. In 1997, Jack was named executive v.p. & COO and he was appointed to his present position as president & COO in 1999. Among Kline's major accomplishments were Christie's new acquisition strategies that helped to rapidly establish Christie as a major force in the digital projection arena. The acquisition of Canadian digital projector manufacturer Electrohome Projection Systems in 1999 further strengthened Christie's increasingly dynamic leadership role in the industry's global conversion from 35mm film to cutting-edge digital cinema technology. In 2000, Christie became the world's first licensee of Texas Instruments' DLP® cinema technology, a move that catapulted the company from a 35mm analog manufacturer to a global provider of high powered, high performance digital projection products and the global leader in digital cinema development. In 2005, Kline played a critical role in designing the industry's first practical framework for the installation of digital cinema, successfully creating strategic partnerships with major Hollywood studios, exhibitors, projector manufacturers and technology providers that helped launch the digital cinema revolution. Kline is a member of the Society of Motion Picture & Television Engineers (SMPTE), Motion Picture Pioneers, and International Theatre Equipment Association (ITEA).

KROLL, SUE

Executive. e. Glassboro State University in New Jersey, bachelor's degree, communications. Kroll worked seven years in New York for various Viacom divisions, including Showtime Networks Inc., The Movie Channel and Viewer's Choice. At Turner Network Television, she served as senior v.p. & managing dir. of TNT and Cartoon Network and headed up Turner's marketing dept., developing and directing marketing and promotional campaigns for the network and its programs. She joined Warner Bros. in 1994, heading programming & operations for its international channels. In this role, Kroll devised the strategy and launch of the studio's venture into the international branded cable channels business. Her success led to a promotion to the film group, where she became senior v.p., international marketing; she became president, international marketing in 2000. Since that appointment, Kroll has helped lead the division to seven consecutive years, 2001-2007, grossing over $1 billion, with 32 releases each grossing over $100 million internationally in that period. In 2004, Warner Bros. Pictures International crossed the $1 billion threshold in less than six months and went on to become the first studio ever to surpass the $2 billion dollar mark in a calendar year. In 2007, Warner Bros.' box office receipts shattered the record with a $2.4 billion total, both a Warner Bros. and industry record. Warner Bros. combined domestic and international marketing operations in 2008 and promoted Kroll to her current position, president, worldwide marketing, Warner Bros. Pictures. In this new post, she oversees the strategic creation and implementation of marketing campaigns in the U.S. and internationally, and directs all aspects of marketing, advertising, media planning, promotion, publicity and research.

LANDAU, YAIR

Executive, e. Univ. of Chicago, Phi Beta Kappa graduate; Stanford Univ. Graduate School of Business, M.B.A. Before entering entertainment industry, worked with Wasserstein, Perella & Co., a NY-based investment-banking firm. Joined Sony Pictures Entertainment in 1991. During his tenure, he served in many positions including exec. v.p. of corporate development and strategic planning. Served at Sony as vice chairman of Sony Pictures Entertainment and also pres. of Sony Pictures Digital Entertainment, which Landau formed in 1999-2008, bringing together all of Sony Pictures' digital artists and software engineers from Sony Pictures Imageworks, Sony Online Entertainment and Columbia Tristar Interactive into one division. Sony Pictures Imageworks has grown into a leading digital animation and visual effects company creating computer-generated imaging (CGI) for motion pictures. Landau supervised production of Imageworks' first animated short, The Chubbchubbs!, which won an Academy Award for Best Short Film (animated) in 2003. Building on this success, he established Sony Pictures Animation to develop and produce all-CGI animated features for SPE. Sony Online Entertainment has grown into the worldwide leader in massively multiplayer online (MMO) gaming, building upon EverQuest, with Star Wars Galaxies launched in partnership with Lucas Arts in 2003. Through Sony Pictures Digital, Landau developed the technology and formed the five-studio Movielink partnership, the first major studio Internet movie download service, launched in 2002. Most recently, he reorganized Sony Pictures Digital Networks to focus on emerging mobile entertainment, broadband video delivery and media software. Today this group includes Sony Pictures Mobile, SoapCity, and Sony Pictures Integrated Network (SPIN), the studio's online promotional presence. 2008, he will start a new games and animation venture to develop and produce multiplatform content while continuing as an exec. prod. for Sony Pictures Animation.

b. Hollywood, CA, Jan. 12, 1957. e. California Institute of the Arts in Valencia, CA. In 1979 won Achievement Award for Animation of Lady and the Lamp from the Student Academy Awards, USA. Lasseter is a much-nominated animator who has received numerous awards, including an Oscar for Best Animated Short Film, Tin Toy, in 1988 (shared with William Reeves). In 1982 Disney hired Lasseter as an animator. He wanted to pursue computer animation, so in 1984 Lasseter left Disney in order to be on the cutting edge, with the computer animation division of Lucasfilm's Industrial Light and Magic. In 1986, Steve Jobs, co-founder and chairman of Apple Computer, Inc., purchased the computer division of Lucasfilm and incorporated it as an independent company, under the name Pixar Animation Studios. Jobs gave Lasseter the freedom to direct, produce, write, and create models for many projects, many of which were TV commercials. Lasseter directed the studio's first short film, 1986's Luxo, Jr., which starred a desk lamp and its precocious child. In 1988, Lasseter directed the short, Tin Toy, which would make history as the first computer animated film ever to win an Academy Award. Pixar's Toy Story received four Oscar nominations and Lasseter was presented with a Special Achievement Academy Award for his part in bringing the first feature-length computer animated film to the screen. Pixar merged with The Walt Disney in May 2006. Pixar is now a wholly owned subsidiary of The Walt Disney Company, and Lasseter serves as chief creative officer for Pixar Animation Studios and Walt Disney Animation. MURRAY, JONATHAN

Producer, Executive. b. New York, 1955. e. Univ. of Missouri, journalism degree. Murray got his start in local television, spending six years at WLUK-TV, WXIA-TV and WKYC-TV in news, station management (WOKR-TV) and programming. He then worked with the TV rep firm HRP Inc., helping local stations buy and schedule their syndicated programming. In 1991, Murray and Mary Ellis Bunim pitched their idea for an unscripted drama series to MTV executives over breakfast. MTV bought the show before lunch time, and the landmark success of Bunim-Murray Productions was underway. Bunim's experience in scripted dramas with Murray's documentary and news expertise broke all the rules of TV production. The result - The Real World - quickly dominated the youth market. From the Real World's 1992 launch, Murray has created and exec. produced more than 50 seasons and close to 2000 hours of unscripted TV. Despite the loss of Bunim to cancer in early in 2004, Murray continues to lead the company they founded together as its chmn. and pres.

In 1994, became senior v.p., television business management, Warner Bros. Rosenblum also served as executive v.p. of television at Warner Bros.' studio for six years. He was named president, Warner Bros. Television Group (WBTG) in Sept. 2005. In this post, Rosenblum is charged with managing and growing the entire Warner Bros. portfolio of television businesses, including worldwide production, distribution and broadcasting. During his two decades with Warner Bros., Rosenblum has played a vital role in such milestone transactions as the creation of The WB Network and record-establishing license fee negotiations for the hits "ER," "Friends" and "The West Wing." Also one of the key architects of the deal creating a joint venture with CBS Corporation to form a new broadcast network, The CW, and with Barry Meyer, chairman & CEO, Warner Bros., oversees the company's interest in the network. (The WB ceased operating in Sept. 2006.) Under Rosenblum's guidance, the WBTG is rapidly developing new business models for the evolving television landscape, including video-on-demand, broadband, wireless and home video exploitation of its vast television content library. Most recently, WBTG reached digital distribution agreements with ABC, CBS and NBC representing an industry first for a major studio with unaffiliated networks, and formed Studio 2.0, a digital production venture that will create original live-action and animated short-form programming for broadband and wireless devices. In July 2008, Rosenblum announced he would stay with Warner Bros. TV through at least 2013.

Walters is co-owner, co-executive producer and co-host of The View. The View premiered in August 1997 and is broadcast live from New York City. Walters' numerous and timely interviews read like a "Who's Who" of newsmakers. She did the first interview for American television with Russia's President Vladimir Putin and through the years has interviewed such world figures as China's Premier Jiang Zemin, Great Britain's former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Libya's Moammar Qaddafi and Iraq's President Sadaam Hussein. She has interviewed every American President and First Lady since Richard Nixon. She made journalism history by arranging the first joint interview with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin in November, 1977. Another of her "firsts" was an hour-long primetime conversation with Cuban President Fidel Castro — an interview shown all over the world. She has received national recognition for her work, including: The Overseas Press Club's highest award, The President's Award, 1988; induction into the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' Hall of Fame "for being acknowledged worldwide as one of television's most respected interviewers and journalists," 1990, the Lowell Thomas Award for a career in journalism excellence by Marist College, 1990; Lifetime Achievement Award, International Women's Media Foundation, 1991; Salute by the American Museum of the Moving Image, 1992; Lifetime Achievement Award, Women's Project and Productions, 1993; Honored by the Museum of Television & Radio for her contributions to broadcast journalism, 1996; The Muse Award from NY Women in Film and Television, 1997; Lifetime Achievement Award, National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, 2000. Walters is the recipient of honorary doctoral degrees from Sarah Lawrence, her alma mater, as well as Ohio State University, Temple University, Marymount College, Wheaton College, Hofstra University and Ben-Gurion University in Jerusalem. Currently co-host, exec. prod. of The View (2 Emmy Awards, 19 Emmy noms.). Guest: More than 95 appearances.

WINFREY, OPRAH

Executive, TV Talk Show Hostess, Actress, Producer, Philanthropist. b. Kosciusko, MS, Jan. 29, 1954. e. Tennessee State U. Started as radio reporter then TV news reporter-anchor in Nashville. Moved to Baltimore in same capacity, later co-hosting successful morning talk show. Left for Chicago to host own show AM Chicago which became top-rated in only a month; expanded to national syndication in 1986. In 1988, she established Harpo Studios, a production facility in Chicago, making her the third woman in the American entertainment industry, after Mary Pickford and Lucille Ball, to own a studio. Subsequently, Winfrey assumed ownership and production of The Oprah Winfrey Show, and is seen by an estimated 30 million viewers a week in the U.S. and is broadcast internationally in 109 countries. In 1990, Winfrey established Harpo Films, and struck a long-term deal with ABC Television to produce "Oprah Winfrey Presents" TV movies. Harpo Films' 2005 production was "Their Eyes Were Watching God," based on the Zora Neale Hurston novel and starred Oscar winner Halle Berry. In addition to on-camera interview skills, Winfrey debuted her acting acumen in 1985 in Steven Spielberg's "The Color Purple," for which she received both Golden Globe and Academy Award nominations. In 1998, Winfrey co-founded Oxygen Media, a 24-hour cable television network for women (NBC Universal paid $925 million for the Oxygen cable network in Oct. 2007.). In 2000, Winfrey and Hearst Magazines introduced "O, the Oprah Magazine," a monthly women's lifestyle magazine and has more than 2 million readers each month, making "O" one of the most successful new magazines in recent history. A follow-up to "O" launched in 2004 was "O at Home." In Sept. 2002 she debuted "Oprah After the Show," an original unscripted half-hour show taped immediately following "The Oprah Winfrey Show." The series airs on the Oxygen Network. Extending her reach beyond television, Winfrey also operates Oprah.com, a women's lifestyle website that offers comprehensive advice to women; in 2003 she launched an interactive multimedia workshop online, which was based on her "Live Your Best Life" sold-out national speaking tour. In the second half of 2005 the Oprah Winfrey Network, LLC will debut on cable TV. It will be 50/50 owned by Discovery Communications and Harpo. OWN staff and operations will be based in Los Angeles. OWN will be a multi-platform media venture available in more than 70 million homes, and on the award-winning digital platform, Oprah.com.

PHILANTHROPY: Formed The Oprah Winfrey Foundation in 1987, to support the education & empowerment of women, children and families in the U.S. and around the world. Winfrey has awarded hundreds of grants to organizations that carry out this vision. In 1997, Winfrey established "Oprah's Angel Network," a public charity to encourage people to use their lives to make a difference in the lives of others. One hundred percent of audience donations go to non-profit organizations around the world. Winfrey initiated the National Child Protection Act in 1991, which culminated in the establishment of a national database of convicted child abusers. On Dec. 20, 1993, Pres. Bill Clinton signed the national "Oprah Bill" into law. For all her efforts to enrich, enlighten, educate and entertain others, Winfrey has been the recipient of numerous awards and recognitions.

AWARDS/RECOGNITION: George Foster Peabody Awards, Individual Achievement, 1995; International Radio & Television Society Foundation, Gold Medal Award, 1996; TV Guide, Television Performer of the Year, 1997; Newsweek, Most Important Person in Books and Media, 1997; Time Magazine, 100 Most Influential People of the 20th Century, 1998; National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, Lifetime Achievement Award, 1998. (The following year, after accepting the lifetime achievement honor, Winfrey removed herself from future Emmy consideration and the show followed suit in 2000. Oprah and "The Oprah Winfrey Show" received nearly 40 Daytime Emmy Awards: seven for outstanding host, nine for Outstanding Talk Show; 21 in the Creative Arts categories; and one for Oprah's work as supervising producer of the ABC After School Special, "Shades of Single Protein."); the National Book Foundation, 50th Anniversary Gold Medal, 1999; the "Broadcasting & Cable" Hall of Fame, 2002; the 54th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, Bob Hope Humanitarian Award, 2002; Association of American Publishers, AAP Honors Award, 2003; National Assoc. of Broadcasters, Distinguished Service Award, 2004; Hall of Fame Honoree at the 36th NAACP Image Awards, 2005, Time Magazine, 100 Most Influential People in the World, 2004-2007. PICTURES: The Color Purple (debut, 1985; Academy Award nom.; Golden Globe nom. 1986), Native Son, Throw Momma From the Train (cameo), Listen Up: The Lives of Quincy Jones, Malcolm X, Beloved, Charlotte's Web (voice), Bee Movie (voice), The Great Debaters (prod. only).

In June 1994, named executive asst. to the president, ABC Television Network. 1995, appointed executive asst. to the president, ABC, Inc. In Sept. 1997, expanded duties with a promotion to vice president & executive asst. to the president, ABC, Inc. By 1998, she was appointed vp., alternative series & specials, ABC Entertainment, and in 2000 was promoted to senior vp. By May 2004, Wong was exec. vp., alternative programming, specials and late night, ABC Entertainment. In that role, Wong's non-scripted programming for ABC received both critical acclaim and huge viewership. The first franchise Wong brought to the network which became a true pop culture phenomenon was the relationship reality series, "The Bachelor," and its sister show, "The Bachelorette." Since it launched in 2002, more than 14 editions of the franchise have successfully aired. In June 2005, she brought the UK phenomenon, "Dancing with the Stars," to American audiences — and the hit show has consistently topped the competition with record ratings. Another of her series, "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," has won two Emmys for Outstanding Reality Program. In the specials area, Wong led the team that brought country music's crown jewel to ABC in 2006 — "The CMA Awards." Wong was named president and CEO, Lifetime Networks, in April 2007 and oversees all the day-to-day operations for Lifetime Television, Lifetime Movie Network, Lifetime Real Women and Lifetime Digital (including myLifetime.com), including advertising sales, affiliate sales, research, programming, public affairs, marketing, business and legal affairs, and strategic planning and operations.
